The world has discovered that the bonds of ignorance and superstition have been holding it for centuries, and that its eyes of understanding have so long been covered that now they blink in the dazzling light of the dawning Millennial Day. At one bound the so-called scientific world has left God's Word and leaped into a refined agnosticism, which professes a faith not possessed. The middle and the lower classes are ever ready to follow their leaders; this means, very shortly, what the Scriptures predict—"a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation"—a social, religious, financial, political upheaval—anarchy.

Thank God for the assurance of His Word that the storm will be a brief one! "A short work will the Lord make with the earth." Everything has been prepared for the establishment of the Millennial Kingdom upon the ruins of present systems. It is folly to think of holding the people back, of bandaging the eyes of their understanding, and of enslaving them again with ignorance and superstition. Those who are thus endeavoring to meet the situation show clearly that they do not understand it. The tidal wave of liberty of mind can no more be repressed than can the ocean tide be stayed with a broom.

There is just one remedy—the correct understanding of the Bible teachings. Whoever fails to receive the Truth fails of everything with respect to the present life. This statement applies not only to the world in general but also to the entire Church of Christ.

The hour of trial predicted to come upon the whole world is now upon us; and the Apostle Peter's declaration is that it must begin with the Church—the House of God. (1 Peter 4:17.) The statement of the Prophet is that one thousand will fall to one that will stand—"A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee." (Psalm 91:7.) St. Paul's exhortation respecting the same time of trial is, "Take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the Evil Day, and having done all, to stand." (Ephesians 6:11-13.) Who shall be able to stand? is the question.

We are not able to tell the wonderful measurements of God's Love—nor can others tell them. Indeed, as the Apostle suggests, the privilege of appreciating these measurements is granted only to the saints, and to these in proportion to their maturity. Thus a babe in Christ, though beloved of the Lord and carefully cherished, cannot comprehend these measurements of the Divine character, because he is only an infantile saint.

When first he believed in the Lord, he saw something of Divine Love and Mercy, which influenced him, drew him to the exercise of faith and the renouncement of sin. From the standpoint of Justification by Faith, he could see more of the Lord and could appreciate more the measurements of Divine greatness. Then, called and appreciating the call, he bowed his heart before the Lord and made a full surrender to Him in response to the invitation, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Romans 12:1.

Having thus done all in his power and having laid himself at the Lord's feet, he received the begetting of the Holy Spirit, not with outward show or demonstration, but with inward grace and enlightenment of the eyes of his understanding. From this new standpoint of consecration and harmony with the Divine will, he began to see more of the length, more of the breadth, more of the height, more of the depth of God's Love. If he has lived up to his privileges faithfully, he has been growing hourly daily, monthly, yearly—growing in grace, in knowledge, in ability to see these measurements of the Divine character.

Note that this is the very expression of our text and context: The reception of Christ into our hearts by faith brought, as a rule, mighty strengthening by His Spirit in the inner man—to the new nature. As this Spirit of Christ dwelt, or resided, in our hearts by faith, it tended to root us and to ground us in His character-likeness, which is the same as that of His Father—Love. This experience enables us to comprehend with all saints these measurements of our Creator's character as others cannot appreciate them. Yet, as the Apostle says, even we who now know only in part shall, after experiencing the resurrection change from earthly to Heavenly nature, see our Lord as He is, and shall know as we are known. How grand will be this consummation!

So our text, which applies to the present life, the Apostle declares that even the saints cannot know the Love of Christ; for it passes knowledge. He then gives a further intimation of how this keen appreciation of the glorious character of God comes to His consecrated ones—by their being "filled with all the fulness of God." This means, not only the renouncement of sin, not only faith in the Lord as our Redeemer, not only consecration to Him, but also a filling with His Spirit, His mind, His disposition. This, as already stated, is a gradual work. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord."

The Spirit of the Lord in one of holiness—not only of separateness from sin, but of opposition to it; not only of sympathy with righteousness, but of activity on its behalf; not only of putting away from our hearts every sympathy with the unfruitful works of darkness, but also of the receiving of that spirit which condemns them by daily life and a word fitly spoken; not only by an appreciation of the fruits and graces of God's Spirit—meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love—but to grant an appreciation of them as more and more indwells us to stamp these gracious characteristics of Divinity upon our own thoughts, words and deeds.

Not only did the great Apostle Paul preach Christ and show out to declare the whole counsel of God, but he never once retreated to eternal torment or anything akin to it—and his writings constitute more than one-half of the New Testament Scriptures! The severest penalty that he ever declared is that of everlasting destruction—the Second Death, from which there is no hope of deliverance. Undoubtedly he was right in this course. On the contrary, he preached and wrote not only about the length and breadth and height and depth of the love of Christ, but in the context he tells us that he prayed for the Church, that they might be able to attain such and more of the Love of God. Undoubtedly this is the great need of the Church to-day.

Let us all pray, not only for ourselves, but also for each other, a wider opening of the eyes of our understanding and a fuller comprehension of the length, the breadth, the height and the depth of the Love of God in Christ. From this attainment come our blessings. The light from the great Sun of Righteousness, which shortly is to flood the world, will be "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God"—of Divine Mercy and Love.

"Jesus, my Lord, Thou are my Life,
My rest in labor, strength in strife;
Thy love begets my love of Thee;
Thy fulness that which filleth me.

"Mine effort vain, my weakness learned,
Weary, from self to Christ I turned,
Content to let His fulness be
An unbought fulness unto me.

"Life's heavenly secret was revealed—
In Christ all richness are concealed.
We try and fail; we ask, He gives,
And in His rest our spirit lives."

COULD NOT GO TEN STEPS

FOR THE PAIN IN HIS KIDNEYS.

When you get a pain in the back you may rest assured that it comes from derangement of the kidneys, for were there not something wrong with the kidneys the back should be strong and well.

Doan's Kidney Pills regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist. What more needs to be said? While Doan's Kidney Pills are not a "balm for every ill that flesh is heir to," they are a positive, never-failing remedy for every disease that has its inception in the improper action in those delicate little filters of the blood, the kidneys.

Mr. Adelard Cleroux, Eganville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for four years. They were so bad, at times, I could not go ten steps for the pain they caused me. My doctor could not do me any good. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought five boxes, and now I have been cured for over three years. I will recommend them to whoever may be suffering from kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

FEW FOLKS HAVE GREY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns grey, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

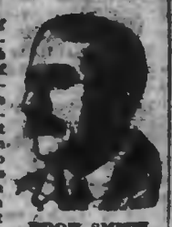
Constipation, Indigestion and Horrible Backaches

Searched for a Cure for Years—Advised to Try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Was Cured.

Where there is poison there is pain. This is a provision of Nature to warn you against conditions that are likely to prove serious.



PROF. SMITH.

Constipation of the bowels is undoubtedly the greatest source of disease and suffering. By using one of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at bed-time as often as is necessary to keep the bowels regular you can cure constipation and the consequent indigestion, and remove the cause of backache, rheumatism and other painful diseases.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the greatest law of health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you to form this habit, and to your years, and bring comfort in old age.

Professor A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes:—"I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors, without any results. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear, and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth."

RESPONSE IS HEARTY.

Britons Oversubscribe Greatest Loan In Nation's History.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Lloyd George, in the House yesterday afternoon, gave official confirmation to reports that the British war loan of $1,750,000,000, for which bonds were issued, has been oversubscribed.

The Chancellor gave no figures. He said, however, that a feature of the loan was the enormous number of individuals, totaling nearly 100,000, who had made application for small sums. These, the Chancellor declared, would receive the first allotments. He added that the loan is the largest ever raised.

In the course of a statement concerning financial conditions in the country, the Chancellor stated that the financial deadlock which followed the outbreak of the war was due to inability to collect outstanding debts abroad. "We can neither buy nor sell, although the whole world owes us money."

As an instance, Mr. Lloyd George referred to the United States, which, he said, owed Great Britain about a thousand millions sterling.

STARTING A HOSPITAL.

One Hundred Canadian Doctors Are Now Busy In France.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Arthur Leech, The Daily News' war correspondent, wires that the advance guard of the Canadian contingent who left here at the beginning of the month, has arrived in northern France. It consists of 100 doctors, who have gone over to establish a Canadian hospital, which, he says, promises to be one of the most magnificently equipped of the many which have come from England, Australia, America and India. The spot chosen by the Canadians is a favorite seaside resort, and their building is the club house of a golf club. Many of the contingent are French-Canadians from Quebec, and this place lies on the edge of the great forest of Hardelot. The medical staff took possession of the building Thursday, he adds, "and we promised the feat of hustling in its speedy equipment in order that at any moment they may be ready for administering to the fine force of men who have come to aid the nation in its hour of need."

Peace Not Wanted.

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—The Cologne Gazette, commenting yesterday on a newspaper despatch dealing with the renewed peace talk, says as follows:

"It is premature to talk about peace, and it strikes us as frivolous. No German diplomat and no German soldier thinks of concluding an illusory peace with the powers which we have beaten and confidently hope to continue beating.

"In Germany everybody from the Kaiser to the day laborer is determined to make a clean score this time."

It Was and Did.

Jim Brown lives in a community noted for the corruption of its politics. He drove into town the other day with an old horse.

"Hello!" said his friend Bill. "That horse of yours looks almost old enough to vote."

"Ye-as," drawled Jim. "He has voted two or three times."

PURITY OF THE AIR.

An English Scientist Attacks Our Theories of Ventilation.

Greenhow, the English scientist, attacks one of the most cherished of our hygienic notions with a logic that compels respectful attention. His contention is that efficient ventilation does not depend upon the chemical purity of the air. The attempt should be to secure motion, coolness and dryness rather than to displace one body of air by another.

He denies that there is a toxic organic substance in the atmosphere as the result of human exhalations and challenges those who disagree with him to their proofs, as the existence of such poisons has never been scientifically demonstrated.

The lungs, according to him, are never filled with air some of which has not been exhaled. Inhalation follows so closely upon exhalation in normal breathing that a portion of the air that has just left the lungs is invariably drawn back into them.

Exhaustive experiments show that the amount of air thus returned is from 1 to 2 per cent in persons remaining quietly indoors. It is from 4 to 10 per cent in those asleep in bed. There are certain sections of the respiratory apparatus, moreover, the nose and the larger bronchi, in which exhaled air always lingers. It thus appears that the air in the lungs is always heavily contaminated with their own excreting gases, even in outdoor life, and the dead spaces make it certain that this contamination will not decrease.

It is not worth while, so the doctor argues, to pay much attention to the small amount [illegible] atmosphere, therefore, and if the air is kept in motion and not permitted to become too moist or warm the necessary ends of ventilation will be subserved. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Necktie For Fish Bait.

Cigarette papers trailed in the manner of a "spinner" seem a queer bait for mackerel, but navy men have used cigarette papers with deadly effect in Dover bay. You can, in fact, catch mackerel with anything bright when they are on the run. Perhaps the best of all baits for them is a strip of skin cut from one of their captured brethren.

A piece of tin or lead foil is effective, and I once knew a man who came back from mackerel fishing without a vividly colored necktie that he rather fancied. It had made an excellent lure for the fish. Is it that the mackerel is conscious of his own brilliant coloring and therefore will take any bait with a gleam about it?—London Standard.

Simplicity in Higher Life.

The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their imagined progress toward the reality of things.

AWAITING THE THRILLING ORDER TO CHARGE.—French infantry crouched behind underbrush awaiting the order to charge on the German trenches. They have their bayonets fixed. Of the very company shown in this picture only six of the men came out of the assault alive. The rest of them were mowed down by the German machine guns.

THE mind of man does not run back to the time when there was no dancing. Ever since the morning stars sang together for joy there have been dances grave and gay in celebration of all the happenings in the life of man. So interwoven with love, war and religion are the movements of the body that the dance has been an integral part of the history, art and literature in which are preserved the records of all generations.

At times the "dance guild" have waged war upon the dance as a medium of corruption, but always it has reinstated itself through its inherent claim as the most complete expression of the harmony of mind and body. In a recent article Mr. Havelock Ellis calls architecture and dancing the two primitive and essential arts, having an origin older than man, and of the two placing the dance first. Livingston, the explorer, related that when a member of the tribe of Bantu met another he asked, "What do you dance?" which sounds as if it might have been spoken by a New Yorker of to-day. The answer that the Bantu tribesman received to his question informed him not only what was the man's tribe, but what were his social customs and his religion.

From Egypt centuries ago came the dances that spread across the Mediterranean, found congenial soil in Spain and thence were carried to Rome. Antique vases bear witness to the beauty of the dances among the Greeks. So highly was it regarded by them that Plato in his "Laws" declared a good education to consist in knowing how to dance and sing well, and it was out of these two arts that the Greek drama arose. In some of the early dances, as the corybantum, depicted on a bas-relief preserved in the Vatican there is a mingling of religious, military and mimetic characters. The performers were armed and bounded about, clashing their arms and shields to imitate the corybantes endeavoring to stifle the cries of the infant Zeus in Crete. The Dorians, who were partial to the Pyrric war dance, which resembled an action in battle, believed that their success as fighters was due to the celerity and training of the dance.

It is as the handmaiden of war and religion that the dance first appeared, and it is so interwoven with religion that its divorce from it was accomplished only with difficulty and in comparatively modern times The savage still "dances his religion instead of preaching it." The Hebrew Scriptures are full of references to dancing from the time when David danced before the Ark to the latter days when Herodias danced before Herod. Dancing was recognized as a part of the ceremony of the Christian religion during the early centuries, and a Jesuit priest writing in the seventeenth century spoke of men dancing and singing the praises of God as "a part of the ritual, and adds: "What could be more blessed than to imitate on earth the rhythm of the angels?" Dancing as a part of the church service came under the ban not because dancing in itself was considered unseemly or irreverent but because of the abuses that crept in. In Spain, Portugal and France the dance continued to be a part of the church ceremonial in the celebration of certain festivals. It is less than a century ago since church dancing ceased in France, and it still persists in a few places in Spain.

To an entertainment given by King René of Provence on the eve of Corpus Christi in 1462 belongs the origin of many popular French dance airs. The affair was a curious mixture of the sacred and profane — combats and dances, scenes from mythology and the Bible.

"Soon the ballet entertainment became so popular that no event was complete without it," say Troy and Margaret Kinney in their recent work on "The Dance." In Le Ballet Comique, given on the occasion of the marriage of the Due de Joyeuse, "the true and modern note of form in grouping had been struck and the standard of exactness set that was to become the backbone of the ballet of later centuries. The performance lasted from ten o'clock in the evening until four in the morning and is estimated to have cost from three to five million francs."

From that time the dance as a social function and as an ally of the drama made headway in spite of checks received at intervals because of certain religious movements or because of unsympathetic rulers.

The martial dance, although now relegated chiefly to barbarians, has in the past played a very important part in military operations. In the first place, it was closely interlinked with the religious ceremonies with which men about to enter into battle sought to propitiate the gods and win support for their armies. The psychological effect of the dance was of the greatest value. Just as the strains of martial music have sometimes been a determining factor in fighting and always a valuable aid, so men who had participated in a war dance were already half conquerors. Their enemies were, in imagination, slain and they bore themselves proudly to the measures of victory. In the early military dances the men were arrayed in all the panoply of war, their muscles strained to the movements of killing and their weapons were brandished as in actual warfare.

The song and dance attuned the men to the fighting point and inspired them for mighty deeds of valor. The Dahomans and the Hooloo, of the Bilú tribe, in the Vindhya Hills, aptly call their dance the Bravery Dance. The Natal Kaffirs have a picturesque dance that refers to the departure of warriors for battle. The women plead to the men to remain but they slowly withdraw, stamping upon the ground and darting their short spears toward the sky as they go.

In Madagascar when the men are absent at war the women dance for the greater part of the day, believing that this will inspire their husbands with courage, and doubtless many a man hard pressed on the field of battle does feel a peculiar access of determination to vanquish the enemy when he thinks of his wife dancing fiercely, all day that he may win.

With many savage tribes the dance is simply an accompaniment to the war or hunting songs. Almost always there is some combination of music and dancing, although there are tribes that dance without accompaniment. The length of time that the dancers can continue their performances speaks well for their endurance in battle, and in a way it is an exhibition of their fitness as well as a preparation for the fight. The ability to pass from the dance into ecstacy is illustrated by many Eastern peoples and this again is akin to the frame of mind which they consider essential to success in battle. The whirling or spinning Dervishes are a familiar example of the marvellous power of certain dancers to continue and to execute movements beyond the bounds of ordinary endurance. When they have reached the highest point of ecstasy they are supposed to be so far beyond the human state that they cannot be held responsible for any of their acts and much abuse has been made of the privilege. The length of time that they can continue their dizzy gyrations suggests the record dances that have been made at various times in other countries. One man who had danced literally around the clock and covered many miles up and down the English countryside challenged any one to dance a mile with him. Several tried it and failed, but one girl finally did the mile and better and it was reported that she was not much fatigued by it, either.

Some of the most picturesque dances that have ever been seen are those of the North American Indians. Also, they are thoroughly distinctive. Like those of other primitive peoples they are closely interwoven with religious beliefs and become quasi ceremonials in which are incorporated their reverences and fears, their worship of the sun, the regard for the elements and the relationship of animals. With their bronzed and painted bodies, their elaborate head dress and decorations, the Indian dances were worth going far to see. In the days of the great wars tomahawks and arrows were used with great effect in the dance that menaced the enemy against which they were to advance. To make themselves more fearsome to look upon the Indians frequently donned the heads of bisons or other animals. This practice of introducing the semblance of beasts into the dance is common to different branches of mankind in various parts of the world.

The sword has played a prominent part in the dance from the earliest times, and it remains to-day in the Scotch Sword Dance, as it was in Anglo-Saxon times, and before that, the symbol of the force that the dancers were to exercise against the foe. The warlike nations have always been dancing peoples, and the greater the stress of danger and daring the more vivid and universal the dancing. Attention has been called to the fact that, preceding the present great European war, there has been a great outburst of terpsichorean frenzy which swept over all countries and involved all classes. This, they say, is significant, as it always happens before a great war.

A quote reading from Kinney's "Dance," on the list of forces that make and preserve a nation's dances is incomplete without the addition of the sometimes powerful element of national pride. This undoubtedly, enters into the high preservation of the dances of Scotland. The Sword Dance and the Fling of their ancestors are associated with the holy cause of freedom. Caesar commented upon the fighting qualities of the Pict, and the fighting qualities of these tartaned clansmen has never softened. The Sword Dance is their saga. In earlier times it was performed on the eve of battle to relieve tension, to exhibit self-control and to test fortune. To touch with the foot the crossed sword or scabbard, between and about which the dancing warrior picked his steps, was an omen of ill for the individual or his comrades.

The Highland Fling symbolizes victory. The Schottische Militaire, that was popular some years ago, was another Scotch dance with a military suggestion. Many old prints show that the bagpipe of Scotland accompanied the military dance, as it does to-day, and to its strains fighting is being done that emulates that of past centuries.

As is appropriate, England's most distinctive dance appertains to the sea. The Sailor's Hornpipe is half pantomime and half dance and is thoroughly characteristic of Jack, his duties and his pleasures. Aside from the hornpipe the English have their Morris or Country Dances that are romping games rather than dances. Some writers have thought that Morris was a corruption of Moorish and that these dances had been introduced by the Moors and found their way to England by way of France, as most of the modern dances have.

The fighting Irish have their Jig and Reel, which reveal the native sprightliness and dash, and at the fets held in Cork and Dublin not only are prizes given for the dancing but also for the playing of war pipes—bagpipes.

One of the most picturesque dances of the Continent is the Perchtentanz, which is performed at irregular intervals at Salzburg in the Tyrol, sometimes twenty years. This dance is named for Perchta, the Splendid, the Magnificent One, another name for Holda or Freya, Woden's consort.

In his right hand the Perchten clasps a naked sword, leads his partner, a young man, dressed as a woman. The "beautiful" Perchten are wonderfully arrayed and carry great standards, on which are hung watches and jewelry and often are decorated with peacocks or other beautiful birds that have been killed during the year. The "bad" Perchten wear masks and hideous heads to look as frightful as possible. Originally this dance was intended as an act of propitiation, and while it still retains traces of that spirit in its modern performance

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Flight

An Adventure With Bandits In Mexico

By EVERETT P CLARKE

Dudley Cameron, connected with producers of oil in Mexico, was sent some forty miles northward from Tampico into the state of Tamaulipas to pay a man from whom his employers had bought some oil property $3,000 and get a deed for the land. There was no railroad to the place of his destination, and he proceeded on horseback. He carried the money in his hip pocket underneath his revolver.

This was when the Constitutionalists were about to march upon Tampico Mexico has never been free from brigands, and it was not to be expected that in such troublous times the road would be safe. But the property was known to the purchasers to be very valuable, and they were anxious to get it into their possession. They were willing to risk their funds and Cameron was willing to risk carrying them He would be largely the gainer if he succeeded in paying for the property and securing a deed, because the company that employed him was a very large concern, and it was worth his while to find favor with it.

He carried no provisions with him calculating to get what he needed along the way. He had made half the distance when at evening he came to an adobe house, at which he concluded to stop for supper. Riding up to the door he called to those within, and the door was opened by a half breed girl about eighteen years old. She was quite good looking for a Mexican though dark complexioned and with coarse hair.

Cameron had been in Mexico long enough to speak the language tolerably well and asked her if he could get some supper. She went back into the house and presently returned with a man, to whom the traveler repeated his request, adding that he would like to stay the night. The man after looking him over scrutinizingly assented. Cameron dismounted, put his horse under a shed and entered the house. He found there another man besides the one who had received him.

Cameron did not quite like the looks of the men. As for the girl, she seemed to be in a condition of captivity. At any rate, they gave her orders harshly, and she did their bidding apparently because she could not help herself. She cooked the supper, consisting of tamales and tortillas, the latter thin, light, wafer-like cakes, being very delicious.

After supper both the men left the house, and Cameron sat on the veranda, smoking his pipe. The girl was within clearing the table and washing the dishes. Presently she came out wiping a plate and said to him:

"Senor, I would advise you not to lodge in this house tonight."

"Why not?" asked the American, starting.

"These men are bandits. They killed my father, with whom I lived, and have since forced me to do their housework. I am awaiting an opportunity to return to the Rio Grande. I lived on this side of the river, but if I can reach it I will cross into United States territory. Then I shall fear nothing."

Dudley Cameron was a chivalrous fellow and withal at an age wherein the greater the risk the greater its attractiveness. He was on his way northward. The girl also wished to go northward, and he felt under obligations to her for the warning she had given him. To ride away into safety, leaving her to be tyrannized over by a couple of bandits, did not accord with his sense of honor. As soon as she had spoken the last words she went back into the house to finish her chores. While she was doing so Cameron thought over the situation. When she had finished she came out and said:

"For the love of heaven, senor, do not let them suspect that I have hinted to you what they are. Do not say, 'I have changed my mind and will continue my journey tonight.' At bedtime go to your room and pretend to sleep, but instead of doing so let yourself down from the window to the ground—the distance is not great—mount your horse and ride away."

"Why should these men trouble me?"

"The one who admitted you has seen you at Tampico and knows you are an employee of the oil people. They do not believe that you are traveling without money, at least for your expenses."

Cameron made no reply to this. He was thinking. How fortunate that this girl was on hand to warn him! He felt very grateful to her. Had she not done so he would probably have been murdered and robbed during the night. Now, if he could not honorably ride away before the return of the men he could at least stand on the defensive in his room and beat a retreat through the window. Then it occurred to him that by taking the girl with him he would be freed from the obligation to await their return. Had he not so much money with him he would risk it. As it was, he did not like putting in jeopardy funds which had been intrusted to his care. He wondered if the girl would go with him.

"Have you a horse?"

"Pepita. My name is Pepita Gonsales. There are horses in the stable belonging to the bandits."

"At what time do they usually return?"

"They go to a house a short distance down the road, where they gamble and drink pulque and usually return late. What they will do if they have designs on you I do not know. Quite likely they will give you plenty of time to get to sleep, come in late stealthily and endeavor to take you unawares."

"Suppose you and I should leave together. Is there not a point of safety we could reach before they would overtake me?"

After some thought the girl said that if they could reach a city like Victoria in time to secure protection all would be well, but if they were captured before entering the town the bandits would surely kill the girl.

"I am armed," said Cameron. "If you were armed also it would be an equal fight."

"The men always carry their weapons with them."

Cameron did not like waiting for the bandits to return and was equally averse to leaving the girl under the suspicion of having warned him. There seemed no way but to take her with him.

"If you are willing to take the risk of going with me," he said at last, "we will leave at once."

It was some time before Pepita replied. When she did she said: "I would rather die than remain here in captivity. Were it not for the times I might invoke the aid of the law. At present there is no law in Mexico. But I will not place you in jeopardy on my account. I have suspected that there are arms concealed somewhere in the house. If I can find anything with which to defend myself I will go with you. If not I will remain. But I will not ask you to remain also."

She went into the house, where Cameron heard her hunting. She had been gone some time when he heard something give way, and in a few minutes Pepita came out with a brace of revolvers. Cameron examined them and found that they had been freshly loaded. This he knew from the fact that the cartridge cases were not dingy. Pepita had pried open a closet door and found a lot of arms and ammunition.

Within ten minutes the two were riding away in the darkness. It was about 9 o'clock, and the bandits were not expected to return till midnight at least. But Pepita did not believe that they would remain long in ignorance of the flight. She suspected that they might have set a watch on the house. Besides, there were others of the gang occupying here and there one of the adobe houses along the road, any one of whom might have been commissioned to report any one hurrying by.

Their route lay midway between the gulf and the railroad leading northward through Victoria and Monterey. The roads were mostly unpaved, so that their horses' hoofs sounded only with a dull thud. Hoping to avoid attention, they rode for awhile at a walk, then assumed a brisk trot and finally broke into a gallop.

Pepita was right in assuming that their flight would be reported to the bandits. They had not been on the way half an hour when suddenly Pepita's horse threw back an ear. In another moment the girl heard the tread of horses coming swiftly, and last it broke on the less sensitive ears of the American.

"Now we must run for it," he said. "We must direct our course to the nearest town. How far is the house we left from Victoria?"

"I've heard it said that it is about twelve miles."

"We've come about five; that leaves seven. We must turn into the first road we come upon leading westward."

The road forked a short distance further on, the left hand road leading, as Cameron believed, to Victoria. They turned into it, but seven miles was a long distance for a run for life with men following on fleet horses. The only comfort for the fugitives was that their pursuers were doubtless full of pulque.

Pepita's horse, as were all the horses of the bandits, was fleet. Cameron found it difficult to urge his mount on to keep up with her. He spurred him and belabored him all to no purpose. Meanwhile the hoofbeats in rear grew more distinct. At last Cameron thrust his hand into his hip pocket, pulled out the roll of bills and handed them to Pepita, saying:

"Take these and go on. If the bandits spare my life I will join you in Victoria."

"Is it money?"

"Three thousand dollars."

She took it and, with a parting pressure of the hand, urged on her horse and soon left Cameron far behind.

His horse was now staggering. He dismounted and, slapping the animal's haunch, sent him on, then took to a thicket near the road. In a few minutes the pursuers clattered by, to find the horse, which they recognized as the American's, standing exhausted in the road a mile farther on.

Then began a search of the surrounding country, which was fruitless and enabled Pepita to reach Victoria. There the two met in the street the next day. Pepita handed Cameron the bills, and he, after she had agreed to remain where she was till his return, completed his journey and the transaction upon which he had been sent.

The oil company paid Pepita a sum equal to the one she had saved them, and she went to live with relatives on the other side of the Rio Grande.

Cameron gained a good deal of eclat with his company by his feat, which was added to since the property purchased turned out to be very valuable. He was advanced to a prominent position and has the prospect of making a fortune.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Afraid to Go Alone.

Light is thrown on the question why the Germans use a close formation when it brings such disastrous results, as is described in frequent despatches from the front, by a conversation which Lord Roberts once had with the Kaiser when Lord Roberts went to Germany to witness manoeuvres.

Lord Roberts during these manoeuvres noticed the German close formation and remarked to the Kaiser that he supposed that this formation would not be used in actual battle. The Kaiser replied that it would. Then Lord Roberts expressed some surprise, having noticed the danger of such tactics.

The Kaiser said the formation must be used else the soldiers would not go forward, that being their temperament. They must have some one within reach, evidently just for psychological comfort before advancing on the enemy.

German War Autos Marvels.

Stories were printed recently about the Germans having armored motor cars armed with machine guns, which tore through the lines of the French and Belgians and mowed down all before them.

Another story of the use of new war inventions is told by Arno Dosch, a correspondent of World's Work, who arrived in London from Brussels. He says the Germans are using auto trucks which are marvels. Equipped with scythes, they mow right through wire fences and hedges if the roads and fields do not suit the drivers.

MUSIC AT HOME.

Making the Piano a Pleasant Feature of Family Life.

AN EXPERIMENT THAT PAYS.

How One Girl Musician Tried It and Was Abundantly Rewarded in the Pleasure and Surprise It Afforded the Household.

In the Woman's Home Companion recently appeared a short article entitled "Music as a Pleasure," in which are reported the experiences of a girl named Clara, who had taken piano lessons for years, yet never used her music to give pleasure to her family.

She could play Beethoven sonatas and Chopin etudes and was considered by her parents and friends as making great progress. Yet she returned from a visit at the home of a girl friend thoroughly discontented with her music.

This girl friend, May Allen by name, played all the time, and when her family had company she always seemed to suit everybody. In the following extract from the article appears an account of the transformation that took place in Clara's music:

"The first intimation the family had of an actual upheaval in Clara's musical education was on a certain rainy Sunday, when she sat down at twilight and began a soft, rather low keyed 'Annie Laurie.' Her mother began to hum, under her breath at first, then more boldly, and Clara's brother called out 'Second verse!' when the first was ended and himself began it with a somewhat uncertain bass. From the old Scotch ballad Clara glided easily into the lately revived 'Silver Threads Among the Gold,' which the family all sang, and then the well loved 'Abide With Me,' which brought the little program to an end.

"Thank you, dear," said Clara's mother, and "That's what I call music," from Clara's father.

Some months later, when Clara's piano had become the center of the home and Clara had definitely decided to make music her life work, she was heard discussing the situation with May Allen, who was returning the visit of the summer before.

"When I came home from your house I was just disgusted with myself," said Clara. "I made up my mind that I'd make my piano as much a part of my home as yours was."

WARDROBE BOX.

Dainty Convenience For Keeping the Baby's Garments Neat.

A woman who wanted a covered receptacle for her baby's wardrobe and wished to combine it with a baby basket took an old shirt waist box with a hinged lid and had it recovered with a rose-pink denim inside and out. The lid was filled with cotton batting on top to make it comfortable when needed for a seat.

Inside she had a little tray about three inches deep. This was a plain four sided frame covered with cretonne. The frame had a cretonne bottom with two wooden slats across to make it firm. The slats were also cretonne covered.

On one side of this tray were placed the powder box brushes, scissors and the usual contents of the baby basket; on the other the little shirts and bands safely kept from dust by the lid. The whole was easily lifted out with two loops of cretonne when the interior of the box was to be reached, as the tray was extremely light in weight. Underneath the tray were kept the little dresses and petticoats safe from dust and handling.

When not in use the little box was pushed under a dressing table in the mother's room and was accessible at any time.

THINGS WE SHOULD KNOW

Clean up the garden. Burn all weeds, vines, etc.

Apples will keep better wrapped in paper and stored in a cool cellar.

Put a little sand over carrots, beets or other roots to prevent drying out.

Where only a few cabbages are to be stored it is a good plan to wrap the heads in newspapers and put them on shelves in a cool cellar.

Pumpkins and squash should be stored in a cool, dry place. If stored in a hot place, they will lose weight quickly. Keep them from frost.

Take up a few plants of parsley and set in pots or boxes in the kitchen window or a light basement window. They do not need much light or care and furnish an abundance of material for winter garnishing.

Now is the time to organize a community study club. Some of the meetings might well be devoted to a study of garden flowers, shrubs and vegetables. "Better Home Surroundings" is a topic that should be of interest to all.

As soon as the cannas, dahlias, gladioli, etc., have been killed by the frost, dig and store the bulbs in a frost-proof place that is neither too dry nor too moist. The bulbs must not shrivel or start into growth. It is often a good plan to cover them with dry sand or earth.

Celery may be lifted, the outer leaves taken off, and the plants set in soil or sand in a cool cellar. The plants will continue to grow and form white tender stalks for winter use. When watering, do not wet the foliage, as this will cause delay.

GERMAN'S DARING FEAT.

Saved Dirigible, After Accomplishing Perilous Mission.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A special correspondent of The Standard, writing from a town in northern France, says:—

"A remarkable feat has earned distinction for the commander of a dirigible who was sent out to destroy with bombs a railway junction occupied by the Germans. Descending low, after evading the enemy's searchlights, the dirigible dropped the first three bombs in rapid succession, but the fourth, after its mechanism had been set going, failed to slide from its tube.

"The dirigible was in imminent danger of being blown to pieces, but the commander boldly climbed out on the framework with an axe in his hand, and, now under the full glare of the searchlights and pelted with bullets, hacked away the tube and its projectile only just in time. The bomb exploded 300 feet below. The dirigible was tossed in all directions, but got away safely. Its purpose was fully accomplished."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Lady's Dress.

This handsome suit has a coat waist, the front forming a blouse on the present straight figure lines, ending in a plain band across the front. The back and sides extend almost to the lower edge of the skirt, while the sleeves are small and the neck high, with plain stock finish. The skirt has two gores and the open arrangement of the coat shows the front gore.

The dress pattern No. 6947 is cut in sizes 36 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires for waist 2¼ yards of 44 inch material; for skirt 2¾ yards of 36 inch satin.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

WAR AND ITS EFFECTS

War and the effects of war almost completely switched the trend of discussions at the Annual Convention of Ontario Vegetable Growers from the production of crops from seed to the production of the seed itself. The usual sources of supply, of which Germany is the chief, have been closed off. Remaining sources of seed supply are inadequate, if not for next year's supply, then surely for the succeeding year of 1916. Before then vegetable growers must lay the foundations of a seed supply of their own. Can we grow our own seed? was the question that the members of the Vegetable Growers' Association asked themselves. To answer it they called to their convention some of the best known seed experts in Canada, and combined expert knowledge with their practical experience. W. T. Macoun, of Ottawa, and Paul. A. Boving, Macdonald College, were the principal speakers on this topic. The answer to the question, after much discussion, was an emphatic yes. It was decided that vegetable growers will profit in better seed, because of known type, vitality and acclimatization. With the bounties of three to 40 cents a pound which the Dominion Government proposes to pay to Canadian seed growers it was believed that seed can be grown profitably on a commercial scale in some cases.

Next to seed growing, marketing was the subject most fruitful of discussion. At first the discussion favored the establishment of retail public market at various points in Ontario cities. In these producers and consumers could deal directly. Another phase of the subject came up for discussion, when Thos. Delworth, of Weston, pointed out that producing and marketing call for an entirely different type of man. He knew of few cases when a man was both and making a marked success of both. The same view was taken by F. C. Hart, B.S.A., in his address on cooperative buying and selling. He claimed that the selling organization of middlemen was in existence because it had proved desirable and convenient. Through cooperation the growers could own their organization. Mr. Hart defined the essentials of successful cooperation in business to a spirit of give and take in the membership, sufficient organization, capital enough to carry on the business and the employment of a competent business man as manager.

The most valuable paper on production was given by S. C. Johnston, who reported his results in spraying with Bordeaux and the use of lime to control celery blight, a disease that costs Toronto growers alone $10,000 a year. The work indicated that the disease can be controlled effectually by the Bordeaux. No results were seen with lime applications.

Reports were made on the work of interest to vegetable growers conducted at Jordan Harbour by F. M. Clement, B.S.A., and at Guelph by J. E. Britton, B.S.A. A subject somewhat akin, "Breeding of Vegetables," was discussed in splendid style by A. J. Logsdail, B.S.A., of Ottawa. As an illustration of the value of plant breeding work Mr. Logsdail exhibited two varieties of corn, one a hybrid of the other and much improved. A subject of a different nature was "Poultry Raising in Connection with Vegetable Growing," discussed by Prof. Graham. Prof. A. H. MacLennan wound up the session with an illustrated talk on vegetable gardening.

ANTWERP WARNED TO BOIL ALL WATER

ANTWERP, Nov. 28.—"Kookt, uw Watre!" is the warning posted over the dead walls of Antwerp and upon the windows of the thousands of closed shops.

In English this is "Boil your water." Beneath the warning is a statement signed by Burgomaster de Vos in which he explains that because of the pollution of the city's water supply there is danger of typhoid and other maladies.

The water still has a decidedly brackish taste and is full of sediment, due to the cutting of the water supply by the Germans when they were besieging Antwerp. Belgian engineers, who had anticipated such a stroke, gave the city a partial water supply by turning the water of the river Scheldt into the mains. This made it possible to ght the fires caused by German bombs and probably saved the city from burning. However, the polluted salt water from the river is wholly unt for domestic use and it will be months before the city's supply mains and pipes will be cleansed of the impurities left by the temporary water supply.

German officers are supervising the cleaning up of the city in all sections. The debris of buildings wrecked by shells is rapidly disappearing. Streets and walks are being cleared and in a short time only the shattered walls and roofs of ruined residences will remain to show what destruction the bombardment caused.

Soldiers are restoring the breast works and clearing the forts of debris that they may be ready in case the allies should force the Germans back toward the Scheldt. This activity of the Germans makes residents of Antwerp very nervous, especially the younger men, who fear they may be impressed into service in case an emergency defence of Antwerp is necessary.

German engineers may be seen in all the suburbs directing surveys. Bags of sand stacked near the leading gateways by the Belgians so as to afford cover for the city's defenders have not been removed. It is rumoured that all the roadways entering the city have been secretly mined by the Germans.

Automobiles are not permitted to ter Antwerp, and the only railway trains approaching the city are from Roosendaal in Holland. These trains are forced to stop at Merxem, a suburb three miles from the main portion of Antwerp. All passengers are carefully scrutinized by German officers and soldiers, who examine all passports. The trains stop in the centre of a field half a mile from a highway and passengers are forced to walk along a path flanked with plain clothes men and soldiers. Street cars are not permitted to operate in the outer sections of the city and passengers from Merxem must walk or ride in carriages for a mile and a half and pass sentries on two bridges before they can avail themselves of a street car.

Before leaving the city Belgians are required to have their passports stamped by both Belgian and German officials who are constantly at work in various parts of the city handling the papers of crowds which file through lines of German soldiers standing on duty with fixed bayonets.

Letters From The Trenches

"NEATLY WIPED UP."

"I think we have really got their measure now and the end is only round the corner, but there is going to be plenty of hard fighting before we get there. The proportion of artillery is nothing like what it was, and incidents have happened of a sort that did not occur before, such as one reported the morning of the day before yesterday, when part of the German night attack got lost, and marched through our lines singing in fours, and ran up against the reserve when they were nicely through, and were neatly wiped up.

"I understand the units were completed and none went back. Our fellows closed up again as soon as the rear of the column was passed. I just hear from my confrere who has been up to-day, that we have gained about another mile or so, and got them out of the position they were entrenched in.—Liverpool Officer to a friend.

FINEST TROOPS IN THE WORLD.

"Our artillery are great. They are grand. Their performances have made by blood thrill and have made me feel proud that I am an Englishman. Gunners and drivers were as cool as cucumbers under fire, and what execution they wrought. Some day I hope to be able to tell you about it—how they stood out as great soldiers, heroes every one. Good God, what a sight, and what a great day for them!

"From what I have actually seen in the war, there is no doubting the fact that the British trained troops are the finest in the world. Give us more of them. We are bound to win."—Sergeant A. J. Spicket, 9th Lancers, to Mr. Frank Goode, Glamorgan Farm School.

HOW GERMAN'S GET THEIR TRADE.

(From the American.)

When a German manufacturer got his eye on a market he would send down the biggest man he could spare from the business—if he could possibly manage it, he would go himself — to spend a year learning the ropes before he tried to do a dollar's worth of business. He went down with the fixed idea that the only way not to handle that market was his own way. He studied his customers' ways of doing business, and got it down pat to the smallest detail. If the customers were in the habit of paying in 90 days, he was on hand with his cost and accounting systems arranged to suit. If they wanted their pianos packed in tin-lined cases, he didn't use tarred paper. If they wanted skirts made with burlap neckbands and the tails dyed green, he was right there with the berries, and in a week he would have a consular report ready for Berlin on the success of green shirt-tails in the Chow-Foo district. That's where he cut rings around the British. He was for giving them what they wanted, and there was nothing too small for him to see when he was after business.

Will You Help The Hospital for Sick Children, the Great Provincial Charity?

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Thanks for the privilege of appealing through your columns on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children. The Hospital takes care of sick and deformed children, not only in Toronto, but in the Provinces, outside of the city.

This coming year, of all the years in the Hospital's history, has a more serious outlook, as regards funds for maintenance, than any year that has passed its calendar.

So many calls are being made on the purses of the generous people of Toronto and Ontario, to help the soldiers of the Empire, that as I make my daily rounds through the wards of the Hospital, and see the suffering children in our cots and beds, the thought strikes me as to whether the people will as of old, with all the demands made upon them, answer our appeal and help to maintain the institution that is fighting in the never-ending battle with disease and death, in its endeavor to save the stricken little ones in the child-life of Ontario.

Last year there were 394 in-patients from 210 places outside of Toronto, and in the past twenty years there have been 7,690 from places in the Province other than Toronto.

It costs us $2.34 per patient per day for maintenance. The municipalities pay for patients $1 per patient per day; the Government allows 20 cents per patient per day; so, deducting $1.20 from $2.34, it leaves the Hospital with $1.14 to pay out of subscriptions it receives from the people of Toronto and the Province. The shortage last year ran to $18,000.

Since 1890 about 1,000 cases of club feet, bow legs and knock knees have been treated, and of these 900 had perfect correction. Nearly all these were from different parts of the Province outside of the city of Toronto.

Remember that every year is a war year with the Hospital; every day is a day of battle; every minute the Hospital needs money, not for its own sake, but for the children's sake. The Hospital is the battle-ground where the Armies of Life have grappled with the Hosts of Death, and the life or death of thousands of little children is the issue that is settled in that war. Will you let the Hospital be driven from the field of its battle to save the lives of little children for the lack of money you can give and never miss?

Every dollar may prove itself a dreadnought in the battle against death, a flagship in the fleet that fights for the lives of little children.

Remember that the door of the Hospital's mercy is the door of hope, and your dollar, kind reader, may be the key that opens the door for somebody's child.

Will you send a dollar, or more if you can, to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, or

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees,
Toronto.

DAD'S TENDER TIME.

Sometimes my father says to me,
Nights when my problems seem to be
Too hard almost for me to do
And I'm a long time gettin' through,
And I don't get my answers right,
Until it's very late at night:
"It doesn't seem to me you've got
Your whole mind on the problems.
Not
That I mean to scold you a bit,
But you can't make your answers fit
Unless you shut each eye and ear
To everything, and see and hear
Nothing at all, and keep right at
Your problems and attend to that."

That's what he says night-time to me;
Then turns around to ma, and she
Asks him something about the war,
And why 'twas started, and what for;
And then my father stirs his hair
And sort of fidgets in his chair
And then he talks of wars and guns,
And of the orphaned little ones,
And of cathedrals tumbled down,
And of each ruined little town;
And tells of trampled fields of wheat,
And folks who've not a thing to eat—
And not an answer comes out right
When father talks that way at night.

Then he jumps up and says "Gee whiz!
Will you just look what time it is!"
And then he comes across to me
And looks down at my work, to see
If I have got my problems done;
And sees I haven't, not a one,
And then he hugs me to him tight,
And says, "Now let us do them right!"
And he explains the way to do,
And pretty soon I'm done and through.
When father talks of war and guns
And of the orphaned little ones
Away off there beyond the sea
He's awful loving like with me.

PROTECTION FOR MAPLE PRODUCTS

On January 1st, 1915, legislation will come in force protecting the maple syrup and sugar industry in Canada. For some years Canadian maple growers, led by John H. Grimm of Montreal, have been contending that the word "maple" should not be permitted on any package the contents of which are not pure maple products. The amendment giving this desired legislation, reads as follows:

"The word 'maple' shall not be used either alone or in combination with any other word or words on the label, or other mark, illustration, or device on a package containing any article of food or on any article of food itself which is or which resembles maple sugar or maple syrup, and no package containing any article of food or any article of food itself, which is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup, shall be labelled or marked in such a manner as is likely to make persons believe it is maple sugar or maple syrup which is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup, and any article of food labelled or marked in violation of this subsection shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this Act."

Penalties are provided. Adulteration injurious to health will incur a penalty not exceeding $500 and costs, or six months' imprisonment, or both. When adulteration is not injurious to health the penalty is $200 and costs, or three months' imprisonment.

KIDNEY TROUBLE AFFECTED HIS SPINE

Suffered For Forty Years Until He Used "Fruit-a-tives"

BROWTE, ONT., OCT. 31st, 1913.

"For about forty years, I was troubled with Lame Back brought on by Kidney and Bladder Trouble. I was never confined to my bed with the trouble, but it affected my spine and I had to rest for a time. I took advertised remedies which never did me any good. Then I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. They did me more good than any other remedy.

My son suffered from the same trouble and frequently had to leave off working, but "Fruit-a-tives" remedied it for him. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney and Bladder Trouble to use "Fruit-a-tives".

Accurate.

The Advertising Men's League of New York has a Vigilance Committee, whose duty it is to ferret out and hunt down fraudulent advertisers. It has been found that the most successful advertisers are the truthful ones; that sharpers and knaves are not permanently successful.

Look at the advertising columns for yourself. You will find that every article advertised regularly and consistently over a period of years is an article of real merit. The fact that the advertising is continuous is proof of this.

It is safer to buy advertised goods.

NO CHANGE ON THE WEST FRONT

GERMANS REMAIN ON THE DEFENSIVE

THE GERMAN FORCES ARE COMPLETELY SEPARATED FROM THE AUSTRIAN ARMY

Cracow is Threatened and its Fall Means the Russian Invasion of Silesia---German Army Corps From Breslau Have Cut Their Way Through to Main Body.

RUSSIANS RETAKE MANY POINTS

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, November 30. — The advance of one and a half German army corps under General Francois from Breslau and Wielun, via Piotrkow, seems to have resulted in this column escaping capture, and by cutting away from Przeziny and Koluski northeast through the Russian forces joining the German main army in the neighbourhod of Lentchitza. The Russians from the Cracow front, moving north, cut the communications of this column, but the Russians from the Warsaw front did not envelope General Francois' force, which after a desperate dash, reached safety.

The German line, after two weeks of fighting, extends from Miava, Plotzk, Gostynin, Kutno and Lentchitza to a point west of Lodz. The Russians have retaken Piotrkow, Brzeziny, Glowno and Gumbinen. It is not clear what permanent strategic advantage the Germans expect from the present invasion of Poland, unless it is to push the attack on Warsaw, which seemingly is not attainable. In the meantime the complete separation of the German from the Austrian armies appears to have weakened the latter. The Russians having forced the passage of the Raba river and taken Berchia, are approaching Cracow from the south. If Cracow falls the apparently unprotected condition of the Austro-German frontier would expose industrial Silesia to a Russian invasion. Hence the present German attempt seems to be a makeshift, because Russia appears to be able to push the campaign on Cracow and at the same time have sufficient forces to meet the Germans in the north.

PETROGRAD, November 30.—Princess Shakhovskaya, the first woman aviator to be commissioned for war service by the Russian government, left for the front to-day. She will join the northwestern army, operating in East Prussia. Princess Shakhovskaya applied for a commission as an army aviator earlier in the war, but was refused because it was feared that if she were captured by the Germans they might decide she was not entitled to the rights of a soldier, and orders be issued that she be shot as a spy.

SALISBURY PLAINS, Eng., Nov. 30.—General orders at the camp of the First Canadian Contingent say that officers and men marrying since their enlistment or commissioning, need not apply for separation allowances, as they will not be granted.

AUSTRIA'S HEAVY LOSSES

PETROGRAD, November 30, via London. — On the basis of the reports received in Petrograd from Hungary it is stated here to-day that Austro-Hungarian casualties to date amount to 19,000 officers and 900,000 men.

Six hundred prisoners, seven guns and many wounded fell into Russian hands in yesterday's fighting to the west of Lowicz where the Russians took ten miles of German trenches between Glovno and Sobota, according to information received to-day through trustworthy sources.

TRANSFERRED TO CYCLISTS

Three Peterboro' Boys Will Ride Gasoline Bikes at The Front

Pte Percy Gray of the 57th Regiment, who has been in Kingston with the 21st Battalion, is in the city visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gray, Brock Street, having obtained several days' leave of absence. Pte. Gray, with Privates Jarrett and McNab also of Peterborough, have been transferred from the 21st Battalion to the Cyclist Corps. The Kingston platoon of motor cyclists will go to Toronto on Wednesday and will take up quarters at the Exhibition grounds. Pte. Gray returns to Kingston to-morrow.

Rev. Mr. Connors Said Farewell

Yesterday morning the Rev. F. A. Connors, Pastor of the Park Street Church, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation. There was a good attendance and the Pastor took for his subject "Mutual Helpfulness." His sermon was a scholarly one and made a deep impression on the congregation. His subject in the morning was "The More Abundant Life," and on this theme he also preached an inspiring sermon. At this service Miss Lighthart rendered a very acceptable solo.

To-night a farewell meeting will be held, at which Mr. J. H. Burnham and the Rev. R. G. Peever and others will speak.

New Church Will Be Opened Dec. 6

The Church of the Immaculate Conception will be dedicated and formally opened on Sunday, December 6 by Bishop O'Brien who will celebrate Pontificial High mass at 10.30 a.m. Bishop Scollard of North Bay and former priest of St. Peter's Cathedral will preach. Rev. Father McShane, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Montreal, will preach in the evening. Father McShane was a classmate of Bishop O'Brien. He is an able speaker and has charge of one of the most important parishes in Montreal.

BLACKLISTER FINED $10

A local blacklister, only 23 years of age, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with being drunk while on the blacklist. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10. In the witness box he said he got his liquor from Frank Burke, a local man. It is likely that a charge will be preferred against Burke, although the accused this morning said that he could not swear that Burke knew he was on the blacklist when he gave him the liquor.

DEPUTATION WILL GO TO TORONTO

A deputation comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Johnston, Duncan, Green, City Solicitor Gordon and City Engineer Parsons, left for Toronto this afternoon, where they will wait upon the Provincial Board of Health in reference to the agitation that has been set up by a number of residents of Otonabee and North Monaghan respecting the location of the outfall sewer in the township. The residents have protested against the proposed location of the sewerage disposal plant claiming that it will be a detriment to surrounding properties.

WILL THERE BE AN ELECTION IN THE SPRING ?

Indications Point to The Government Going to The Country Early Next Year.

PREPARING LITERATURE

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.—The latest political gossip is that the government is quietly laying plans for a Federal election early in the spring. From present intentions, so far as the government is concerned, a short session will be held, starting January, and the election will take place probably at the end of February. Already preparations are going forward for the contest. The city from day to day is full of Conservative members and candidates who are continually in conference with those members of the government to whom are entrusted the task of organizing and winning elections.

Campaign literature is being assiduously prepared at the government bureau and a tactfully prepared pamphlet purporting to answer the question, "why three dreadnoughts" has already been extensively circulated. In addition orders have been given for preparations of cartoons calculated to appeal to the electorate on behalf of the government. Organization preparations are also going forward at various centres.

Strange Actions Led To Arrest

The strange actions on Sunday evening of a Bolivar street woman, resulted in her apprehension by Detective Meagher. Investigation at the police station showed that the woman's mind was temporary unbalanced. Her actions on George street during the early part of the evening were sufficient to arouse the curiosity of about two hundred people including several well known George street business men. They followed the unfortunate woman around the city until her apprehension was effected by the police. She will be detained until further steps are taken respecting her disposition. The woman made strenuous attempts to resist arrest, threatening the police with violence.

Golf Club Gave $25

The shareholders of the Golf and Country Club made a donation of $25 to the Patriotic Fund at their annual meeting on Saturday. The directors elected were: Hazen Ritchie, D. Mulholland, P. Campbell, T. F. Matthews. A dividend of 5 per cent. was declared. The year has been most successful. Additions and improvements have been made to the club house, and the Peterborough course is now one of the best nine holes in the country. A meeting of the players will be held later to appoint a captain and other officers.

ARE ANXIOUS TO GET TO THE FRONT AT ONCE

Veterans in the Canadian Contingent Are Becoming Weary of the Long Delay in Salisbury Camp

SOME ARE TRANSFERRING

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—Letters received here from the veterans of the South African and other wars with the First Canadian Contingent at Salisbury Plain, indicate that they are becoming weary of the long delay in getting to the front. One of the South African veterans who travelled to Valcartier at his own expense to enlist with the Strathcona Horse, writes that he did not do this with the idea of spending several months in a barracks, and that if the Canadian contingent does not go forward soon he proposes to apply for a transfer to a regular British cavalry regiment now at the front.

Firemen Drill For Two Reasons

This morning from 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock the local Fire Brigade was engaged in fire drill. The drill was a little longer than usual as the Chief is making an effort to get the horses of the Department accustomed to the asphalt pavement.

This afternoon the brigade was visited by Sergt. Dodds and received instruction as members of the Home Guard. So the routine of the firemen is no longer a monotonous one, on Mondays, at least. Drilling for fire fighting in the morning, and for foe fighting in the afternoon.

Presentation To Rev. Dean McColl

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held on Friday evening, and a very pleasant evening was spent by those present. An interesting paper on France and Russia was read by Mrs. Bruce Law, in which she cleverly dealt with the respective location, customs and languages of the two countries now so much before the public.

A splendid musical programme was rendered, the following taking part: Miss Simons, Miss Crough and Messrs. Legendre and Picard, the accompanists for the evening being Misses Doherty and Pierce.

The evening was brought to a close with a very pleasing presentation to the Very Rev. Dean McColl who for five years has been Hon. Pres. of the Society. The address, read by Mrs. L. B. Treacy, was accompanied by a beautiful leather chair, the gift of the ladies. The Rev. Dean spoke feelingly at the conclusion, thanking the ladies for their gift and also for their co-operation in the past and extending his good wishes for the future welfare of this flourishing society.

"The Final Triumph Will Be Ours"

"This is a War For Humanity" General Joffre Tells Special Correspondent---France Will do Her Duty to The Absolute and Until Final Success Crowns Her Efforts.

(By Wm. Phillip Simms, copyright 1914, by the United Press)

Examiner Special:

MEAUX, by auto to Paris, France, November 30.—"General Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, received me with other correspondents of the neutral countries appointed to make the tour of the battle front, at the city hall here to-day. He made a special trip from his headquarters for that purpose and in an interview stated the cause of France for the neutral countries of the world.

" 'France did not desire this war," the commander of the French army said. 'It was thrust upon her, but now the nation is prepared for any sacrifice and she will do her duty to the absolute end until final success crowns her efforts.'

"General Joffre said we had undoubtedly been able to observe the excellent spirit of the troops at the front.

" 'I hope that you have been able to see all that you wished to see of our fighting forces,' he added and then he shook hands with us bidding us good bye. He repeated, 'This is a war for humanity, and the final triumph will be ours.'

"General Joffre is a man of action and not of words. His departure from headquarters to meet the party of newspaper men from neutral countries is therefore unprecedented. With occasional lightning like flashes, especially when he spoke of the triumph that must come to France, the eyes of General Joffre recalled those of Mark Twain in their kindly depths being stirred by passing emotion. General Joffre was clad in an extremely plain, simple uniform. He wore no decorations or ribbons denoting honours which have been accorded him, although he is the possessor of the most important decorations. The French army commander has an artistic hand. His fingers are tapering; his nails are well kept, but the commander in chief's duties at the front had prevented him from shaving for a couple of days. General Joffre received us cordially with dignity as befits his manner but without the slightest pose; he shook hands with a firm grasp, looking each one squarely in the ye. His gaze became searching. He talked directly at each one of his interviewers."

PARIS, November 30.—No changes along the battle line in Belgium or France were reported in to-day's official communique. It was declared that the Germans nearly everywhere remain on the defensive. Sporadic attacks only are the rule. "The enemy continues on the defensive in Belgium; we hold all our positions, and the enemy's cannon fire continues to slacken," the statement declares. "Attacks upon Bagatelle in the Argonne have been repulsed. Soissons has been subjected to fire from the enemy's artillery.

"On the Meuse heights a heavy fog prevails. The forest of Apremont was bombarded by the enemy without success and the situation in the Woevre district is unchanged."

MADRID, Spain, November 30.—News of fresh outrages committed by the Germans on Spanish subjects in Belgium and Germany, will be the subject of a new interpellation in Parliament. It is plain that the news of the outrages printed recently have influenced public opinion in Spain against Germany, notwithstanding the fact that at the beginning of the hostilities there was a strong pro-German sentiment in certain elements of the population.

THE HIGHWAYS BILL AGAIN.

One cannot accuse the Mail and Empire and a few other journals of lack of enterprise. It and they seize nearly every occasion to make controversial subjects a partisan issue. The "Laurier" senators come in for a new wigging for having killed the Borden Government's Highways Bill. They didn't think "their action would bring upon them such general reprobation." The senators did not reject the principle of Dominion aid to highways; it objected to giving the Borden, or any other government, power to distribute the money voted by Parliament through order-in-council, in a way to make its allocation a matter of partisan profit. If the vetoed bill had been framed to provide for a fair and non-partizan distribution of the highway fund as was strongly urged, it would have been law to-day. The Opposition minority in Parliament and their fellow-legislators in the Senate were anxious that the money voted for highways should be spent on highways and not be made subservient, even incidentally, to the promotion of party profit.

THE LATEST OUTRAGE.

No new manifestation of German inhumanity will astonish the world or discredit past achievements in this regard. One would have thought that the German appetite for barbarity would have been satiated with the ruin wrought in Belgium—her neutrality outraged; her fair fields and cities and homes laid waste; her helpless and outraged people—men, women and children—robbed of even the food that keeps soul and body together. The latest exhibition of fiendishness is that Germany, which has seized Belgium and impudently assumes administrative rights, has imposed a tax of $2.60 per hundred pounds on food poured by United States liberality into Belgium. Nothing more inhuman and heartless could be imagined. If moral obligation counted for anything in Germany's moral code, one would expect Germany to be feeding the starving Belgians out of her own stores instead of practically stealing the supplies sent by a neutral nation. The United States has maintained a strictly neutral attitude; but one would think that this last act of Germany in taxing the relief foods she sends so generously, would greatly strain neutrality, or at least arouse vigourous protest. It might well be the last straw upon the camel's back burden of neutrality.

CANADA'S AMONG THE GREATEST BANKS.

While we Canadians are ready to join the world in applauding the greatness of Great Britain's financial resources and popular wealth, Canada is not to be despised. We have lately felt that we hadn't much money; it has been very hard to get. We, however in Canada, don't make so bad a showing in money matters. Last May the London Statist the leading financial paper of the world, whose editor, Sir George Paish, has resigned that position to become the financial adviser of the British Government, published an article on "World Finance." In this article the Statist printed a list of the largest banks in the world, showing that there are only thirty-four banks in the world, with deposits in excess of 100 millions of dollars. Of these banks thirteen are in the British Empire; nine of them in Great Britain and two in Canada. The banks in Canada with deposits over 100 millions at the end of 1913, are the Canadian Bank of Commerce with deposits at that date of $192,879,450, and the Bank of Montreal, with deposits of $189,635,000; both with larger deposits than the Imperial Bank of Germany, the bank through which the German Government is financing the present war.

It will be a pleasant surprise to most of us Canadians to know that we have in Canada two of the twenty-five largest banks of the world. We have two of them strongly represented in Peterborough. We should draw upon them and our seven other banks to the end of making good the slogan—

$20,000 (OR MORE) FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

THE SITUATION ENCOURAGING.

The progress of the war is slow, but on the part of the Allies, irresistibly forward, like the onward grind of a glacier. In the western war-field the offensive of the Germans is perceptibly weakening in general, though there are outbreaks of the evidently desperate determination to reach and seize the northern coast of France. With this weakening comes renewed force of resistance on the part of the Allies. While the resources of Germany in men and material are diminishing, Great Britain, especially, exhibits new strength. Her marvellous financial resources, the most important element in military success, were recently demonstrated by the inexhaustible avidity, so to speak, with which her immense war loan of 1750 millions was seized. This fact, while not a surprise, is a satisfaction, since it shows that with the British sinews of war strong and unimpaired, Germany and Austria must day by day yield before the steady pressure of the Allies. Everybody but the Kaiser, blinded by his mad self-sufficiency, can see that the game is going against Germany. The improvement of the New York financial situation is doubtless due to the recent evidences of Britain's financial strength, and of her undoubted ability to keep the ways of commerce clear and permit the world outside the enemies of Great Britain, to do "business as usual." In Canada itself, commercial and industrial conditions show improvement. Incidents of the war situation are sometimes depressing, but the general situation is encouraging. It may be a long way to Berlin, but the battle front is set that way and shows no shadow of turning. We are all encouraged to keep on helping the fight, not only by supplying men and the munitions of war; but keeping up our end in the way of subsidiary contribution. We must be prepared to harvest the sad crop of war as it affects us at home, to help succour those made directly or indirectly, objects of our beneficence, through the operation of the war. Our men are keeping the ranks of Canada's contingents full, our women are tirelessly knitting to supply comforts and clothing for our soldier boys, and we home stayers have placed upon us the responsibility of helping provide for the dependents of those who are fighting our battles. We are faced with the responsibility of doing our duty in part—by realising the slogan—

$20,000 (OR MORE) FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

FUTILITY OF INTERVENTION.

The same press agency that so industriously sowed the seed of culture, bogus victories and other weird things is now engaged in mysteriously hinting at peace. . . . . Peace hints—for that's all they are—at this time are absolutely futile. France, Russia and England have to be reckoned with first in any negotiations, and, desirable as peace admittedly is, those three countries, for many reasons well understood, have made no sign of being anxious for intervention of any kind.—New York Evening Telegram.

BAR-ROOM PUPILS.

Some of our Canadian soldier boys are coming home in disgrace. They would probably have given a good account of themselves if they had faced the foreign foe. They were caught in the ambush of a liquor traffic, licensed by the laws of the nation which they were ready to risk their lives to protect. It is a sad commentary upon the weakness of humanity, the folly of legislators, and the heartless, degrading treason to the welfare of the community, which the liquor traffic embodies.

As usual the traffic has ready a lying explanation of the mischief it has caused. We are told that the enforced restraint of teetotal camps led to a reaction when the restrained young men were brought into contact with temptation. The old sophistry of course ignores the two facts of a depraved appetite, and a supply of liquor, and it keeps out of sight the facts that some barrooms created the appetite to which the other bar-rooms ministered, and that bar-rooms ministered, and that bar-rooms, not absence of bar-rooms, was the sole and effective cause of the discreditable disaster.

English barrooms are a curse to the people, and ought not to be tolerated; but English bar-rooms would never have tempted Canadian boys to drunkenness if these boys had not been previously trained in Canadian drinking practices.

We do not excuse the English publican. We do not excuse the English law-makers. We do not excuse the military authorities who failed to exercise their bar-room closing power. We do not excuse the folly of the would-be friends who treated the boys and made them drunk. We do not excuse the boys for their folly, their neglect of official warning, and their forgetting all that was due themselves.

All this blame, however, does not palliate the offence of the Canadian Government and the Canadian people, who authorized and maintained the bar-rooms that taught the boys the drink habit, and so disgraced this country, and weakened the Empire's defence.

The liquor traffic is Great Britain's greatest enemy. The liquor traffic must be destroyed.—Pioneer.

THE LEINSTHERS

(Being a monologue by Private Owen Roe McCarthy of the King's Royal Munster Fusiliers.)

NOTE.—There is a strong but friendly rivalry between the Irish regiments at the front. The Irish papers are full of the exploits of the Leinster Regiment this week. It is said that one one occasion they came to the aid of the Munsters just in the nick of time.

Now, it all the most bouldagious, blandandherin" and contragious,
Pugnacious lot iv Irishmin that ever bint the knee,
Commind me to the Leinsther rogues that roam the glins umbrageous
From Wexford to Kilkinny, and from Dublin to Lough Ree;
They wor surely sint to plague us, for where'er the Munsthers be
Those Leinsthers are rampagious till they ferret out our min!
With a most ungodly din
They come howlin' "Laive us in!
Or we'll batther all the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Ye're the manest set iv Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?"

We wor down at Martin Hogan's (for a dhrop o' ginger beer),
We wor singin' songs and dancin' Irish reels;
Min from Cork, and roarin' Tepts, min from Lim-rick o' the Ships,
And Kerry min with flyin' toes and heels!
Eery man iv us from Munsther, and without a frown of care—
Whin some rascal sowld the pass on us ag'in!
For the Leinsthers came a-rushin' and a-rampin' on us there,
And we heard their gentle chorus—"Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Or we'll batther down the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves,
Ye're the manest set iv Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Is there no wan has a mouth on, but yeerselves?)"

'Twas the night before the battle, and our chaplain with us, too;
The boys wor all attindin' to their sowls;
Examinin' their consciences—the prospects lookin' blue—
They wor kneelin' in close ordher, sad as owls;
They hadn't prayed a mouthful whin the Leinsthers followed in,
And tip-toed up by twinties and by twelves.
Then, kneelin' down beside them, said, "Ye cruel Munsther min,
Is there no wan that's a sinner but yeerselves?
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Ye're the hardest-hearted Irishmin that ever served the King!
(Do yez want to hould the heavens for yeerselves?")

We wor three days in the thrinches—left to cover the retreat—
Anfi the German gunners nicely got our range;
Half the boys wor dead or wounded, and the rest wor nearly beat,
We wor prayin' for relief or for a change!
Then suddenly we shonted and we laughed aloud for joy.
For we heard a noise that made our heads go spin!
It was the Leinsthers cheerin'—och, how welcome was their cry—
"O ye Munsthers, O ye monsthers, laive us in!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Or we'll battlim down the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Ye're the manest lot of Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Do yez want the Ger-rman Ar-rmy for yeerselves?")

So iv all the most contragious, philandherin' and courageous,
Bouldacious set iv Irishmen that ever bint the knee,
Commind me to the Leinsther lads that roam the glins umbrageous
From Wexford to Kilkinny, and from Dublin to Lough Ree!
They wor surely sint to plague us, for where'er the Munsthers be
Those Leinsthers are rampagious till they find us out ag'in,
With a most outrageous din
They come shoutin'—"Laive us in!
Or we'll batther all the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Do yez want the Ger-rman Ar-rmy for yeerselves?")

THE MAN FROM ABERDEEN

A Story for St. Andrew's Day

He was a hard-faced Scot with a grizzled moustache, and he was going to London for the first time in his life. It was a great occasion for him. A top hat of venerable age and somewhat long in the fur proclaimed him a mourner. It was carefully placed in the rack and wedged in by a brown paper parcel. He was on his way to a funeral, and his deportment alternated between a suitable gravity and the natural emotions of an untravelled mind.

He gloomed for half an hour over his foolishness in having taken out an ordinary ticket before discovering there was a cheap excursion. He computed he had lost a good many shillings by the transaction. The joy of seeing a new station, one he had never seen before—Kilmarnock—uplifted him for the moment. But a glance at his "blacks" restored his funeral feelings. Afterwards he gave himself sternly to sumber, intermitted by drowsy questions relating to the scenery.

Towards the afternoon he meandered heavily into the corridor, where he consumed much bread and cheese. Thereafter acrid smoke floating in blue clouds into the compartment advertised the virtues of his tobacco.

He returned refreshed, and even with a wintry gleam of joviality. A boyish gunner of the R.F.A. had come in at Trent.

"There's a wheen o' you fullows up by Cromarty," he said with a sharp Aberdonian twang like a touch of east wind.

The startled lad, hearing a foreign tongue, smiled with English affability a pleasant "Yes."

Whetted by this conversational success the Aberdeen man expanded into sentences of fearful sound. Creases at length appeared on the forehead of the polite Sassenach, whose brain was visibly perspiring with the strain of grappling with linguistic obscurities.

The pressure was skilfully relieved by a kind-hearted Scots Guardsman, who chipped in across the carriage. His speech being a weird conglomerate of Yorkshire and Yankeeism, he effectively enfiladed the Man from Aberdeen, who after strenuous cogitation reached the startling fact that the private in the uniform of a crack Scottish corps was a native of Leeds, a reservist, and a Canadian on his way to Aldershot.

For an hour or more the talk in the coach bristled with militarisms. The Aberdonian yearned for gory details. He spoke of holding trenches and of charging crags and precipices. He had gruesome anecdotes culled from the weekly press. He went back to the Boer war and expounded the inner strategy of that business with the finality of an Intelligence Department. He had even disinterred the heroism of Dargai.

Finally, with a beaming face, he bent over to the Canadian, and in a voice hoarse with earnestness he began: "Now I suppose you chaps'll guess the bagpipe? Well we no' noo!" it wis a bigger piece."

—J. S. T., in Scottish American.

He smacked his lips with a bloodthirsty relish and waited expectant.

The Guardsman smiled gently and lit a cigarette, letting out a mighty puff. He likewise was baffled.

The mourner stroked his knees, recollected his position, grew solemn, and withdrew into himself with a heavy sigh. He did not speak again till 8.15, when he looked out at the lights and asked with an incredulous glance—

"Whit, is this London?"

A pause, and he added: "I thocht

BIRDS OF A FEATHER

It has been generally held that there is a pertinent relation between German "Kultur" and Turkey, her new ally. Now we have literal evidence of how intimate is the relation between the German brand of Kulture and the characteristics that attach to the man and quality of Turkey. Here is the proof:

U.S.S. TENNESSEE'S LAUNCH FIRED ON BY TURKISH FORTS AT SMYRNA.—The launch from the U.S. battle-cruiser Tennessee which was entering the Gulf of Smyrna to arrange for the cruiser to enter the harbour when it was fired on by th Turkish forts and compelled to return to the cruiser. The Turks have informally explained the event as a shot intended to warn the crew of the launch of the presence of mines.

TURNKEY MURDERED

Two Indians at Pembroke Kill Jail Official and Make Their Escape

ANOTHER WOUNDED

PEMBROKE, Nov. 30.—Under circumstances of the utmost brutality, Turnkey James Coxford was yesterday evening battered to death in the local jail by two renegade Indians, and his assistant, Jailer William Brown, subjected to a beating that has left him at death's door. The assailants escaped into the open and are at large, while armed posses and volunteer searchers are scouring the countryside for them. At 8.45 an armed party left on a special G. T. R. train for Golden Lake hoping to head off the fugitives from reaching the Indian reserve maintained in that district. The town and surrounding neighborhood are stirred into a fever of excitement, and every available man is being pressed into the search. Feeling runs very high because of the obvious treachery of the attack, and the gruesome nature of the beating administered.

Immediately after the supper hour when the two Indians, Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, were being conducted into the cell, and when the turnkey was making affairs comfortable for the night, the two sprang on him from behind. From some unknown source they had acquired a heavy club fashioned from a piece of boarding, and with this they proceeded to beat him to death.

Hearing the noise of the conflict Jailer Brown ran in but by this time Coxford was dead, and the two prisoners sprang at him. Before he could lift a hand he was felled with a blow which fractured his skull. The Indians then dragged the body of the murdered man to a lavatory at the end of the corridor and escaped into the open air.

The only person who saw their escape was a little girl who reported seeing two men running across the fields towards Golden Lake. The alarm was quickly spread and the search began.

White Duck and Jocko were recently remanded on a charge of stealing from G.T.R. freight cars at Golden Lake, and had been in the jail nearly two weeks. To all intents they were harmless men.

The turnkey had no opportunity of defending himself beyond wielding his heavy bunch of keys. Jocko has appeared on a similar charge in the past.

The Pembroke jail is a strong, well-built structure, capable of confining 25 men. At the present time there are 9 dozen prisoners there.

Since the fugitives are understood to have run in a southerly direction it is feared that they may reach the Golden Lake reserve and persuade some of their friends to conceal them. An armed guard will patrol this place until word of the murderers is received.

Sheriff Morris has assumed charge of operations, and every road from the town is placed under surveillance.

IT MAY BE PREMATURE.

Gen. von Hindenburg is Awarded the Field Marshal's Baton.

BERLIN, Nov. 30. — (Via The Hague to London.)—The field marshal's baton of the present war has been awarded to Gen. von Hindenburg. His chief of staff and collaborator, Gen. von Lunendorg, has been promoted to a lieutenant-generalship for his share in the successes. The award to Von Hindenburg comes with the great eastern battle still undecided, as a reward for the preliminary victories at Wloclawek and Lodz, which, it is said, have thrown the Russians on the defensive with a loss of 60,000 prisoners and 150 guns. It is taken here to indicate that the Emperor has confidence that Von Hindenburg will completely defeat the Russian army.

The honor of receiving the grand cross of the Iron Cross, the emblem given a field marshal, is the highest military distinction a German commander can receive, and was won by Von Hindenburg, as in the case of the first Von Moltke, Crown Prince Friedrich and the Prussian "Red Prince" Friedrich Karl, on the field of battle.

Suez Canal in Danger. — The Turks claim to have reached the Canal at El Kantara, after defeating a British force twenty five miles east of here. The success of the Turks has been misunderstood and there is reason to think that the Canal, from Port Said to Suez is seriously threatened. Italy is vitally interested in the Canal being kept open and may make an attack on it, the occasion for her joining the allies.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

The death is announced of the archeologist, Dr. Richard Nichlin Hall, well known for his explorations in Rhodesia.

A Petrograd despatch to The Paris Matin says that a German cruiser, believed to be the Hertha, has been sunk near Libau.

It is understood that King George has approved the proposal to utilize Dublin Castle as an emergency hospital for wounded soldiers.

The Australian Minister of Trade of the Commonwealth announced that it has been decided to permit exports of wool to Canada and Japan.

The inquest into the deaths of the 500 men who went down with the battleship Bulwark, was delayed yesterday until Dec. 16, pending the Admiralty enquiry.

The Government is arranging for a couple of hundred motor trucks of about three tons capacity for the transport department of the second Canadian contingent.

WHEN RHEUMATISM STRIKES THE HEART IT KILLS—"NERVILINE" THE CURE

Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases is Almost Magical

Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack.

The muscles stiffen, the joints swell, and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.

Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack.

The pain of rheumatism is quickly rubbed away with Nerviline.

This is a swift, lasting, and safe way to cure rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.

Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.

The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating, and laid me up so that I couldn't work. I went to Smith Brothers' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline.' That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."

Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all the others—that it contains something that gets right "at" the pain the minute you rub it on. The large 50 cent family size is the most economical—get it to-day, or else the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Storms of Early December Will Be Attended By High Temperature

Absence of Venus Period Hints at Mild and Stormy Conditions

HICKS' PREDICTIONS

A regular storm period having its centre on November the 30th, will come to its culmination stages on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Moon will be full on the 2nd and at greatest north declination on the 3rd. The centre of the Mars period falls on the 4th. The storms of this period will, most likely, be attended by a wave of unusually high temperature for December, as atmospheric tides will flow polewards from equatorial regions by the Mars influence, which is decidedly electrical in its tendency. The Mercury period will add its perturbing power at this time, so that, altogether, we may reasonably look for some very marked storms, or other phenomena out of the normal course. The same general character of weather that may have prevailed in November, will be strikingly prolonged and emphasized at this period; if it has been wild and wintery, prepare for the same, and worse, at this and other December periods. If it has been open, mild and spring-like, depend upon it, the same character of weather will, for the most part, prevail in December. We repeat that the Mars factor at this time is decidedly problematical. Last winter every indication pointed to rough and stormy conditions in December, but with reversed results. This December, the Venus period is absent, hinting at mild and normal weather; but Mars, Earth, Mercury and Vulcan may spring the opposite surprise upon us. Study and watch conditions in November, and expect, we repeat— to encounter through December the same general conditions, but to greater extremes. Whatever Mars metes is, as a rule intensified—often unseasonable and reversed as to sections and localities; for illustration, frosts and freezing in California last winter, with warm, open weather northward.

A reactionary storm period will develop and run its course on and touching the 5th, 6th and 7th. The reasonable outlook for this period is that rain, turning to heavy sleet and snow, will pass from west to east, and that cloudy, Mercurial, cold weather will continue for several days after the passage of the storms. Study your barometer closely, in connection with every storm period.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th, extending from the 10th to the 16th. This is another annual period of maximum magnetic and electric disturbance. Earth's north magnetic pole makes its greatest angle with the solar equator, hence a crisis of negative currents, an inrush of boreal, interstellar energy, and excess of winter storm and weather from the north polar directions. Navigators must count on exposure and danger on the north Atlantic and Pacific seas. Winter thunder and rain will be natural on and touching the 10th. Sleet and snow will follow, ending in high barometer and cold. Another group of storm areas will pass eastwardly over the country on and touching the 14th and 15th. This will prove one of the greatest sleet periods of the month. New moon on the 16th will prolong threatening conditions into the period next following.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. If we are to have heavy, boreal storms this month—things best to count on—expect such as this reactionary period. Wild, winter gales will rage out upon the Atlantic seas, and answering storms, followed by cold, will sweep our lake, coasts and inland.

A regular storm period is coincident with the centre of the December solstice period, being central on the 22nd, and reaching from the 21st to the 23th. This period will bring very low barometer, and on and touching the 23rd and 24th the temperature will rise, and storms of rain, attended by winter lightning and thunder, will be probable. These storms will turn to sleet and snow about the 24th and 25th, bringing change to much colder, with snow in wide areas of the country for Christmas. In fact a general snow storm will sweep out to the northwest and spread far to the east and south by the close of this period, closely followed by high barometer and cold clearing weather.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 28th, 29th and 30th. On and touching these days, a reaction to warmer, with falling barometer, and more storms of rain, turning to snow, will cross the country from west to east. High barometer and change to colder will be in sight from the west as the month goes out.

A seismic period is central on the 2nd extending from Nov. the 28th, to December 5th. The next seismic period is central on the 16th, covering the 13th to the 19th. Volcanic unrest will be coincident with earthquakes about this time some of them violent and dangerous. Seismic disturbances, central about January 2, 1915, will begin the last two or three days of 1914.

An Attack in Force is Expected In the Neighbourhood of Arras

Press Reports Speak of Renewed Fighting in That District—The Germans Are Massing Their Forces.

SITUATION SUMMARIZED

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Press reports from Belgium and France yesterday speak of renewed fighting around Arras, but conflict in respect to Ypres. Some say that the Germans are bent on renewing their attempts to take Ypres, and, others that signs point to an abandonment of the German offensive, with the offensive of the allies already under way. The French official report (published to-day) tells of the capture of some German positions in the Ypres district.

The Daily News correspondent says that a most destructive bombardment of Arras, is under way, and that a great deal of hand-to-hand fighting has taken place in the vicinity.

The Boulogne correspondent of The Weekly Despatch, in a message published yesterday, says:—

"The Germans have concentrated 700,000 men in the neighborhood of Arras, where they are preparing for a determined effort to break through the allies' line.

"Heavy fighting has already begun."

The Daily News has a despatch from western Flanders, dated Sunday, saying that during the past few days the situation along the Yser and around Ypres has undergone a very significant change. The offensive has passed from the Kaiser's army to the allies. When and how the allies will make use of the new situation cannot at present be stated, Generals Joffre and French have a magnificent mobile force at their disposal ready for the day when the Germans will need some encouragement to leave Belgian soil.

The Daily Express has a "frontier despatch," saying that the allies are taking the offensive south of Ypres, occupying the German trenches. When the latter returned the advance of the allies was supported by a deadly artillery fire.

William Maxwell, in a despatch to The Telegraph, which is given prominence to-day, says in part: German prisoners declare their officers are under oath to drive the British from Ypres or die in the attempt. It is certain that another effort is about to be made to reach the coast, and that the point of attack has been decided upon. The Aisne is the barometer by which to gauge the weather in the western region of the war, and the quietness in the region presages the rushing of reinforcements and another attempt to break through elsewhere.

Heavy firing on the northwest coast of Belgium is reported from Oostburg, and there can be little doubt from the direction and nature of the cannonading that the British fleet has again been bombarding the defences erected by the Germans on the coast. Communication by rail between Holland and Antwerp has to-day been indefinitely suspended. Military movements of the utmost importance are in full swing on the south of the frontier, and frontier guards are exercising the greatest vigilance to prevent the leakage of news.

Small Indemnity For Luxemburg.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Germany has paid an indemnity of 150,000 marks ($37,500) to the Duchy of Luxemburg, according to a despatch to The Temps from Bordeaux.

One of the first acts of Germany after the outbreak of the war was to invade, on August 2, the Duchy of Luxemburg. This action was criticised by the allies as a violation of the neutrality. The payment of an indemnity, if made as reported, presumably enable the Grand Duchy to recompense Luxemburg for Germany's act.

A Seven Years' Pastorate Reviewed

The Congregation of St. Paul's Church Weighed in the Balance By its Pastor and Found Wanting

Before one of the largest congregations that usually assemble in St. Paul's church on Sunday mornings, the Rev. Robt. Pogue delivered a powerful and impassioned sermon from the text:

Amos vii., 2—"O Lord God forgive I beseech thee: by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small."

The sermon abounded with many heart searching thoughts, as the preacher reviewed his past seven years' ministry among the congregation. At times his audience was tensely rivetted on his words as he weighed them in the balance; and it was evident that heart-searchings were going on and resolutions formed that would result in good to St. Paul's. The main points in Mr. Pogue's address related to what he claimed to be the declension in the spiritual life of his congregation, a synopsis of which is as follows:

1. "The congregation was low in church attendance." In a membership of over one thousand, the average Sunday attendance was about one-half that number. Mr. Pogue could find no justifiable excuse for this manifest indifference on the part of the members of his congregation. They knew the command, as well as he did, "not to forget the assembling of themselves together." He denied that holidays or the weather were responsible; it was nothing but the lack of spirituality and love for the house of God and a drifting into the whirlpool of material pleasures and indifference. He bewailed the fact that it was the same in the old land and across the border. Go into a church in any of the large cities of America on a Sunday morning and it would be found almost deserted. He had aimed to make the preaching as vitally attractive to the unsaved as to the saved by expounding the truths of the Bible as he knew them, with all the earnestness of his love for the Saviour and his fellow man. He had systematically arranged the morning service so as to make it a direct address to believers, and in the evening a direct appeal to those in need of salvation. But their appreciation was was not manifested — the pews were poorly filled, and the spiritual life of the congregation was anything but encouraging.

2. The congregation had not co-operated with him." In his preaching of Christ to the building up of believers, he needed their help in saving men and winning souls to the Saviour. Unsaved men, women and children in his congregation were reaching out for encouragement and example, and spiritual strength and helps, but what were the members doing? How many could say they were giving any practical or prayerful help to him? No matter how forceful his own sermons and work might be, he must be assisted by the membership. He was grieved that so many refrained from attending the evening service, especially those members who were generally active and influential in church work and who were known to give strength and influence to the congregation. "The truths of the church have lost their apostolic viewpoint. The church is no longer a church militant. She is only a kind of home-guard. The church was a society for respectful entertainment together."

3. "We were low in spiritual religion." The weakness of our church in spiritual life was a cause of great and grave anxiety. They were not a Bible reading people, and there could be no spiritual life unless the Bible was constantly read and studied. "We spend more money on other books that were sapping the very spiritual life out of the people. He would forbid the reading of all books until one knew his own Bible from Genesis to Revelations." In his closing heart-searching appeal for more co-operation from his congregation, the preacher exclaimed: "Discouraged ministers—God help them!"

An appropriate hymn, "Revive Thy Work, Oh God" was given out and sung, and the large congregation filed out in silence. There was no hand-shaking, no social converse, no tears shed; but there were evidences that an impressive lesson had been given and that it had not fallen on stony ground.

Is it true that what was said of St. Paul's Presbyterian congregation could be said of all churches? If so, what is to be done if the churches are to fulfil their mission in the world? Multitudes in our churches to-day feel the same dissatisfaction at the materialism, the selfishness, and the absence of a sense of God. The most conservative apologists of our churches admit that somehow, somewhere, something is wrong. The Church wonders why so many thousands are leaving for Socialism and material pleasures when it only has the words of life. And to save itself it resorts to every kind of attraction to interest people. It shifts its activities into social, civic, economic and political topics, and proposes very pretty schemes for church unity, and some absurd plans for evangelising the world. The church seems afraid to venture on the purely spiritual life which all people crave. It is as true of the church as of a man, "If one have not the spirit of Christ he is none of His." It is apparent that a new power in religion is needed to retard and return the tide that is setting away from the real God and the real truths. May it not be that what is crumbling away in religion is only the husk. All that is vital is imperishable. It is imperishable because it is immortal in itself, as a part of God's essential message to men: "Never in the world's history was so much that is vitally sound and wholesome, spiritually militant and irresistible, assembled beneath the banners of the cross. The readjustments which are taking place are in the line of progress, and are born of a demand for personal heart experience rather than a formal allegiance to creed or dogma."

Praise For The 21st Battalion

Kingston Standard—Speaking to The Standard, as he was boarding his private car at noon to-day, Hon. J. D. Hazen paid a compliment to the soldiers in this city. He said: "This morning I had the pleasure of visiting the quarters of the men and I was very pleased with all. The men are in splendid condition and I am sure that they cannot be surpassed by any in the country. Their quarters are the most sanitary that I have seen in military circles. The contingent that will leave this city for the front when they are called by the War Office will be a splendid one, and will keep Kingston to the front as a military city."

He spoke of the recruiting that was going on throughout the country, and said that especially in the West there was no difficulty in procuring soldiers. All Canadians seemed to realize the importance of the present war and were joining their colours rapidly.

Italian tests of ploughing with electric motors demonstrated that it cost about half as much as if horses had been used, and about two-thirds as much as steam ploughing.

CANADA'S NEED OUTLINED BY REV. R. G. PEEVER LAST NIGHT

A Greater, Stronger, Richer Spiritual Life, Not Territory or Population, Is Canada's Need.

The George Street Methodist Church was filled last night when the pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever gave an interesting patriotic sermon on "Canada's Need." The music, rendered very acceptably by the choir, was also of a patriotic nature. The pulpit was draped with a large Union Jack adding to the effect of the whole service.

Rev. Mr. Peever took for his text the 36th and 37th verses of the 8th Chapter of Mark, with the exception that the word nation was substituted for the word man in the original. His text read as follows:

"For what shall it profiteth a nation if he shall gain the whole world and lose its own soul?

"Or what shall a nation give in exchange for its soul?"

In opening Rev. Mr. Peever referred to a cartoon which he had seen. It depicted King Albert of Belgium in the midst of his ruined cities and the Kaiser towering above him with the taunt "See you have lost everything." The King's reply was characteristic of the hero, and in complete accord with his actions since the outbreak of the war. "It was: "Everything except my soul." So it was not military power but rather evil ideals that will slay a nation. What would it profit a nation if it added to its territory, territory at the sacrifice of the high ideals that alone made a nation and national well being? Although in a material sense, scattered and broken, the Belgian nation's influence on the world and standing in it, is now greater than ever before. The Belgian spirit, the Belgian life is now dominant the whole world over.

"Will Germany retain her life, her soul when she is weighed against her rank hypocrisy, her broken treaties, her cruelty and her devastation?" asked the speaker.

It would remain for future history to write whether she had lost the high ideals that make a nation great and strong, and whether she had not grasped at the shadow and lost the substance.

But what was Canada's need? Was there a possibility of us giving our souls in exchange for something that was not permanent, not eternal? We could not quarrel with Providence in regard to our area or acreage. It was true too that we had been blessed with great natural resources, and that one of the country's needs was capital. Capital was needed in the development of every young country. Canada was rich. Her bank account per capita was greater than that of any other nation under the sun. But it was not area, nor resources, nor capital, that was the growing need of this Dominion. Nor was it expansion of territory. Canadian people should not make the mistake of taking bigness for greatness. Population did not necessarily make a country great. There was China with its 400 million inhabitants and India with its 300 millions.

In fact the small nations had contributed most to the civilization and uplift of the world. They had contributed the best in science, literature, philosophy and religion.

Greatness did not consist of territory, population or even military power. Fixed ideals and ideas, equity and righteous institutions, the preservation of justice and Christian principles and our Sabbath — these things alone assured us a life in the history that is yet to be written.

Canada's need was a larger, a deeper, a stronger and richer spiritual life. We must put something into the name Canadian so that it will show the world we stand for, something, so that it will call up some qualities of nationhood just as the words Englishman, Scotchman and Irishman. The word Canadian should stand for brotherhood—brotherhood within the Empire, brotherhood within the nation and within the world.

Just as sure as God is God, and right is right, if the Canadian people hold to the principles of equity, justice and righteousness in all our institutions, keep and love the Sabbath, then our national life in the future will be assured.

ADMITS DAMAGE TO BRITISH NAVY SLIGHT

German Naval Critic Says That the Wearing Down Process Has Accomplished Little.

HAS NO FALSE HOPES

LONDON, Nov. 30. — The Daily Telegraph special correspondent at Rotterdam reports:

"Captain Persius, naval critic of The Berliner Tageblatt, in an article on the German naval position, says: Many Germans hopes at the beginning of the war were built on somewhat fantastic foundations. The British fleet was under-estimated, and it was considered that there was absolutely no reason why Britain should continue to rule the seas. The results had forced Germany in a great measure to withdraw this view. Even the greatest British losses must not be regarded as decisive events, he suggests.

"An English newspaper statement that Britain is satisfied with what her fleet has done proves in a negative way that such complete satisfaction does not exist. He contradicts the claim that there is evidence that German submarines have been more successful than British submarines, but admits that after four months the German scheme for wearing down the British fleet has not yet succeeded. The psychological moment has not yet arrived for the use of German battleships and large cruisers.

"We must be careful," Captain Persius concludes, "not to buoy ourselves up with false estimates about the position of affairs. We must not forget that in spite of the glorious success of our submarines, there has not yet occurred any significant weakening of the sea power of Britain as the result of the war."

ST. JOHN'S JUNIOR AUXILIARY MISSION BAND

Sale of Fancy Articles in St. John's Guild Room

The Mission Band, which is affiliated to the Junior Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, held, on Saturday afternoon, between the hours of three and six, a sale of work, candies and other toothsome commodities, fancy goods, etc., in the Guild room adjoining the Sunday School house of St. John's church. The arrivals were invited to partake of afternoon tea, and, after this had been discussed, attention was directed by the fair juvenile vendors to their stalls—prettily decorated and illuminated by the way—where dolls' clothes, fancy articles, candies and cakes were laid out in such manner as to conjure the exit of coin or paper from the beholders' pockets.

A musical programme was also given, reflecting much credit on the youthful aspirants.

The stalls were presided over by a number of fair juvenile ladies, who will be, in due course, some of our pretty girls of Peterborough.

Considerable credit is due to Mrs. Cameron, who is in charge of this Department of Church work, and the other grown-up ladies associated with her, who undertook the management.

The "Examiner man," who was present, expresses the hope that the venture has been financial success it well deserves to be.—F. R.

Otonabee Council

The Otonabee Council met on Nov. 16th, when the following business was transacted:

On motion the Reeve was appointed to inspect R. Carey's application for a bonus for a wire fence.

A by-law was passed fixing the Collector's bonds at $8,000. The following accounts were passed:

R. Carey, gravel and damages, $4.36; Thos. Ryan, cutting brush, $6; W. T. Arnott, gravel, 50c.; Thomas McIntyre, bailiff fees, $4; D. Edwards, Clerk of Division Court, fees, $4; A. A. Anderson, jury selecting, $4; J. M. Drummon, $8; Wm. Wedlock, lumber, $54.27; W. J. Bullock, sheep killed by dogs, $3.34; Messrs. Anderson and Deyell, the committee appointed to deal with the matter of the proposed sewerage disposal plant in Riverview Park, Otonabee, reported that they, accompanied by James Thompson, M.P.P., for East Peterborough, went to the City of Toronto, and made objection to the Provincial Board of Health, respecting the establishment of a sewage disposal plant by the City of Peterborough in Otonabee.

Dr. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health for Ontario, agreed to take the matter up with the City Engineer, and assured them that the plans had not been approved by the Board. We also visited the disposal plant at Weston, and found it located at the foot of a hill, with not more than five feet of a fall from the outlet of the sewer to the discharge pipe that empties into the river, and is located on waste, marshy ground, well away from where any residences is likely to be erected. It is the opinion of your committee that such a plant in Riverview Park would be so objectionable that property values in the vicinity would be lowered, and that the placing of the same on a hill would require the pumping of the sewage of a large city up a hill would be a matter of great expense to the City, whereas instead of going into Otonabee and destroying a most valuable waterfront the sewage will run to a point down the river where there is sufficient fall to operate a disposal plant of the kind proposed.

Council adjourned to Dec. 15th.

The "Feast of Adonis" To Be Given Here

The short biographical account of Sir Elgar, the composer of the "Banner of St. George" (now preparing by the Peterborough Choral Society), was very interesting, and as Adolf Jensen's Cantata "The Feast of Adonis," is being prepared by the Orpheus Society, a few words about Jensen's works may be acceptable.

Adolf Jensen was born in 1867 in the royal City of Konigsburg, now part of the German Empire, a city which may soon be strongly invested by the Russians. He may be styled a self-taught musician, having only two years' study under Ehlert, Sobelewski, and Kohler. A passionate admirer of Schumann, he went into Russia as a teacher to earn money to study under that master. Returning, he found Schumann dead, and became chapel master of Posen. In 1860 he went home to Konigsbury, thence to Berlin, Dresden, and finally to Baden-Baden, where he died in 1879. He was a gifted song writer composing one hundred and sixty vocal pieces. Best known among these are "Chorus of Nuns," "Josephus' Daughter," "Lowmey to Emmans," "Murmuring Breezes," "Six Love Songs," "Feast of Adonis," and "Donald Caird ist weider da" from Scott. The song "Mutter, O Sing Mich Zur Ruh," is set as one of the numbers to be studied for vocal examination this year, by the University of Toronto. The data of above is taken from the biographical section of the Imperial Encyclopedia of Music, page 413, volume I. A complete life of Jensen was published by Nigli of Berlin in 1900, copies of which are still on sale.

PRESENTATION TO REV. DEAN McCOLL BY CONGREGATION OF ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Address and Cheque as Expression of Esteem—Rector Takes Charge of The Church of The Immaculate Conception.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S REGARD

Rev. Dean McColl was the recipient of a farewell address and cheque of splendid proportions from the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral at Vespers on Sunday. His appointment as pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception in East City takes effect on Sunday, December 6th.

While not far removed from the congregation he has served during the past thirteen years, Dean McColl's new pastorate nevertheless becomes a complete severance from the Cathedral.

It was with a full realization of this fact that the congregation of St. Peter's prepared a memorial to their late rector. The church was crowded last night as an evidence of the position Dean McColl holds in the esteem and love of the Cathedral congregation. His service of thirteen years was recognized by the splendid gift from the people, and by the testimony and expression of confidence bespoken by Bishop O'Brien. Dean McColl, himself, said the co-operation of the laity was the greatest recompense that could be rewarded his efforts. The progress that had been made in the parish during the thirteen years just closed was the strongest evidence of the response that had been made to his efforts towards the spiritual and temporal well-being of the people.

The Address.

Vespers were sung by Rev. Father McAuley, and before benediction a committee representing the congregation entered within the chancel. The following address was read by Dr. McNulty and Mr. John Corkery, Sr., made the presentation:

Very Reverend and Dear Father,—

It is with feelings of deepest regret and sorrow that we address to you words of farewell upon the occasion of your transference from this Cathedral Church. So intimately have you become associated and intertwined with the varied interests of the Parish, and so deeply have you manifested your concern for all that pertains to our religious and social life that your departure comes to each of us as a personal bereavement.

During the thirteen years that you have exercised in so fatherly a way the functions of your priestly office we have come to recognize the intensity of your zeal, the depth of your devotion, the sincerity of your affection, and now that these bonds of attachment are about to be severed, a great sorrow stirs our emotions. The sense of reality that surrounds us on this occasion dims for the time the more happy memories of the past.

It is on such occasions as this that the notable incidents in a cycle of a life's work stand out in relief. To enumerate the varied fields in which your energy has manifested itself, fields wherein your individuality is stamped, would be merely to record the results of that spirit of progressiveness so apparent during your regime as Pastor. Your scholarly attainments early directed your thoughts and energies to educational matters and the high state of efficiency of our schools at the present time is due in no small degree to your untiring zeal and unerring judgment. In the erection of Churches, in the enlargement and embellishment of our charitable institutions, wherein the sick, the orphaned, and the aged find a place of refuge, in the advancement of the noble cause of total abstinence, in the fostering of all that pertains to aesthetic and intellectual culture, you have taken an active and energetic part. As the pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception, we wish you every success, and our one consolation in your departure from St. Peter's Cathedral is that you will still be near us and that we will be frequently comforted by your genial presence. "The joys of meeting pay the pangs of absence."

We ask of you now to accept this purse of gold as a small token of our affection and esteem.

For St. Peter's Congregation—T. P. McNulty, M. O'Brien, C. H. Pentefather, J. V. Gallivan, D. O'Connell, John R. Corkery, David Holland, Michael Lynch, Patrick Kane, J. J. Duffus, J. J. Hickey, J. W. Fitzgerald, Maurice O'Hearn.

Dean McColl's Reply.

Rev. Dean McColl was deeply moved by the incident. He was touched, he said, by the kind words of the address and by the gift which in these times must have involved some sacrifice. The conditions that make for progress of the church have obtained in this city. The diocese has been blessed by good bishops. Our superiors have been men of good heart, and they have also possessed level heads. The second element contributing to success was good priests, and this too has been found here. And thirdly, there have been good people. There could be no progress without their co-operation. The congregation of St. Peter's could take a large share of the credit for the progress made in the parish.

Speaking of education, Dean McColl said Christ had a special love for children. It was the duty of parents to educate them and also not to allow their innocence to depart. The church takes every precaution to educate children so that their intellectual development shall go hand in hand with their moral training. Results must be good when the children receive not only broad mental education, but which, in addition, they receive a [illegible] education.

Dean McColl said his work at the Cathedral had been a pleasure through the hearty response it had brought from the people. In closing he again expressed his appreciation of the kindness shown him.

Bishop O'Brien.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien said he could endorse all that had been said in the address. Dean McColl had been in charge of the Cathedral for thirteen years. He had to handle its finances and he was leaving without being five cents richer.

In your gift there is indicated a strong unity between priest and people. After family ties there is no union more ideal and deeply religious than that between a priest and his people. We have progressed and it is due largely to the response of the people. The respect and love you have shown your pastor is not primarily for his personality good and kind as he may be. It is because you see in him the divinely appointed agent of Christ. You respect the authority which the priest represents. St. Paul did not hesitate to call himself the ambassador of Christ.

Bishop O'Brien said God had placed authority in the church and there it is found as nowhere else in this life. The obedience of the priest to the bishop, the people to the priest was recognized as obedience to God. The world sometimes regards this obedience as a weakness. To-day the world is plunged in grief by the war in Europe. His Lordship asserted that obedience to military discipline was most necessary. The private obeyed without question the instructions of his officers. He obeys not the officer in his own personality. The man in the ranks recognizes in the command of the officer the authority of the King. The officer is merely the agent of the Crown. Hence the army finds one of its main strengths in the obedience that is shown to those who are placed in authority.

His Lordship said the new church would bring great blessings to the new parish. Those who have been good will be made better by the House of God adjacent to their homes. Assisting at morning mass every day will be made easier for many.

It will provide for the spiritual welfare of the people in that section and with Rev. Dean McColl as pastor, it is in good hands.

Bishop O'Brien said it was a pleasure to him to have seen the warm feeling of regard that had been shown Dean McColl.

SPOKE TO BIBLE CLASS

At St. Paul's Bible Class, where they are now considering the ethics of Christian citizenship and contrasting the laws of to-day with those of Moses, and with those outlined in the Scriptures; generally, Mr. Burnham, M.P., proceeded with his address yesterday. Questions arising from his remarks of the previous Sunday, were put and answered. The future of Oriental and foreign cheaper competition engaged the attention of the class. The questions asked contained the statement, that if it was true as alleged that foreign cheap labour was a danger how is it that it has not ben so in the past, and is not the fact that it is inefficient the real reason that it is cheap and unable to compete with western labour? Mr. Burnham replied that the East was just awakening from its long sleep of prejudice against the West, and its chains of caste. The West, which had only recently developed itself, the United States wholly since the Civil War and Germany since 1865, hid, by virtue of enterprise and capital, acquired a long lead, but China had begun to ship the finest steel rails made to the United States, paying the high tariff and making a handsome profit. The writers on eastern peoples, the missionaries and travellers without exception praised the newly awakened intelligence and enterprise of the east and prophesied that as the only lack was capital, when it arrived, the East would rival the West. The magnificent opportunities there and the new readiness to admit foreigners (heretofore an impossibility) was attracting capital. There were already arising immense factories in both India and China. Those who refused to see a menace to highly-paid western labour and the comfort and civilization of the masses of the western peoples would wake up to it before long. In western Canada and the United States unrestricted Oriental immigration aroused the intense hostility of the people. Why?—Because the foreigners worked for low wages, were capable and clever, and displaced Canadian and American labour. As it was with foreign cheap labour so is it with foreign labour's goods. They would swamp the Canadian and the United States trade market if not held back. The whole centre of gravity in the manufacturing and producing world might now with the awakening of the East and the advent of capital, be changed. Now, too, when properly trained and led eastern troops are second to none, as shown at the allies' battle front, the east may strive for a complete independence of the domination and control of western powers. They have the labour. We have the capital. Put them together either in the west by immigration, or in the east by the introduction of capital, and where will the masses of the western world be in a quarter of a century. The brotherhood of man, he said, meant not intellectual equality, but kind treatment.

Rev. H. J. Keith Becomes Pastor of Westminster

Rev. Henry J. Keith, M.A., B.D., formerly of Knox Church, Peterborough, Ont., was formally inducted as Pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, last night, with an impressive service that will long be remembered in local Church circles.

Rev. Dr. Dyde of Moderator College was one of the principal speakers, and he referred to the terrible toll of the European war. He said there were some who pointed to the war as proof that Christianity is ineffective as a world force. His arguments in favour of Christianity put to rout all disbelievers, and served to strengthen the cause of Christians.

"If the war, terible and devastating as it is, proves the means of arousing the careless and indifferent; if it causes us to be gentler and kinder in the home, more just and honest in business, more diligent and fervent regarding our spiritual life—though it causes the crepe to be hung on some of our doors and dashes to pieces our fondest hopes—it will not be too great a price to pay for a newer and holier life and more noble national ideals." Dr. Dyde spoke thus as a father who has given a son to the empire to help fight its battle.

Rev. E. McGougan, moderator protem of the Church, proceeded with the induction ceremony, and expressed to Rev. Mr. Keith the hope that every blessing might be his in his new work. Other speakers included Rev. C. D. Campbell and Rev. E. G. Stewart.

Mrs. Keith was presented with a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums by little Miss Edgar, and Rev. Mr. Keith replied briefly to the message of welcome, after whic hthe new Pastor was introduced to the members of the congregation by Aubrey Fullerton and Mr. Yuill.

The above is a report from an Edmonton exchange, of the induction of the Rev. Mr. Keith, formerly of this City, as Pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Another Complaint

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 28, 1914.

The Daily Examiner Printing Co.,
419 George Street, City—

Gentlemen,—I would thank you to print the following letter from a constand reader if you have space in your valuable paper.

My first bill for electric light from the so-called Public Utilities Commission was due on a Friday in October. Went to the office on the preceding Saturday afternoon, but the office was closed. The following Saturday was told the bill was a day overdue and they would not allow any discount, so was mulcted the full amount of the bill. Yesterday afternoon I went to the office to pay my second bill for electric light, but the lady at the window refused to accept payment because it was ten minutes after four o'clock. She informed me the office closed at four.

What do you think of that? In my opinion the name Public Persecutors would be more fitting for such an aggregation of misfits.

Two of the minions of this same Public Utilities Commission visited my house about ten days ago. After tracking all over it with muddy boots and scrutinising all the lamps, unburdened themselves about this fashion: You have so much floor space and will have to pay so and so for the space, and so and so for the current consumed, but after you have consumed about one million yards of juice, the Great Public Utilities Commission will allow you a discount of one thousanth of one per cent on the balance.

I would also be interested to know if this before-mentioned commission was appointed by Bill 2. Their circulars smacks much of the mailed fist and hands it out to us unfortunate citizens like this: "This Means You." Evidently they have not been with the governing class long or they would give it to us like this, "This Means You, Slave." They further tickle our presumptious love of liberty, by telling us, and us being no other than the sovereign people, who pay their salaries and buy the coal to keep them warm, so they have no occasion to get hot at us.

We, the workmen of Peterborough, have alawys enjoyed the privilege of being able to pay our accounts on Saturday afternoons, and we object to being deprived of it now. Nine to four except Saturdays; then only nine to twelve will not do. We cannot leave our work at such hours.

We are led to believe the job was created for the Commission, instead of Commission for the job. They tell us they are not responsible whether we get our bill or not. Then if we do not get it at such and such a time, call to the office and see about it. We would like to inform the Commission that we have our families to look after, and not their business.

The assistance of your valuable paper will be appreciated by all workmen in Peterborough who use electric light, for a successful campaign in forcing the Commission to keep the office open Saturday afternoon until 3 o'clock at least.

Thanking you for your interest, I beg to remain,

A Citizen.

EVERYTHING SATISFACTORY

Captain C. P. Fee, of Peterborough, who is doing duty as captain of the 17th Battery of the 6th Brigade, C.F.A. Expeditionary Force, writing from Kingston to The Examiner, says that they are very fortunate in having a fine lot of men. Some have seen service in almost every part of the British Empire. Needless to say, remarks Capt. Fee, all are anxious to go overseas and of course they are all very keen to know when the troops will be leaving Canada for the Old Land. All are hoping to catch the first contingent so that none of the glory will be lost to those who could not get away with the first force. The battery consists of four eighteen-pounder quick-firing guns and the establishment calls for five officers and 187 non-coms. and men, with 128 horses.

Speaking of the Peterborough boys with the 21st Battalion, Capt. Fee says that so far everything has been very satisfactory. The boys are very anxious to perfect themselves in drill and all are on the go from 6 a.m. The quarters are all that could be desired, and the food is of good quality. They are getting plenty of rifle exercise and the foot drill is beginning to show its good effect by the steadiness on parade and the even marching and general appearance.

SIX MONTHS ON VAGRANCY CHARGE

For the second time in a week Isaac Dormer came before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with vagrancy. The last time he appeared and was confronted with the charge, the Magistrate made arrangements for Dormer to do some work for him. But this only served to convince the Magistrate that the prisoner was not anxious to work.

"The last time you were here," he said to Dormer, "you wanted six months. Are you still of the same mind?"

"Yes, your Worship," came the response from the witness box.

"All right, then I sentence you to six months in Central prison."

"Couldn't you make it the Guelph Farm, your Worship?"

But the Magistrate heeded not and Dormer will spend the winter months in the shelter of the prison walls in Toronto. When arrested he was sleeping in a local power house.

REV. DR. GORDON CLOSES CAMPAIGN

The campaign for Christian Citizenship was brought to a close in Chalmers' Church, last night by one of the most impressive services of the entire campaign. Shortly after 6 o'clock the people began coming to the Church and although the service did not open until 7.45 the large edifice was filled to the doors at 7 o'clock, so eager were the crowds to attend this last service.

Rev. Dr. Gordon opens a series of services in Woodstock next week and after the service last night hundreds of people filed past and shook hands with the great preacher and with Mrs. Gordon, Mr. Greenlaw, the wonderful singer, and Mr. Mulligan, the organizer and choir leader.

Addresses were given by Rev. D. M. Morden, Rev. W. A. McIlroy and Rev. J. H. Turnbull on the splendid success of the campaign. Special emphasis was laid on the work of Mr. Mulligan, the organizer who organized the campaign after his arrival, as there had been no time for organization before the meetings started. In two or three days he had overcome all the obstacles and had a large choir, had covered the city with cards. The excellent way in which he leads the singing contributed much to the success of the meetings.—Ottawa Citizen.

Souvenir of The Second Battalion

The Examiner is indebted to Major G. W. Bennett of Peterborough, commanding A Company of the Second Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, for a copy received this morning, of the bulletin published by the Second Battalion to commemorate "the voyage across the Atlantic Ocean of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, in answer to the call to duty by the Mother Country." The "Bulletin" is giving much information about the battalion, including a list of all the officers and men of each Company. There are a number of poems written by members of the Battalion, the words of a number of patriotic songs, including some new verses to "Tipperary," some wireless gossip from Valcartier and the latest war news via Sayville. One important bit of advice to the members of the Battalion is the following: "On no account permit the enemy to cut the communication with your old home."

EVANGELIST LONG AT THE TABERNACLE

Evangelist Long had a full day at the Tabernacle yesterday, preaching morning, afternoon and evening.

At the morning service he spoke especially to Christians on the subject of "The Spirit-filled Life." In the afternoon he addressed the Sunday school, giving an illustrated blackboard talk on the "Two Ways."

He spoke in the evening on three kinds of men who miss Heaven. He said there were many moral men who miss Heaven like the rich young ruler who came to Christ inquiring the way of life, but went away sorrowful because he refused to meet Christ's one requirement of being his disciple. That of leaving all to follow Him. He also stated that there were many praying people who would miss Heaven like the Pharisees of old who prayed much and fasted and gave largely of their means to support their religion, but who were not accepted by God because they harboured iniquity in their hearts and failed to make right the wrongs of which they were guilty.

There were also many people who miss Heaven because they refuse to repent of their wickedness like the thief on the cross, who died cursing and reviling Christ and would not repent like his brother thief who called upon Christ to remember him when he should come to His kingdom.

There were many seekers during the day yesterday.

Service to-night and each night during the week at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the dislike for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box or five for $1.00 Sent postpaid by The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Sewer Work To Commence

The Board of Works has decided to undertake the construction of eight or nine hundred feet of sewer on Victoria Heights. The work will commence about Thursday and will give employment to about fifty men. Applications for jobs, now on file in the City Engineer's Office, number about one hundred and sixty-two men. This work is being undertaken mainly with a view of giving employment to a number of those who are in need of work.

BLACKBURN ROVERS WIN FROM BURNLEY—SCORE 6-0

Oldham Athletics Retain the Premier Place in the First Division—West Bromwich Albions Smother Manchester City—Hearts Still Victorious

The last two weeks, The Examiner has been able to get certain portions of the Old Country football results in time for publication on Saturday. As stated previously it is impossible to guarantee this service owing to the war, preference being given to news concerning the conflict. However, football enthusiasts, and there are a few in Peterborough, may rest assured that their interests are not being overlooked in so far as The Examiner is concerned. If the results do not appear in the Saturday edition they will be bulletined as soon as they arrive. Last Saturday the results arrived in the city about five o'clock. The Scottish results preceded the English League results by one hour, and were in time for publication on Saturday.

Oldham Athletics retain the premier place in the First Division of the English League by a splendid victory of five goals to one over Middlesborough. West Bromwich Albion sprung the surprise of the day by smothering the late leaders of the league, Manchester City, by six goals to one. Bolton Wanderers, the wooden spoonists of the First Division of the league, delighted their supporters by a very creditable victory over Tottenham Hotspur. The "Trotters" thrashed the "Spurs" by four goals to two, after a well fought out game. Aston Villa, whose "lassic" football has long been famous, trounced Liverpool by six goals to three, and th game was played on the "Liverpudlian's" ground. The goal scoring Saturday in the first division was prolific. To put through six goals in 90 minutes in first-class football circles is no small achievement for a forward line.

Derby County Victors.

Those old warriors, Derby County, defeated the leaders of the Second Division by one goal to nothing. The game was played on the Derby ground and the match was one of those tussles which delights the soccer devotees of the midland counties. The proud "Prestonians," try as they would, could not defeat Leeds City on their own ground, th result being a draw with no goals scored.

Reading Leading.

The feature of the Southern League was the way in which Gillingham, who are at the foot of the ladder, walloped Southampton. They made no mistake, runing their opponents off their feet and scoring six goals to two. Reading are still the leaders in the league. Crystal Palace defeated Plymouth by four goals to one.

"Hearts" Still Victorious.

In the Scottish League Saturday, the Celtic team administered a whipping to the Dumbarton eleven, scoring four goals to their opponents' one. The win is all the more creditable to the "Celts" as the game was played on their opponents' ground. While the Celtic team is in the second place in the league table, being four points behind the Hearts of Midlothian, it will necessitate the "Hearts" still pursuing their victorious career to stay at the head of the table.

Falkirk gave their supporters a joyful 90 minutes by walloping the Motherwell team to the tune of five goals to one, Kilmarnock providing a similar treat to their followers by beating Aberdeen by five goals to two. Glasgow Rangers and third Lanark bet in a good old historic tussle, the Rangers scoring three, and the fine defence of the Rangers preventing their opponents from breaking through.

FRONTENACS ORGANIZED

Jim Sutherland is Manager of the Kingston Club

KINGSTON, Nov. 27.— The Frontenac Hockey Club organized at a meeting held in the City Council Chamber, when the following officers were elected for the coming season: President, George B. McKay; Treasurer, B. Abernethy; Secretary, S. E. Trotter; Manager, James T. Sutherland; Assistant Manager, George Van Horne; Trainers, Jack Powell and Douglas Pound; Chief Supreme Rooter, Jack Cousins; Captain of Junior Team, "Terry" Millan.

Two former members of the club are at the front, George Richardson and "Scotty" Davidson. The club finances show a balance. A trip to Cleveland, New York and Detroit is being arranged.

Oiling the end of the grain of a block of wood and rubbing emery powder into it will make a fairly good knife hone for household purposes.

THE CANTEEN UPHELD.

Supervised Liquor Sales Have Checked Rowdyism at Salisbury.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—In reply to representations that have been made to the Government regarding the "wet canteen," established in the Canadian camp on Salisbury Plain, an official statement last night said that, while any suggestions from the Canadian Government would no doubt be carefully considered, even though the camp is under the direct control of the War Office, the present arrangement seems the wisest one under the circumstance.

The statement says: "According to official information the complete abolition of the "wet canteen," so-called, resulted in excesses and disorders among a few of the men when they obtained leave of absence, and resorted to neighboring towns and villages, where the opportunity to purchase liquor presented itself.

"After careful consideration, Gen. Alderson determined that it would be better to have a regulated wet canteen, at which beer might be sold at certain hours and under careful supervision.

"The Government is assured by the War Office that the trouble in the neighboring villages, which occasioned much concern at first, has practically ceased since the opening of these regulated and supervised canteens."

Argos Are Champions Of The Big Four Beat Tigers 10 to 4

TORONTO, Nov. 30—The Argonauts are champions of the Big Four. They proved their right to the title by defeating the Tigers on the 'Varsity field by a score of 11 to 4, but though they came out of the struggle with such a nice lead, it does not mean that they are more than twice as good a team as the Jungle Terrors. It might almost be said that in the history of Canadian Rugby, no league has ever contained two teams of the first rank that were so evenly matched, but no doubt can now remain that the Argonauts possess a slight margin of superiority over their rivals from the great Rugby City. The Oarsmen deserve all the more credit because they started the season so badly. In the opening game, played early in October, the Tigers had it over them from every angle, but since that time the Argos have rounded into a real machine, both of offence and defence. It will be noticed that neither team was able to score a try, although the Argos came much closer to making the big count than did their opponents. There was some talk during last week about the strength of the two lines which made it seem probable that a drop kick might be used to settle the argument. It was also pointed out that the Tigers had in Leckie the best drop-kicker left in the game now that Ross Binkley has gone to the front. Well, as a matter of fact, drop-kicks were the deciding elements in the play, but it was not Leckie who put them over the goal bar. While the result still hung in the balance in the third quarter, Jack O'Connor dropped as pretty a goal from the field as one could wish to see, lifting it over from his 35-yard line. He repeated in the last quarter and gave the Oarsmen the lead which put them out of danger, beyond even the reach of a converted try, although the Tigers had shot their bolt by that time and were not showing any signs of coming back.

Where the Tigers Failed.

It was a fine game of Rugby, even though the slippery ground kept the play from being as spectacular as the tie contest in Hamilton. The Argonauts won because their wing line was a little too strong for the Tigers, and because Mallett did not repeat his sensational showing of a week ago, when his booting offset the good work of the Argo forwards. Mallett's booting is hard and elusive, and when he succeeds in getting the back division guessing it gains a lot of ground. In Hamilton he managed to bounce the ball over the heads of the Argo halves on several occasions and he was also driving to the dead-line. It was different at 'Varsity. O'Connor and Smith seemed to be wise to the little tricks of the pigskin after it had been booted by Mallett, and they did not misjudge it more than a couple of times. As this low, fast booting leaves the wings away down the field, the Argos could always make big gains in running back the ball, so it was that Mallett's booting which saved the day for Tigers on their own field, did not get them a great deal on Saturday. Then Billy Mallett is not a robust player, and it does not take many hard tackles to stop him. A week ago he always got rid of the ball either by booting or passing and so he saved himself for his team, but he was not so lucky a second time. The Argo wings got him many times and they are not kid-gloved tacklers by any means He had to retire in the fourth period but it was after the game had been lost. His booting could not save it a second time.

Another reason for the downfall of the Tigers was the effectiveness of Frank Knight. The plans which the Tiger line used so effectively in Hamilton to pocket and block him failed to work again. Knight had solved them and was always on top of the play. Manson, McKelvey and Mallett could not muff the ball with impunity, as they did on their own grounds. On three occasions Knight dived right under a man and secured the loose ball. Once he not only secured the pigskin with one arm, but pulled down Mallett with the other. While Knight was pulling off these stunts in spite of careful guarding, Murray, on the other wing, did the most flashy tackling of the day. He always got down under the punts, and the Tiger halves made very small gains running back the ball.

Conditions In Grocery Market

Improvement Noted in Holiday Fruit Business

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

Office of Publication.
Toronto, Nov. 26.

The question may be considered at this time as to whether there will be enough holiday fruits to supply the trade until Christmas; the reply is another question as to whether the public will make anything like the usual demands. With most fruits arrived there is an improvement noted in business, but comparatively the buying is light, and a hand-to-mouth policy is displayed. If demand develops later present firm prices are likely to advance and some orders may go unfilled. The situation is very uncertain. Valencia raisins are very short and there are already sales being made within the trade, which is unusual at this stage. Figs have also advanced and prunes, currants and dates are firm.

With the Emden removed better supplies of tea have arrived in England, but the price remains without reaction. The feature of the week was the poor quality of the Indian supplies, evidently the result of delays in making shipment. England has cut off supplying Europe, but this has not helped. At present high prices are due to advances in India and Ceylon. There is considerable talk about the possibilities of a war tax and while there has been some high buying the usual attitude is to be careful while prices are so high.

The sugar situation shows little change. In Canada refiners are keeping price up in accordance with their statement that they are grinding costly raws and the demand is very light, indicating that both the trade and consumers still have supplies. When lower prices may be expected is a matter for speculation. The New York situation shows little change unless it is that things have become more settled on a basis which it is believed will hold for some time. The needs of France and England are not thought to be sufficient to take the market higher for some time unless there is another rush to get supplies.

Coffee remains strong. Pepper should cease soon and cream of tartar also. New shelled almonds are considerably lower. One line of condensed milk has been reduced 15c a case.

Montreal reports a little more interest in the flour situation, but conditions are generally continuing very dull. Domestic demand is very weak, and export business is out of line, although the call is strong. Canadian wheat is higher priced than American. With a cold weather demand for mill-feeds, prices have firmed, and millers are beginning to refuse orders for straight cars, using this demand as a lever for flour sales. Cornmeal shows a reduction of 10c. a sack.

Strictly new-laid eggs are practically off the market so far as dealers are concerned. The price is nominally around 50c but the statement is made by a Toronto firm that it is doubtful if a case of strictly new-laid stock could be had in the city. Fresh eggs are offered, but candling usually reveals them to be hold-overs and no better than storage stocks. Export demand has eased owing to poor condition of American shipments having given the business somewhat of a black eye; more interest is expected shortly.

Spanish onions being shipped back to London is an interesting feature of the vegetable market. The price is advancing rapidly. It is evident that the war department is making reservations for the use of the army.

The Ottawa report that France is looking for Canadian potatoes would indicate the probability of a higher market as shipment would be made from the New Brunswick and Delawares practically control the price basis.

New California navel oranges have arrived. The first shipment is slightly later than usual owing to new standards of quality. The crop is reported as being large and prices should be about as low as last year. New crop lemons are coming freely and there appears to be no indication of a shortage. Apples continue firm.

HE DID NOT APPRECIATE TIPPERARY

The members of the Fiske O'Hara Company, which will appear here in January, are laughing at the expense of some of the young actors in that organization who unwittingly got in a scrape recently. The Company was playing in a small Indiana town and several of the younger members of the Company put up at an hotel kept by an excitable German. One of the young men, who is the possessor of a fine tenor voice, had just received a copy of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and with a couple of others, assisted by the musicians of the Company, was enthusiastically singing the refrain. The melody fell on the ear of the proprietor and his face grew white with rage. He burst in on the astonished actors with a mad roar:

"Get out of my hotel, quick. Herr Gott! You should insult me with dot? Yah! You gif de tam incidental moosic for de murder of de Germans. Fine, dot is! But not here you should gif it. Git out right away, you verdomt loafers."

In vain the thespians expostulated, but the irate Teuton was deaf to explanation: so they packed their bags and moved to the other hotel, where they were greeted with a hearty laugh, as the news of the episode had preceded them.

BATTLE OF YPRES IN LAST STAGE

Sir John French Speaks in Optimistic Vein

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the field, speaks in an optimistic vein concerning the position of the allies in a report issued yesterday by the official bureau. The report covers, in a general way, the activities of the British troops from Nov. 11 to Nov. 20, with extensive reference to fighting preceding these dates.

Summing up the situation in concluding his report, Field Marshal French says:—

"As I close this despatch, signs are in evidence that we are possibly in the last stages of the battle from Ypres to Armentieres. For several days past, the artillery fire of the enemy has slackened considerably, and his infantry attacks have practically ceased.

"The role our armies in the west have been called upon to fill, has been to occupy strong defensive positions, holding ground gained and inviting the enemy's attack, and to throw back these attacks, causing the enemy heavy losses in his retreat and following him up with powerful and successful counter-attacks to complete his discomfiture.

"The value and significance of operations of this nature since the commencement of hostilities by the allies' forces in the west, lie in the fact that at the moment when the eastern provinces of Germany are in imminent danger of being over-run by the numerous and powerful armies of Russia, nearly the whole active army of Germany is tied down to a line of trenches extending from Verdun on the Alsatian frontier to the sea at Nieuport, east of Dunkirk, (a distance of 240 miles) where they are held, with much reduced numbers and impaired morale, by the successful action of our troops in the west."

A jack with adjustable legs, long enough to reach solid ground, has been invented for raising automobiles that are caught in mud.

Duchess's Quests in Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30. — A despatch from Berlin says that Queen Victoria of Sweden has arrived in Berlin on her way to the City of Karlsruhe. Queen Victoria is a daughter of the late Grand Duke of Baden and a sister of the present Grand Duke Frederick. (Karlsruhe is the capital of the Grand Duchy of Baden).

Deputation Left This Afternoon

Mr. E. A. Peck, solicitor for the County of Peterborough, and Reeve Howden of the municipality of North Monaghan, will go to Toronto tomorrow for the purpose of securing permission from Provincial Secretary Hanna, to raise two thousand dollars' worth of short term debentures. The money will be applied on next year's statute labour in Road district number six. Should the municipality be successful in raising the amount it will enable them to give immediate employment to a number of unemployed now residing in North Managhan. This work will consist of breaking stones in the gravel pit and putting such material on the road as weather conditions will permit. In order to raise this money by the issuance of short term debentures, it is necessary to secure special permission from the Provincial authorities, as present existing legislation does not provide for such a course. The municipality would rather give the unemployed work than give them charity.

The Council at a meeting that was held on Saturday afternoon, voted the sum of one hundred dollars to the Patriotic Fund.

HUNTERS' COMPANY

The Hunters' Company of the Home Guard will be organized on Wednesday night at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock, when officers will be elected and other business transacted. All hunters in the city are asked to attend this meeting. Naturally among such a body there are many crack shots, and from the standpoint of marksmanship, the Hunters should be well to the front in the ranks of the Home Guard. Every hunter in the city is urged to be on hand Wednesday night.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. G. W. Mulligan spent Sunday at his home here, on his way to Woodstock.

Miss McNabb, Gilmour street, spent the week-end the guests of friends in Lakefield.

Miss Freda Junkin of Toronto is in the City, visiting her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Mulligan and Miss A. A. Turner.

Miss Rena Shearer, of Otonabee, is the guest of Miss Florence Hunter, 360 George street, for a few days.

Mrs. R. G. Clifford will receive for the first time since her marriage on Wednesday afternoon, at her home, 312 Reid Street.

Mrs. F. K. Spriggs (Miss Lelia Haskill) will receive the first Wednesday of each month—Dr. Gallivan's Apartments, Fleming Place.

Following the announcement a few days ago of the appointment of Mr. A. Montizambert, the popular local manager of the Bank of Montreal, to the responsibilities in connection with the managership of the branch at Victoria, B.C., Brantfordites, who have learned to appreciate his worth and that of Mrs. Montizambert and Miss Adelaide, will regret to learn that next week will witness their departure from the city. Mrs. Montizambert will leave towards the end of next week for Toronto, and will not return to Brantford before leaving for the west. Miss Adelaide is now visiting with friends in Winnipeg.—Brantford Expositor.

An innovation most commendable in these war times, was introduced into Brantford on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. Montizambert, Dufferin avenue. Following the example set by well known ladies in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, and other large Canadian centres, an afternoon tea was held, invitations being issued as per usual, with a timely little note inscribed on the invitation card that 25 cents, to be devoted to patriotic purposes, would be charged at the door. A large number of friends availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the social event and incidentally contribute to the funds of the Brantford Women's Patriotic league, whose coffers were increased to the extent of $45 as a result of the affair.—Brantford Expositor.

POLICE COURT

Harry Martin charged John Dougherty in this morning's Police Court with assault. Chief Thompson conducted the case for Martin and Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the accused.

Martin is a tinsmith, and on Friday last did some work in the Ideal Pool Room. The young fellows in the pool room started chaffing him and words led to blows. In the encounter, which Martin claims was due to Dougherty taking the initiative, the informant got a badly bruised eye and other minor injuries. Dougherty also displayed a somewhat distorted eye, but Martin could not remember giving it to him.

Martin called to substantiate his story another man who was in the pool room at the time, but witness number two made the case look worse for him, as he testified that if either of the men were guilty of starting the whole thing it was Martin, and that the complainant received his wounds in an open and fair fight. Mr. Wearing did not have to call any witnesses as the Magistrate dismissed the charge on the evidence already heard. He reprimanded Martin for dragging the case into Police Court. "When you invite a man to fight and get what you asked for, don't come whining to Police Court about it," he said.

Death of Holly G. Shepard

BAY CITY, Mich., Nov. 30.—Holly G. Shepard, 46 years old, dropped dead of heart failure just after he finished his dinner Friday night.

He was a son of the late Judge T. F. Shepard and was known in many parts of Michigan and adjoining states and Canada as a promoter of amateur minstrel shows. At one time he was a leading man in various minstrel troops.

He is survived by a widow and his mother.

The deceased was well known in Peterborough, having directed several minstrel shows here under the auspices of the Belmont Club.

WEDDING BELLS

WOTTEN—SKINNER.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in Bridge Street Methodist Church last evening when Miss Eva May Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Skinner, Catherine street, was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Russell Wotten, who is connected with the Ritchie Co., and formerly with R. Fair & Co., Peterborough. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. H. S. Osborne, pastor of the church. The bride was assisted by Miss Doris Brooks, while Mr. Charles Skinner, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After the nuptial knot had been tied a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Catherine street.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts. The happy young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends in this city for a happy wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Wotten will reside at 26 Catherine street.—Bellville Ontario.

OBITUARY

THOS. FITZGERALD.

Mr. Thos. Fitzgerald, a well-known and respected resident of Douro, passed away very suddenly last evening about 6 o'clock. Mr. Mr. Fitzgerald, who of late has been to all appearances in the best of health, returned from a drive yesterday afternoon, about half-past 4 o'clock. He remarked that he did not feel very well and within half an hour afterwards died of heart failure.

He was unmarried and is survived by a sister, Mary, at home, and one brother, Patrick, of Douro.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 9.30 o'clock to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

The late Mrs Fitzgerald leaves a large number of friends who will deeply regret his death.

WILLARD HENRY McCOLL.

The death occurred at the family residence in Douro, yesterday, of Willard Henry McColl, the eighteen months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry McColl of that Township. In the death of their infant son, Mr. and Mrs. McColl will have the sympathy of their many friends.

The funeral was held this afternoon at half-past two o'clock from the home of the bereaved parents to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. R. G. Peever officiated.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Rantens beat the Pirates by an overwhelming score of 55-35 in a well played game in the Y.M.C.A. League on Saturday evening. C. Barthet was the star player, having 16 goals to his credit. Officials were: Referee, J. M. Lang; scorer, Geo. Robinson. The game, Crusaders vs. Excelsiors, scheduled for this evening, is postponed until Thursday evening, Dec. 3rd, at 7.45 o'clock. The postponed game between St. Pauls and Crusaders will be played on Tuesday evening at 7.45. These games are free and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., delivered a very interesting address before the Life Problem Club on Sunday afternoon, the subject being "Duty." Mr. Turner outlined the many ways in which duty calls to young men. Duty has called some to go to the front in the present war while others are so urgently called to serve at home. Young men do not always recognize the duty they owe to the municipality in which they live to serve in official positions and in other ways.

Twenty-three delegates from Peterborough attended the 5th Annual Boys' Work Conference at Belleville, which closed last evening. The fellow men were very much helped by addresses delivered by L. Alexander of Chicago; Rev. A. D. Dalrick, Chas. F. Chisholm, H. W. Halpenny, of Toronto, and others.

A banquet was served to the visiting delegates on Saturday evening at Bridge Street Methodist Church.

The boys returned to-day fully determined to do their best in Christian work in the local Association and the Young Men's Christian Association.

CHIMNEY FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT

Saturday morning, about nine o'clock a chimney fire broke out at the residence of Daniel Connelly, 287 Roger Street. The parents had gone down town and left the children at home, and when the fire broke out the youngsters were naturally very much frightened. The eldest, who is 10 years old, however, went to Bar 54 and sent in an alarm. The Fire Brigade responded and the fire was speedily extinguished. There was practically no damage.

Generous Gift From Counties

COBOURG, Nov. 30.—At a meeting of the Counties Council a resolution was passed voting $500 a month to the Patriotic Fund during the period of the war. This is a very generous offer on the part of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and no doubt will be much appreciated.

BUSY IN ARGONNE.

French Have Repulsed German Attacks—Active on Saturday.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Comparative quiet prevailed along the western front Sunday except in the Argonne region, where the French repulsed several attacks.

The following communication was issued by the War Office Sunday night:—

"Quiet prevails along the front, except in the Argonne region, where the German attacks have not been more successful than preceding attacks."

The official statement issued by the War Office yesterday afternoon says:

"Yesterday the enemy's commanding was more active, but carried on chiefly with 77 millimetre pieces; his heavy artillery has made itself felt very little. Under these conditions the artillery struggle has turned particularly to our advantage.

"In Belgium, our infantry captured several supporting positions to the north and to the south of Ypres. In the country to the north of Arras, one of the enemy's attacks, undertaken by nearly three regiments has definitely failed after several counter-attacks carried out in all directions.

"Between the Somme and Chaulnes we have made perceptible progress. In the neighborhood of the village of Fay, our troops came into immediate contact with the wire entanglements of the defence.

In the region of the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, a group of machine guns and emplacement for 10 centimetre pieces were destroyed by our shells, one of which caused an explosion in one of the enemy's batteries.

"In the Vosges three counter-attacks, undertaken by the Germans for the purpose of recapturing ground previously taken by us in the Ban-de-Sap region, were repulsed."

SHIPS IN NORTH PACIFIC?

German Cruisers Reported To Be Operating From Aleutians.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 30. — That three German cruisers which had been operating off the coast of South America had changed their base to the Aleutian Islands, and were patrolling the trade route between Puget Sound and the Orient, was the report brought yesterday by the Japanese liner Tacoma Maru, in port from Yokohama.

While crossing the Pacific the Tacoma Maru received a wireless despatch from the Chicago Maru, west-bound, stating that German warships were in the area between the 180th and 190th meridians. The Chicago Maru reported that she had altered her course to avoid capture. Precautions were taken aboard the Tacoma Maru, which for three nights proceeded without a light showing. Local shipping men are skeptical regarding to truth of the rumor.

Marching On Suez, Says Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30. — (Via London.) — According to a Berlin message to The Telegraaf, Cairo reports that 76,000 Turkish troops, under Izzet Pasha, are marching against the Suez Canal. This army includes 10,000 Bedouins with 500 camels. The reports also state that the Turks have built a field railway to the Canal zone.

The road to the Suez Canal, according to the despatch, is barricaded by the British with a long line of trenches and with artillery positions.

Body Identified.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 30.—Relatives on Saturday identified the body which was found in a creek near this city Friday afternoon as J. Mills, a resident of Norwich, twenty miles from Woodstock. Mills had been an inmate of the House of Refuge for about a week, but wandered away a few days ago, eluding the authorities of the institution. His dead body was found in a creek face downwards by a rural mail carrier. Coroner Mearns yesterday opened an inquest.

Kaiser Back In the East.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—(Via Amsterdam and London.)—It was announced at military headquarters yesterday that Emperor William was now with the German army in the east.

MOUNTAIN COLLAPSED.

Earthquake In Greece Caused Death of Twenty-Three Persons.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Twenty-three persons were killed and a number of others were injured in the earthquake which occurred on Friday in western Greece and the Ionian Islands, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens.

On the island of Santa Maura the earthquake caused strange convulsions of the earth's surface. The mountain of Perlengia collapsed and crumbled away for a distance of nearly two miles, and the waters of the Ionian Sea penetrated the valley to the extent of about 125 acres. New small mountains appeared at different points on the island.

Capture of Cracow By Russians Is Imminent

Entire City Has Been Devastated by Heavy Gun Fire—One Suburb Is Already Burning—Conflicting Rumours From Prussia.

THREE GERMAN ARMY CORPS IN DANGER

ROME, Nov. 30—The fall of Cracow may be expected at any time, according to advices received here from Petragrad. Since Saturday the Russians have been shelling the outer fortifications and the fire of their howitzers has reached the citadel of the City. One suburb is already burning, and the entire city has been devastated.

A correspondent of the Russian Army Messenger reports successful fighting on the Prussian frontier. The Germans are being so closely pursued by the Russian cavalry that they have been unable to take up positions previously prepared. Petrograd hears that ten miles of German trenches between Glovno and Sobota were captured yesterday, and that 600 prisoners weree taken. Gloyno is 16 miles northeast of Lodz, and Sobota is 12 miles north of Glovno. It is semi-officially announced that the Germans have received reinforcements of two infantry divisions and one cavalry division.

Reference in London to the Russian success in Poland has been some what toned down since the cautionary report of Grand Duke Nicholas. Military critics are convinced, however, that the Germans have suffered a check which only the most strenuous efforts of their commanders can save from degenerating into defeat.

Conflicting Reports.

From Poland the reports as to the situation between the German and the Russian armies are conflicting. Both Berlin and Petrograd, however, agree that the final issue has not yet been reached. Petrograd reports that the Germans are energetically resisting thhe Russian advance in the vicinity of Strykow, and the situation is said to be favourable for the Russians.

The Berlin claim is that the Russian offensive movement has been effectually checked, but the final outcome is yet to be disclosed.

Pressure is Tightening.

The violent battle in Poland is still raging in the region of Strykow and Lodz, says a despatch to the Matin from its Petrograd correspondent.

The Russian pressure is steadily tightening about the three German army corps which were enveloped between Strykoy and Brzexiny, and fresh forces have been despatched to the front to meet the Germans' reinforcements which are advancing from the vicinity of Lenszyca.

The Germans have hastily sent a force of 30,000 men to strengthen the garrison at Breslau, in evident anticipation of a Russian success at Cracow.

It is now definitely known here that at least two army corps have been recalled from Belgium and France to the eastern arena of war.

The Austrian army west of Cracow and Prygreck has been dismembered.

THE DOGS OF WAR: WHY THE GERMANS WILL NOT FIGHT.
—From the London Express.

NAVAL BATTLE IN THE PACIFIC SOON

British and Japanese Fleets Are Closing in on German Vessels Now Reported Off the Mouth of the Plate River

Special Morning Cable:

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 1.—British and Japanese warships are reported to-day to be closing in on the German squadron in South American waters. A big naval battle is expected at any time, and traffic in the South Atlantic has practically been abandoned.

The German squadron of Admiral Von Spee is now reported off the mouth of the River Plate. Ten British warships were reported off the Brazilian coast yesterday and are headed for the Germans, while the Japanese Pacific squadron is likewise following in the German's trail.

The British steamer Voltaire, bound for New York, sent wireless messages being exchanged between German warships, and hurriedly put into port fearing capture. Officers of the Voltaire said the Germans were calling for their supply ship.

All vessels have been warned that travel will be hazardous until the hostile warships are out of the vicinity.

POLICE OF NEW YORK FACE WAVE OF DESPERATE CRIME

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.— Police of New York to-day faced a veritable wave of crime on the first swell of which, in the space of a few weeks, have come four bomb outrages, one street assassination that smacks of a Rosenthal murder and a barrel murder mystery.

The first bomb outrage occurred several weeks ago, when two men and a woman, thought to be members of a white slave band, with ramifications that extend throughout the country, partially wrecked the new Bronx county court house and shattered the offices of the county sheriff.

The next one followed several days later, when a bomb, the fuse sputtering dangerously near the explosive, was discovered near a judge's bench in a city court in time to prevent damage and possible death to several persons.

While the police still were without clue to these outrages, two men dropped a barrel on a curb in Long Island City. It contained the still warm body of a man who had been shot through the heart.

Then came the wrecking of the first floor of a tenement in Cherry Street. Investigation by the police uncovered the fact that the place had been occupied by a Sicilian "club." In one of the rooms were found enough explosives to have blown the six storey tenement to bits. Two injured men and a third who was aiding them were arrested in one of the wrecked rooms.

Within a day after the wrecking of the Cherry Street bomb plant, Barnet Baff, whose fight against the poultry trust resulted in the conviction and sending to jail of 13 of its members, was lured from his office, and shot to death in a crowded street. His two murderers escaped in an automobile.

The last bomb explosion occurred late on Friday. A man who said his name is Tony Lollo was carrying a bundle along East One Hundred and Fourteenth Street. Suddenly the "bundle" exploded, ripping away two of Lollos fingers. It was a dynamite bomb. The police are certain he can be connected in some way with New York's bomb planters.

Excepting the three men arrested at the scene of the Cherry Street outrage and Lollo, the police to-day were as far at sea as they were on all the cases mention at the time they occurred.

SUDDEN DEATH OF W. R. HARTSHORNE

Walter R. Hartshorne, 141 London street, died suddenly Monday night at Nicholls Hospital. He was taken suddenly ill shortly after supper and was hurried to the hospital, where he passed away shortly after his arrival. Deceased was a well-known Chemong Park cottager.

BITTER COLD WEATHER ADDS TO VIENNA'S WOES

Municipality is Feeding Many Thousands on Potato Soup.

Venice, via London, Nov. 30.— Unusually bitter cold, accompanied by a heavy snowfall, is said to be causing intense misery to the population of Vienna. The situation is made worse by the exorbitant prices of food and the municipality is feeding many thousands of persons. Owing to the high price of flour, the authorities are experimenting with soup made from potatoes, barley and black meals.

Extraordinarily cold weather is reported from the southern battlefield, especially in Bosnia.

PRISONERS IN SIBERIA.

40,000 Germans and Austrians Now There—Funds May Be Sent.

PEKIN, Nov. 30.—The American Minister to China, Dr. Paul Reinsch, cabled to-day to the American Embassy at Petrograd a request that the Russian Government permit two Americans to go to Siberia with funds for German and Austrian prisoners there. These funds were collected by Germans and Austrians throughout the East. It is estimated that the number of German and Austrian prisoners in Siberia already is 40,000.

Custom House Humour.

A missionary was returning to Basel from Patagonia, bringing with him for the purposes of science a collection of Patagonian skulls. The custom house officers opened the chest and informed the owner that the consignment must be classed as animal bones and taxed at so much a pound.

The missionary was indignant. So the officials agreed to reconsider. When the way-bill had been revised, it appeared in the following form:

"Chest of native skulls, Personal effects, already worn."

ALLIES PREPARING AN OFFENSIVE MOVE

In the Event of Russian Victory Will Strike at German Line Enemy Has Relaxed and Attacks Lack Power

PARIS, Nov. 30.— From whatever cause the German effort in the western theatre of war has relaxed, it is officially announced that their forces in Belgium are entirely on the defensive. In France their attacks have been desultory and have lacked power.

There is an impression here that the allies are about to take the offensive in Belgium and Northern France, and that a great attack by the French and British may be looked for in the event of a great Russian triumph in Poland. Military observers incline to the belief that the Germans are suspending operations in the west until an issue is obtained in the east, and are preparing to withdraw to a second line of defences in Belgium if the issue is against them.

Have Built Strong Defences.

They have built defence works at Quadrechat, commanding the high road to Brussels, according to report from Rotterdam, and have erected strong fortresses at Courtrai, Roulers and Tournai. Fortresses stretch for miles along ranges of hills, and are supplied with guns having a range of six miles. Other unofficial reports are that the Germans are preparing for a Winter campaign in Belgium and France. Heavy guns, provisions, winter clothing, ammunition and hospital accessories are being poured into the German bases by the trainload.

German Drive Held Up.

The official report to-night stated that there was calm everywhere except near Arras, where some attacks by the Germans were made and repulsed. The expected arrive of 700,000 men against the allied line in the region of Arras has not developed, although the Germans have shown more energy in that region than in any other part of the battle line.

The fighting was not heavy yesterday. A slackening of fire from the German artillery in Belgium was again noted in the official report. The allies made slight advances in the north, and repulsed German attacks at the east of the line.

It is officially reported that the Germans are displaying great activity at Zeebrugge, their submarine and naval base on the Belgian coast north of Ostend. It is reported that they are determined to make the port a strong base for the attack planned against England. The British naval bombardment at Zeebrugge has been resumed.

Advices from Holland report that railway traffic, newspapers and posts in the Brussels region are entirely suspended, it is presumed for the purpose of suppressing news of a movement of German troops to the eastward.

Desolation In Many Villages

Women and Old Men Remain in War-swept Towns

VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, Nov. 30.—Black ruins which have just ceased smouldering, houses whose interiors have been demolished by bursting shells, leaving only the skeletons of their structures standing, others with sides blown out, still others where only a chimney-stack remains erect, are common sights in this portion of the track of the armies fighting a short distance to the north.

Amid the desolation, in half-sheltered shacks, sit women, children and old men uttering scarcely a word, except about their husbands and fathers and sons away with the army, and from whom news is rare, if it comes at all. Lack of labourers makes it almost impossible for the villagers to start any repairs. Trade is at a standstill, and the commonest articles of domestic necessity are difficult to obtain, owing to the dislocation of transport.

Only a mile or two from Vitry the villages of Erignicourt and Courdemange have virtually disappeared, except for disorderly heaps of bricks, tiles and stones. The fields are dotted with deep holes made by bursting German and French shells, while all about are small mounds, with small crosses formed of two broken branches of trees placed over them, without name or number to indicate the occupants.

Trenches Remain as They Were.

Farther away from Vitry is Normee, near Fere Champenoise. Normee before the war possessed about 100 houses. Now there are but 60, the rest having been blown to pieces or burned. The village passed from hand to hand several times during the German retreat to the Aisne. It is placed in a capital position for defence from any side, and the opposing forces fought desperately for its possession. In its single street 510 German bodies were picked up on one day, as well as about 100 French dead. Everywhere there were furious combats, and graves are strewn on the fields, while the excellently constructed and sheltered trenches on all sides remain as they were during the battle, with pieces of exploded shells and accoutrements spread about.

Scraps of War News

AMSTERDAM — The fact that young Boers are serving with the German armies is shown in the recommendation that two boys, 14 and 15 years old respectively, were awarded the iron cross.

BERLIN—Many of the German troops recently sent to the trenches are provided with electric heaters small enough to be carried in the pocket and operated by a dry cell.

PARIS—A small glass tube, no larger than a pencil, filled with iodine, and containing a brush, is being supplied to French soldiers to render wounds aseptic and to minimize risk of blood-poisoning.

PARIS½A French officer, imprisoned in Germany, has twice communicated with his family by attaching a stamped letter to toy balloons. Both floated to French soil, were picked up and mailed.

King George In Paris Hospitals

PARIS, Nov. 30.—King George arrived in France at 6.30 o'clock this morning. The Prince of Wales met him and they passed the day visiting the Hospitals and going about in an automobile. The Prince seemed to be extremely well pleased to be with his father on the tour. The King and his son bowed and smiled repeatedly in response to the cordial greetings of the inhabitants who gathered by thousands to welcome the British sovereign and his son. Among the places visited by the King were the hospitals where wounded British officers and soldiers are being treated.

German Ships Get Big Guns

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 1 — The Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs that 150 naval guns have been sent from Hamburg ton Danzig, and they evidently are intended for ships building at Danzig and Elbing namely two Dreadnoughts two Dreadnought cruisers and a large number of destroyers, and big submarines. These were scheduled to be completed in 1915, but the sending of the guns is taken to show that the construction has been expedited.

BUSINESS OVER CABLE IN GRAIN IS QUIET

Flour Price Firm—Demand for Mill Feed—Butter Easier.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—Business over the cable in the grain market continues very quiet, and the market in this respect is dull, but there is a fair demand from local buyers for coarse grains, and quite a few car lots changed hands at steady prices. There is no change in the condition of the market for flour, prices being firm, with a fair trade passing for local account, but the export trade is quiet. In millfeed the feeling is strong under a continued good demand.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for butter, and prices at the auction sales to-day were 1¾c to 1½c per pound lower than a week ago, finest creamery selling at 25½c, but there is no actual change in jobbing prices yet. Cheese is strong, with a good enquiry from over the cable for supplies. Exports for the week were 41,808 boxes, as compared with 24,092 for the same week last year. The demand for eggs is good, and the market is fairly active at firm prices. Exports for the week were 21,000 cases.

PLANNED THE USE OF FLOOD.

Keeper of Nieuport Sluices Made Suggestion to Military Authorities That Played Big Part in Fighting.

DUNKIRK, France, Nov. 20.— The man who planned the flooding of the German positions on the Yser has been decorated with the order of King Leopold, and is likely to receive some similar recognition from the allies' governments.

The man, whose name has not been made public, is the keeper of the great Nieuport sluices which control the water in the canals and dykes. His position gave him an unrivalled knowledge of the possibilities of inundating the country and he pointed out to the Belgian general staff that by using the railway embankment as a dyke and by breaking the canal in certain places they could inundate most of the region occupied by the German trenches and advanced gun positions.

His plan was at once adopted. The culverts in the railway embankment were filled with sand and gravel and then the fire of the heavy guns was concentrated on points in the canal bank until it burst and the water spread out over the fields.

One Woman's Opinion.

"I have been asked what kind of advertisements influence me most. Unquestionably, the ones I read in our own local paper. I read that paper when I am at home and thinking about household affairs. When I am away, my mind is fully occupied with other things.

Perhaps I do see bill board and street car advertisements, but I certainly do not remember them. The advertisements that attract me most in the home paper are the ones that give real news, such as prices, styles and particulars of quality."

It pays to advertise intelligently in the home paper.

$7,000,000 MONTHLY FROM THE BELGIANS

Hellkites Show No Mercy to the Only Country They Have Subdued

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 30. — The German Government has decided to levy on Belgium a war tax of thirty-five million francs (about $7,000,000) per month, in addition to the fines imposed upon individual cities. Last Friday the Military Governor for the Province of Brabant called a meeting of bankers and acquainted them with this decision, stating at the same time that the money would be spent upon the maintenance in Belgium of an army of a quarter of a million men. In reply to protests, he said that the levies on the cities had been devoted to making provisions for the widows and orphants of German soldiers who had fallen in the field, but the new tax was rendered necessary by the shooting of German soldiers by Belgian citizens.

THE STOCK MARKET

Special to The Examiner.

UNION STOCK YARDS, Nov. 30.—Receipts were large, 200 cars, 4,142 cattle, 2,073 hogs, 2,283 sheep and lambs, 189 calves.

Cattle.—The quality of the fat cattle was better than for several markets, as high as $8.50 being paid for a choice heifer and steer and $8.00 was paid for a straight load of heifers. Trade active and prices firm. Choice butcher's steers, $7.50 to $8.25 and two at $8.50; good butcher's steers, $7.00 to $7.40; medium butcher's steers, $6.00 to $6.90; common butcher's steers, $6.00 to $6.40; choice butcher's heifers, $7.75 to $8.00; common butcher's heifers, $7.00 to $7.75; choice cows, $6.50 to $6.75 and two of prime quality at $7.25; good cows, $6.50 to $6.75; canners, $3.50 to $4.75. Trade brisk for canners and cutters.

Feeders and Stockers.—Market was unchanged for stockers and feeders. Choice steers, $6.25 to $6.50; medium steers, $5.75 to $6.00; stockers, $4.00 to $5.50.

Milkers and Springers.— Market steady to strong at $70 to $105 each, but kept at $75 to $90 each.

Calves.— Receipts light and prices unchanged. Choice veals, $10 to $10.50.

Sheep and Lambs.—Receipts liberal but prices firm for choice quality. Choice 80 to 90 lb. lambs sold at high figures, but coarse heavy lambs were easy at Thursday's prices. Sheep, $5.00 to $5.75; culls and rams, $2.50 to $4.50; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $8.25 to $8.70; heavy lambs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Hogs.—1,300 Winnipeg hogs were on sale, but prices remained firm. Selected, fed and watered, $7.50 to $7.15 f.o.b. cars, and $7.75 weighed off cars.

Cossacks Saved Prisoners.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30.—The following story has been received from Petrograd:—

"In the region north of Lodz 500 Russians were caught in a village, after they had expended all their ammunition in a sharp fight with the Germans, and were taken prisoners.

"A captain of a Cossack force who had been watching his chance seized a favorable opportunity, and, when the prisoners were under convoy on their way to the German rear, attacked and killed the guards and brought the Russians back safely to their own lines."

Mails Safe Says Turkey.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Turkey has assured the United States that mails between the embassy at Constantinople and the consulates scattered throughout the country will be safe-guarded. Inasmuch as despatches have been coming through in code to Ambassador Morgenthau and other attaches in the Ottoman empire, it appears that the vigorous protests of the United States against the proposal of the Porte to restrict code communication between neutrals, has been effective.

WORK OF REAL WAR DONE BY AIRSHIP MEN WITH BOMBS

LONDON, Nov. 10—Before the outbreak of war the idea obtained fairly generally in the lay mind, and to not a little extent among students of flight, that the problem of bomb-dropping was easier in the case of an airship, which can hover or the speed of which can be reduced as much as may be desired, than it is in the case of the aeroplane. Such matter as has been officially reported goes to indicate that in mere accuracy of aim bomb-dropping by aeroplanes is fully equal to that of the balloons.

Even when operating at the favourite time for balloons, on still nights, when advantage is taken of darkness as a cover, and, according to well-substantiated evidence, in co-operation with spies giving light signals from below, the aim of bomb-droppers from dirigible balloons when traversing at a low altitude has been quite poor. Of course if an airship were employed for bomb-throwing in daylight, it could not possibly fly at an altitude of much less than 6,000 feet.

No Official Evidence Yet.

We have no official evidence to date as to how its accuracy would work out when aiming at an objective a mile below. The aeroplane, on the other hand, has been employed, notably by the British airmen, in broad daylight in circumstances in which the enemy has been fully equipped with anti-aircraft weapons and has been very much on the alert.

The romance of the procedure is enhanced when we consider the extremely low altitude at which such craft have manoeuvred to insure accuracy of aim at anything from 400 feet to 600 feet. That puts the aviator at the mercy of any man's rifle. Yet these are the circumstances in which the greatest amount of military damage has been done by bomb dropping in the western theatre of operations during the campaign.

That it should be necessary to come as low as this certainly suggests that to achieve anything like accuracy in this connection at the present early stage of the development of the third arm necessitates the taking of grave risks. For example Lieut. (now Flight Commander) Marix's aeroplane was struck twenty times, two of the control wires being cut. Thus enterprise of this sort leaves the aeroplane pilot absolutely dependent on sheer good luck as to whether he escapes with his life or not.

The naval despatches are notable, both because they contain the first report from the seat of operations in connection with the naval air service and also because they depart from the methods adopted by the military authorities in the very instructive particular of mentioning the class of aeroplane employed. Thus we now learn that the Sopwith type of tractor biplane was used by Flight-Lieut. C. H. Collet in making his successful attack on the Zeppelin airship shed at Dusseldorf.

This is a very remarkable class of machine, with a minimum rate of flight of some three dozen miles an hour and a minimum rate of over ninety miles an hour—otherwise with an amazingly wide range of flying speed. Sopwith hydro-aeroplanes came into great prominence early this year by beating the French champions and all others in international competition at Monaco. When matched against others this type of Sopwith biplane is in some measure parallel to the smaller and quicker tacking ships with which Drake fought and beat the Spaniards.

Since the announcement of the British aeroplane raiding was first made, doubt has been expressed as to how the airmen could possibly descend to within 400 feet of the Zeppelin shed at Dusseldorf.

Settles All the Doubts.

The official explanation now settles all doubts, because it reveals that Lieut. Collet approached at what is still considered to be beyond gun range of 6,000 feet, from which altitude he glided down in clear atmosphere until he was only 1,600 feet above the ground, and a quarter of a mile away from his objective. The daring of traversing that quarter of mile t so low an altitude with such a purpose, and with a type of machine like the Sopwith, which no German watchman can have mistaken by any accident for a German aeroplane, is absolutely remarkable.

The same official despatch dealt with the second attack on the roof of the airship shed at Dusseldorf by Flight Commander Marix, but the machine he used is not specified. Another brilliant piece of work was done by Squadron Commander Spenser Grey, who was in charge of the fleet of naval aeroplanes at Antwerp. These naval attacks appear to have been made from or near Antwerp as a base. The speed of the machines may be gathered from the fact that from there the naval airmen flew to Cologne in the course of a three and three-quarter hours' flight on Oct 8, on which day Squadron Commander Grey circled the city under fire at a height of only 600 feet. He discharged bombs on the miltary railway station causing considerable damage.

All this work is not only amazingly daring, but is, in addition, extraordinarily brilliant. Six hundred feet is so low an altitude for flying that before the outbreak of war anybody who had ventured to predict that, when engaged in hostile operations, British airmen would travel as low as that over cities, airship halls, and the like, would have been scoffed at as a wild visionary.

"(BRONCHITIS)" No Hope BUT-

Mr. Jos. Harris of Elder's Mills, Ont. writes,—"Some time ago I was stricken down by a very severe attack of bronchitis. I could hardly breathe, —in fact was in such a serious condition that the doctor said there was practically no hope of recovery. PEPs were advised. I tried them and could feel an improvement almost at once. I continued using PEPs and in a short time my bronchitis was a thing of the past."

PEPs are something entirely different. Unlike ordinary cough mixtures, syrups, etc., they do not attempt to cure an ailment of the throat, chest, or lungs, by going to the stomach. PEPs go to the lungs and breathing passages direct. Each little PEP contains the warming, healing, stimulating vapors of the pine forest, together with other medicinal extracts. As soon as a PEP is placed in the mouth, these health-giving fumes are released and are breathed down the throat and bronchial tubes direct to the seat of the trouble!

For coughs, colds, bronchitis, hoarseness, sore throat, asthma, and all ailments of throat, chest, and lungs, PEPs are the latest and best cure. All druggists and stores, 50 cents box, or post-paid for price, from PEPs Co., Toronto, Winnipeg, or Montreal.

Peps CURED HIM

To Winter In Berlin.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30. — The last word in German mendacity is found in a proclamation which has been placarded in three languages in this city. It runs:

"Paris being infected by cholera, the Kaiser has withdrawn his troops, and has permitted them to winter in Berlin, where they will enjoy the repose they have so nobly earned."

Spies In British Army.

READING, Eng., Nov. 30. — Two alleged German spies have been "dealt with" by the military authorities, after having been discovered in the Hants Regiment of Earl Kitchener's new army. Copies of letters relating to the movements of troops were found on them. The men were a lance corporal and a private, stationed at Codford.

New Army Off For France.

HAVRE, Nov. 30. — Transports have been continuously steaming from England to Havre ever since Lord Kitchener, at the Lord Mayor's banquet in London, said that he had 1,250,000 men ready to land in France. The troops are mainly territorials. They were loudly cheered as they marched from the docks through the streets. The men appeared to be in high spirits, singing, cheering and whistling as they marched.

Capitals and Armies.

Twice the United States has lost its capital to a foreign foe, but neither time did it produce much effect upon the war. The first time was when Howe's redcoats swept into Philadelphia after the battle of Brandywine. The other occasion was when another British army seized and burned Washington. What Howe needed to end the war in 1777 was not Philadelphia, but Washington's army, and that he didn't get. A country's army is worth a dozen capitals. The British captured America's three largest cities, Boston, New York and Philadelphia, but that availed them little in the long run.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Curious Superstition.

Many Greeks firmly believe to this day in a curious heathen notion, which holds that the fate of every child is controlled entirely by three mysterious spirits, who are spoken of collectively as the "moral." These three "fates" are supposed to be invisible women, who come on a visit of inspection shortly after the birth of each child. They always come after sundown, says the superstition, and the Greek parents when a newly born baby is in the house and a visit from the "moral" is expected carefully leave the door open and lay a feast and money offerings all ready for the "fates" when they should arrive.

Realism.

A certain fiction writer applied to a friend, an interne in a hospital, for some local color for a tale he had based upon an occurrence in such an institution.

The interne couldn't think of anything of moment, but the writer jogged his memory thus:

"Surely you know of some realistic bit here that I could use."

"I have it!" suddenly exclaimed the interne.

"Yes," eagerly came from the writer.

"Here is realism with a vengeance," said the youthful interne. "One of our patients walked in his sleep because he dreamed he had no car fare."—New York Globe.

Last Wish of a Poet.

I wish to lie on the north side of the churchyard about the middle of the ground, where the morning and evening sun can linger the longest on my grave. I wish to have a rough, unhewn stone, something in the form of a milestone, so that the playing boys may not break it in their heedless pastimes, with nothing more on it than this inscription: "Here rest the hopes and ashes of John Clare." I desire that no date be inscribed thereon, as I wish it to live or die with my poems and other writings, which, if they have merit, with posterity it will, and if they have not it is not worth preserving.—John Clare, 1824.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog, and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

German Warship Mined.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—A despatch to The Matin from Petrograd states that it is reported there that the German battleship Wilhelm Der Grosse struck a mine and sank in the Baltic, but adds that there is no official confirmation of the rumor.

The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, evidently referred to in The Matin despatch, is one of Germany's old battleships, having been built in 1901. The warship is of 10,790 tons displacement and carries a crew of 658 men. Her main battery is composed of four 9.4-inch and fourteen 6-inch guns.

Von Moltke a Prisoner.

London, Nov. 30.—The Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily News, wiring from that city, says: — News reaches me privately that Gen. von Moltke is not suffering from liver complaint, but is a prisoner in one of the Imperial palaces. Gen. von Moltke retired gracefully from headquarters, because he interfered too freely in operations conducted by the Crown Prince on the west front in the early stages of the German retreat.

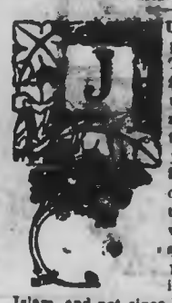
THE TURK AS AN IDEAL WARRIOR

FIGHTING QUALITIES of the TURK

By Richard G. Conover.

The sword is the key of heaven and of hell. A drop of blood shed in the cause of God, a night spent in arms, is of more avail than two months of fasting and prayer. Whoever falls in battle, his sins are forgiven.

Turkish battle inspirers from the Koran.



JUDGE the battling possibilities of the Turkish soldier by five martial centuries of the Janizary. You must do this to appraise the war value of the Sultan's fighters in comprehensive entirety. Moslem valor reached its apex in the accomplishments of this ideal warrior of Islam, and not since Murad IV., the last of the army leading Sultans of Turkey killed with his own hand a gauntlet casting giant of the Persians, at the siege of Bagdad in 1639, has there been a noteworthy victory epoch under the banner of star and crescent. But they who measure military performance sagely declare the fighting spirit of the soldier of Turkey is dormant, not dead.

For the Sultan's battler has not failed altogether to prove his mettle during the last three centuries. Twice of recent years he has performed with his old-time brilliancy, vigor and pluck. Gallantly he drove the Russian before him at the defence of Silistria, at the outbreak of the Crimean War. And Europe rang with plaudits when, under Osman Pacha, at the siege of Plevna in 1877 he showed there was plenty of husky "fightality" in him.

But not often has he been victor since his decadence first began, and his defeats seldom have earned him the solace of praise that often goes to the valiant vanquished. His triumphs mostly have been what the world has deemed massacres and persecutions, in Balkan and Grecian territory, where he has fought with overwhelming odds in his favor. Still, apart from this, almost every expanding nation of Europe during the last one hundred years has taken a whack at him and found him willing to fight. Near the seraglio in Constantinople there may have been a bluffer and diplomatic faker under the ruling fez, but on the firing line the Turkish soldier meant business and met death bravely.

The Janisary fighter represented the standing army of Turkey from the time his famous organization was created by Sultan Orkhan in 1356 until its tragic annihilation by Sultan Mahmoud II. in 1826. Ottoman glory and Ottoman shame were due to his sword very often during these centuries. The glory was won on many famous battlefields and in the conquest and annexation of territory. The shame attended palace rebellion, where Sultans were deposed and murdered according as the Janisary fighting machine desired. They were a counterpart descendant of the famous Praetorian Guard that made and unmade many a Roman emperor.

And, curiously enough, for three hundred years not a single Janisary was a native born Turk. This crack corps, upon which the fate of the Ottoman empire so often depended, was formed and continued during the years 1356 to 1656 by enrolment of boys of the best physique from Christian families of conquered countries. Not a single Turkish youth was admitted to the renowned corps until Mohammed IV. altered its exclusiveness by a radical promulgation. He decreed in 1656 that no more Christian children were to be added to the organization, the recruits being restricted to the offspring of former Janisaries and Moslem appointees.

The Christian boys enrolled in the corps were taken very young and added at the exact rate of one thousand every year. They were forced to become Moslems. Their training as soldiers was very severe. Discipline, fortitude, endurance and spirit were inculcated with the vigor and rigor of the ancient Greeks. They were kept constantly at martial exercises from their tenderest years. They were allowed no rewards in land or territorial connection. Their skill in the profession of arms procured them rapid advancement. This great corps, cut off from all kindred, possessed a strong community of interest, and they became the pride, the pet and the scourge of the empire, according to circumstance. In time of war other Turkish troops were of course added to the army, but the Janisaries were the flower of the Sultan's forces.

It was at the fateful siege and fall of Constantinople, May 29, 1453, that the Turk reached the most famous point of his fighting history and the Janisary his greatest glory. For fifty-three days artillery hammered at the double walls of the doomed city, until at last they were a heap of ruins. History has it that thirty-one Janisaries were the first to mount the outward fortifications. They were thirty picked soldiers of the famous corps, headed by one Hassan, a Janisary of gigantic strength and stature. Scimitar in one hand and buckler in the other, this ideal of the fighting Turk pressed toward one of the breaches made by Mohammed's cannon. Eighteen Janizaries perished before they had followed Hassan fifty feet. Onward the remainder of the band pressed through the battered breach and up to the summit of the inner fortifications. There a swarm of the besieged seized the giant Janisary and hurled him from the ramparts. He rose on one knee and again rushed up the death-swept slope. An avalanche of darts and stones buried him and his few followers not already slain. But the picked band of thirty-one had shown that a successful assault might be made at this fatal point, and within a few minutes a dozen companies of Janisaries covered the walls and towers. From there, heading the common army, they rushed through the breaches of the inner walls and were soon in the city's centre. Constantinople, the capital of the Eastern Roman Empire, thus fell one thousand years after Rome and the empire of the West, dating from the Caesars.

Siege of Constantinople. Ancient Drawing of a World Disturbing Event.

Sultan Mohammed himself rode his war steed as close as possible to the assaulting point, and with iron mace in hand, surrounded by the Janizaries that he reserved for decisive occasions, directed and impelled the battle. As assault after assault failed and the outer ditch was filled with Turkish dead he gave the word to the commander of the chosen corps. The Janizaries drew themselves up, flashed their scimitars and with invincible ranks pressed to victory. Hassan and his thirty begged the first dash at the wall. The honor was grumblingly accorded them and the Byzantine capital fell.

At the battle of Maritza, fought in 1364, the Janisary gave an excellent account of himself. The Turks were scattered over a wide range of territory adjacent to the Maritza River and an expedition comprising Hungarian, Servian, Bosnian and Wallachian armies advanced on him in numbers of at least two to one. But the Christians, assured of victory, spent the night before the battle in revelry at which they were surprised. It was the first encounter between Turk and Slav. Hand to hand combats were the order of the conflict, and again the Janizaries outfought their enemies. Thousands fled on foot to escape their dread pursuers and perished in the Maritza.

Again, at the battle of Kosovo, the soldier of Turkey, led by the famous trained corps, inflicted an overwhelming defeat upon Serbs, Bosnians, Poles and Magyars, June 15, 1390. The Christians gave ground at noon and were pursued by the Janizaries and Sultan Murad I. himself, brandishing a mighty iron mace and felling all who opposed him. In the moment of victory a Servian warrior, Milosh Kobilovich, gained access to Murad's tent and plunged a dagger in the Sultan's body. He was torn to pieces by the victorious Janizaries returning from their chase of the defeated allies.

In 1394 all of Christian Europe arrayed itself against Islam. At the battle of Nicopolis, fought September 24, 1396, the Turk defeated all of the nations pitted against him, and the Janisary demonstrated that he, indeed, was the pick and the ideal of all Turkish fighting men. At this battle a corps of French knights charged the Sultan's front, driving in his outer lines. They did not know it was always a Turkish practice to place the weakest troops in the van. Hacking right and left, the chivalry of France rode over the bodies of those they had cut down until they reached the Janizaries, whose corps formed the front line of the main army of 40,000 lances. Immediately they were enveloped and cut to pieces.

At the battle of Angora between the Turks and Timur, or Tamerlane, "the Tartar"—who, by the way, was also a Turk and a leader of Turkish fighters—in 1402, Sultan Bayezid, of Bajazet I., was utterly defeated, only the Janizaries and a Servian contingent giving any good account of themselves. The Sultan was taken prisoner and carried about in a triumph pageant in a barred litter. Again at the battle of Varna, fought November 10, 1444, the soldier of Turkey proved his bravery. At first the Serbs, Hungarians and Bosnians were successful and Sultan Murad II. turned his horse to retire from the field. One of his commanders implored him to fight the battle out. He had wavered but a moment, however, and he urged his Janisaries to one more supreme effort. They won the day, their leader cutting off the King of Hungary's head and carrying it on his lance to mark a rallying point.

The next noteworthy fighting of the soldier of Turkey was at the battle of Chaldiran, 1514, in which a Persian army was decisively defeated. The chief commander of the Janisaries, Sinan Pacha, induced the Sultan Selim I. to feint for delay rather than go immediately into battle after a march across the desert. When the battle was on he purposely retreated, tempting the Persians into a fatal pursuit. The Janizaries held them until they opened ranks and revealed their artillery, which played upon the advancing army with great slaughter.

History records no battle record more interesting than the defeat of the celebrated fighting Mamelukes of Egypt by the Janizaries of Selim I. Both corps had a proud record and a high spirit. In many a sanguinary field they had been victors. At the battle of Reydaniya, in 1517, the two bodies met. The Mamelukes mistook the Janisary chief Sinan Pacha for the Sultan, cut their way to him and speared him to death. But this splendid cavalry foe was overwhelmed by Janizaries, backed by Selim's artillery. Egypt fell into the hands of Turkey.

In 1522 Suleyman, or Soloman I., the Magnificent, besieged and took Rhodes after severe fighting in which at close range the Turkish soldier performed many heroic deeds. Belgrade had been taken in a preliminary campaign. Then the Sultan found his intentions with respect to arranging the administration of his kingdom were not to be easily carried out because of the Janizaries. They liked not peace. War and booty they must have. So they began to mutiny. The Sultan tried a bold course at first, slaying two of the leaders of the insurrection with his own hands. But he had to pacify them with a large bribe and a declaration of war against Hungary.

So in August 29, 1526, the battle of Mohacs was fought between Turkey and Hungary. The Sultan won and through the victory of his soldiers Hungary became a Turkish province for 140 years. After several unsuccessful attempts to take Vienna, Suleyman the Magnificent died in his tent during a battle, leaving his kingdom at the very pinnacle of its grandeur and prosperity. After him came martial decay, principally because the personal courage and valiant spirit that had characterized all of the Sultans from the founding of the empire were not to be found in his successors. The very nature of the nation demanded unusual wisdom and energy to insure its continuance.

The Janizaries lost their fighting character and could not be trusted to wage war as of old. They were more open to bribes. They were not instructed in the new war tactics employed by other nations they encountered. Their commanders were no longer appointed through merit. Their Sultans no longer led them to battle. Before their final dissolution, however, there came one or two gleams of former glory to brighten the darkness of decadence.

Murad III. was the last fighting Sultan to lead the soldier of Turkey against the enemy. In the ninth year of his reign there was a mutiny of the Janizaries. They demanded the head of his Grand Vizier and sixteen others. He was in a "tight box" and forced to order the slaying of his chief aids. When he was able to resume his authority he gathered some loyal troops and soon the Bosphorus tossed on its tide the bodies of hundreds of Janizaries. The Sultan himself walked the streets, often carrying out his own death sentences. In 1638 Murad marched to retake Bagdad, recovered by the Persians after its capture of some years before. The garrison made a desperate resistance, but Murad led in person and stood guard in the trenches. The Janizaries, shamed or enthused by his example, performed old time prodigies of valor. The Persians sent out a burly champion to taunt and defy the besiegers. History has it that Murad clove him from crown to chin. The chain armor he wore is still preserved in Constantinople. Bagdad fell, to remain in Turkish hands to modern days. At the head of his Janizaries Murad entered Constantinople amid the shouts of his people. The next year, at the age of twenty-eight, the last warrior Sultan died.

From here on calamity follows calamity. The Grand Viziers did most of the leading or the ordering of the movements of the Turkish soldier. The Sultans stayed at home. The Turk fought hard at Vienna, but unavailingly. At the battle of Zenta, against the Austrians, in 1697, 30,000 Turkish soldiers were slain and 10,000 drowned. But they fought gamely.

Then came the final ringing down of the curtain on the famous Janizaries. It was Mahmoud II. who took this most radical step in defiance of all Turkish tradition. The Janizaries had got beyond control. They had deposed and murdered Ahmed III., who ascended the throne in 1703. They forced Selim III. to abdicate after his ascension in 1789 had not brought advantage to them. His successor reigned only a few months because of their power. They had fallen from their high military plane. So bigoted and jealous of their privileges had they become that revolt was looked for over night if they got peeved.

Mahmoud II. sized them up exactly and determined to get rid of them. He had a Master of Ordnance whose proper name was Ibrahim, but who was more commonly called Kara Gehennin or Black Hell. To him Murad whispered what he wished done. The Janizaries were ordered out for drill and review. The hour didn't suit them, so they upset their camp kettles, which was their hurry call to revolt. But Mahmoud unfurled the Sacred Standard of the Prophet, called on all true believers to assemble near him, and told Black Hell to belch. Hundreds of Janizaries fell and the remainder of the corps retreated to the barracks. Black Hell pointed his cannon at them—some six thousand men in all—and blew the building to bits. Those who did not perish in this war fled to the streets and were killed by exasperated civilians. Thus in a few hours passed this historical corps whose deeds are intertwined with the battle history of all Europe and northern Africa. This was in June, 1826.

Immediately a new army was raised and equipped to the number of 40,000, according to European ideas. Mahmoud himself started to learn the art of war, studying French tactics and uniforming himself dragoon fashion. Just at this time came the war of Greece for independence—the period when Lord Byron romantically espoused the cause of the successors of the ancient dwellers in Athens and Sparta. The naval battle of Navarino and a Russian army brought double defeat to the Sultan, despite his military reforms. Greece was wrested from him forever.

But the moulding over of the soldier of Turkey continued. German instructors of tactics and strategy were called in. No less a personage than the late Field Marshal von Moltke was one of those who came all the way from Prussia to teach the art of drill and war. Turkey, however, began to be called the "Sick Man of Europe." Her soldiers fought when their country got in difficulty, but the animus to victory was not there. Once in a while there was a spurt, but in such cases the accomplishment of the fighting man of Turkey was due to the energy and persistency of some one leader personally admired rather than patriotic adhesion of the army.

This was demonstrated in the 1877 war with Russia. For five months a strong army of Russians and Roumanians laid siege to the fortress of Plevna, held by Osman Pacha. The Turkish sortied repeatedly and always with success, inflicting damage and consternation on the allies. Starvation was the only key that finally got the besiegers within the walls. The 32,000 Turkish soldier defenders were with their commander to a man, performing valiant deeds daily during the siege. At his final command they made a supreme effort to cut through the lines, and died willingly. It cost Russia 50,000 men to enter Plevna. The world has since proclaimed Osman Pacha a military genius of high grade and dubbed his army heroes. During the war the Turkish soldier also won a worth-while victory over the Russians at Kizil-tepe in Asia, driving the enemy back from Kars.

The last war in the Balkans spelled defeat for the soldier of Turkey from the start. He was entirely unprepared and was opposed by an array of allies who had been looking for the conflict almost hourly. Bulgaria poured into Thrace because of the Kotchana massacres. She drove the Ottoman forces many miles. Turkey was compelled to declare war. A Servian army marched on Uskub, while the Montenegrins began the siege of Scutari. The Greek navy got busy. It was a bad outlook for the fighting man of Turkey, and he was defeated finally in the battles of Kirk Kilisse and Kumanovo. Salonica surrendered later. Then Adrianople was encompassed, and for a time it looked as though the fighting men of the husky allies would go right through to Constantinople. But internal dissension and diplomacy of the greater Powers prevented the Sultan losing everything he has in Europe. The Turkish soldier had done all he could, handicapped with unpreparedness and the decay of patriotic ambition.

A romantic individual case of the fighting quality in the soldier of Turkey is that of Prince Jem or Zizim, as his name has often been called in Europe. He was one of the sons of Mohammed II. and much better fitted for the throne than his brother Bayezid or Bajazet. He had energy, vigor, grace, culture, ambition and a national pride. But Bajazet heard first of the death of his father and, hastening home, was first to reach Constantinople with bribes for the Janisary support. A civil war began between the brothers. In several battles Jem made a specialty of Janisary killing because of having been robbed of his throne through them. The chroniclers tell of single combats that make the battling of Homer's heroes look like small affairs. Finally Jem was defeated so that he could not rally another army. He sought refuge with the Knights of Rhodes. Then began an imprisonment of the Prince, in which he was transferred from one European point to another and kept in pawn to please his brother, who feared his return to Constantinople. He was finally poisoned. To this day his prowess is sung.

So is the story of Roxelana still told. She was the clever and unscrupulous wife of Suleyman the Magnificent. The Sultan by his former favorite Circassian wife had a son, Mustafa, the ideal of the Turkish fighting man. He inherited his father's talent and wisdom, and while Governor of Carmania had fought valorously against the provinces it became necessary to subdue at intervals. Roxelana bore Suleyman a son—later Selim II. She saw no chance for Selim with Mustafa alive. So through her plottings the Sultan was convinced his son was a traitor, and so had this valiant soldier come to Constantinople and enter his presence alone. From an inner chamber he saw seven mute executioners bowstring the young Prince. Roxelana's other name was Khourrem, or the "Joyous One." It is said she never was more like her name than when she knew this murder had been done. Twice after she is said to have accompanied the Turkish army to battle in disguise of a man and to have killed several of the enemy.

From "The Balkan War." By Gilbert Grant Hamill. Maynard & Co., Boston, 1913.

Analyzers of armies and their units have spent much time in discussing the value of the soldier of Turkey in the light of his decadence during the last two or three centuries. To some of them the star and crescent fighter is only a passing cloud through which the sun of glory will shine again. To others the Turk is permanently eclipsed, and only by amalgamation with some other nation, after a political division has upset Europe and Africa, will his ancient spirit of battle be manifest in its full force again. Those who hold to the latter opinion are far in the minority in the list of authorities.

Those who have studied the Ottoman soldier at very close range and after a long residence near his side insist that the fighting spirit is ever inherent in the race. They assert that no matter how indolent or unpatriotic or bestial a Turk may seem, the moment you put a sword in his hand he swells with the lust of battle and will die like a hero. With all his faults, cowardice in battle is declared to be an unknown quantity with him. It is an odd fact, however, that his greatest achievements were those dating back to the time when he fought Janizary fashion rather than according to modern ideas of war.

Von Moltke, who taught the first army raised under the modernized system, had this to say concerning the battling outlook for the Turkish soldier:—

"The splendid appearance, the beautiful arms, the reckless bravery of the old Moslem horde had disappeared, yet this new army had one quality which placed it above the numerous host that the Porte could summon to the field in former times—it obeyed."

This would seem to be the key to the puzzle of the Turkish soldier's efficiency. Will he obey as Western armies are taught to obey? Has he had his fighting spurs cupped too short by compelling him to submit to the tactics of the West? Is he not perhaps still in a sort of transitional military state? While military obedience is referred to as a Western characteristic, there must not be forgotten the military obedience of Japan at the other point of the compass. And yet the obedience of Japan has been declared to be always a national patriotism in arms rather than a military body whose first duty it is to obey and question afterward.

According to the law of Islam there was a distinct equality among all battlers engaged in a righteous war and Sultans generally made their wars righteous ones. The old Turkish officers were content to lead without domineering, because of this. The spirit of change that has come out of the West makes the officer a superior being, who segregates himself, carries himself uppish, and is not interested in the simple details of his soldiers' lives.

In the recent Balkan war there were Turkish soldiers who displayed their old bravery, devotion, patience and calmness under fire. This would seem to surely indicate that the lesson of obedience had been learned. Yet stories come from Asia Minor that entire divisions had refused pointblank to take any part in the fight of their country against the Allies. Since when have the fighting men of Turkey achieved a unified and solidified battling obedience? There is nothing to indicate it by anything significant of recent happening. The Turk has not probably lost his love of the sword nor the courage necessary to its wielding. If does the incentive to enthusiasm and unquestioning obedience exist?

WOMAN WANTS TO HELP OTHERS

By Telling How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Miami, Okla.—"I had a female trouble and weakness that annoyed me continually. I tried doctors and all kinds of medicine for several years but was not cured until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I hope my testimonial will help other suffering women to try your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. MARY R. MULLINS, Box 453, Miami, Okla.

Another Woman who has Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lindsborg, Kansas.—"Some years ago I suffered with terrible pains in my side which I thought were inflammation, also with a bearing down pain, backache, and I was at times awfully nervous. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now enjoying good health. I will be glad to recommend your medicine to any woman suffering with female trouble and you may publish this letter."—Mrs. A. L. SMITH, R. No. 3, Box 60, Lindsborg, Kansas.

A PICKED TEAM.

We have only admiration
And the deepest adulation
For the warriors of the present
And the game as it is played;
Yet we often have erected
What, judiciously selected,
An eleven from the heroes
Of the past we might have made.

With what joy that coach would cackle
Who had Hercules at tackle
Next to Atlas, playing centre,
And Goliath, playing guard,
It would be like drinking nectar
To see fullbacks such as Hector
Take the signals from Ulysses
When we needed but yard.

Samson's work on the defensive
Would have been most comprehensive;
End like Hermes and Achilles,
There to take the forward pass,
Would have meant a touchdown, whether
It was dry or rainy weather;
So it seems an awful pity
That they've long been under grass.

Will You Help The Hospital for Sick Children, the Great Provincial Charity?

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Thanks for the privilege of appealing through your columns on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children. The Hospital takes care of sick and deformed children, not only in Toronto, but in the Province, outside of the city.

This coming year, of all the years in the Hospital's history, has a more serious outlook, as regards funds for maintenance, than any year that has passed its calendar.

So many calls are being made on the purses of the generous people of Toronto and Ontario, to help the soldiers of the Empire, that as I make my daily rounds through the wards of the Hospital, and see the suffering children in our cots and beds, the thought strikes me as to whether the people will as of old, with all the demands made upon them, answer our appeal and help to maintain the institution that is fighting in the never-ending battle with disease and death, in its endeavor to save the stricken little ones in the child-life of Ontario.

Last year there were 294 in-patients from 210 places outside of Toronto, and in the past twenty years there have been 7,000 from places in the Province other than Toronto.

It costs us $2.34 per patient per day for maintenance. The municipalities pay for patients $1 per patient per day; the Government allows 20 cents per patient per day; so, deducting $1.20 from $2.34, it leaves the Hospital with $1.14 to pay out of subscriptions it receives from the people of Toronto and the Province. The shortage last year ran to $18,000.

Since 1880 about 1,000 cases of club feet, bow legs and knock knees have been treated, and of these 900 had perfect correction. Nearly all these were from different parts of the Province outside of the city of Toronto.

Remember that every year is a war year with the Hospital; every day is a day of battle; every minute the Hospital needs money, not for its own sake, but for the children's sake. The Hospital is the battle-ground where the Armies of Life have grappled with the Hosts of Death, and the life or death of thousands of little children is the issue that is settled in that war. Will you let the Hospital be driven from the field of its battle to save the lives of little children for the lack of money you can give and never miss?

Every dollar may prove itself a dreadnought, in the battle against death, a flagship in the fleet that fights for the lives of little children.

Remember that the door of the Hospital's mercy is the door of hope, and your dollar, kind reader, may be the key that opens the door for somebody's child.

Will you send a dollar, or more if you can, to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, or

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Stars For The Week

Planet Mercury Becomes a Morning Star

On Monday (to-day) the planet Mercury will be "morning star," rising about an hour before the sun.

Venus having passed the sun will also become a morning star close to Mercury on Tuesday, and will in a few days draw away from the sun, and appear much brighter.

Mars is still to the east of the sun about 227,000,000 miles from us; it is closing in and will pass the sun on Dec. 24th, and emerge as a morning star on Christmas Day, in the wake of Venus.

Early Friday morning, Saturn and the moon will be in conjunction about five degrees apart.

Saturn now rises in the east at sunset, crosses the sky pretty well up over head and sets in the north-west just before sunrise; so that it is visible as a bright star throughout the entire night.

Pegasus (the Flying Horse).

Four bright stars may be seen at this time of the year, directly overhead to the west, which form the figure known as the "Great Square" in Pegasus, a constellation representative of a flying horse which has been famed in legend and in story.

The Greek legend represents Pegasus as a flying horse tamed by Neptune, which became a favourite with the "Muses," whose special office was to inspire mortals in the art of poetry and music. He was given to Bellerophon to aid him in conquering the "Chimera." By his aid, according to the story, Bellerophon succeeded in destroying the monster and then presumed to fly to heaven on his winged steed; but Jupiter, angered by this presumption, caused an insect to sting Pegasus, who, giving a sudden lurch, threw his rider to earth again. The fact that Pegasus was so favoured by the Muses, gave rise to the saying that "Every poet must mount Pegasus" and drink from the fount which sprung from his hoof blow, before he can expect to excel in his divine art or soar on Pegasean wing.

Spenser puts it thus:

"Then whoso will with virtuous wing essay
To mount to heaven, on Pegasus must ride,
And with sweet poet's verse be fortified."

Professor Louis P. Stewart of the University of Toronto, has been signally honoured by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, in that they have requested permission, to republish his address on "The Form and Constitution of the Earth" which was given as the presidential address before the Royal Astronmical Society of Canada, in Toronto, for the last year, and which appeared in the Journal of the Society of recent date. The Smithsonian Institution has a committee of experts who select each year what they consider to be the best exposition of an scientific subject that may apepar in English during the year and republish it as such.

THE VALUE OF SPORT.

Sport and college athletics have served so long as targets for cheap cynicism that even the wisest of our philosophers seldom take into account the good they accomplish. Many of us can recall the guffaws of unreasoning mirth that greeted polo and fox hunting when they were first introduced in this country. The sponsors of those healthful sports were accused of "aping the English"—an unforgivable crime in the eyes of the class that brays about its "sturdy Americanism" and decrees blue overalls as the fitting court costume of our Ambassadors.

The English always have been devoted to sport and athletics, with the result that when they suddenly found themselves at war the hunt clubs instantly supplied the country with ten thousand hard riders and fifteen thousand trained horses, all fit for service. One cannot travel through Germany without noticing the complete absence of every kind of outdoor sport. There is practically no pleasure traffic on the Rhine; but few racing shells are to be seen on the Neckar, which flows through Heidleberg.

Not until our nation finds itself threatened with a foreign foe will the great value of athletic training be generally recognized.—New York Herald.

A NEGLECTED COLD WILL VERY OFTEN TURN TO CONSUMPTION.

Never neglect what at first seems to be only a slight cold. Perhaps you start to cough, a little irritation in the throat ensues, then it gets lower down, settles on the lungs and bronchitis sets in, and you start to raise phlegm of a greenish, yellowish color, and you cough persistently.

If you let the simple cold run it will surely develop into something very serious, and perhaps consumption.

On the first sign of a cold or cough go to your dealer and procure a bottle of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A few doses will convince you that it is just the remedy you require.

Mrs. J. W. Pearsons, Amherst, N.S., writes: "Some time ago my daughter had a very bad cough which settled on her chest. She had no rest day or night. I gave her everything I could think of, but without doing her the least bit of good. At last I thought of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle for her. She had not taken half of it before she got relief, and with the remainder she was completely cured. Now when any of the family have a cough we always know what to get for it."

Dr. Wood's is 25c and 50c.

THE ROYAL HORSE ARTILLERY IN A SILK HAT.—A man in the Royal Horse Artillery lost his cap. Anxious to get another he entered a chateau which had been pillaged by the Germans and found a silk hat. He got back just in time to find that his battery had received the order to move forward. He mounted with the silk hat and, as he went past, a companion said, "Morning, my Lord; goin' out to 'unt this morning?"

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Save the crumbs and the loaves will take care of themselves!

There's a new twist to an old adage, and the housekeeper who throws away in crumbs the bread she buys or bakes may find it worthy of her consideration—she'll find it much more profitable and much more agreeable to study the crumbs and their usefulness, than to worry about her grocery bill.

But these's one thing to be remembered in saving crumbs and pieces of bread, never save mouldy bread. Crumbs may be stale, but they must not be mouldy or else they are neither healthful nor palatable.

After the crumbs, or the small bits, have been gathered from the bread box or the bread plate, they should be placed in a warm oven to dry. They muse not be baked or toasted, just dried. When the bread is crisp roll it with a rolling pin and sift through a fine sieve, and then put the crumbs away in an air-tight can.

There are dozens of ways in which breadcrumbs may be used in puddings and croquettes and sauces. Some of the ways tested in an expert's kitchen, and found good are given here:

Crumbs for Soup.

To one well-beaten egg add enough crumbs to be able to mould in balls, season the mixture with a little Worcestershire sauce. Make the balls early enough to allow to stand at least two hours to dry. Drop these in clear soup. Allow to boil two minutes and serve soup at once.

Crumbs and Marrow Balls.

When buying soup bone have the butcher split it. Take out the marrow and season highly with pepper, a dash of nutmeg, and salt. Stir in enough fine breadcrumbs to mould mixture into balls. Set away to cool and dry. Drop into boiling soup and boil two minutes. Serve hot.

Baked Rarebit.

Butter a pie pan, spread a thin layer of breadcrumbs on the bottom. Season with paprika, a little salt, and a thin layer of grated cheese. Add another layer of crumbs, and cheese until pan is filled. Dot top with butter and turn over one cup of milk into which has been beaten one egg. Bake in quick oven fifteen minutes. Cut in pie shape pieces and serve for luncheon

Brown Betty.

For a Brown Betty pudding prepare two cups of breadcrumbs by sprinkling over them a half-cup of brown sugar, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon. Chop three cups of tart apples. Butter thoroughly a deep pudding pan. Put a layer of apples on the bottom then a layer of crumbs, adding bits of butter to each layer of crumbs. Put in layers until all is used, having top layer of crumbs; cover pan and bake in a moderate oven; then remove cover and brown the top of the pudaing. Serve with sugar and cream.

Crumb Patties.

Butter muffin pans thoroughly. Mix one cup of crumbs with one egg and two tablespoonfuls of milk. Add one-half cup of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of baking powder; line the muffin pan all round and on bottom with crumb mixture; leave space in centre. Fill space with apple sauce and raisins and bake twenty minutes in moderate oven. Serve with foamy sauce.

Fish Toast.

One cup flaked cold fish, free from skin or bones. Heat in water sufficient to moisten, add butter, pepper and salt. When hot, pour on slices of buttered toast. Garnish with eggs poached in muffin rings.

What is claimed to be the longest electrical transmission line in the world, conveying 10,000 horse-power about 400 miles, has been put in operation in California.

An explosion engine with an axially revolving cylinder that constitutes its own inlet and exhaust valves, reversing gear and water pump, has been invented in England.

French scientists have found the spectroscope a valuable and speedy instrument for analysing mineral waters.

MOTOR ARTILLERY TO SPEED UP WAR EXPERT CONCLUDES

LONDON, Nov. 7—That motor artillery may be used by the belligerents before the present war is over is the conclusion of H. Massac Buist, an automobile expert, expressed in an article published here. He bases this idea on the success of motor transport over broken country. Approving the phrase, "this is a motor war," he says:

"One of the most interesting phases in face of future developments of automobilism for military purposes, is those vehicles which have been designed, and which are being used for breaking across country where roads do not exist or where surfaces are exceedingly bad. In this connection some extraordinarily ingenious pioneer work has been done in this country, notably the Diplock-Pedrail. If the inventor had received more support, undoubtedly this system of self-propelled vehicle could have been recognized throughout the world today.

"As it is, since 1873 he has been perfecting his machinery every year, and got it to an extraordinary stage before the war broke out. Some of the heavy machines that the Germans are using reveal, moreover, that they have not been slow to study his ingenious scheme whereby a self-propelled road vehicle can also be made to break across country, over ploughed fields or any other surface that it may be necessary to negotiate.

Antarctic Idea Copied.

"In Belgium the Germans have been using heavy motor tractors with wired wheels in front, designed to insure steering way when going through slime, in that whichever way they tend to slide they must presently dig themselves in deeper laterally. The rear driving wheels are really a variant of another British idea evolved in some of the Wolseley-built motor-sledges that were taken with Captain Scott on his Antarctic expedition.

"In both these machines you have the notion of a vehicle with an endlessly long base track, which it keeps relaying and which is designed to be of a character that is bound to grip on any surface. In the Antarctic, where the surface was frozen hard, difficulties were experienced. But in the Diplock-Pedrail invention, wherein the machine puts down and takes up a series of feet on endless rollers, and which is designed for military uses, from the earliest beginnings many years ago, we have had a machine that has shown itself capable of coming out of the slime of river beds and so forth.

"Practically all the manufacturing difficulties have been eliminated as the result of cumulative experience. We must therefore have in mind that the powers engaged in this campaign, are not only using motor traction where roads are available; they are besides able to employ it as extensively as they have the enterprise to do over places where roads do not exist. This, therefore, is the assurance we possess that in future wars it will not be necessary to employ horse-hauled artillery, with the result that campaigns will be still further speeded up.

Excels Horse in Speed.

"There is no need to halt a mechanically propelled vehicle to rest it. Its rate of progress can be faster than that of a horse. Its fuel is much more easily transported than the food needed by a quadruped. Indeed, from a very early stage of the development of motoring it has been repeatedly foretold in these columns that, soon or late, the elimination of the horse in connection with artillery service is inevitable.

"Of course, we should have had motor artillery years ago were it not that so long as we supply such vehicles with ordinary wheels, so long must we necessarily confine the use of them to roads if they are to be self-propelled. This war is affording proof, however, of the fact that the overland motor vehicle can be built with out-of-the-ordinary wheels in combination with feet or pads designed to secure a grip on broken country. It is merely a matter of time before we get motor artillery."

Another War Joke.

I was had yesterday. A staid City banker, who often gets inside information and stable tips from the Powers-That-Be, stopped me and said: "You've heard the news, I suppose?"

"No," I answered. Then he whispered portentiously: "Italy joins Austria."

"Good gracious, that sounds serious!" I exclaimed. "It's true, absolutely true," he remarked gravely.

"Are you really sure?" I queried.

"Absolutely certain — just look at

The wife of a small farmer in Perthshire some time ago went to a chemist in the "Fair City" with two prescriptions—one for her husband, the other for her cow.

Finding she had not enough money to pay for both, the chemist asked her which she would take.

"Gie me the stuff for the coo," said she; "the morn will do weel enouch for him, puir body. Gin he were to dee I could sure get anither man, but I'm no sae sure that I could get anither coo."

(I Serve.)
The motto of the Prince of Wales might be adopted as the slogan of modern business. "To Serve" is the keynote of 20th century merchandizing. The up-to-date merchant realizes that it is good business, as well as good morals, to render real service to his patrons, and he tells you about it in his advertisements.
It pays to patronize consistent advertisers. They are modern in their methods and imbued with the modern spirit of service.

A TWO-PLY ECONOMY.

Economy and efficiency are two things that the world is getting hammered home as a result of the war. Waste is always a loss; inefficiency is worse. Industry that stands up against the conditions imposed by the war must be efficient. Canadian manufacturers are testing themselves out in efficiency. They are under an economic contract to produce what Canadian consumers need to buy. A factory or a plant that might have been ninety per cent. efficient before the war, is a hundred per cent. efficient now. When the whole country hums along on the full tide of prosperity it is easy to hold business without testing the mettle of every department. When this tide turns the weak business lets go. It is no longer able to compete.

The economy of buying goods made in this country is a double economy. It means the efficiency of our manufacturing industries as a whole and that means no unemployment and the return of good times; it means also in many cases an actual saving in dollars and cents to the individual consumer because he gets as good or better value for the same money, or, in many cases, gets as good or a better article at less cost. There must be no question as to the relative value of the goods. The Canadian-made article must be the equal of its competitor. It can be bought for less money, because it does not have to take away from the quality in order to meet the Canadian price, nor add to the price in order to make the same relative profit on goods of the same quality.

If the Canadian made article is not at least as good value for the same money as anything imported, it has no right to ask for the made in Canada preference.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalising blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

Table silver may be kept bright by soaking it for a few hours in strong borax water. The water should be at boiling heat when the silver is put in.

The British War Office is placing orders for goods in Canada. Why not line up with Kitchener and do a little Canadian-made buying yourself?

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Question of Value

It Involves the Subject Love

By IDA SPEED

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Given two men and a woman you'll most always have a romance; two women and one man are apt to produce a riot, but take two women and two men, all in love, and every one of 'em bein' a misfit, as you might say, and it's like a two ring circus—you can't possibly take in all the details.

When this here Miss Daphne Donaldson first throws in with the west it's with no notion except to forgit past unpleasantnesses which, I learn afterward, was caused by her havin' Pullman tastes and her husband havin' a day coach pocketbook.

Course, in order to win her he puts up a bigger front than his bank account calls for, and when he can't live up to the premises she pleads nonsupport and requests her maiden name.

So when we first see her she's got both the divorce and said maiden name and has flew west to escape the gossip and scandal ensuin' from the same.

It took a special trip to freight her trunks out to the ranch, and she had clothes that made the men set up and take notice and the women's eyes turn green with envy.

She shore has the heart broke look, and she ain't been here a week before I see plain that Johnny Duval is goin' to be first aid to the injured.

You see, the biggest part of this ranch is owned by a man back east named Stoner, who was her confidential adviser, and he tells her just to come and make herself at home here till such time as she feels like facin' the world again.

Now, Mary Talbert, whose folks have charge of this outfit, is one of them quiet, practical girls who only know one way to love—that's with a secret, consumin' passion.

Secret, that is only to the object of it, and consumin' all her time in thinkin' about it. The object of Mary's devotion was Johnny Duval.

That such is bad enough.

But about three weeks after Miss Daphne arrives Mr. Talbert gits a letter from this Stoner sayin' he can't come out to look after some matters as he does once each year, but is sendin' a substitute who will make a new contract with Talbert and attend to all business for him.

I drive in to meet this duck, whose name is Smithson, and I find a tall, slim fellow dressed like them pictures in the back of the magazine where it says:

"If you want to feel at ease in any society, wear"—etc., and who can ask more questions than a jackleg lawyer?

When we reach the house Daphne and Mary are on the east gallery. I make 'em acquainted with Mr. Smithson.

Daphne is standin' foolin' with a chain she always wears around her neck with some kind of a little hoodus on the end of it.

"How do you do?" she says, noddin' her head, indifferent. Then she turns with a rattle of silk and walks in the house.

"Glad to meet you," says Mary, holdin' out her hand. "Have you all had your dinner?"

When we say we haven't she gits up, smoothin' out her fresh gingham dress, and goes in to set dinner out.

That was the difference between 'em.

In a week's time Mr. Smithson looks like he's forgot he was sent here for any purpose but to make love to Mary, who is real nice to him to keep from showin' how she hates to see Johnny and Daphne together so much.

But, listen, that's not the worst.

What does the grass widow do but begin to build a stack at this here Smithson, who don't seem to notice it, he's that took up with Mary Talbert.

It was like singin' "Three Blind Mice." They all fell in with the same words to the same tune, but only produced a jumble in the end.

I watch 'em pretty close and observe more or less human nacher in all of 'em.

From the very first I know wu, Mary is treatin' Smithson so nice, but it takes a long time for me to glean that Johnny is playin' the same game with Daphne because he don't think Mary cares for him.

I figgered that this Daphne didn't take to western ways and folks, and it wasn't so much Smithson as them back east garments of his'n that was holdin' her spellbound.

And it took this here Smithson just a month to do what Stoner usually attends to, gittin' back by return mail.

Before he leaves we begin to work the cattle. The first day we rounded up the north Cross S, and course the women wanted to go on the drive.

Johnny Duval was on his fanciest cuttin' horse, Don, and he was showin' off the least mite, as cowboys will do with back east folks lookin' on.

Smithson was swell in his ridin' togs, with little race spurs, and his mount was a big, handsome bay, but he was powerful in the way.

About the middle of the mornin' Johnny works hard for five minutes tryin' to cut a big jar headed yearlin' out of the herd, and when at last the steer takes to the bushes Smithson spurs up and turns him right back in the herd, not knowin' enough to see where the brute should go.

"Let him go," yells Johnny, and rips out four uncomplimentary words which wouldn't have sounded so bad to Smithson if the first and fourth hadn't been "you."

Daphne rides over to Smithson at once, her face plumb scarlet.

"I think," she says, dignified, "you'd better take Mary and me home."

So he takes the ladies to the ranch, and that's the last I see of 'em till that evenin', when us boys come up from the brandin' pens and the two women are on the gallery by theirselves.

Johnny Duval marches right up and apologises for losin' his patience.

Daphne shrugs her shoulders and says nothin'. But Mary looks at him with sympathy.

"It's pretty hard work to have to do twice on account of somebody's ignorance," she says.

Johnny looks at Mary, grateful.

Then Daphne boils over.

"You western men can do just one thing," she says, scornful. "You can work cattle with all the ridin' and other things that appertain. But put one of you back in civilization and you'll have to drive a dray for a livin'."

"Poor people have poor ways, but ain't that a honest way to make a livin'?" says Johnny and turns on his heel, spurs jinglin', and goes in the house.

I could see Mary was pleased plumb through.

The rest of us boys says nothin', and directly Mary goes out to a mesquite bush a few feet from the house and picks off a leaf.

She comes back to the foot of the gallery steps and says: "Somebody name this. I'm goin' to tell Miss Daphne's fortune."

Just then Smithson saunters out, and I says, "I've named it."

"Big house, little house, pigpen, kitchen," says Mary, pluckin' off a prong and throwin' it away with each "house."

"Big house, little house, pigpen, kitchen."

"Big house, little house"—

"Mr. Smithson," I says.

"You're goin' to marry Mr. Smithson and live in a little house," says Mary, lookin' at Daphne and laughin'.

"That leaf had one too many prongs, I'm afraid," says Smithson. "How about it, Miss Donaldson?"

"Love," begins Daphne, toyin' with that chain of hers. "Love is like happiness and everything else—it has a relative value. It depends on who is in the 'little house.'" She gits up and goes to the door; then she stops.

"The 'little houses' where love exists," she says, lookin' straight at Smithson, "are more complete than the 'big houses' that are only for show and to keep pace with the bunch."

Then she walks in the house.

"I'd about as soon mine would come out 'pigpen' if it couldn't be 'big house.' I've lived in little houses and kitchens all my days," Mary says, with a sigh.

"You'll never know the relative value till you've tried both," says Smithson to Mary. When she has gone in the house, too, he turns to me.

"Women, my friend, are alike the world over," he says, sorter bitter. "But just the same we can't do without them."

"No, sir," I replies emphatic.

The next day that blamed little pitchin' "baby" horse of mine turns over with me and breaks my ankle, and breakin' that leg done for me what one of these here Japanese screens they set in the corner of the stage does for the show business.

They put me to bed in the east room, which has windows openin' on the front gallery, and because an invalid is expected to go to sleep early I heard somethin' that night I never should have got on to otherwise.

The pain had got easy, and I was dozin' a little when voices waked me.

It was not light enough to see the faces, but a woman was speakin' when I commenced to listen.

"I suppose Elmer Stoner sent you out here, too?" she says.

"Yes," says the man, "but I'll swear to you I didn't know you were here until I was within five miles of the ranch."

"And then it was too late to turn back," she says.

"Not if I had known you were flirtin' with a cowpuncher who is far beneath you every way. And so soon!" he adds in a hard voice.

"The cowpuncher and that little Talbert person are wrapped up in each other, so your flirtation won't do you any good," she retorts.

"Oh, Harry," she goes on, "you only wanted to be rid of me!" And I hear her voice catch.

"Daphne, it's so like you, dear. You get a divorce from me, run away and hide, amuse yourself with another man and then lay the blame on me. Now, I don't mind the blame," he says.

"God knows I've been lonely without it, but I wonder if we could patch them up—our lives, you know. The little Talbert is a poor substitute for you."

I propped myself up on my elbow.

A big, round, red moon was just peepin' over the edge of the world, and a man was leanin' against a post of the gallery with his arms around a woman, whose head was down on his shoulder.

"Anyhow," she says, dabbin' at her eyes with a little white speck of a handkerchief, "there never was any one else and there never will be."

"We'll go home tomorrow," he says soothin'.

The curtain ought to come down as they kiss, but there wasn't none at that moon was so bright I just commenced to get the shivers and promised by pullin' the sheet up over my head.

Was Troubled With Choking Spells and Shortness of Breath.

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, and dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

Many men and women drag along with weary step, and become worn out and haggard, when otherwise they could be strong and healthy if they would only pay some attention to the first signs of heart or nerve trouble. On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be given a fair trial and you will find that they will soon correct both these organs.

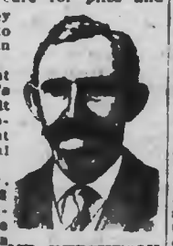
Mr. James Leard, Tryon, P.E.I., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had choking spells, and was troubled with weakness of the heart and shortness of breath. I tried three doctors but they all failed. A neighbor recommended me to try your pills, so I got a box and they helped me so much I have taken six boxes. I highly recommend them to all who are troubled with their heart and nerves. I was not able to do any work for over two years; now I can do quite a bit."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

Cured Fifteen Years Ago of Piles and Eczema

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment—Certifies That the Cure Was Permanent.

Some people have tried so many doctors and so many treatments in their search for cure for piles and eczema that they find it difficult to believe there is an actual cure.



MR. KETCHESON

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that it not only brings relief promptly, but brings about actual and lasting cure.

In 1897 Mr. Ketcheson, 88 Douro street, Peterboro', Ont., wrote as follows:—"I was troubled for thirty years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees, perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and this Ointment effected a complete cure."

On Sept. 28, 1912, Mr. Ketcheson wrote as follows:—"I received a letter from you to-day, saying that you found on file a statement made by me 15 years ago. I have always given Dr. Chase's Ointment a good name since it cured me, and shall tell you how I came to use it.

"I had suffered for many years from eczema and piles, and had tried doctors and everything I could hear of in vain. Reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I purchased it at once, and was soon completely cured. That was fifteen years ago, so there can be no doubt of the cure being a permanent one. I have met a great many people who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Quick, Painless Way to Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package.

Perley Will Stay During War.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—It was definitely stated last night that Hon. George H. Perley, the Ministerial representative of the Canadian Government in London, will remain there in that capacity until the end of the war. This disposes of constant rumors that this or that prominent individual is to be appointed High Commissioner. Sir Robert Borden has said that a successor to Lord Strathcona would not be considered until Mr. Perley's return.

A MAN OF MEDALS.

Late Gen. Grierson Was Popularly Known as Jimmy.

Gen. Sir James Grierson, who died suddenly in France just at the beginning of the war, was the most bemedalled officer in the British army for his service, and one of the stoutest and jolliest. During the grand manoeuvres of 1908 a military artist sought and obtained permission to sketch him, and Major-Gen. Sir Harry Rawlinson, standing near by, also started sketching in competition.

When the two sketches were compared Sir Harry had to acknowledge himself beaten. "But then," he pleaded, "I was on the wrong side of you and so lacked the inspiration of your triple row of medal ribbons. Besides, you get broader every day, and my note-book cannot take you all in at once."

"Then you must do me some day in sections," laughed the general. "But don't think my growing bulk is a source of trouble to me. I have more room to hang my medals on!"

By the troops Gen. Sir James Grierson was known as "Jimmy." As a linguist he had few equals in the army; he had qualified as interpreter in French, German, Russian, and Spanish, and had a useful knowledge of other languages and dialects.

It was Gen. Grierson who showed his adaptability in the manoeuvres round Cambridge two years ago when aeroplanes were first used extensively for scouting.

His division was so successfully concealed in woods and hedge bottoms, with guns and wagons covered with sheets or straw, that the airmen failed to discover its whereabouts.

Theater Headaches.

The most frequent cause of headaches occurring during or after the theater is eye strain. People who use the full energy of the delicate eye muscles to obtain perfect vision are often unconscious of this strain. In the theater the continuous effort to keep everything constantly focused exhausts the nerve centers and headache results. The practice of seating the audience in total darkness while they are staring into an intensely lighted stage is another serious factor. The pupils, being widely dilated in the dark, admit the excess of light from the stage, often producing irritation of the eyes which lasts sometimes for days.

Those subject to headaches should never sit where it is necessary to raise the eyes to watch the stage. This unnatural position of the eyes is very tiresome even to those who never have trouble at other times.—Journal American Medical Association.

Wouldn't Hang the Jury.

An old negro named Ephraim, having been sworn on the jury in a murder trial, for some time resisted a verdict of guilty for no other apparent reason than his strong aversion to capital punishment in general. Finally the foreman explained to him that it was a question either of hanging the prisoner or hanging the jury and that it all depended on him. "Fo' gracious, sah," replied Uncle Ephraim, "on dem reasonments de prisoner am sho' guilty."

CONCERNING THE CITY OF YPRES

The Belgian city of Ypres which occupies so large a place in the daily war bulletins has suddenly leaped into an importance like that which it held centuries ago, although then its fame was as a great city where more than 4,000 looms were in constant activity. That was in the 13th century when Ypres had a population of 200,000 souls and was one of the great cloth making centres of Flanders. Popular risings, a seige by the citizens of Ghent, migration of the weavers and many captures reduced the population of 5,000 and robbed Ypres of its proud position, but it still retained many memorials of its golden period, most of which have now, doubtless, fallen under the assaults of contending armies.

In the Grande Place stands, or perhaps we should say stood, the Cloth Hall, the largest edifice of the kind in Belgium, began in 1201 and completed in 1304. It covered an area of 5,825 square yards and the aggregate length of its four fronts was 1160 yards. In the centre rose the 232-foot square belfry. The Town Hall was erected in the sixteenth century, a charming Renaissance building.

The Cathedral of St. Martin was built in the thirteenth century; its choir dates from 1221, the nave and aisles from 1254, while the 190-foot tower was added after 1434. The chancel is polygonal and one of the finest in Belgium. It is one of the most important buildings of the transition period in the region and has, or had, some magnificent stained glass, rich late Gothic carven doors, fine Renaissance choir-stalls, old frescoes, and many objects of interest.

The city museum contained pictures by Rubens, Van Dyck and Jordaens and drawings of many of the picturesque old dwellings of which Ypres still possessed a number. An interesting institution was the Hospice Civil, an asylum for old women, founded about 1279, by Christine de Guines and rebuilt in 1616. The Chapel contained several important artistic works These are but a few of the noteworthy possessions of Ypres, which was the seat of the Belgian army riding school.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart had and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

In the Near Future.

The woman Presidential candidate had just concluded the keynote speech of her campaign.

Hoarse cheers from the multitude shook the rafters of the big auditorium, and as to the poor old welkin, it could ring no more. An enthusiastic man, standing on a chair in the rear, threw away his hat and coat and slapped a glum-looking neighbour on the back.

"Some speech!" he yelled. "What?"

"Fair," said the glum man, "but not the kind that mother used to make."

Williams—Vansickle.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Vansickle on Wednesday of last week at twelve o'clock, when Lena, their second daughter, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Williams. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. DeMille, pastor of the Methodist church. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, while Miss Minnie Williams played the wedding march. The bride was beautifully gowned in cream satin with overdress of accordion pleated ninon and shadow lace. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and cameo neoklace, and to the pianist a cameo ring. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto and western points.

(From Salisbury Plains.)

The following letter was received recently by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Buchanan from their son George, who went out with the first contingent:

Salisbury Plains, Oct. 29.

Dear Mother and Father,—Received your most welcome letter yesterday. We are having some cold weather over here just now and are still in our tents. I received your letter on the boat just before getting off at Plymouth. We had a dandy trip coming over but had a narrow escape from the Germans. We were three weeks and four days on the boat. There were three or four German submarines looking for us, but they missed us, and one of our battleships, the "Majestic," that came over with us, went out the next day and sank two German submarines that were after us. There were thirty-six boats, counting the battleships, all in a section, four abreast, that brought us over. After we got off the boat at Plymouth, some of our boats went to Glasgow and a couple were captured, but they were saved again and got the enemy, too. After leaving the boat we took the train about 12 o'clock at night and reached our camp about 4 o'clock the next afternoon. I was not a bit sick all the way across, although the sea was so rough at times that the waves would dash over the side of the boat on us when we were on the deck. A large number of the boys were good and sick. We have a good colonel and a dandy general by the name of Alderson. He led the Canadian contingent in the South African war and was glad of the chance to lead us. Lord Roberts was up one day to see us. We are all getting passes to go any place we wish to go. I am going to London next week. The Canadian soldiers do not have to pay if they wish to go to any of the shows, and everything is free to us wherever we go in the city. Well, I guess I will close my letter for this time.

Your loving son,
GEORGE.

RUBENS' MANSION IS SAVED BY GERMANS

THE HAGUE, Nov. 28.—The famous sixteenth century mansion of Rubens, the great Flemish painter, standing in the line of the German sweep through Belgium, between Brussels and Antwerp, has suffered little from the depredations of war, although an unknown vandal has defaced some of the paintings that cover its walls. For weeks it has been impossible to approach the place, and there was much anxiety as to its fate.

The Germans had converted this shrine of art lovers to the service of war, but neither the house nor the fine old garden suffered much. The house is now used as a pay station for the German troops. In the garden are many roughly marked graves of Belgian and German soldiers. One stray bullet found its way into the house, which is surrounded by heaps of rubbish and broken bottles. No doubt a thorough cleaning will transform the place to the quaint mansion which Rubens built for his young wife the woman who appears in nearly all of the paintings of his later years, and the mother of the boy whose baby face smiles out from so many of his canvases. Some civilian souvenir-hunter is declared to be responsible for the only intentional act of vandalism committed on the property, which is now owned by the Belgian Senator de Becker-Remy. The vandal cut the faces out of some of the pictures that hung in the house.

During the German advance to Antwerp, a German detachment of fifty soldiers occupied the mansion. A Belgian peasant managed to slip through the German lines and notify the Belgian troops. That night a strong detachment of Belgian soldiers surrounded the house and after a desperate fight killed all the occupants. The Germans were buried in the old garden. Later the Belgians were forced to abandon the place.

GOOD BUSINESS.

Steady Advertising and Enterprising Sales Methods Prove Effective.

One of the most remarkable concerns in Canada to-day is the Berliner Gram-o-phone Company, Limited, of Montreal.

This Company far from feeling the ill-effects from the war is actually doing an increased business.

Since the middle of September, it has courageously increased its advertising throughout the Dominion, and is now reaping the fortune which favours the brove.

Despite its name the Company is entirely a Canadian concern with a large factory in Montreal where it manufactures all the famous Victor "His Master's Voice" records for the Dominion.

An official of the Company recently interviewed made the statement that at present there was an enormous boom on for patriotic records, and that the sale of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" had alone in six weeks exceeded the sale of any other record ever published by them previously.

"At the present time," he went on to say an even greater boom than Tipperary was under way for the song "Your King and Country Want You," published by special request of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, now Acting Premier, Sir George E. Foster."

Electrical apparatus has been invented that welds street car rails without disturbing the pavement with current taken from the trolley wire.

RED CROSS IN NEED OF SUPPLIES TO CARE FOR WOUNDED

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A distressing lack of medical supplies for the wounded of the battlefields of Europe is shown by appeals received by various relief organizations here and by the tremendous orders received from the warring nations by American manufacturers of such materials.

Servian hospitals ran short of anaesthetics three weeks ago and surgical operations there have since been performed while wounded were still conscious, according to Red Cross reports. From nurses in French hospitals come such statements as "bandages, medicines and ambulance necessities are like the treasures of kings. Gauze and antitetanique serum are very difficult to get and cotton is disappearing."

It is also reported that there is a great shortage of surgical instruments in the field hospitals behind the armies.

American relief organiastions and American manufacturers of hospital supplies are responding nobly to the call for aid. Many American manufactories are being operated night and day to fill the huge orders. One manufacturer estimated that more than 8,000,000 pounds of absorent cotton hundreds of thousands of pounds of bandages and gauze, and first aid packages have been shipped to Russia, Servia, Austria, Germany and France since the war began. One large order for surgical instruments has been placed in New York by the Russian goernment.

Fill All Nation's Needs.

No distinctions are made by the Red Cross in making shipments of medical supplies. One large shipment containing 150 bales of absorbent cotton, 10,000 yards of gauze, 3,000 pounds of bandages and twenty cases of hospital supplies was sent to Germany. Other large shiments have been sent to RSussia, France and Servia.

Great quantities of hospital clothing, supplies and surgical dressings are being received here from voluntary organizations of women throughout the country working under the direction of the Red Cross. These are being forwarded to Europe as promptly as possible.

Still, those in charge of the relief work here say that all this response constitutes but a fraction of the vast quantities of medical supplies for which the hospitals of Europe are appealing.

In a letter to the Red Cross headquarters here an American nurse sent to Servia early in the war wrote:

"Passing through Uskub weeping women begged us stay and help them organize. They had 1,200, wounded and expected 3,000 more. There are now 30,000 wounded and less than ten trained nurses so far as we know. The need is fearful. Surgeons are pitifully lacking. Dressings are running so terribly short that we are never allowed to cut off bandages, however stained, as they are all washed and used again and we have to use wool to clean the wounds."

Fooling the Enemy.

Gen. Pau tells of a French noncommissioned officer who was being examined on the subject of tactics.

"Give me an instance of strategy," was the question.

The soldier thought hard, then replied:

"When in battle you run out of ammunition, and don't want the enemy to know it, it is good strategy to keep on firing."

OSTEND UNDER GERMAN RULE

OSTEND, Belgium, Nov. 21.—The normal life of this usually lively city has been radically changed by the German military occupation. Inhabitants are forbidden to leave their houses between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m., and no lights may be shown during that time. No one can leave town without passports from the German authorities. The usual market gatherings are almost suspended. Villagers from outside Ostend can come in only when attended by their burgomasters, and the market hours are limited to Monday and Thursday mornings. All horses have been taken by the military authorities, so only dog carts can be used to bring food into the town. Butter, eggs, meat and vegetables are cheap, but Ostend is without fish, because all fishermen have fled to England. Fishing would be impossible because civilians are forbidden to approach the coast, and the inhabitants of houses along the seashore have been expelled.

Allies Wounded Cared For.

The railways and electric trams have been stopped for everything except military purposes, and are being used night and day for sending provisions to the front and bringing back wounded.

Little is left of what formerly was Westende, Dixmude, Schoore, Ramskapellen, St. Pioters, Capelle and Menaekensvere, and over 180 farms in the neighbourhood have been destroyed.

Hundreds of wounded Belgians and French are brought to Ostend, and those who can stand the journey are sent along to Germany. A dozen or more Germans, dead from their wounds, are buried here every day. The wounded allies are well cared for by the Germans.

Pay In Notes.

Ostend is without newspapers, soap, oil, candles, and coffee. The Germans have made heavy requisitions, not only of foodstuffs in large quantities, but of cigars and wine, and all available mattresses and covers, as well as clothing, linen, wire and bicycles. For the property taken the Germans have given requisition notes amounting to one million dollars. The hotels are occupied by German officers, who live on the best of everything. German bands play in the parks every day, but have only the Germans as auditors, because the inhabitants who are left boycott them.

CHRISTIANS FEAR MASSACRE

ATHENS, Nov. 30.—A despatch from Mitylene reports that Smyrna is crowded with Christian refugees who have fled there as a result of threats of a massacre by the Turks invited by the calling of a "holy war." The American cruiser Tennessee is still at Chios.

Danger at Beirut.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. —A cable from Athens to the Tribune says: The authorities at Beirut have organised warlike mass meetings. Mussulman priests have preached in the mosques to the faithful exhorting to the slaughter of infidels indiscriminately on the first appearance of a hostile fleet.

The Vali of Smyrna has ordered Greek banks to transfer their cash to the Imperial Ottoman Bank as deposits.

It is reported that Roumania has seized 125 railway trucks of Turkish war supplies (deletion by censor.)

Owing to the murder of two Christians at Uledjak, the entire population of the village fled panic-stricken to Smyrna.

The Turkish authorities at Smyrna have fortified the whole coast from that town to Vurla, and have placed guns above the town and suburbs. They have also seized nine locomotives and 300 cars on the Smyrna railway, and 15,000 sacks of barley belonging to Mr. Whittall, a British subject (deletion by censor.)

Attack on Egypt Serious.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Times correspondent at Cairo says: "News that Djemal Pasha, Minister of Marine, has been apointed to command the Ottoman forces destined to operate against Egypt is, if true, proof that the Turks are not making a mere demonstration against the Suez canal."

Djemal Pasha is one of the foremost figures in Turkish politics. He has the reputation of being a headstrong and energtic leader, and is known to have strong Pan-Islamic sympathies and with a passion to lead an expedition against Egypt.

The Enemy Shows Activity Around Arras

Russians Maintain Advantage In Poland

THE BATTLE IN POLAND IS NOW RAGING ALONG A FRONT OF ONE HUNDRED MILES

Russians Are Maintaining Their Advance But the Issue is Not Yet Settled--Germans Are Resisting Desperately the Fierce Attack of the Czar's Forces.

GOOD REASON FOR HOPEFUL OUTLOOK

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, December 1. — Russian and German official statements give every indication that the German lines in Poland are intact and that the forces are now locked in a terrific battle extending over what virtually amount to a front of one hundred miles.

There are three points of contact from the German positions south of Plock, through Lowicz and Lodz and south east of Cracow. The armies have gradually merged into one great force during the past week.

General Von Hindenberg's army, which was composed largely of conscripts of next year's line, has now been reinforced. With the Kaiser at the eastern front, it is believed a supreme effort is about to be made to hurl the Russian offensive back upon Warsaw. Every confidence is felt here that the Russians now hold the advantage, but it is realized that the conflict in the eastern theatre is far from a decision.

When a big battle is finally fought and the result and details are learned it is believed it will prove to be the most sanguinary conflict of the war. Its influence upon the entire situation will also be of the greatest importance.

Defeat in the East, it is believed, would be followed by the immediate retirement of the Germans to their second line of defences in Belgium. The Kaiser would then be completely on the defensive on both fronts.

The German attack in France and Belgium has now lost the greater part of its force and with fresh French and British troops constantly arriving, the time for the Allies to strike is believed to be rapidly approaching.

USE SKIS IN VOSGES FIGHTING.

GENEVA, Nov. 30.—During the last few days between Verdun and Belfort there have been serious encounters on the frontier, with the soldiers fighting in several inches of snow. Numerous regiments on both sides have been supplied with skis for winter, but the Chasseurs Alpine, who are at home on skis, having climbed in peace times the Swiss and French Alps, can easily outmanoeuvre the German Alpine regiments by their greater speed and knowledge of the snow laden forests.

ARRAS NOW A PILE OF RUINS.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—H. Cozens Hardy telegraphs to the Daily News from Paris:—

"News arriving from Arthur Leech from Arras to-day reports what must be the finally destructive bombardment of that unfortunate town. On Saturday fighting was resumed for the possession of a series of trenches, several German regiments hurling themselves upon the French positions. Both sides lost heavily, but both hung on with grim tenacity. As a result the French are still holding all their positions, but Arras is nothing but a heap of ruins."

GERMANS RETIRING.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(Bulletin).—A despatch to the Central News from Dunkirk says the German front has begun a general retirement from the trenches east of Dixmude.

VIOLENT CANNONADING.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Dec. 1.—Violent cannonading has recommenced along the Yser River and Canal, so violent that houses in the Dutch villages twenty miles away are shaken by the explosions. It is thought that German big guns recently brought up are now in action.

KICKED INTO INSENSIBILITY

LINDSAY, Dec. 1.—A bad case of assault was reported to the police Saturday night. It seems that Thomas Teevins was set upon by four men in the yards at the rear of the Benson House and seriously beaten up. The affray took place about nine o'clock in the evening. Teevins was badly bruised about the body and received numerous cuts in the face and head. Both his eyes were blackened and he was kicked insensible. He does not remember much about the matter, but states he recognised one of the men. How the free-for-all started is not known. Teevins was conveyed to his home in a fig by a passerby. He was confined to his bed this morning from his injuries.

DEATH OF C.P.R. INSPECTOR

Was Well Known in Peterboro-A Clever Electrician

PORT HOPE, Dec. 1.—After an illness of some months, the death occurred here of Fred C. Robertson, of Toronto, Inspector of C.P.R. Telegraphs for Ontario. The late Mr. Robinson was born and brought up in Port Hope, but spent most of his life in Toronto. For some years he was in charge of the electrical and operating departments of the company in Toronto, and a few years ago was appointed Inspector for Ontario. The deceased was well and favourably known among telegraph and railway men in the Province, and was considered one of the cleverest electricians in the country. Interment will take place at Port Hope at 3 p.m. to-day.

Electrical apparatus has been invented to automatically give warning that a chimney is smoking by illuminating a sign first and, if this is not heeded, by ringing a bell.

EVIDENCES OF A GERMAN PLOT ARE DISCOVERED

Concrete Foundations and Store of Rifles and Guns on the Island of Orleans

TO SEIZE QUEBEC

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 1.—It is learned that the German plan against Canada was most ingenious and elaborate. Those who devised it took into consideration the custom of making pilgrimages to St. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec City. The authorities now believe that the concrete foundation built on the Island of Orleans by a German manufacturer, of concrete blocks and the store of rifles and heavy guns which German moving picture men had hidden there last summer, were for a surprise attack by German Americans.

The plan was that bands of trained men would assemble at Quebec under the guise of pilgrims to a holy shrine and would find arms waiting for them there.

Quebec is resorted to each summer by pilgrims from all parts of Canada and the United States. They arrive by train loads and boat loads. So accustomed have the people become to such crowds that five or six thousand strangers attract no attention in Quebec.

The German plan was that they could thus with one stroke capture the big guns which guard the St. Lawrence against the assault of hostile craft. They could seize the Canadian rifle and ammunition factories and would be in a position to dominate Eastern Canada and open the gates to a general invasion.

Fortunately their plans have come to nought. The superiority of the British fleet has made that impossible.

Death's Call Was Sudden

Well Known Chemong Park Visitor Passes Away

Death's call came very suddenly last night to Mr. Walter Rogers Hartshorn, of 141 London Street. Mr. Hartshorn, who was a citizen of the United States, was a well known summer visitor at Chemong Park, where he resided each summer for some some eighteen or twenty years. During the last few years he and Mrs. Hartshorn had spent part of each winter in Peterborough, taking up residence here.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn were dinner guests at the home of Dr. Carmichael, Water Street. During the course of a game of cards which followed, Mr. Hartshorn was suddenly stricken with an attack of apoplexy and collapsed. His physician, Dr. Young, was summoned and Mr. Hartshorn was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where he died shortly after.

The late W. R. Hartshorn was widely known and very popular in Peterborough, and the news of his sudden death will come as a great shock to his friends and acquaintances. He was fifty-seven years of age. His wife here and a number of relatives in the United States survive.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

THE BATTLE OF FLANDERS DEAD

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, who has been allowed to inspect the battle front in Belgian, wires: "The battle of Flanders is dead. The German dash for the Coast, made with four cavalry and fifteen infantry corps, and opposed at first only by the war worn Belgian Army and a thin line of allied troops, has worn itself to extension."

DANGER IS OVER

Plenty of Hard Fighting Yet to be Done However is Message British Officers Bring From Sir John French

APPROVE OF CENSORSHIP

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 1—A London cable to the Herald this morning says: "The danger is over, but there is plenty of hard fighting to be done". This is the message from Field Marshall Sir John French, which the British officers, who are home from the front on a few days' stop, brought to their families and friends. The officers are back for a glimpse of civilization, and society is alive and listening them.

The officers, almost without exception, say Lord Kitchener's strict censorship and no war-correspondent policy has saved thousands of lives, and they say the Russian method of announcing the news after it is all over, is the best model. This also explains, they believe, who so little is said of the victorious Russian operations in Poland.

CANADIANS WANT TO FLY

469 Apply For Position on the Aviation Corps

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—A Canadian aviation corps is being organized at Salisbury Plains and will be attached to the Canadian army when it leaves for the front. Negotiations have been in progress between Canada and the British War Office for some time and it has now been decided to form a squadron of twelve aeroplanes. The squadron will in command of Captain Jauney, of Galt, Ontario, an experienced aviator, Captain Jauney flew from Massachusetts to Valcartier camp to join the first contingent.

There are two other Canadian aviators, M. Sharpe and Harry A. Farr, and for the remaining posts there are no less than 469 applicants among Canadian soldiers at Salisbury Plains who want to join the aviation camp.

The British type of flying machine which has proved so successful along the fighting line in France and Belgium has been adopted and orders for the building of twelve have been placed, it is understood, by the Canadian government in England. The Canadian airmen will likely train, according to news received at Ottawa, at Montrose, Scotland, which is one of the British aviation centres.

LOCAL OPTION CONTESTS FOR NEXT JANUARY

Local option contests will be fought next January in three towns, seven villages and nine townships. Towns: Bala, Picton, Ridgetown—16 licenses. Villages: Bradford, Caledonia, Hagersville, Holland Landing, Jarvis, Newbury, West Lorne—12 licenses. Townships: Chappelle, Cornwall, Dike, Emo, Harwich, Horton, Palmerston, Pelee Island, Rolph—21 licenses. In addition to these licenses reduction campaigns are being carried on in Hamilton and London. The liquor traffic organisations have succeeded in insuring repeal contests in the following local option municipalities: Towns: Durham, Midland, Thornbury. Villages: Teeswater, Shallow Lake, and Lakefield. Townships: Raleigh and Moore.

Uncle Sam Bars Tipperary Song

Sailors of the U. S. Navy Have Be n Singing the Popular Air

NEWPORT, R.I., Nov. 30.—Taking the ground that it comes within the neutrality order of President Wilson, the marching song, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," being sung by the British army, has been barred from further use at the naval training station here by orders of the executive officer, Lieut.-Commander Frank Taylor Evans, U.S.N.

HEAVY CANNONADING IN BELGIUM STATES OFFICIAL REPORT

However the German Infantry Made No Attacks--North of Arras the Enemy Showed Great Activity Yesterday--No Changes Elsewhere.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Dec. 1.—"There was heavy cannonading in Belgium yesterday, but no attacks by the German infantry," to-day's official communique states.

"North of Arras the Germans showed great activity.

"Cannonading continues along the Aisne. In the Argonne and other regions there is no change in the situation."

Engineers Badly Hurt In G.T.R. Collision Brought To Peterboro'

Engineers Smith and St. Ours and Brakeman Weatherup were injured in a wreck that occurred on the Grand Trunk line about four miles the other side of Campbellford, this morning. They were brought to this City on a special train which arrived here about 1 o'clock, and were rushed to Nicholls Hospital. Comstock's private ambulances met the train and two of the injured men were taken to the Hospital in the motor ambulance. The other, who was not so seriously injured, was taken to the Hospital by automobile. One of the engineers is very seriously hurt, and may not recover. The other is also suffering from severe injuries. Brakeman Weatherup had his left arm broken and is badly bruised.

The heavy fog is given as the cause for the accident.

The collision occurred when a double-header grain train going east, crashed into a work train, going in the same direction, about four miles the other side of Campbellford. In the heavy fog the engineers in charge of the freight train did not see the work train ahead until it was too late to avoid the accident and the freight trashed into the train ahead of it with considerable impetus. The rear of the work train was practically demolished, and derailed, and the two engines were very badly damaged. The work train was used to pick up the discarded rails which have been replaced by eighty-pound steel ones, and at the time of the accident was probably stationary.

It is said the train following it had been warned of its presence on the track and had even picked up the flag man whose duty it was to notify them of the proximitiy of the work train. Several cars were damaged and derailed when the rear-end collision occurred.

Two doctors from Campbellford were called to attend the injured men and came to this City with them, on a special train that was made up at Campbellford and despatched to Peterborough. Dr. Moir and the local ambulances were waiting at the station when the train arrived. One of the men, it is reported, is very badly crushed, but the exact extent of their injuries could not be ascertained this afternoon.

Brakeman Weatherup, who had his arm broken, was injured in a wreck about two years ago at Waubeshene, when one of his fellow trainmen was killed.

The freight train was in charge of Conductor Rasson and consisted of twenty cars laden with grain.

PETERBORO' COUNTY CONTRIBUTED $400

To the Red Cross Fund—Next Instalment Will Go to Some Other Fund

Subscriptions for the Red Cross Fund are flowing in with gratifying regularity, according to Col. the Hon. James Mason, honorary treasurer of the Canadian Red Cross Society, who reports that since the last public acknowledgement, contributions to the Society's fund have been received totalling $6,940.44.

Peterborough's Contribution.

Four hundred dollars of this amount was received from the Peterborough County Council. This represents the first monthly contribution of $400. The next monthly instalment of $400 will likely be turned over to the Belgian Relief Fund and the subsequent one to the National Patriotic Fund. After that the matter will be in the hands of the 1915 council.

The Hunters' Company of Home Guards

All hunters of the city are reminded of the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock to-morrow night for the purpose of organizing a Hunters' Company in the Home Guard. All hunters in the city are urged to be present at this meeting.

Mr. C. L. House Has Resigned

As Manager of the Public Utilities—Mr. H. O. Fisk Appointed

Mr. C. L. Howse, manager of the Public Utilities, has tendered his resignation to the Public Utilities Commission. The Commissioners met yesterday afternoon and appointed Mr. H. O. Fiske of this city to succeed Mr. Howse.

In accepting Mr. Howse's resignation, the Commissioners expressed their appreciation of Mr. Howse's services and for the work that he had accomplished in connection with the organizing of the office and other parts of the system. Mr. Howse's resignation will take effect on January the first.

Mr. Fiske is well known in this city, having resided here for some time. Of late years Mr. Fiske has been in the employ of the Peterborough Light and Power Company and his capabilities are well known.

The vital statistics for the month are as follows: Births 37, marriages 24, deaths 23. For a corresponding month last year: Births 40, marriages 19 and deaths 20.

Objective Has Been Raised and Endorsed by the Committee--Team Captains Will Meet Next Week.

THE PUBLIC MEETING

As intimated in the Examiner one week ago the Patriotic Fund Committee have decided to raise the objective of the three-day money-raising campaign from twenty thousand to fifty thousand dollars. One-fourth of this amount will be used for local relief and the balance turned over to the National Patriotic Relief Fund. Most, if not all of this money, will be spent in Peterborough. A meeting of the Organization Committee and team captains as well as members of teams was held last evening in the Council Chamber of the City Hall. A large and enthusiastic representation of workers turned out. They were unanimous in their endorsation of the decision to raise the objective of the campaign.

Reports Presented.

Mr. D. O'Connell, who presided, explained that the object of the meeting was to hear the reports of the team captains and the various committees appointed in connection with the campaign. He expressed his pleasure at the manner in which the various executive bodies had performed ther duties, which in itself presaged the success of the campaign.

Ten team captains, who were appointed one week ago, reported that they had with one or two exceptions, completed the selection of their respective teams. A banquet will be held on Tuesday next when the various team captains and members will be present to receive the lists that are being prepared by the list committee. These lists will contain upwards of two thousand names of people who will be canvassed. The report of the list committee was presented at last night's meeting by Mr. Aylmer, also that of the Publicity Committee, by Mr. F. H. Dobbin. The last-named committee is contemplating an aggressive advertising campaign.

Appointed Chairman.

Mr. T. F. Matthews has been appointed chairman of the Finance committee. Mr. W. G. Morrow reported that the Toronto Savings and Loan Company would grant to the committee the use of the store on George Street recently vacated by the Turnbull Company. This will be fitted up as a central headquarters and will contain telephones and other equipment necessary for such a purpose.

It has been decided to hold a public meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 8th. This will be held in the Grand Opera House. A number of speakers of national importance will be secured for the occasion. The money-raising campaign will follow the public meeting, and will continue for three days, concluding on Friday, Dec. 11th.

Scotch Tea and Concert

Held by Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church Last Evening

St. Andrew's Day was fittingly celebrated at St. Andrew's Church, last evening, when a Scotch supper was held, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. A very large number of people partook of the many good things provided, not a little attention being paid to the bountiful supply of "haggis". Just prior to supper being served, to the strains of the bagpipes, played by Piper Robert Yeaman, in Scottish attire, the ladies marshed the hall, the leader, Mrs. Sills, carrying high, the steaming haggis.

After everyone had enjoyed the sumptuous repast a splendid concert was given, Mr. G. A. Gilespie, M. P. P., occupying the chair. After some interesting remarks by the Chairman the following programme was given:

Quartette — Messrs. Dowpey, Park, Steer and Kerr.
Piano duet—Misses Sanderson.
Solo—Miss May Laing.
Reading—Miss Mathers.
Duet — Miss Hanson and Mrs. Thorp.
Scotch address—Rev. Mr. Rollins.
Solo—Mr. Thorp.
Reading—Miss Mathers.
Solo—Miss Hanson.
Selections on the bagpipes — Mr. Yeamans.
God Save the King.

During the intermission between supper and the concert an organ recital was given in the Church by Mr. H. C. Treneer.

TUESDAY, DEC. 1, 1914

A FRENCH PROPHET.

Many great literary men have been prophetic. Tennyson foresaw the use of the airship in war, when he sang of "airy navies grappling in the central blue." In a more prosaic way Lamartine, a French writer of distinction from 1820 to 1863, in which latter year he published a series of historical sketches — takes a similar role. Among these was the life of "Christophe Colombe." In his impressive and closely reasoned introduction, speaking of the influence of modern discoveries upon the unity of the world, he mentions the discoveries of printing, the application of steam, the electric telegraph, etc. Regarding the discovery of "aerostats, qui," he says, "chercent encore leur gouvernail"—that is lack dirigibility, cannot be steered — he adds, "mais qui bientot, rendront navigable un element plus universal et plus simple que l'ocean." Here is a distinct forecast of dirigible balloons, which have, in these days, become a practical and awfully destructive actuality. They are not only easily dirigible, but they carry men, guns, torpedo tubes, and bombs, among the clouds from whence is distributed German "kultur" upon peaceful cities, non-combatants and women and children, and they even dim the "Lights o' London." Lamartine made prediction of the aerostat being made dirigible automobile fifty-one years ago, when the problem of steering balloons was only academic.

WOMEN, ELECTIONS AND NO ELECTIONS.

Wars and rumours of wars don't damp the ardour of the Canadian Suffrage Association. This energetic body is now pushing a campaign for the submission of the question of giving votes to married women who are taxpayers, to popular vote. They point out that for years the City Council of Toronto and other places have memoralized the government to pass a measure that will admit "the wifehood and motherhood of Ontario to participation in municipal government (other than paying taxes)." Seventy-four municipalities have passed and forwarded resolutions to the government in favour of "extending the municipal franchise so as to include married women taxpayers." Why not give the vote to married women who pay taxes and have a right to be represented? More; why not extend the franchise to all women on the same terms as to men under the manhood suffrage principle? No body of woman voters could make worse use of the franchise — judging by results—than men now do. We couldn't have generally more inefficient municipal councils, if women had the vote than we have now with the "lords of creation" monopolizing and muddling the situation. One often wonders, when we see the fearful and wonderful way in which we are governed by our representatives, whether or not representative government is a failure. Now it is proposed to even make it worse. The proposal comes from Toronto, and we even hear of it locally, to dispense with municipal elections this year to save the expense of holding them. This would be false economy, flopping from the frying pan into the fire. If men were allowed to become mayors, aldermen and councillors without a vote, the first man in the field—good, bad, or indifferent, most probably indifferent—would become the administrator of civic business. With all the care we exercise in selecting; with spirited contests to decide the merits of the several candidates, we do badly enough; elect, sufficiently inefficient men, men who in spite of the care we take in chosing them, prove to be, as a rule, bad representatives; who spend our money foolishly and without giving adequate return. What would it be if we allowed men to dump themselves into office, without inquiring as to their fitness? Would it not be possible and even probable — that we should have, without holding elections, "representatives" who would, to a far greater degree, make ducks and drakes of our money. We might save the few dollars that would be spent on elections; but would we not, by permitting "Tom, Dick and Harry" to elect themselves, incur the risk of loss from ineffective expenditure of the high taxes we pay, a hundred times greater than the money we should save by avoiding the comparatively trivial expense of an election?

WHEN WILL THE WAR END?

We are all interested in the duration of the present war, and naturally put the question—When will it end? There are differences of opinion. A French military expert writing in the London Daily Mail, predicts a three years' duration of the war—till 1917. According to him it will take till Christmas to clear French soil of the Germans. It will take the time thereafter till April to drive the Germans from Belgium, and the rest of the time, till 1917, to overcome German resistance on her own soil.

This is the purely military view, but this can be greatly modified by consideration of how greatly Lloyd George's "silver bullet" will exert its influence. A London financial expert controverts the view of the military expert by pointing out that he regards the question from a purely military point of view, and ignores a decisive factor, the economic factor.. The Allies entered the war with far greater financial resources than Germany. From the beginning German trade has suffered, weakening her finances still further, while the commercial impairment of the Allies has been comparatively nil. The commercial credit of Germany has been impaired so that the German mark suffers a discount of 6 per cent., while the credit of the Allies is as good as it was last summer. This embarrassment for Germany is only beginning; it will be much accentuated, when the armies of the Allies are upon German soil; then the economical feebleness of Germany will be at its intensest point. Invasion will paralyze her industries. Her food supplies with the requisitions made by the invading hosts will be greatly diminished. If the Allies follow the example of Germany—in levying tribute on Belgium—the latest demand being seven millions a month—the money chests of Germany will be utterly depleted. Germany will have difficulty in feeding the armies defending her own soil, she will not be able as she is doing now in part, to seize supplies in Belgium and the north of France. Thus under invasion, Germany with her external commerce ruined; with her industries paralyzed; with her finances disorganized; with her food supplies shortened, will face disaster. The prospects of success will redouble the industrial and commercial energies of the Allies and further contribute to that financial integrity which is the greatest asset in waging war successfully. For these reasons the London financier argues that we can reasonably expect an end to the war some time in 1915. He thinks that when the German people realize that "the game is up," and that further resistance would prolong the national sufferings, bring deeper national humiliation, and add to the account to be settled, they will make short work of the Hohenzollerns and the war cliques, and demand peace. Whether the war lasts a year or lasts three years, we shall prosecute it to the triumphant end. We shall need to make many sacrifices; send more soldiers and prepare for renewed enterprise in looking after those left dependent. We shall have to help those that are made helpless by the war. We shall perhaps have to do more then to make good the slogan—

$20,000 (OR MORE) FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE MATTER

A contributor, with a particularly practical commercial view, sends the following:

Making Balaclava caps, socks and shirts for Canadian soldiers is all very well in its way. Many kind-hearted women in this country have gone into this movement as a matter of patriotism or benevolence. But there are a number of women in Canada who have let the sentimental view of the case crowd out the tremendously practical side of it. Of course no one pretends that making these articles is not a practical business. It is a thousand times ahead of passing resolutions and engrossing memorials to governments and municipalities.

But once you begin to make benevolence practical you naturally want to make it as practical as possible. The fact is that there are in Canada hundreds and thousands of expert workers who are able to make these articles for Canadian soldiers. There are factories in Canada who turn these things out as a matter of business. They make them by the most economical modern methods at the lowest possible cost. The time spent by Canadian women in making these things by hand at a high cost would perhaps be devoted to better effect in using their higher talents in raising money for the battle, or in a thousand matters of practical benevolence right at home. The cost of these articles could as easily be paid to Canadian labour, which would reduce the present big problem of unemployment and keep Canadian homes comfortable. Instead of society women making these articles, the soldiers' wives and sweethearts can be employed to make them along with hundreds of other unemployed who, at a time like this, need work.

Let the women of Canada who are concerned about these useful benevolent deeds make them ten times more practically benevolent by seeing what they can do to increase the amount of employment to Canadian women who are out of work and whose employment means the prosperity of Canada.

TO BOMBARD PORT ?

German Fleet In Baltic Active—Battle In Atlantic Likely.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 1.—Via London.)—The German fleet is becoming more active in the Baltic, Scandinavian and Russian despatches indicate preparations for striking a blow at Russian ports, even entering the Gulf of Finland and possibly bombarding Petrograd.

It is reported here from several sources that there is great concentration of the fleet and German transport steamers along the Baltic coast and a withdrawal of warships from Kiel to strengthen the Baltic squadron operating northwards on the Gulf of Bothnia. (Excision by censor here.)

Mysterious Mine In Sea Lane.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—A mine with five triggers extending from it is afloat six miles west of Fire Island Light, according to Capt. Davies of the steamer Etonian, in yesterday from London. Capt Davies said that he passed the mine about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, while his ship was bound in.

The spot where the mine is said to be adrift lies in the pathway traveled by all trans-Atlantic vessels leaving and entering New York harbor.

Which Are The Better For Us, Dreadnoughts or Fast Cruisers?

At the recent annual meeting of the Ontario Reform Association Hon. George P. Graham made one of his effective speeches, of which a considerable part was devoted to a clear statement of the Laurier Government's naval policy, and a positive assurance that, so far as Liberals can prevent it, that policy will be neither abandoned nor defeated. If the Borden Government chooses to take it up and give reasonable effect to it Liberals will cheerfully assist in carrying it out. They will insist, however, no matter what position Conservatives take, that Canada's first duty is to provide Canada with a fleet of fast and powerful cruisers to co-operate with the fleets of Australia and New Zealand in keeping hostile warships off the Pacific, Atlantic, and Indian Oceans. All that has happened during and since 1909 goes to show that the Dreadnought policy of 1913 was wrong as well as belated, and that the cruiser policy is right. It is quite certain that the people of Canada will so decide whenever the question is presented to them as an election issue.

It is a curious coincidence that Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, almost contemporaneously with Mr. Graham's remarks on this subject, told, the House of Commons that if Great Britain were to lose a Dreadnought a month for a year she would come out at the end of that time stronger for a sea fight than she was when the war began. This makes it perfectly clear that she has or will soon have all the Dreadnoughts she can possibly require, but events have proved that she has not nearly enough of the strong, and swift cruisers which are needed to capture the enemy's merchant vessels to to protect her own against destruction. If Canada had had two of these cruisers to act in concert with the cruisers of Australia, New Zealand, and Japan several humiliating naval episodes would never have taken place. If an election is prematurely forced on the country this question will certainly be one of the issues in the campaign.— The Globe.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRE.

Lt.-Col. Gilison, from the 21st Divisional Artillery, has been attached to the Canadian consignment.

Bishop Thornloe has accepted, and his diocese of Algoma has confirmed his election as Bishop of Ottawa, with the title of archbishop.

General orders at Salisbury Plain, yesterday intimates that men marrying since enlisting need not apply for separation allowances, as it will not be granted.

The German war tax on Belgium has been fixed at 375,000,000 francs ($75,000,000). A branch of the Reichsbank is to be founded at Antwerp, it is announced.

C. B. Gordon of Montreal, ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and president of the Dominion Textile Co., will go to the front as a captain of the Army Service Corps.

Word was received yesterday by Sergt. Grant, of the Ontario Reformatory, to the effect that Wm. Baxter, formerly a guard at the prison farm, but who was a British reservist, has been killed in action.

Hydro-electric power, for which the Strathroy ratepayers recently voted an appropriation, was formally turned on there last night. Sir Adam Beck was present for the occasion as well as Mayor Graham of London.

Greatly to the relief of Montreal City Hall employes they have learned that instead of making reductions in their salaries, as had been threatened, the Board of Control decided to cut down the estimates in other directions.

STEAMER SUSPECTED.

Norwegian Craft Is Brought Captive Into Halifax.

HALIFAX, Dec. 1.—In charge of a prize crew from one of the British cruisers on duty in the Atlantic, the Norwegian steamer Sandefjord was brought into Halifax harbor yesterday. There is a suspicion that the steamer has contraband of war on board. She was bound from New York for Copenhagen, when held up by the cruiser, a prize crew placed aboard and ordered to Halifax.

The cargo will be discharged and searched here. She registers 6,026 tons, was chartered by the Gans Steamship Co. and has a big general cargo. It is supposed that she has silk for airships among her cargo. The steamer will be docked to-day.

Wireless Tower Found.

BOSTON, Dec. 1. — A tall tower which they believed to be part of a wireless plant set up by one of the belligerents was sighted on Toro Cay, an isolated spot in the Carribean Sea, by officers of the steamer San Jose, they reported upon the arrival of their vessel yesterday. Capt. McKinnon of the steamer said the structure, which appeared to be of steel frames, was a new one.

Germany Paying Indemnity.

LUXEMBURG, Grand Duchy of Luxemberg, Dec. 1.—(Via London.)—The newspaper Wort announces officially that Germany thus far has paid to Luxemburg 1,280,000 francs ($256,000) for damage done to the fields and crops by the passage of the German troops, and 311,000 francs ($62,200) for the use of roads and the damage done to streets and buildings.

Many C. P. R. Changes.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 1. — C. P. R. changes following Mr. Bury's promotion as general manager are: Grant Hall, Winnipeg, succeeds Mr. Bury as vice-president and general manager of western lines; D. O. Coleman of Calgary succeeds Mr. Hall as assistant general manager; H. E. Stevens of Vancouver succeeds Coleman; James Manson, assistant to the vice-president, goes to Montreal as assistant to Bury; Stockdill, Mr. Bury's chief clerk, is made superintendent. Stevens' successor has not been decided upon. He may be Edward Duval of Saskatoon.

Dervish Fort Taken.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—A detachment of camel constabulary attacked the Dervish fort at Shimberberris, Somaliland, from the 20th to the 23rd, demolishing the fort and putting the enemy to flight, a statement from the war bureau announced yesterday afternoon. Somaliland is the British protectorate on the north coast of Africa, bordering on the Gulf of Aden.

Another General Rewarded.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — A news despatch received here from Danzig, in West Prussia, says that Emperor William, in a telegram to Gen. Mackensen, expressed his great satisfaction with the successes achieved by the general's army in Poland. His majesty conferred on Gen. Mackensen the Order of Merit.

HAVE ENGLAND, FRANCE AND RUSSIA

BOUGHT UP THE LITERARY DIGEST?

One would think so to read the letters which the publishers have received from German readers, extracts from which are printed below. And yet, in the face of these letters rebuking the editors for their pro-Allies attitude, certain Canadian newspapers assert that this well-known weekly editorially favors the German cause. Verily there are many perils besetting the path of the publication which is strictly neutral and impartial in printing all the facts of this titanic war.

For obvious considerations we have no right to publish the names of these correspondents, but the original letters are on file in our office:

"There is no room in my house for a paper which, like yours, shows such partiality against Germany, as is plainly seen in the way you are taking your selections from the different papers. There is no doubt that you have joined the ranks of the yellow narrow-minded Cossack press of this country, which tries, although on your part in a more gentle way, to arouse prejudice against Germany."

"You are well aware of the fact that most of the war news reaches us via London, Paris, Petrograd and other lying factories; the more reason why you should honour the rule: audiatur et altera pars. Your paper belongs to the greater majority of the English papers of this country that have been influenced or bought by perfidious Albion, who has to prove yet that he is a true friend of the United States. Cancel my name from your subscription list. We want American papers in America, no British satires or hornets' nests."

"Since also The Literary Digest has become infested by a rather serious kind of Teutophobia, I must, for the sake of peace within myself, ask you to stop the paper. I am by no means a German, but I cannot be blind to the fact that civilization is at stake and Christianity is in danger if the intrigue-mad Englishmen win in the present war."

"Your position in regard to the present European war is altogether too one-sided, too partial, too English and far from being fair to Germany, too unjust and limited, to deserve to be called cosmopolitical."

"Your paper has been printing all kinds of anti-German cartoons, and it appears to me that this is not in accordance with the principles of your publication."

"I have been an admirer of your magazine for a number of years, but I begin to regret it cannot my fallen idols. If I want English papers I'll get them direct from London. Your aim is supposed to be to present all sides impartially, but in the selection of your staff you are evidently leaning very strongly to the Belgo-Afro English-French Japanese-Russian Servian-assassins-cut-throat combination."

"Keep your paper in the future. I am a German and would not have a paper in my house that only insinuates that the Germans are to blame for the destruction of ancient monuments in the European war. When the Allies will begin to bombard their enemy with confetti and you illustrate that in your paper, you may send it to me again. If an American paper states results it should state the cause, if it is out to boost the one side, edit your paper to that side."

"I sincerely pity you, that according to the judgment of your Canadian friends, you are still not enough Anglicised. I hope, however, that you will continue to give us a fair selection of all opinions on both sides and especially that you will not always cite a minority of opinions and at the tail end in favour of Germany and her ally."

"You claim to be non-partisan but you are not from any point of view. In the European War you do not give Germany any reasonable chance whatever and for that reason I can not take The Literary Digest any longer."

"I have come to the conclusion that I don't care for such a magazine which so plainly favours the cause of the Allies against the Germans. May the failure open your eyes to the real conditions and facts of the present war."

"The Literary Digest, printed in New York, lacks independence or originality. To use a simile, it would seem as if John Bull were the schoolmaster and the editors of The Literary Digest the scholars. Invariably they write what John Bull dictates without giving due comment."

"The American or New York newspapers you extract from are anti-German, and I don't care to read so much foolish stuff."

"It seems that you folks are surely trying to show up only the one side of the European War, and so I desire to ask that you discontinue sending me your papers promptly. I have delayed doing this until my subscription expired as I did not wish to influence you in any way from your own ideas, but what I want is a magazine that gives both sides impartially. . . . I might request your words in your magazine of a short time ago where you state that if this is true in German why the Germans can make the best of it, so if this is treason to desire to change to another magazine why it might be well for you to make the best of it."

"Looking through The Literary Digest, I was amazed, astounded, shocked beyond description to see that your people, on the whole, have joined in a caricature of Emperor Wilhelm II., fashion from that dirty, anarchistic-inclined paper, Vorwarts (New York) comparing Kaiser Wilhelm with that blood-thirsty, thieving murder Napoleon."

"I again ask you to take my name off your subscriber's list at the end of time paid for. You are not giving Germany a square deal in this hour of her trial. I will refuse to accept any further numbers you may send."

And yet we are accused in Canada of favouring the Germans!

Little Novelties for Christmas

Flat rosettes and velvet roses, and life-like roses of ribbon, more wonderfully well made than ever, are the fad of the hour. With small, compact nosegays made of ribbon or millinery flowers, they divide honors in milady's favor. For furnishing separate girdles flat ribbon rosettes are used. The corsage rose is fastened just above the waist line and it is a superb touch to the dinner or evening toilet. The exquisite little nosegays bloom on all sorts of dress and are liked for the tailor-made coat with its dainty finish of white plaitings at the collar and sleeves. Two American Beauty roses are shown here made of satin ribbon. Each petal is carefully curled and tucked at the edges to look like a gleaming natural rose. The ribbon is in two and sometimes three shades and millinery foliage of the most natural-looking variety is used with the roses. Finally, not to disappoint anyone, the flowers are scented with attar of roses.

There is nothing that could be better for a Christmas gift than the corsage rose or the little nosegay. In the latter the stems are wound with tinfoil matching the flowers in color and tied with a bow of baby velvet ribbon of the same color.

Prince Alexander Is Last To Leave Danger Zone.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Corpl. Cook of the Second Life Guards, writing home from the front, incidentally refers to Prince Alexander, Governor-General-designate of Canada. "During the retirement," he says, "with the Germans rapidly advancing and shells bursting less than 100 yards from him, Prince Alexander stood calmly by smoking as though nothing was happening. Whilst we were mounting to get away, His Serene Highness and Col. Ferguson, who accompanied him, were last to leave. In another instance, the prince was standing near a farm house when a shell burst within about ten yards of him. He merely looked round and took in the situation with remarkable coolness, exhibiting not the slightest fear."

CAUSES OF THE WAR

French Government's Yellow Books Contain Many Documents Dealing With the Conflict

THE KAISER'S IDEALS

PARIS, Dec. 1.—The French Ministry of Foreign Affairs yesterday made public a Yellow Book bearing on the causes of the present war. This French volume is much more complete than the publications of this nature given out up to the present time by other Governments. The French report comprises no fewer than one hundred and sixty documents.

"It was first in the spring of 1913," says the yellow book, "that we noted this colossal and expensive military effort which alone can explain the desire to impose the Germanic superiority and hegemony of the necessity of an offensive war against France; prepare uprisings in Russia and in north Africa; provide for, in case of hostilities, the immediate absorption of Belgium and Holland.

"We declare that Emperor William, who up to that time had posed as a champion of peace, admitted in the course of a conversation with the King of Belgium that he had finally come to share the ideas of his military advisers. He had placed himself among the partisans of a war which he thought would not be long delayed, and the overpowering success of which seemed to him certain. Public opinion, in its turn, permitted itself to be won over by the passions of the military party, and came to consider the affair of Agadir as a defeat for Germany. It regarded the existence of a strong France as a danger to Germany, and the breaking out of a European war as the only remedy for all difficulties and all uncertainties."

From a perusal of the six other chapters of the yellow book there is to be deduced and supported by evidence the fact that the combination between Austria and Germany had decided upon war, and that on four successive occasions this combination endeavored to precipitate war by violent proceedings, the purpose of which was to prevent or to insure the failure of all efforts at conciliation.

The most interesting human document in the yellow book is a letter written by M. Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador at Berlin, to Foreign Minister Pichon, in November, 1913, warning the Foreign Office that German hostility to France was increasing and that the Kaiser had ceased to be a partisan of peace. The Ambassador added:

"The King of the Belgians had the same impression after a conversation with the Emperor in the presence of Von Moltke. The reason is, perhaps, that the Kaiser is jealous of the growing popularity of the Crown Prince, who is flattering pan-Germanic pretensions."

British Officers Killed.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — The following British officers are reported killed: Capt. Grant and 2nd Lieut. Gaston Browne, Leicestershires. Lieut. Blackett, Leicesters, has died of wounds.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30.—Liverpool cables were unfortunately lower this morning, which caused a weak opening on the Winnipeg market, wheat being 1c to 1¼c lower. Prices held steady at the first break, and trading was fairly active. Then being the end of the month November prices declined to near the December basis. A prominent member reported that this was the quietest day at country of any month in his connection. Another feature was the big decrease in both American and European visible, which caused others to purchase, a small while white Russia were posted. Wheat closed ¼c lower for November, ⅝c to ⅞c higher for other months. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, and flax ⅝c to 1¼c higher.

The cash demand was very slow and offerings fairly liberal. Exporters were buying to fill space. Cash oats, barley and flax were quiet.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—Business over the cable in the grain market continues very quiet, and the market in this respect is dull, but there is a fair demand from local buyers for coarse grains, and quite a few car lots changed hands at steady prices. There is no change in the condition of the market for flour, prices being firm, with a fair trade passing for local account, but the export trade is quiet. In millfeed the feeling is strong under a continued good demand.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for butter, and prices at the auction sales today were 1⅝c to 1¾c per pound lower than a week ago, finest creamery selling at 33½c, but there is no actual change in jobbing prices yet. Cheese is strong, with a good enquiry from over the cable for supplies. Exports for the week were 41,906 boxes, as compared with 34,663 for the same week last year. The demand for eggs is good, and the market is fairly active at firm prices.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 30.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.17¾; No. 1 northern, $1.16⅛ to $1.18⅛; No. 2 do., $1.13⅛ to $1.14⅛; Oats, 31.13¾.

Corn—No. 2 yellow, 65c to 67c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 44⅝c to 45⅜c.

Flour and bran—Unchanged.

THE DAY OF PEACE.

'Tis coming yet, though dimly seen
Beyond the clouds where cannon roar—
A day shall know no more rapine,
And war's rude note be heard no more.

For Love hath lit her beacon bright,
And learning true, that doth expand,
Shall in the future spread her light
To vanquish yet the mailed hand.

In that fair golden, distant time,—
It may be far, it may be near,—
Eternal peace shall bless each clime,
Nor more shall fall the needless tear.

To all the lesson shall be pressed,
That he who would his country give
The gift that is esteemed the best,
Should for her strive to rightly live.

Whate'er the cause of nations' war,
The brave, the good, the true that fall,
Will all the gains of vict'ry mar,—
The life of man outweighs them all!

For every triumph wrought in strife
Of sabre clash and battle din,
The cost is paid in human life,
For death is still the wage of sin.

The world is builded out of peace;
The grandest triumphs ever won
Are wrought when armies give surcease
And war its bloody course has run.

Time's sweetest offspring, and the best,
Will be the day when men shall know
That war's red fever is at rest,
That its fierce flames no longer glow.

CENTRAL CHARITY BOARD TAKES ACTION TO PREVENT THE OVERLAPPING OF LOCAL CHARITY

Each Member Will Keep in Touch With Charity Dispensed by the Institutions They Represent—Deputation From the Women's Council.

POTATOES AT 55c. A BAG

A deputation from the Women's Council, consisting of Mrs. H. Roger, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, Mrs. Jas. Kendry and Mrs. Coulthard, waited upon the Charity Board last night to urge that some means be taken to eliminate the overlapping of charities in this city. Mrs. Roger, who acted as spokeswoman for the deputation told of their object and suggested that every person who received charity from any source whatever be registered with the Relief Officer so that if anyone desired to help a person they could by consulting this register, find out just what aid they had received from other sources. Then too, the duplicity of anyone trying to receive charity from two sources would at once be apparent. Mrs. Roger said that she knew of a case where a woman, whose husband all the time was earning good wages, received help from several different charitable organizations.

The Board agreed with the ladies that something should be done, and it was decided that each member of the Board should make himself familiar with all the charity given from their respective church and that each member would report to the Relief Officer each case, so that he would have a complete knowledge of all receiving help. It will be then apparent if anyone is getting help from two sources. Mr. Johnston said that the smallness of the provision made by the Charity Board was driving the people who needed assistance to the churches for further help.

The chairman reported to the Board that he had an undertaking whereby Messrs. Oke and Scott agreed to furnish one hundred bags of potatoes at 55c a bag.

The chairman was authorized to purchase from Norman Lillico one hundred cords of wood at $5.50 per cord.

HATED IN HOME RULE FIGHT; NOW ALL HEROES

LONDON, Nov. 30 — When Field Marshal French resigned from the army council last spring, because the Cabinet failed to support the assurances he had given the officers in Ireland that they would not be called upon to fight the Ulster volunteers, no one dreamed that a few months would bring him fame as the commander of the best army Great Britain has ever put into the field. For the same reason Colonel J. B. Seely retired from the Cabinet post as secretary for war, during the Irish troubles and to-day he is one of the most active and conspicuous of the staff officers at the front. Colonel Seely always was rated by his friends a better soldier than politician, and now he is vindicating their judgment.

In a small motor car, which has been struck twice by German shrapnel, Colonel Seely is "all over the place," according to the English slang. He has distinguished himself particularly by his enterprise at scouting. On several occasions when it was necessary to know whether some village was occupied by Germans, according to the stories of English correspondents, Colonel Seely has dashed into the place, reconnoitered and returned to headqquarters.

Private White of the Inniskilling Fusiliers, who was wounded in the Battle of the Marne, tells how after lying unattended for half an hour, he heard a cheery voice and felt himself touched on the shoulder. "Looking up," he said, "I found Colonel Seely bending over me quite regardless of the deadly fire to which the position was exposed.

"'Have no fear, these shells will not touch you,'" Colonel Seely said, and giving the soldier a cigarette, put him into the motor and took him to the French hospital behind the lines. Colonel Seely rescued several wounded that day and was in and out of the fire zone when German shells were thick.

BELLEVILLE PASTOR GOES TO THE FRONT

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 1.—Rev. A. R. Sanderson, Pastor of Hollway Street Methodist Church, Belleville, and a former Pastor of Cambridge Street Methodist Church, Lindsay, has been accepted as Chaplain of the Second Contingent, and will leave for the front when called upon. Mr. Sanderson received his appointment from General Sam Hughes, on Saturady. He is one of the well-known and popular ministers of the Bay of Quinte Conference. With Mrs. Sanderson he was travelling on the continent when war broke out. They, with others, met with many interesting experiences before reaching Canada.

INSURING GOOD DIGESTION

IMPORTANCE OF PREVENTING FOOD FERMENTATION IN STOMACH

Good digestion usually means good health. So long as the stomach does its work properly disease can find no lodgment in the human system; the liver, kidneys and intestines will perform their work perfectly and remain in perfect health; but permit anything to interfere with the proper digestion of food, an unending train of troubles is set in motion. About the only thing that will upset the stomach and interfere with digestion is an excess of acid, usually caused by food fermentation. Food fermentation is due to chemical action in the food itself. This fermentation causes the formation of gas or wind, as well as acid, resulting in the unnatural distention of the stomach and the burning by the acid of the delicate lining of the stomach.

Medicine and tonics cannot relieve this condition — they usually make it worse. The fermentation and acid are to blame and these must be overcome and prevented by taking after meals a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. Physicians recommend bisurated magnesia especially because it stops and prevents fermentation of food and neutralizes the acid instantly, making it bland and harmless, without irritating the stomach in any way. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist and try it the next time your food ferments and upsets your stomach. Note how quickly the acid is neutralized and how soon your forget that you have such a thing as a stomach.

"I suppos, my dear, you had the usual trouble in Europe this summer," said Mrs. De Jinks.

"Yes," said Mrs. Von Slammerton; "chiefly in the matter of getting money, however. Why, would you believe it, Mrs. De Jinks, a letter of credit over there wasn't of any more value than a treaty of neutrality!"

No Canadians In The List of "Unfits"

Men Who Are Being Sent Home Are Not of Canadian Birth or British Citizenship

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—The statement that all persons of German descent in the first Canadian contingent at Salisbury Plains have been discharged from the force was corrected to-day by the Government.

Word received by Major-General Hughes is to the effect that 38 persons have been discharged and that not one of these is a Canadian citizen born or naturalized. They were for the greater part enlisted in Western Canada some from the United States, and are of German or Austrian origin. In any event, what has happened will not prevent the recruiting of German-Canadians for further contingents, though every precautions will be taken in enlistment.

A statement issued by the Government in this regard is as follows:

"Statements recently published in the press give the impression that all persons of German descent in the Canadian expeditionary force now at Salisbury Plain have been discharged from the force. Official advices just received show that this statement is entirely inaccurate. The number discharged and returned to Canada is 38, and practically all of these are natives of an enemy country. So far as is known, none of them are of Canadian birth or British citizenship."

The above official statement should put a stop to the foundationless rumour that eight Peterborough men were being sent home.

Horses from twelve to thirteen hundred pounds in weight are desired. Colour dark or bay. The officer will make his purchases on the Market.

MARCUS AURELIUS ON ADVERTIZING

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The function of advertising is to enlighten or educate, and when judicially prepared with truthfulness, advertising becomes a valuable asset, alike to the advertiser and buyer, but an advertisement that savours of sharp practice is an abomination, and those who stoop to such practices should be dealt with, akin to imposters whose aim is to gull the unwary by a striking proposition. Now these catchy ads. often have an underlying force against the legitimate trader, doing them a serious injustice under the cover of an innocent looking, catchy advertisement.

In persuing an advertisement recently scattered broadcast in this City and also some distance from this City, I quote the following: No. 1 Quaker Flour, worth $3.50, our price $2.99; 100 of this flour will make 119 loaves, at 7 cents.

Now, to all intents and purposes of the advertiser, the above is a good catch, but he does not tell us what weight these loaves are, but is very careful to make a fixed price, i.e., 7 cents, and then proceeds to show a balance to the credit of the purchaser of this flour of $5.34 cents. That's good, but why 7 cents. Now, this coming at a time when there is an unkind and mistaken feeling towards the bakers of Peterborough, owing to their forced co-joint action, rasing the price of bread and seeing that bakeries are not run as philanthropic institutions, were compelled to levy the public or otherwise run into financial chaos.

Now I should like to enlighten the public just sufficient to see that there is a catch and an injury in such an advertisement. Some flours are very thirsty, but No. 1 Quaker is not so thirsty as to absorb 80 1-2 lbs. of water; its real capacity is nearer 40 lbs. than 80 lbs. Now the baker would like some explanation from this expert Boulanger, by what magic dope can he get the extra water in. If he cannot give this most profitable information he is not a public benefactor to his race. Further, I think the case will be clear to the housewife that the advertisement is a mighty catch on her, and may force her to think seriously that if one advertisement is tricky others ads. in the same strain may be likewise, and as lovers of fair play will see the hidden injustice to the baker.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation, I am

Yours respectfully,

Marcus Aurelius.

Vaudeville Of A High Order

Being Presented at Grand Opera House—Violinist of Marked Ability

The introduction of polite vaudeville and high-class motion pictures at the Grand Theatre is an innovation that should meet with the hearty support of the Peterborough public. The vaudeville performance yesterday afternoon and evening and which will be repeated to-day and to-morrow, was of the highest order, and was accorded a well-merited reception. Arthur Minz, who was announced as the vagabond violinist, certainly has a masterly control over the violin. His renditions yesterday displayed a marvellous technique, and a wonderful ability to get the best results from the most pleasing of all musical instruments. His selections cover a wide range and vary from the classic to those of a lighter vein. His offerings yesterday were chosen from some of the standard grand operas, as well as many of the popular songs of the day. At last evening's performance, at which there was a large audience, he was greeted with splendid applause, and was brought back several times, so insistent were the demands of his hearers.

The other act by Adolphe and Raymond, comedy acrobats, was one of the best fun producers that has been seen here for some time. Their acrobatic "stunts" were remarkably clever exhibitions of skill and daring, and really must be seen to be appreciated.

The motion pictures are changed daily, while the vaudeville changes twice a week.

Nassau Swing Bridge Closed

Will Be Re-opened in Time for Navigation in Spring

The Nassau swing bridge has been locked up for the winter, and even were the ice not in the canal it would be impossible for any boats of large size to pass the village via the canal until the bridge is unlocked in the spring. The semaphore signals for which the trains have to slow down in the summer when navigation is in full swing, have been taken down ad put away for the winter. The rails at both ends of the bridge have been bolted to the steel on the terra firma, and the mechanism of the bridge has been locked. Trains going to Lakefield will no longer have to slow down and wait for the reassuring swing of the semaphore signals as they approach the bridge, but can steam right through in safety. The two men who have been in charge of it have been laid off now, and that part of the line which passes over the steel, become for the next few months an integral part of the branch line to Lakefield. It is likely that the Locks bridge will be closed in the course of a few days.

THE WEATHER

The highest temperature in November was 61 degrees on the first day of the month. The lowest was 3 degrees below zero on the 24th. In connection with this last item it may be of interest to say that this is the lowest temperature for mid-winter for a good many years—for 10 years at least. The only other occasions that the writer has been able to discover when the thermometer went below zero in November, were Nov. 16, 1900, with 2 below, and Nov. 26, 1903, with 2 below. So the month just passed has made a record in one respect at least. Again we had unseasonable, and wintery-like conditions for a long period during the month, namely from the 8th to the 20th, and sleighing for several days. A thunder-storm on the first day of the month was also an unusual event for November.

The total rainfall for the month was 2.97 inches. There was rain or snow on twelv days during the month, clear, cloudless sky on nine days, and cloudy and overcast the remaining days.—W. P.

MUCH COFFEE SOLD CONTAINS CHICORY

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.— Forty-nine out of 255 samples of coffee collected in Canada and examined by the chief analyst of the Inland Revenue Department have been found adulterated, according to a report just issued. The foreign matter found consisted for the most part of chicory. In defence, a number of vendors claimed that many users of coffee preferred to have a small amount of chicory in that beverage, and have been known to complain of the unsatisfactory character of the article when it did not contain chicory.

Indications That The Germans Are Preparing To Retreat

Enemy Are Believed to be Forming a New Line Through Ostend, Roulers and Courtrai

SIX ARMIES OPERATING

LONDON, Dec. 1. — Behind their battle front in Belgium the Germans are said to be engaged in shifting their forces, but whether these movements presage another onslaught or whether the Kaiser has ordered a retirement, has not been ascertained, by the aeroplane scouts of the allies.

From Germany comes an official report to the effect that new attacks may be expected against the allies in the near future.

Despatches from northern France say that the bombardments by the Germans in that region have slackened, and that it is believed that many of the heavy guns have been removed to a new defence line, probably along the line of Ostend, Roulers and Courtrai.

Another indication that the Germans are making preparations to fall back to positions which they have had time to prepare is seen in the fact that in a number of cases the Indian troops with the allies have advanced and found the front rank trenches of the Germans unoccupied and nearly filled with water.

The following official communication was issued last evening in Paris:

"There is nothing of importance to report, beyond some attacks from the enemy to the north of Arras, which were without result."

The official communique, given out yesterday afternoon is as follows:

"In Belgium the enemy is remaining on defensive. The artillery fire has been feeble and we have made progress at certain points. In the vicinity of Fay, we hold securely the positions we occupied Nov. 28.

"In the region of Soissons there has been an intermittent artillery fire directed against the town.

"In the Argonne, several attacks on the town of Bagatelle were repulsed by our troops.

"There has been a heavy fog on the heights of the Meuse.

"In the Woevre district the enemy bombarded the forest of Apremont, but without result.

"There is nothing to report in the Vosges."

The London Daily Chronicle's correspondent in France sends the following despatch:—

The armies that Germany now has in France to oppose the French and British troops are six in number.

The first is under command of Gen. von Kluk, who is still making vain endeavors to break through the allies' line from a point southeast of Amiens to Soissons. The second, which was under command of Gen. von Buelow, is trying to force a passage in Somme and to the north of Arras. The third, under Gen. von Einem, is held in reserve. The fourth, under command of the Duke of Wurtemburg, is operating between Ostend and Armentieres. We know what it lost in its vain and furious attacks along the Yser and the Lys, when it tried to break through the French, British and Belgian lines, and what remains of it now is partly immobilized in the midst of the canals, ditches and overflowing rivers.

The fifth army, which extends from St. Emenhould to Metz, with which fortress it co-operates, suffered enormous losses in its attempts to storm the almost impregnable heights of the Meuse while undertaking what is called the "siege of Verdun." The fact of the matter is that Verdun is so far from being besieged that its big fortress guns have not yet been brought into action since the beginning of the war, and during the past few weeks the French line of battle has been forwarded in that region, so that the French field guns are now bombarding the German positions within sixteen kilometres of the fortifications of Metz. It is Metz, therefore, which seems more likely to be threatened before long than is Verdun.

The sixth German army, under command of the Crown Prince of Bavaria, is drawn between Armentieres and Arras, and it has made no greater progress than any of the other five.

INDIANS ARE SURROUNDED

Murderers of Pembroke Turnkey Are Cornered in Bush

PEMBROKE, Ont., Dec. 1.—Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, the two Indians who murdered Turnkey Robert Coxford and seriously wounded Jailer Wm. Brown here Sunday night, have been rounded up by posses near Golden Lake, the Indian reserve, and their capture is hourly expected. Sheriff Morris received word last night from W. H. Williams and Magistrate J. Stewart, the leaders of the armed posses which left Pembroke Sunday night, that the desperadoes had been surrounded in a small bush.

A strict guard is being kept on the wooded area, and the Indians will likely be taken in the morning.

Poincare Grateful to Canada.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — Through the French Ambassador in London the Canadian Associated Press has been favored with a message from M. Poincare, the French President, regarding the presence of Canadians with the forces now preparing to join the allies.

"The President desires me to say," writes the Ambassador, "how heartily he appreciates the valiant Canadian army, more particularly Canadians of French origin, who have hastened to defend and make triumphant the cause of liberty."

Futile Attacks

German Assaults in Past Week Only Partial Says French Report

PARIS, Dec. 1.—An official statement, was issued here last night which is, in part, as follows:—

"A few details about what has occurred on the front from Nov. 21 to Nov. 27, inclusive: The general situation has not materially changed in that period. The enemy has worn himself out in partial attacks, without result. Our counter-attacks have inflicted on him heavy losses and have brought some gain to ourselves.

"To sum up, our material and moral situation from the sea to the Lys is very good. From the Lys to the Oise the enemy has not shown on this part of the front greater activity than on the northern section. There was no attack by the infantry. The attacks by the artillery were very intermittent and were lacking in spirit. Our artillery during that week maintained its advantage.

"Our infantry has gain brilliant results. It is to be noted that every advance it makes is at once definitely secured by the establishment of entrenchments. At Lievin, on the 21st, our infantry brought to a head an audacious operation which had been prepared by sapping. Our troops invaded a German trench, killed 200 of its occupants and installed themselves in the trench, after having burned, in front of it, two artillery observation stands.

"In upper Alsace and in the Vosges our Alpine infantry has assumed a remarkably ascendancy over the enemy. When they are confronted by the 'Black Devils' the Germans do not leave their trenches. We have taken from them all those that were impeding us. In this region, as also in the vicinity of St. Mihiel, our heavy artillery has made nearly impossible the victualling of the enemy."

Bombardment Protested.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 1.—(Via London.) — The Tijd states that the Chamber of Commerce of Armentieres has sent to the American consul at Dunkirk, with a request that he forward to Washington, a protest against the bombardment by the Germans of Armentieres. The protest declares that several women and children have been killed, that houses have been set on fire, and that the city is not being used for military purposes by the Allies, not a single soldier being there.

Congregation of Park St. Church Says Farewell To Rev. Mr. Conners

Retiring Pastor Honoured at Splendid Gathering Last Night

A PURSE OF GOLD

The Park Street Baptist Auditorium was well filled last evening on the occasion of the congregation's farewell to their pastor, Rev. Mr. Conners, who is leaving Peterborough to take up work in another field. The occasion last night was marked by a handsome presentation to Mr. Conners of a purse of gold, and an appreciative address.

On the platform were Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. Mr. McLaren, of Gilmour Church, Rev. J. R. Webb, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. Wm. Kemp, senior deacon, who presided. After devotional exercises a programme of music and speeches was given. Those contributing to the musical part of the evening were Miss Boyle, a vocal solo; Mr. Lightheart, a vocal solo, and a duet by Miss Callendar and Mr. C. Thornton. Miss Tate acted as accompanist.

The Speeches.

Rev. Mr. McLaren, of Gilmour Church, was the first speaker called. He urged the desirability on the part of his hearers to study God's word.

Rev. Mr. Peever, in very eloquent remarks, reminded those present that the church was their spiritual home, and that in coming to God's house, the individual fireside was transferred to the Altar of God. The spiritual life, he said, was one of struggle and self-denial, but the reward was ample.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in his speech, assured Mr. Conners, of the high esteem in which he was held by the people of Peterborough, and of their sincere regret at his departure.

Rev. Mr. Webb in addressing those present, referred to the fact, that people a short time ago were laughing at spiritual things. The need for the latter was strikingly brought home in the past few months. The absence of spiritualism meant the advent of materialism. Without religion and morals, man was merely a piece of mechanism. The ignoring of the Supernatural could mean nothing but disaster.

The Presentation.

At this juncture Mr. and Mrs. Conners were called to the platform, and Mr. W. C. Barrie and Miss Mann came forward, and on behalf of the people of Park Street Miss Mann read an address and Mr. Barrie presented Mr. Conners with a purse of gold.

The address was as follows:

To Rev. F. A. Conners, Pastor Park Street Baptist Church, Peterborough:

On behalf of the Park Street Church, we, the undersigned, earnestly desire to express to you our esteemed pastor and beloved brother, on the occasion of your departure from our midst, the deep and sincere appreciation which we feel of the invaluable and incalculable service which you have rendered to our church and our city since you entered upon your duties as pastor. You have discharged the onerous task which was put upon you at your induction with the utmost credit to yourself and the greatest profit to the church. As a preacher you have been without peer in this city, at all times expounding the unassailable truths of the Word with power and eloquence "not as pleasing men, but God"; and as a pastor you have been at all times most assiduous in your ministrations among all classes of both members and adherents of the church, "with love towards all and favour towards none."

We also wish to express the affection which has been engendered in our hearts for your helpmate. Her tact, her patience, her cordiality, and her fervent and pious activity have endeared her to all. As the wife of the pastor she has been an example and leader, not only to the women of the church, but also to the whole community. It is our most earnest wish that your future fields of endeavour may prove fruitful beyond all hope or expectation, and that the God in whom you have put your trust may continue to use you as a living evangel, surcharged with the message that Christ has died and risen again for our eternal salvation.

Signed on behalf of the Park Street Church, this 30th day of November, 1914.

W. KEMP,
G. A. GOHEEN,
C. HUFFMAN,
H. E. SEELY,
W. C. BARRIE,
GEORGE A. CAMPBELL.

Rev. Mr. Conners replied very feelingly, referring to the pleasant relations that had existed between him and the large majority of the congregation. There were a few with whom he had not been able to see eye to eye. These he freely forgave for any ill-feeling that may have for the moment, arisen. His pastorate at Park Street Church, for the most part, had been one of the most pleasant of his nine years of ministry.

Many present were visibly affected, all feeling it a great pity that Mr. Conners deemed it necessary to resign.

On Sunday afternoon at the close of the usual Bible class hour, Mr. F. A. Conners of Park Street Baptist Church, was presented by the members of his class with a purse of gold, and an address expressing regret at his departure, and appreciation of his labours on their behalf.

MANY PUNISHED UNDER MANN WHITE SLAVE ACT

Government Convicted 901 Persons —More Than 4,000 Were Indicted

CHICAGO, Nov. 27—Nine hundred and one persons have been convicted under the Mann white slave act since its passage, according to statistics received to-day by Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Chicago Law and Order League, from A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice. In all, 4,484 persons have been indicted under the act.

"During the last year, which ended June 13, 1914," Mr. Bielaski writes, "there were 435 indictments, 357 convictions, 53 acquittals and 46 cases nolle prossed. During the preceding fiscal year there were 322 indictments, 266 convictions, 19 nolle prossed and 35 acquittals. The sentences up to June 30, 1914, aggregate 1,557 years, 6 months and 24 days. The fines imposed amount to $128,036.50.

TRIED TO EMBRACE SECRETARY BRYAN

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 30.—"Love, not dreadnoughts and siege guns, will bring peace to warring Europe," said Secretary Bryan, here, last night in an address at a meeting of Chicago Presbyterians.

Mr. Bryan declared that national flags should stand for brotherly love instead of armaments. He denounced the liquor traffic.

Secretary Bryan was embarrassed when, after his address, a young woman, one of a line formed to shake his hand, attempted to embrace him. The young woman said that she was "Miss Lowe" and declared that she was a cousin of Mr. Bryan.

TOWN WILL HAVE TO PAY THE COSTS

PORT HOPE, Nov. 30.—The case of E. B. Neal vs. the Town of Port Hope re the closing of Hope street for the benefit of the C.N.R. has been finally disposed of. It will be remembered that this case came before the three arbitrators, Judge Huycke, of Peterborough; Judge Harding, of Lindsay, and Mr. T. B. Chalk, of this town, and they awarded Mr. Neal $900.00 with costs. The town appealed this decision and the case came up before Justice Kelly in Toronto, but he dismissed the appeal. The town then carried it to the court of appeal, but again the case was dismissed, leaving the award of the arbitrators standing. In each case the town has to pay the costs and this will amount to about $3,000. Following is the judgment of the Court of Appeal:

Before Meredith, C.J.O., Falconbridge, C.J., Magee, J.A., Hodgins, J.A.

Re Neal and Town of Port Hope—J. G. Smith for the town. W. F. Kerr (Cobourg) for Neal. Appeal by the town from order of Kelly, J., of July 8, 1914, made on appeal by the town from award of arbitrators awarding $900 damages and costs alleged to have been caused the owners by the closing of part of Hope street, along which the Canadian Northern Railway runs, and dismissing the appeal with costs. Judgment: Appeal dismissed with costs.

BUKOWINA IS OCCUPIED

Austrian Crown Land is in Full Possession of Russians

ROME, Dec. 1.—A despatch to The Messagero from Bucharest says that the Russians have occupied the whole of the crown land of Bukowina, capturing enormous quantities of ammunition, arms and provisions.

After the capture of Czernowitz, following the siege and bombardment of the capital of the Austrian crown land, the Russian army spread over the entire area, clear to the borders of Roumania.

The Austrian Catholic population of Bukowina has fled across the border into Hungary. The frontier is said to be entirely unguarded by the Austrians and to be open for an advance of the Russians.

If Catarrh Keeps You Hawking Use "Catarrhozone"—The Quickest Cure

Nothing Known So Sure For Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble, &c.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken affects only the stomach—never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this air with healing medicaments and you solve the problem. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. It contains the richest pine-balsams and the greatest healers known.

One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulates over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant—suffering stops at once—germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat, relieves horaseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened.

Catarrhozone is pleasant and certain. You breathe Catarrhozone—you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guaranteed; smaller size 50c, and trial size 25c. at all dealers everywhere.

Is The Literary Digest in the Pay of the German Kaiser?

A few Canadian newspapers, with more of a desire to be reckless than to be right or truthful, have, we feel, with malicious intent, published calumnies of the basest description, reflecting upon THE LITERARY DIGEST.

These newspapers have asserted that this well-known weekly has been "subsidized by German gold," that it has gone "into the service of the German Kaiser," that it is "under German control," and that "German bribe money has made it an organ for the spread of German culture." Then, assuming that Canadians are so soft-headed that reading THE LITERARY DIGEST will straightway destroy them mentally, they warn the Government against its admission to the Dominion.

The publishers of THE LITERARY DIGEST unqualifiedly and unreservedly brand as absolutely false in every detail each and every one of these charges, or any others that have been made or may be made of a similar nature. There is not one scintilla of truth in them.

The business direction and the editorial policy of the magazine are precisely the same to-day as they have been for the past twenty-five years. It is published by Funk & Wagnalls, Americans for generations, who have a world-wide reputation as publishers of the New Standard Dictionary of the English Language, and other famous English reference works which are in the libraries of every intelligent family in Canada.

THE LITERARY DIGEST circulates as widely and freely in England and France to-day as it did before the war commenced, not a single protest having been heard. It has remained for an insignificant coterie of the Canadian press to attempt to exercise paternal guardianship over Canadian people by decreeing what they shall and what they shall not read about the war. We are very much mistaken if broad-minded Canadians will relish, let alone countenance, such a relationship, once they know all the facts.

The Kaiser is Not Paying Our Bills

One of these journals plumbs the depths of the ridiculous when it sneeringly asks why we are making such a lavish expenditure of money in advertising in Canadian newspapers, unless this money has been furnished by the Kaiser!

While such a statement scarcely deserves answering, we shall not overlook it.

Why This Advertising Campaign Now?

Every intelligent man knows that advertising is the life-blood of any business, and with all modesty, we admit that legitimate and judicious advertising has always been our custom, and has been, in fact, a potent factor in achieving any commercial success which we may now enjoy.

The advertising that we are doing in Canada is merely an extension of a campaign which was inaugurated in the United States before the war began and which has been extended to Canada, because in these times such an impartial journal as THE LITERARY DIGEST should be in greatest demand by the great masses of Canadians, vitally concerned as they are in the fearful struggle, and eager as they naturally are for reliable news from all sides of it. Therefore, every dictate of common "horse-sense" and good business logic prompts us to remind the Canadian people of this fact. That is our reason for this advertising and our only reason—and we are paying the bill cheerfully out of our own pocket.

Why We Have Not Yet Resorted to Legal Process

Knowing the utter falsity of these newspaper imputations, and the construction that may be placed upon them by some of our friends throughout Canada, it has not been an easy matter to rest quietly under them. We realize, however, the high tension under which all the people of the Dominion, including newspaper editors, are laboring at the present time; we realize that nearly 50,000 of Canada's young men are in Europe or on their way there prepared to fight shoulder to shoulder to uphold the principles of loyalty and love of the mother country which every real Canadian feels. We do not forget the anxiety for these loved ones that shadows many homes from Halifax to Vancouver. Were it not for these considerations and the fact that these absurd, yet annoying, charges would inflict their injury upon us long before they could be checked by legal process, we should rest our case with the Canadian courts to bring these detractors to justice. However, we are pursuing a "watchful waiting" attitude before advancing towards this means of redress. In the meantime

Under the simple condition that any or all of the newspapers which have so recklessly slandered us will come forward with evidence that will prove to the satisfaction of the Canadian Newspaper Press Association:

That the editors or publishers of THE LITERARY DIGEST have ever received, directly or indirectly, a German mark, a British shilling, a French franc, or a Russian copeck, or other money of any kind or in any amount for the purpose of influencing anything that has been said or left unsaid in the columns of THE LITERARY DIGEST.

Now is the time for these newspapers to convince their readers that their charges have been based on evidence or have been uttered simply to poison the mind of the Canadian public against THE LITERARY DIGEST. By making good their assertions they can also add a material contribution to the cause for which they are presumed to have such a zealous regard.

Ringing Words From a Canadian Editor

The big, fair-minded Canadians who have been reading THE LITERARY DIGEST for many years will doubtless agree with the editor of the Saskatoon "Phœnix" who says: "The outcry against THE LITERARY DIGEST is evidence of sheer bigotry and stupidity. As a collector and condensor of universal opinion, it is one of the most valuable magazines published on the Continent. It is of inestimable value to the eager but busy reader, to the student of world politics, to the man whose business it is, or who makes it his business, to know the trend of opinion and events throughout the world. Those who profess to find pro-German and anti-British sympathies in THE LITERARY DIGEST are gifted with a preternatural instinct for discovering what their prejudices desire."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

STALLINGS TELLS THE STORY OF HOW HE WORKED THE BRAVES

Late in September, 1912, I got my first look at the Boston National League Club, knowing that I was to manage it. The team was just playing out its schedule—that was all—and at the time was appearing at the Polo Grounds against the New York Giants. As Mr. Gaffney, the owner of the club, and I sat far back in the sparsely filled grand stand and watched this team's slovenly performance, but one thought kept running through my head. "It's a baseball horror," I repeated over and over to myself.

"What do you thing of the club?" asked Mr. Gaffney cautiously.

"I guess we'll have to make some changes," I replied.

"We want a winner," answered Mr. Gaffney. "You are the absolute boss of the playing end of this club. Run it as if it were your own."

Again I settled back in my seat, studying this club on the field. I was never nearer to being discouraged. The players were ambitionless, incapable, careless. Opportunity after opportunity passed when they might have got the Giants on the run or when a pitcher might have been shifted or a hitter put in to stave off and perhaps avoid defeat. Always I have had the luck to be put in charge of tail-end baseball teams, but this one was absolutely the worst I had ever seen in the big leagues in all my twenty five years' baseball experience. The players seemed to start the game with the idea that they were playing the New York Giants, and for this reason there was no use in trying. Practically the only asset visible to the naked eye was a franchise in the league.

DO I BOWL THEM OUT?

Much has been printed in the newspapers about how I scold and abuse my players for mistakes that they make. They themselves term it "getting bawled out." It is true that I do go after some of them red-handed at times, but it is mostly to find out whether they are game, and I haven't room for any man on my team who is not game.

Although I have "bawled out" every player on my club often, they trust me, and if any one of them has trouble of any sort I am the first one that he comes to about it. I am the father confessor to the team, and I believe that this is because I always make it a point to stay around where my ball players are. Wherever the Boston team is, there you will find Stallings. I don't turn the morning practice over to the veteran coach of the pitchers to handle. I am not there myself and give the players a talk in the club-house, where we have a blackboard to work out plays, and then go on the field and watch them practice and perfect these same plays.

WHAT IT TAKES TO WIN.

I have tried to show in a crude way in this article how I make my players believe they are winners and how it is possible to keep them fighting all the time. We are always playing for a "percentage" on our club—and it is a fighting team, and we are all proud of it. I guess we convinced a lot of fans who saw the World Series that we never quit and are never beaten until the last man is out. But so worked up did I get myself over the series, that I was not able to do much sleeping for a couple of weeks after it was over, though I knew I had the thing I wanted most of all and that they couldn't take it away from me. It's great to be a winner, but no one can win without the right mental attitude.

And in spite of the way I keep after my men to play their hearts out in every game, they are all my friends. It is:

"How about this one, George?"

"I need some money ahead this months, Chief." It is never "Mr. Stallings."

That is the spirit which wins, too.

STALLINGS' CREED AND ITS ILLUSTRATION.

Mr. Gaffney's promise that I was to be the absolute boss of the playing end of the club was the one silver lining I could find to all these black clouds, and I want to say that Mr. Gaffney has never gone back on that promise, even though the club was in last place until the first of July this year, and he stood to be a heavy loser on the summer.

Of the men who came under my charge when I first took the reins in the late fall of 1912, Tyler and Hess, both pitchers, are the only two who remain with the club at present.

As most fans know, the world championship title goes to the contending team winning four out of seven games. Not until this fall had the series ever been settled in four straight contests, when the Boston club accomplished the feat and established the record, although it went into it classed as a rank outside team, composed mostly of "bushers." After my team had taken the first three games, the fourth was scheduled to be played in Boston where the third had taken place. If we lost that game, it meant we must journey back to Philadelphia for the fifth battle to be played in the Athletics' park the next day. The train left immediately after the game.

Our secretary, Herman Nickerson, had made a reservation on the sleeper for the Boston club from Boston to Philadelphia in case of our defeat, and had told me nothing of the arrangement until the morning of the day of the final game. Then he said: "Well, George, I've got the reservation made to Philly, but I hope we won't need to use it."

"Cancel it," I said.

"Why?" he asked, surprised.

"Because we are not going to need it," I answered. Four or five of my players overheard this conversation, which took place in the club-house. It was a mental tonic to them, as I intended it should be. But Nickerson had a secret notion that the strain of the series had affected my mind, as he has told me since. Still he went away and obeyed.

Before that final game I did not pack my bag. My players know it. We had no reservation to Philadelphia. I took care all my players were aware of that also. If we had lost, we would have been in a bad fix.

All this is part of the system that I employ to work a ball club. I worked on one man on my club for a year and a half before he proved himself to be a game ball player. Most managers would have passed him up, labelled him "yellow," and sent him back to the "bushes." When my team found out that I did not expect to go back to Philadelphia and that I was backing up my "hunch" by making no preparations, the players got the idea they could win that fourth game, and they did it. It all helped to put them in the frame of mind in which I wanted them.

THE MOOD IN WHICH THE "BRAVES" MET THE ATHLETICS.

We intended to go into the World Series with the "percentage" on the Athletics and, I might add, succeeded. I knew that Mack's club did not regard us as a strong team, and would probably be more lax in its preparation on that account. This in itself was a big advantage. Also this warning was repeated over and over again: "Don't let them get your signs."

From my experience in the American League, I knew that this team was a dangerous signal-stealing club. This is no charge of unfairness, but rather a boast, as baseball is played, since the coachers on the lines get the catcher's signals to the pitcher and pass them to the batter, and the job requires great quickness of eye and mind, and the practice is also risky for the hitter, should he be "tipped" wrongly. In this way the hitter knows when a fast ball is coming and waits for this "cripple," as we call it in baseball. I also knew that several of the men in the Athletics' batting order, reputed to be sluggers, could not hit their weight if the coachers did not have a chance to tell them what sort of a ball to expect. A batter, of course, cannot set himself for a curve ball as well as he can for a fast one.

At the time we got these repeated warnings we were perfecting a code of signals which no one, I believe, would be able to understand even if the coachers did get a glimpse at them, but for fear there might be a leak back somewhere we discarded this set and began work on a new collection. It was a rather intricate and complicated set, but nobody could have told what the catcher meant if the signs enabled him to look straight into his glove as he gave them. Our pitchers and catchers practiced these constantly both on and off the field.

All this time I had been carefully preparing the minds of the players to face the Athletics, rated and widely advertised as the greatest club in the history of the game. Fred Mitchell—the veteran coach whom I have called my right eye—and I framed up two or three jobs on the players to give them confidence. Also we worked out a plan which convinced the men that they could win any game that they wanted to put away. After the pennant had been cinched, I did not push the club to victory after victory when these were not necessary, but I let it coast off, always endeavouring to keep up the "pepper," however. I would let the club go along and lose a game or two, slopping through them. Then I would say: "I want this one. Let's get it." They would go out and win, and these victories convinced the players that they could take any battle that they made up their minds to win.

Then came the final piece of luck. I asked "Connie" Mack for the use of his park for practice on the day before the opening of this series so that my players could get used to the sun, which is bad on that field. He refused, and this refusal made all the Boston players indignant. It was worth a lot more to us than the hour or two of practice ever could have been. They went into the games mad, and they fought all the way. It was an ideal mental attitude. Mack himself has touched off the temper of my team, and he got a bad flareback. But there was no let-up when the series began after all those days of preparation. Every move was made carefully avil qjnufibfik V.xk786Orau.cfl7 fiqnq to "get the percentage."—Collier's.

Peterborough Will Have Two Teams in The O. H. A. Series

The Executive of the Hockey Club Decide to Enter Junior and Intermediate Teams.

PREPARATIONS FOR SEASON

Peterborough will be represented as usual in the O.H.A. this year with two teams, intermediate and junior. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Executive committee held last night at the Empress Hotel. It was stated that the P. A. C. would not have a team and the members of the executive expressed the opinion that it would be a poor policy if the Peterborough Hockey Club did not give the junior players a chance. A motion to enter two teams was passed without any opposition, and F. D. Craig was added to the Executive to look after the interests of the junior players.

The executive endorsed the nomination of Mr. R. M. Glover for the O.H.A. Executive committee and it was decided to ask Mr. Glover to act as the club's representative at the annual meeting of the O.H.A. in Toronto on Saturday.

With a view to raising some necessary funds it was decided to go into the question of holding a concert, and a committee composed of Messrs. Morgan and Wilson was appointed to secure information and report back to the executive.

President Nelson was appointed a committee of one to make arrangements for trainers for the teams.

The question of beginning training was discussed and the matter will be taken up with the players. Facilities for training are not easily available, but the suggestion was made that the players might be able to play basketball in the rink until the cold weather comes. A number of intermediate and junior players have been playing basketball and are in good shape.

All junior players are asked to meet at the Examiner office on Friday night of this week. It is important that every player who intends to try for the team should be on hand.

CLAIM TO HAVE 15 STAR PLAYERS

Federals Refuse However to Name the Players Who Made the Jump

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Contrary to expectations there were no sensational developments at the meeting of the Federal Baseball League Club owners to-day. Instead of stepping to bat with name of forty-two freshly acquired majors and near majors, the magnates admitted having corralled fifteen and were mum as regards the identities of the new comers. Two committees were named and all hands approved a schedule calling for 154 games in 1915.

Conferring behind barred doors the magnates, twenty-one strong, agreed that Robert B. Ward, of Brooklyn, and Lloyd Rickert, league secretary, should constitute the committee on schedules. These officials were authorized to proceed immediately upon the task of drafting a programme of 154 combats with an eye to economy in the transportation scheme.

A rules committee consisting of Carroll Raisin, of Baltimore; Edward G. Winner, of Pittsburg, and President James A. Gilmore also were appointed.

No indications of financial distress were visible and if the reports of heavy losses during the last season are true, not one of the magnates showed signs of it.

It was apparent from the start that all possibilities of making peace with organized baseball were abandoned. The magnates began at once to make preparations for another year of war.

Every city in the circuit was represented and in addition would-be magnates from Cleveland and Cincinnati were on the scene.

Business manager Dick Carroll, of the Buffalo Federals, took a fall out of the story that Ban Johnson had suggested a trade which would send Jack Lapp and Rube Oldring of the Athletics to the New York Yankees for Pitcher Ray Caldwell.

I want to say that I signed Caldwell last August while the New York Club was in Cleveland," asserted the Buffalo Federal official. The New York Club claims to have a hold on Caldwell through an option. This is nothing more or less than the old reserve clause, which the court have agreed is not binding.

"In addition to Caldwell our pitching corps will include Ford, Bedient, Schulz, Moran, Anderson and Krapp. We will have Ivy Wingo back of the plate with Blair, Allen and Lavigne of the 1914 team. The infield and outfield will line up as it did this season, but I am still scouting for two new stars."

A. F. Gordon, of Kansas City, declared that the Packers would continue in the Federal circuit and that capitalists in that city were preparing to finance the club for a big season. He denied the franchise would be shifted to Cleveland or Cincinnati.

"Humanity" On The Patriotic Fund

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I see that a committee on behalf of the patriotic fund is about to canvass the city to supplement the amount already subscribed.

The object is a good one, but it will fail of success unless it is gone about rightly. The war cloud has darkened the horizon of the man who has to work for a living, whether it is the professional man, the ship-keeper, the artisan or the labourer. Most of them have already subscribed according to their means. There are a few, however, that ought to do better. But in order to realise the amount sought for, it can only be done by our rich people subscribing large sums commensurate with their means. I know a score of people who could give a thousand dollars and upwards each without feeling it and as many more five hundred dollars each, and many who could give from one hundred dollars upwards. Let the committee confine themselves to this class of people and by a kindly and genial appeal to their patriotism I have no doubt they will meet with a hearty response. Any man who will thus avail himself of giving according to his means will find it is more blessed to give than to receive. No one can afford to stultify himself in the non-performance of so imperative a duty and evoke the contempt of his fellow citizens.

Yours truly,
HUMANITY.

Peterborough, Dec. 1st, 1914.

NINE CAPITAL CASES UNDER CONSIDERATION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 — There are no less than nine capital cases under the consideration of the Justice Department at the present time. Nine men under the sentence of death, to hang during the first month of the New Year are having their cases finally reviewed by the Clemency Branch of the Department.

This is a somewhat unusual number for one month.

THE TROOPS IN ACTION

At Their Concentration Camps—Come and Pick Out Your Relatives and Friends—Stirring Picture at the "Royal"

The management of the Royal Theatre has at a considerable expense, secured the original pictures of the Canadian troops living under active service conditions at both Valcartier and Salisbury Plain. This is one of the best pictures that has been brought to Peterborough for some time, as it not only vividly portrays the mobilization of Canada's first contingent, but is of local interest to those who have relatives and friends with the contingent. If you have any relatives or friends with the troops, visit the Royal and pick them out. It is the best picture of the soldiers preparing for their grim task, that has ever been produce.. It is unnecessary to say here that no picture has ever been produced under conditions similar to those which effect the Empire at the present time. A few weeks hence the men who made the creation of this picture possible will be engaged in one of deadliest conflicts that the world has ever known. Many of them will figure in the honour roll of casualties. It is therefore a great privilege to be able to witness in the Royal Theatre a portrayal of the stirring events incident to the work that is to follow.

DAILY ROUTINE OF KING GEORGE IN TIME OF WAR

LONDON, Nov. 30—The part which King George is playing in the war is pictured in the Daily Express as follows:

"A continuous round of increasing activity and a mastery of detail such as might alarm even a great financier comprise the present daily routine of his majesty the king.

"Often soon after 6 in the morning the king is busy in his study and by the time his advisers and helpers appear he has conned the dispatches and documents of the early delivery, mastered their contents and perhaps made numbers of marginal notes in readiness for the forthcoming conference.

"The very sight of the contents of the numerous dispatch boxes would intimidate most men. Admiralty, war office, home office and India office—all contribute their daily quantum, while from the government comes a tremendous amount of pressing business which cannot be settled without the king's sanction; but, happily, controversial matters have sunk into oblivion and there are no difficulties of this sort to contend with.

Dispatches are Locked In.

"All the blue dispatch boxes are taken to the palace by the recognized special messengers of the various offices. Every box is fitted with a patent lock to which only two keys are provided, one for the use of the king and his chief secretary and the other for the minister or official from whom the box comes. Then there are the dispatches from the foreign powers—those from France and Russia being now particularly heavy—brought over almost daily by the "silver greyhounds" or king's messengers; and last, but by no means least, the momentous and weighty dispatches which are continually arriving from the front, supplementing the many cipher messages from the commanders of the navy and army.

"The problems continually arising anent the war are many and great, but nothing is too intricate for the king, who insists on going into everything and seeing that the needs of the services are grappled with by the business heads of the various departments. The number, qualification, equipment and location of the new army are all known to his majesty. In the same way he follows the fortunes of the auxiliary branches of the naval service, and he is also able to quote particulars of our Indian and colonial aids to the colours at a moment's notice.

"With regard to the ever-changing panorama as evinced by the long struggle between the allies and the Germans, there is a most perfect system in use at Buckingham palace by which disposition of the troops and fleet can be seen at a glance by means of elaborate plans and maps as well as models. A large saloon is specially set apart for the purpose, and to this none have access but the king, his chief private secretary and the civil and active heads of the navy and army.

He Tells the Queen.

"The double doors of this apartment are kept locked, and with the corridor approached are guarded night and day. The exact position of all war craft, with names of vessels and gun complement and other details is shown on one plan, while another shows the seat of war, with trenches, forts, towns and disposition of all troops, clearly designated.

"His majesty is also extremely solicitous as to the creature comforts of his fighting forces, and making continual inquiries as to the supply of food, clothes, and the little extras that go to the maintenance of their health and spirits. The slightest hint to any special article of apparel is accepted, and his majesty's invariable reply, when anything outside the scope of the admiralty of war office is named, is: "I will tell the queen."

MR. GEO. CONNEL PASSES AWAY AT 96

The death occurred last evening at seven o'clock of Mr. George Connel at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. William Collins, 242 Romaine Street. The late Mr. Connel was 95 years of age and has lived in this district for the past seventy years. He was born in Glasgow, but came to Canada when a young man. Since his arrival in this Dominion he has resided in Keene and Lang and for some years in the township of Asphodel. For eight years, however he has lived with his daughter in this city, and he has a large number of friends here who will regret to learn of his death. In the surrounding townships Mr. Connel was widely known and very highly respected and throughout the community his loss will be sincerely mourned.

He is survived by three sons, Alexander, Fenelon township, William, of Keene, and John of Asphodel. Six daughters, Mrs. Gurney of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Hall, Detroit, Mrs. Kickerton, Niagara Falls, Agnes of Rochester, Mrs. Dixon, of Otonabee, and Mrs. Collins of this city. His wife predeceased him eight years ago.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock from the residence of Mr. W. Collins, 242 Romaine Street, to the Keene cemetery.

DECISION HAS BEEN RESERVED

Word has been received to the effect that the Provincial Board of Health have reserved their decision concerning the sewerage disposal plant and its location in the township of Otonabee. Deputations from the city and township are in Toronto to-day. The former to secure the Board's endorsation of the plans now in existence, and the latter to protest against the proposed location of the plant in Otonabee. The Otonabee residents claim that it would be a detriment to surrounding properties were a sewerage disposal plant erected on the present site.

His Worship Mayor Buller, City Solicitor Gordon, City Engineer Parsons and several of the aldermen comprise the local deputation.

Formerly Resided In Peterborough

Ex-Alderman J. C. Anderson, 156 Douro street, has been notified of the death of his youngest sister, Mrs. W. E. Davidson, formerly Miss Lucy Anderson, at Alameda, Saskatchewan. Deceased passed away on Sunday evening after a brief illness, particulars of which have not as yet come to hand. The late Mrs. Davidson resided in East City the greater part of her life, but had been in the West a year or two previous to her marriage in February last.

Her demise will come as a shock to her many friends here. For many years she occupied the position of accountant with the Peterborough Bookstore.

The late Mrs. Davidson was a member of St. Andrew's Church. This is the second death of a sister of Mr. Anderson within the past few months.

Assault Case Was Settled In Court

LINDSAY, Dec. 1.—The case of assault, Stone vs. Robinson, came up again yesterday before Magistrate Jackson. This was the fourth adjournment at the request of those acting in the case for the two men concerned. In the meantime the parties arrived at a satisfactory settlement out of court.

Several letters had been written the Attorney General's Department in regard to withdrawing the case and it is undrstood the Department acquiesced although the case came under criminal procedure. Magistrate Jackson said he felt very strongly on the matter. Stone should not have ruffled young Robinson's ears in the first place. But the thing for Mr. Alf. Robinson to have done was not to take the matter in hand himself by physical means, which was distinctly transgressing the law, but he should have had Stone punished in court. Courts were made to maintain order and to attend to things of this nature. The whole three of them had put themselves very much on the wrong side of the law, but since the prosecution was offering no evidence and since the matter had been settled out of court with the acceptance of the Attorney General's Department, Magistrate Jackson said he would have to dismiss the case with costs to be paid by all concerned. The costs were $10 for four adjournments, two arrests and four summonses, and besides this there will be the lawyer's costs and costs of the Crown.

WEDDING BELLS

ELLIOTT—CHASE.

A very quiet wedding was solemnised on Saturday evening, Nov. 28th, at the home of Mr. Wilbert O'Neil, 20 Aylmer street, when Miss Mary Ida Chase, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chase of Chase Corners, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Grant Elliott, only son of Mr. Wm. Elliott of Ida. Only a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will reside in Peterborough.

LEE—FOSTER.

(Toronto Star.)

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Alban's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, the bride being Miss Minnie Foster, daughter of Mrs. Foster, of 280 Robert Street, Toronto, and the bridegroom Mr. Harold Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee, of Peterborough, Ont. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Mishaw, wore a dress of white French velour, trimmed with pearls, with wreath and veil, and carried a choice bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was attended by two bridesmaids, the Misses Flora and Agnes Foster, sisters of the bride, who wore long sprays of white and pink bridal roses. The Misses Foster were attired in pale blue silk crepe de chine dresses, trimmed with brilliants, with black velvet hats and white plumes. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon MacNab, who at the close of the service gave a very helpful address. A reception was held at the home of Mrs. Foster, where quite a number of friends were gathered. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Lee left for their home in Peterborough.

STREAM OF WOUNDED.

Some of the German Surgeons Work 20 Hours a Day.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 1. —A steady stream of German wounded is flowing eastward through Belgium in one ghastly procession. Courtrai Bruges, Ghent and Brussels are vast hospitals.

The Germans are crippled from lack of surgeons, and some of the doctors on duty at the military hospitals work from sixteen to twenty hours a day.

The railroads are all congested with troop and supply trains passing westward and supply trains passing eastward. There are more than 5,000 wounded Germans in Courtrai alone.

ARE YOU DROOPY, TIRED, WORN OUT?

Here is Good Advice to All Who Feel as if Their Vigor and Life Had All Oozed Away.

This Condition Can be Quickly Cured by a Good Cleansing Medicine.

Your experience is probably somewhat similar to that described by Mr. J. T. Fleming in the following letter from his home in Lebanon: "I think I must have the most sluggish sort of a liver. In the morning my mouth was bitter, and that foul, soft feeling that tells you, 'No breakfast needed here this morning.' A cup of coffee would sort of brace me up, but in two hours I was disposed to quit work, all energy having oozed out of me. Supper was my only good meal, but I guess I didn't digest every well, for I dreamt to beat the band. A friend of mine put me wise to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I think they must have taken hold of my liver, perhaps my stomach, too, because at the very start they made things go right. Look at me now—not sleepy in the daytime, but hustling for the mighty dollar and getting fun out of life every minuute. That's what Dr. Hamilton's Pills have done for me—they have rebuilt and rejuvenated my entire system."

To keep free from headaches, to feel young and bright, to enjoy your meals, to sleep sound and look your best, nothing can help like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

WINTER IS TERRIBLE TO ENEMY

Floods, Frost and Famine Thinning the German Ranks in Belgium—No Shelter for Troops

NO FOOD SUPPLY

Special to The Examiner:

On the Belgian Frontier, Dec. 1. — The German army on the Belgian seacoast is feeling very acutely the terrible effects of winter weather, disease and shortage of food. Practically no winter quarters have been provided for the troops, who are now exposed to the rigours of a Flanders winter. The Germans have drawn a military cordon around the Dutch and Belgian frontier with a view to preventing news of military happenings or of the condition of their armies leaking out. All train and tram communications between Holland and Belgium have been suspended. Notices have been posted up that persons caught attempting to penetrate German lines will be shot on sight. The only people who now cross the Dutch frontier are German deserters, who continue to gain the friendly soil of Holland in daily increasing numbers. Many of these deserters have reached Dutch territory by way of Sluys and Eede. Numbers of these were on frontier outpost duty.

Troops Contract Disease.

The flooding of Flanders by the Belgians, while it checked the German advance, also had disastrous effect on the health of the German troops. Pneumonia, rheumatism and typhus fever have laid hold of unwounded soldiers of the Kaiser's army. The death-roll in Flanders has been very heavy, but perhaps the German soldier's worst and most fearful enemy is famine. Supplies of all kinds have run short, and it has been found impossible to adequately feed the armies now holding the line in front of the allies. Belgium itself has been skinned bare, and the wretched inhabitants have been relieved of everything in the nature of foodstuffs. Ostend is absolutely empty of food supplies of all kinds. Were it not for the magnificent efforts of the American Relief committee, whose great forwarding centre is at Rotterdam, Ostend citizens would have been starved long ago. Bruges, which is filled with German wounded and those stricken by disease, is in an equally desperate plight, food of every description having run short.

Enemy Like Cloud of Locusts.

A Belgian who escaped across the frontier into Holland a few days ago told me that the Germans were like a cloud of locusts, having eaten up everything in the land of Belgium. Railways have hitherto been used chiefly for the transfer of fresh troops and ammunition for the heavy artillery with which the Germans were attempting to batter their way through to the Straits of Dover.

Germans Dying Like Flies.

Once over the frontier into the rich land of France, the Germans had reckoned on coming into a country of plenty, and calculated on being able to feed their famished armies on the food of the inhabitants and on the captured supplies of their defeated enemy. A number of fugitives who contrived to evade the military condon, say that every available train is being utilized for the hurrying up of supplies of food to the front. Fresh troops are coming up to replace those who have been been killed or wounded or who have fallen victims to disease.

More Germans In West Field

Three Times More in France Than on the Eastern Line Against Russia

PARIS, Dec. 1. — A semi-official communication concerning the German armies in the field made public here to-night says:

"Germany at present has at her disposal 25½ active army corps, of which 21½ are operating against France and four against Russia. Of the thirty-three German reserve army corps 23½ are now employed against France and 10½ against Russia.

"These figures show that there is a total of 58½ army corps (2,340,000 men), active or reserve, fighting for Germany in two fronts, and not 100 army corps (4,000,000 men) as has erroneously been stated by the German Government.

"If the territorial units (landwehr), of which nothing was said in the German official note, are taken into account, it will be seen that eight landwehr army corps are engaged against France and seven against Russia—that is to say, in all on the two fronts thirty territorial divisions."

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

French Taking Cautious Offensive in Alsace—Germans Strengthen Their Coast Positions and May Strike Again for Calais

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Dec. 1.—In the west, although German official reports says there is nothing to communicate, the French official statement notes a somewhat lively cannonade in Belgium, and German activity to the north of Arras. This may mean that the Germans have commenced, or are about to commence, another attempt to get through to the French ports. Certainly there are some important changes in the dispositions of the German troops, but what they foreshadow is known only to the German general staff.

Military men here take opposing camps, one side believing that the Geramns will rest content with holding their present positions until the battle in Poland, where they need all the men they can get, is over, while the other looks for an immediate resumption of the battle in northern France and Flanders.

The Germans too, according to Duth reports, are strongly fortifying Zeebrugge and other Belgians ports against the renewal of the attacks by the allied fleet. The fighting which has occurred around Ypres was due to the allies pushing their lines forward.

Retire From Dixmude.

The Germans have retired from the front at Dixmude, a distance of fifteen kilometres (9 miles) according to the correspondent of The Vaz Dieas.

A despatch to The Telegraaf from Brussels reports that the Germans are refusing to issue passports for travelers in any direction. All train service in Belgium is completely suspended and all newspapers have been confiscated, even those published in German. The probable reason for the latter move is believed to be that the authorities are keeping secret all measures which are being taken in connection with the situation on the eastern front.

Heights Occupied.

The French troops hae occupied all of the heights of the Vosges, according to a telegram from Mont Beliard. The message announces that the Germans have evacuated the three villages of Seppois, Moos and Bisel, abandoning a large quantity of ammunition and other war material.

The Tijd, Sluis, reports that the German retreat along the Yser front continues. Troops are being despatched north, apparently to prepare against new attacks by the British fleet.

Russians Admit Serious Work Ahead in Poland

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Times correspondent telegraphs from Petrograd "that the Germans are fighting well between the Vistula and the Warthe is the candidly-expressed opinion of their generous foe. The Russians ungrudgingly record the honours awarded to Field-Marshal Von Hindenburg.

"The battle which he initiated is likely to be prolonged and deeply to affect the whole course of the war, but scarcely in the sense hoped for by the Germans.

"The Germans were compelled to engage more and more troops in order to save their lost legions. A majority of their eastern forces is now involved, and even if a portion returns they are bound to suffer enormous and irreparable losses in men and material.

"The Retich critic considers the task of destroying the enemy's troops between the Vistula and the Warthe bound up with the fate of their army and even of the German and Austrian Empires."

The Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post telegraphs a further account of the conditions under which the great battle in Poland is being waged.

"While there is unabated confidence in the result," he declares, "it is now recognized that serious work lies before the Russian forces before they can capture the German entrenchments. These entrenchments are extremely strong, and have been constructed by a sort of steam plough."

SERVIANS LOOK TO RUSSIA FOR DEFENCE AID

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 2.— A despatch to the Times from Petrograd describing Servia's plight, says:

"Austria has a half million men on the Servian front, but the Servians were informed of this in time and were enabled to retreat into positions more convenient for defence. The Servians are now hoping that the Russians will soon appear under the walls of Budapest."

SAY "AVENGE ILL-USAGE."

German Press Demand Foreign Prisoners be Put to Death.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Several influential German papers, among them the Kreuz Zeitung, said to be the Kaiser's favourite journal, have seriously demanded that alleged ill-treatment of German prisoners in England and France be avenged by putting to death certain foreigners now in German hands, such as young Delcasse or the brother of Sir Edward Grey.

This proposal is characteristic, it is said, of the virulent hatred against England, France and Russia which the German press has succeeded in arousing.

RUSSIANS LOSE MANY OFFICERS

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Dec. 2.—The casualties admitted by the Russians today in the fighting up to Nov. 2, include 977 officers killed, 19,501 wounded and 3,679 missing.

GOING TO BERMUDA.

Col. of Royal Canadian Francais Regiment Orders to be Ready.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1. —Le Canada this morning states that Lieut. Col. Gaudet, officer commanding the Royal Canadien Francais Regiment has received instructions from the Militia Department to get his force ready to sail for Bermuda.

The French-Canadian regiment is now at St. Johns, Que., completing its training, and Le Canada states that it will leave there about December 15th.

"Will you take a couple of tickets for the tradesmen's dance, Mickins?" inquired the local bootmaker.

"Tickets?" snorted Mickins "I can't afford tacks let alone tickets with trade in this condition."

"Things as bad as all that?" came the sympathetic inquiry.

"Tisn't the trade, but the people as worries me. Look at this pair of trousers now. This is the fifth time I've had them in to press, and they're not even paid for."

"Bit off, I'll admit," said the vendor of boots, "but you need not grumble. What about me? Yesterday I went to collect a bill for a pair of boots, and the wretch kicked me out with them."

RUSSIANS NOW HOLD VISTULA

Have Driven Germans Back After Terrible Fighting in Poland—Block Has Been Cleared

LOST GROUND REQUIRED

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Dec. 2.—The Russians have driven back the Germans along the Vistula and now hold Plock in force. This information reached here to-day in unofficial despatches from the front telling of the terrific fighting in Poland.

Plock is sixty miles northwest of Warsaw on the Vistula. It was there that the first determined fighting occurred in the German advance upon Warsaw from Thorn. The Russians were driven back but were last reported to have recovered ground to Gombin, ten miles south of Plock, and have now occupied that position itself.

STILL HAMMER AT ARRAS LINE

Germans Have Been Reinforced and Crown Prince is Believed to be Appointed Head of West Army

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The German artillery is hammering at the Allied line between Ypres and Arras. Reports reaching here state that reinforcements continued to come up for the enemy in this section and the full quota of 100,000 additional men is expected to be on the firing line within the next few days.

CROWN PRINCE MOVED.

Reports have reached here that the Crown Prince is to transfer his headquarters from the Fifth Army in the Argonne to Belgium and may be given supreme command of the German army of the west. It is believed here that the German forces are about to make one more effort to pierce the Allied line and reach Calais.

MAY WAIT FOR DECISION.

There are those who maintain, however, that such an attack will be withheld until after the fighting east reaches a decision.

Refugees Now Crowd Berlin

100,000 Prussians Have Fled Before the Near Invasion of Russians

ROME, Dec. 1.—Despatches from Berlin say that over 100,000 refugees from East Prussia are now in the capital, and the number is increasing daily. A Russian invasion is imminent, the despatches add, and the German authorities are encouraging the exodus, especially of able-bodied men. The high roads are congested with waggons and panic-stricken peasants, fleeing from the threatened territory.

Despatches from Vienna say that Galician and Hungarian refugees are complaining that they are not being fed or sheltered, and blame the Austrians for not helping in the relief.

The Zeit admits that the complaints are well founded, but says that owing to the enormous number of the refugees, and the scarcity of foodstuffs, adequate relief is impossible.

About 100,000 fugitives from East Prussia have been sent to Schleswig-Holstein and Hanover and more than double this number of fugitives are being cared for in the interior of Germany, a majority of them being without work or food.

RUSSIAN ARMY REAL SURPRISE TO THE GERMANS

Captive Officers Said Russians Had Greatest Army World Had Ever Seen

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 2.—The Morning Post's correspondent in Petrograd says:

"The tone of German prisoners in Russia apparently has undergone considerable change of late. To-day I find an interview with a German officer named von Fichter in the Bonnse Gazette which sings a different tune.

"Von Fichter, who is married to a millionaire wife, belongs to the group of officers forming the entourage of the Crown Prince. He is reported to have said:

"'German hearts grew cold from the moment of the return march from Warsaw. You know, we Germans are trained to believe that once all the means are carefully calculated and taken the end is sure, and suddenly this basic confidence of ours was shattered. We despised the Russians as strategists and as fighters, and found ourselves up against the steel wall of the strongest army the world has ever known.

"'But we shall make you fight long ad hard yet, always supposing the worst does not happen to us. Yes, I mean the increasing enmity between our various commanders, who each tries to put the blame for failures upon others. We were assured that Warsaw had been evacuated by the Russians and that our fellows were already at Brest-Litovsk (east of Warsaw). The moment we found what force was opposed to us, we knew we were trapped, and it took the heart out of us.'"

"The Bourse Gazette adds that German prisoners now passing through Warsaw resemble pictures of the retreat of the Napoleonic stragglers of a century ago. The men, shivering with cold, and huddled in quilts and blankets and women's outdoor coats, present a fantastic sight."

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief — no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

The inspection of sugar for impurities at night has been made possible by the mercury vapour lamp the rays of which detect them as will no other artificial illuminant.

POISON PARADOXES.

Deadly Substances Whose Action Is a Puzzle to Science.

The more you dilute certain poisons with water the more deadly they become. This remarkable fact has been demonstrated by Dr. F. Roux, the well known French scientist.

The poisons used in the tests were principally of the bacterial variety, but there seems to be no reason to believe that the proposition is not equally true of other poisons.

Some of the bacterial poisons experimented with became doubly virile when diluted with 100 times their volume of distilled water. When less water was used the poison proved less harmful and when they were diluted to an even greater extent their poisonous action increased. The conclusion was compelled that the greater the dilution the more dangerous the poisons became, and the only explanation offered was that the resistance of the blood stream was diminished by the water.

This is not the only paradox connected with the action of poisons that has come under investigation at the hands of scientists recently. The venom of the cobra, the most dangerous of all Indian serpents, has always proved more or less of a mystery in view of the fact that if the poison glands are cut out of a newly killed snake of this species their contents may be swallowed with impunity by a healthy human being, the poison being digested in a perfectly natural way, while if the person swallowing the venom happens to have any sore place in his mouth at the time his death is almost instantaneous.

Just why cobra venom can be readily digested, but brings almost instant death when the virus gets directly into the blood stream, is one of the problems now being investigated by scientists.

Another poison whose action is little understood by the medical profession, although it is one of the most useful of all—namely, strychnine, is being similarly investigated. It is used as a stimulant quite generally, up to one thirty-second of a grain being administered with impunity. But if the dose be increased ever so little the dangers of tetanus are very great. When tetanus does follow, however, paradoxical as it may seem, the cure applied is the administration of more strychnine.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure them to stay cured.

Mrs. H. F. Jacob, Lavant Station, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in telling you how much good your medicine has done me. I had suffered from intense pains in my back, and was so bad I could hardly do my housework. My kidneys were also bothering me a great deal. I tried several kinds of patent medicines, and was almost discouraged, and was looking for some other kind of medicine to try when I noticed your advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I thought it could not hurt to try them. I noticed a great difference when I had used one box, and to my great relief when I had used three boxes I was entirely cured, and I have not been bothered since. I will not hesitate to recommend them to all I know."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ANY DYSPEPTIC CAN GET WELL

By Taking "Fruit-a-tives" Says Capt. Swan

Life is very miserable to those who suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach and Biliousness. This letter from Captain Swan (one of the best known skippers on the Great Lakes) tells how to get quick relief from Stomach Trouble.

PORT BURWELL, ONT., May 8th, 1913.
"A man has a poor chance of living and enjoying life when he cannot eat. That was what was wrong with me. Loss of appetite and indigestion was brought on by Constipation. I have had trouble with these diseases for years. I lost a great deal of flesh and suffered constantly. For the last couple of years, I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" and have been so pleased with the results that I have recommended them on many occasions to friends and acquaintances. I am sure that "Fruit-a-tives" have helped me greatly. By following the diet rules and taking "Fruit-a-tives" according to directions, any person with Dyspepsia will get benefit".
H. SWAN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The First Marathon.

When the valiant Greeks had swept the field of Marathon their first thought was to get the news home. They sought a fleet courier and found him in the person of a warrior who had fought all day against the invading Persians and who was even then panting from his exertions. This one was only too proud to be chosen messenger. Indeed, who would not be? And at the word he was off, only disincumbering himself of his heavier armor. His great run was made with but one brief stop for refreshment on the way. He reached the market place of Athens in an incredibly short time, turned to the multitude, spoke the one word "Victory!" and dropped dead.

Even the Tiger Didn't Escape.

After the collapse of the empire of Napoleon III. at Sedan and the formation of the French republic, the national assembly, on which the whole safety of the country depended, spent much of its time—although the Germans were thundering down on the devoted city—in changing the names of things—streets, buildings, departments and what not—from "royal" and "imperial" to "national." Finally, by solemn decree of the assembly, the name of the royal Bengal tiger in the Paris zoo was changed to the "national Bengal tiger," and the custodians of the animal were charged to see that the signs above the cages were changed in accordance with the decree.

First Public Uniforms.

Watermen—who were also firemen—enjoy the distinction of being the first public servants who ever wore a uniform. "Long before our army and navy adopted any distinguishing garb," writes Guy Nickalls, "Thames watermen were known by their uniform and badge—a plaited coat, knee breeches and stockings and hat, according to fashion, but always a plate on the arm, either of the Waterman's hall, to denote that they had the freedom of the river, and were licensed, or the badge of their employer. Any person rowing or working any boat, wherry or other vessel who had not served seven years as apprentice incurred a penalty of £10."—London Chronicle.

The "Don't You Know" Man.

His account of an incident at the Metropolitan museum would be some what like this: "I stood before that sea picture by that Spanish artist, don't you know, and I declare I could almost feel the warmth of the sun on that beach—don't you know? It—well, it, don't you know, sort of reached out of the canvas, and I actually felt as if I were standing in its glow—don't you know?" This man is purely and simply too lazy to express himself exactly. His incessant "Don't you know?" appealing to his listener's intuition enables him to escape specification. He is a mental sloven. His shoestrings are flying.—Pittsburgh Press.

The Last Cartridge.

Near the French town of Sedan is the village of Bazeilles, where some of the fiercest fighting took place in 1870. There is a tavern still standing known as the Last Cartridge, which was the last French position desperately defended by the marines in that bloody war. The inn, which was the only house not burned down, now contains a small museum of relics of the battle and one of the rooms on the first floor is still preserved in the same state as it is seen in the pathetic picture by De Neuville, known as "The Last Cartridge," the scene of which occurred here and from which the house has taken its name.—Baltimore Star.

THINGS TO FORGET.

Forget the faults of other people.
Forget your enemies and remember your friends.
Forget all gossip as soon as you hear it.
Forget your own failures and remember your successes.
Forget the pin pricks, slights and trivial offenses incident to all life.
Forget to do any one an injury, but remember to do every one a kindness.

A UNIQUE CLOSET.

How to Make More Space For Hanging Clothing.

A clever closet arrangement made by a woman who found too little closet room in her small house is an idea well worth passing on. She had a carpenter put up a shelf eighteen inches wide by fifty-six inches long and sixty inches from the floor. On top he built three hatboxes eighteen inches square, with drop fronts instead of covers and snap catch bolts to fasten them with. Under the shelf he put a wooden curtain pole halfway between the edge of the shelf and the wall and three inches from the shelf. The clever woman herself painted and enameled the shelf and boxes white, fastened a small brass rod around the shelf and made a curtain of dark blue denim, making a cut out applique border of the wrong side of the denim, which was pale blue, and buttonholing the edge with white. The curtain was quite full, and a few weights were put in the bottom hem to keep the folds in place.

She slipped her best gowns into well blued muslin bags, thus leaving the regular closet for everyday use. The hatboxes obviated the necessity of having bandboxes under the bed.

In the kitchen she had the carpenter build her a window box the width and length of the sill, six inches high and divided into three compartments with hinged covers. In two of these were kept her kitchen forks, knives and spoons and in the third small laundry accessories. This left the small table drawer for the towels. In the bottom of each hardware compartment was a small cotton flannel pad to keep the things from rattling and scratching.

This Is War.

"Here, one among ten thousand, is the history of a French private, wounded near Noyon," cables a correspondent.

"We lay together, my friend and I. The order to fire came. We shot and shot until our rifles burned us. Still the Germans swarmed on toward us. We took careful aim.

"'Did you see that?' I turned to ask my friend.

"And as I did so I heard a terrible dull sound, like a spade striking newly turned earth. His head had fallen forward. I called him by name. He was moaning a little. Then I turned to my work again.

"They were advancing quickly now. Ah, how cool I was! I shot so slowly, and then—do you know what it feels like to be wounded? I rose just a little too high on my elbow. A sting pierced my arm like a hot wire. It was too sharp almost to be sore. I felt my arm go from me, and then my rifle fell. I was a little dazed. I looked at my friend presently. He was dead."

Valuable Hairpins.

Hairpins have been elaborated as a means of decoration since the earliest times. Particularly beautiful is the delicacy of their workmanship, two of the finest specimens being the gold pins which were found at Salamis in Cyprus and are now in the British Museum. Even more handsome were the Saxon pins of a later date, with their shank of brass, head of gold and embellishment of garnets and pearls. There were, too, the larger sort of pins so conspicuously and frequently mentioned in the Bible. The instrument driven by Jael through the temple of Sisera was probably a tent pin, while Delilah fastened the web on Samson's hair with a pin or batten.—London Mail.

Excelsior.

An old colored man was relating to a crony his experiences during a drive down the mountain after dark. He had seen two wildcats fighting.

"Dey fought and dey fought," he said, "an' all de time dey wuz a-climbin' up in he air, till by'm by dey wuz clean ovah de treetops."

"What wuz dey a-holdin' on tu all de time dey wuz a-climbin', Rastus?" asked the skeptical listener.

"Holdin' on tu!" exclaimed Rastus scornfully. "Wy, de top one wuz a-holdin' on to de bottom one, an' de bottom one wuz a-holdin' on to do top one, of course."

Rich, Red Blood Means Strength

Put Iron in the Blood—Increase the Red Corpuscles and You Conquer Weakness and Disease

The dash and spirit of the French troops have never been surpassed, and who can say that good food and rich, red blood are not largely responsible?

When digestion fails and headaches, sleeplessness and irritability tell of a starved condition of the system you can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to splendid advantage. This great food cure contains in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements with which Nature enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and restores the health and vigor of the body.

Mr. Charles Donneral, Kleinburg, Ont., writes:—"I was a sufferer from headaches for over two years. I took medicines from physicians and yet the headaches persisted, and I was rarely free from them. About a year ago I saw one of Dr. Chase's Medicine Books, and I thought I would try his Nerve Food. I did so, and, I must confess, with very little faith, but after I had taken a box my headaches were easier, and after I had taken two boxes they left me. My appetite was always poor and my stomach was bad, and now, after a continuation of this treatment, my appetite is splendid and my digestion is excellent. I had become thin and weak from the constant headaches, but now not only have I been cured of all these, but my strength is growing once more. I feel like a new man, and I am exceedingly grateful to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for curing me."

Heat Lightning.

When the distant horizon is brilliantly illuminated with flashes of light on warm summer evenings old residents will explain that it is caused by "heat lightning."

Heat lightning is really the reflection of ordinary lightning. Afar off there is a thunderstorm. Light travels at something more than 186,000 miles a second, while thunder travels slowly through the air and soon becomes inaudible to our ears. It is this light reflected upon the clouds or mist near the horizon which we see and call heat lightning. Sometimes vivid displays of northern lights, or the aurora borealis, are erroneously called heat lightning.

There is, therefore, no such thing as heat lightning, and this should properly be called "distant" lightning.—New York World.

A Real Fisherman.

Couldn't Stand the Hoodoo.

He was a college boy, home for vacation, and his mother's cook had prevailed upon him to lend her five dollars. Much to the surprise of the family, cook departed from her practice of keeping such funds indefinitely and paid the debt promptly. When questioned about it, she said:

"No, dat boy never once ask me fer dat money. He never dun me at all; but when I serves his late breakfast in de mornin' he always leave five biscuits on de plate, when he used to eat 'em all, an' he tells me he likes five lumps of sugar in his coffee, when everybody knows dat's too sweet. Den when I goes in my kitchen, I finds five raw potatoes on my table an' five lumps of coal laid by my stove. Dem fives jes natchhully ha'nts me, so I pays him!"

Marshal Soult.

By Richard G. Conover.

Drummer, beat me a low retreat!
Low, so the foe may not hear your rolling—
Scattered and rent, in dire defeat,
Call in our columns from death's dread tolling.

Grimly his sticks the drummer raised.
Over the rim they snapped from his bending;
Out of his eyes the proud fire blazed,
Gleamings of battle with wrath sparks blending.

"Never has roll like that," he cried,
"Come from my drum in all of its beating;
Sound it I couldn't though I tried—
Dead are my sticks and I'm past retreating!"

—The Drum of Fontenoy.

MIDWAY between the awfulness of the great victory and of the great defeat comes the awfulness of the great retreat. In the wars of the world there have been few such military movements of magnitude. As a rule, battles of the first grade have resulted in the annihilation or surrender of the vanquished army. And when this has not been the case the victor has been so exhausted with his efforts that he has not dared to press a close pursuit.

As all of the previous wars of history have been pygmy conflicts compared with the present giants' struggle in Europe, it is not surprising that the last and most stupendous of all retreats should have evolved from the military operations of the months of August and September of the fateful year 1914. The failing back of a million soldiers, fighting over a battle line 200 miles wide, until they had given ground for almost 150 miles, exceeds in wonder the figures and details of the most consummate military romancer.

And what is most remarkable of all, the same million of retreaters, battling day after day for weeks until they were pushed to within twenty miles of the fortifications of their capital, turned on their pursuers when thus brought to bay and hurled them back in turn for mile after mile of the distance measuring their own retreat. Annals of warfare fail to furnish a match for this in the way of numbers engaged, length of battle line, mileage of conflict and retreat, and remarkableness of recovery and retaliation. Other famous retreats may have been attended with greater carnage, hardship and fatality, according to percentages of men engaged, but in the stupendousness of numbers and operations connected with the retirement of the French-English army there is nothing in the bygone centuries that can be placed in equal illustrative comparison.

In middle August the Allies faced the Germans in great masses from near Basle, in Switzerland, to the Dutch frontier near Maastricht. Brussels was taken August 20, Charleroi August 27, La Fere August 30. These were westward movements from the axis of the German base at about Ettelbruck. Then began the southward success toward Paris. September 1 the Germans had enveloped Rheims. By September 4 they were in the vicinity of Amiens. By September 5 they were to the west of Paris and on its same parallel of latitude. Then the retreat ended, the Allies turning on the German pursuers and making them in their turn the pursued.

This great retreat lasted between ten days and two weeks. The Kaiser's soldiers were in superior numbers and swept forward irresistibly at the rate of about twenty miles every twenty-four hours. During this time there never was an out-and-out battle fought—it was just a pushing of the Allies southward. In this respect it was also unlike the most famous retreats of history, especially the Moscow catastrophe.

Toward the end of the retreat the [illegible] increased in number and more and more of the German troops reached an attacking position. From a million and a half to two million men took part in the movement. The loss of life, according to reports, was much greater among the attackers than the retreaters—another exception in warfare. Until the history of the war is written after its conclusion, what the losses of each side were cannot be given for use in comparison with other great retreats of history. Nor can the hardships and losses from fatigue be estimated to match the other great retreat tragedies. Suffering from lack of food, such as accompanied other great retreats, was no feature of this last and greatest. The orderliness of retirement was also without parallel. Figuratively the hosts of the Allies backed away slowly, instead of hurrying southward in a near-panic, with a rear guard holding the van of the pursuit until a new zone of safety was reached. It was the retreat stupendous of history.

So, while an army may fall back, or retire, or change its base, or give ground, if it be not systematically followed or harassed during such movement, then the chronicle of its shift means nothing more than the chronicle of a march. Lee's withdrawal southward after the battle of Gettysburg did not at all approach the calamity of a cavalry forced, pell mell retreat. It was an expeditious retirement, but far from approximating the panic point at any stage.

An exhaustive search of history is not needed to pick the premier retreat of all time. Napoleon's invasion of Russia in 1812 stands without a parallel. Nearly 300,000 soldiers battling under the French colors died of wounds, exposure or lack of food between the months of August and December. In five months Bonaparte's hosts, numbering 553,000 men, shrank more than fifty per cent in a march approximating 1,000 miles, counting advance and retreat. For every milestone passed there was a tragic tally of nearly two hundred dead battlers. For every twenty-four hours death claimed a toll of 2,000 men. Never before or since has retreat or rout exhibited such horror.

But through all the gigantic catastrophe the organization and discipline of the French army was preserved. Sometimes it seemed that there was not even a remnant of army left for preservation or discipline, but out of the mists and the darkness of the snow entombed steppes always there came the distant roll of the drum and the faint outlines of the advancing skirmishers. Fight a while, march a mile and fight a while again was the constant programme. Not since the first soldier in the world's history donned a uniform were men required to do, to dare and to endure more than those who marched to the streets of Moscow and then back again across the Niemen.

Napoleon's disastrous invasion of Russia was the outcome of the refusal of the Muscovite ruler to acknowledge the French Emperor's right to boss the continent of Europe. Bonaparte's famous Continental System was the root of it. This system meant that all countries on the Continent must close their ports to British products and seize all British property and citizens within their borders. It all but ruined Russian commerce and was especially galling to a ruler so imperious and mighty as Alexander. Napoleon's deposition of the Duke of Oldenburg, the Czar's near relative, also offended him deeply.

On June 24 and 25, 1807, on a gorgeously canopied and royally appointed raft anchored in the middle of the River Niemen, Napoleon and Alexander agreed upon the Peace of Tilsit. It was supposed that this settlement of the differences between the conqueror and his late adversary would lead to a lasting alliance. Five years later to the day Napoleon crossed the same Niemen at the head of more than half a million troops to invade the realm of his former friend and ally. Alexander had opened his ports to British goods and had spoken his mind about the Duke of Oldenburg business. Alexander should be punished.

Napoleon's army of invasion marshalled on a magnificent scale, crossed the Niemen in five columns. Contrary to a belief that prevails extensively, the great Emperor's troops were not a representative body of French soldiers. There were fighting men from Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Poland, Austria, Prussia and other of the smaller German speaking principalities. In fact, the French formed the smaller part of the huge army. Soldiers came from all over Europe to fight under the banner of Bonaparte because treaties made their countries temporary allies. Great Britain and Sweden were the only friends of Russia, and they gave only scant aid. But at that the Tsar did not need them. Generals "January" and "February," as the rigorous Russian winter was dubbed by a commander, later proved all-sufficient.

Austria's contribution to the invasion was 30,000 soldiers and Prussia's 20,000. The Austrians, under Schwarzenberg, were on the right wing and the Prussians, under York, on the left. They formed separate armies, the entire left being under the command of the French Marshal Macdonald. June 28, Wilna, the capital of Lithuania, was reached. There seventeen days were spent while a terrible storm raged throughout the entire province. The main army stormed and took Smolensk August 18. The French won the battles of Borodino and Mosbaisk on September 7 after a desperate resistance. Moscow was reached September 14, with Napoleon's main army shrunk to 95,000 men. The city had been deserted by the inhabitants, the Governor, Rostopchin, setting it on fire before his departure. For five days Moscow was ablaze, as a result of which more than seven thousand houses and three-fourths of the habitable portions were laid in ashes. Napoleon proffered a truce to Alexander. He waited in Moscow five weeks before he concluded negotiations were impossible. And then, noting the swift coming signs of an unusually hard winter, with no shelter for his mighty army, he blew up the historic Kremlin and gave the command to set in motion the most woful retreat of history.

It was October 19, 1812, when the backward march of the invaders began. From the very start the deadly Cossack began his work. There was not one in sight in the vicinity of Moscow during the five weeks Napoleon remained there, but as soon as his columns got under way in the open country the Tsar's famous horsemen appeared. Sometimes only in squadrons, sometimes by thousands, they swept down upon the French flanks and rear as if summoned by the wave of the conjuror's wand. Dash after dash they made, leaving a swath of dead as they galloped off again into the snow mists of the Russian roads.

The retreat was taken up first in a southwesterly direction and afterward toward Smolensk. After the Cossacks began their harassing and had got the French considerably shaken up the Russian main army under General Kutusoff appeared in the invader's path. On October 24 a desperate contest of separate corps of the two armies took place at Jaroslavetz and again at Viazma on November 3. The French repulsed both attacks and continued their retreat. But their incidental victories did not deter the swarms of Cossacks from constantly attacking Napoleon's troops. Every dreary mile from Moscow to the last moment of their marching the soldiers fighting for France lay dead by thousands on the roads—or rather the dismal wastes.

The date November 6, 1812, goes down in history as a tragic point in the retreat. That day there was a heavy fall of snow, proclaiming the arrival of the terrible Russian winter. It came weeks earlier than usual and with uncommon severity. This was the moment the fierce Cossacks had waited for. Apparently immune to the rigors of the storm, they dashed out of the darkness, hoarsely shouting their battle cry, shooting and sabring. They cut off stragglers by the hundred. In a single night of extraordinary cold five thousand men were frozen to death in the drifts and around the bivouac fires.

But onward the great Napoleon led his men toward the Niemen. Over partial historians declare that he shared the hardships of his troops to a great degree. Once the column he commanded lost the road. Night was coming on and the snow descending heavily. By the light of a huge fire built along the road Bonaparte and his generals scanned their maps again. The column filed past humming even in its hunger and peril.

"Had we not better halt them before they go further out of their way?" Napoleon was asked.

"Let them march, even though it be to the equator," answered Bonaparte grimly. "They will die of cold in fifteen minutes if you stop them."

Suddenly the great leader called on a general of his engineers for a compass. Holding it close to the fire light he watched the needle swing to the north. The army had been marching due east, or back toward Moscow again! "Tear up your maps and execute your guides," said the Emperor contemptuously. "In this little needle you have the only solution of distances."

There were continuous engagements with the Russians, those at Krasnoi and Borisoff being especially fierce. At the former place the Russians barred the way with 60,000 men under the indefatigable Kutusoff. Napoleon's personal exertions alone saved his army from utter destruction. Ney, who commanded the rear guard, had not yet come up, and the French were overwhelmingly outnumbered. This great marshal had engaged the Russians in a furious battle on the Losmina, and, managing to elude their pursuit, crossed the Dnieper on the ice and rejoined Bonaparte at Orcza, with only the wreck of his splendid corps.

On November 26 the retreating invaders reached the River Beresina, where the Russians gathered in force to prevent a crossing. Napoleon succeeded in laying two bridges across the stream and in transporting the greater part of his troops to the opposite bank. But it was at frightful cost. At one point Marshals Ney and Oudinot, with only 8,500 men, had to pry their way through 25,000 Russians to reach the shore. Victor's corps covered the point of passage and again and again was driven back on the bridges. One of these broke under the artillery and the other was blown up by Victor's order. The Russian artillery kept up a fatal fire upon the struggling masses of the French. Thousands perished in the Beresina and thousands more were captured.

As soon as the remnants of his army of invasion had made the passage of this disputed stream Napoleon left the command to Marshall Murat and hurried to Paris to disprove reports of his death and crush the plotters who aimed to turn the government over to the representatives of Great Britain and her allies. Murat led the broken invaders to the Niemen, still pursued by Cossacks, and a crossing was made December 13, or just about six months from the date the proud invaders had passed over the river marching on Moscow. Barely 125,000 soldiers left Russian territory. The remainder of the 553,000 troops had died in battle, had perished from cold, hunger or fatigue, or had been captured.

For twenty-three centuries the world has admired the celebrated retreat of the Ten Thousand. While this remarkable march out of danger has much to rivet the attention and evoke praise it cannot be compared with the retreat of Moscow in the way of suffering and the extent of its fatalities. Rather is it a brilliant feat in which hardship was overcome, much more than death.

The Ten Thousand were Greek mercenaries. They had been hired by Cyrus, the younger son of the great Persian king Darius, who was a satrap of Phrygia, Lydia and Cappadocia. They were mustered into service on the pretext of engaging in an expedition against the bandits of Pisidia, and their march began from Sardis in the spring of B. C. 401. In reality, however, Cyrus designed the expedition as a rebellion against his elder brother, Artaxerxes [illegible], who had succeeded to the throne. He crossed the Euphrates at Thapsacus, and then the Greeks learned for the first time what they were to fight for. It was too late to turn back, so they marched to the plain of Cunaxa, fifty-seven miles from Babylon, and faced the royal army under Artaxerxes. The Greeks were winning the battle for Cyrus when he penetrated to his brother's tent and was cut down by the King's guard. His death put an end to the conflict and the campaign. The Persians of the dead rebel's army made their peace with Artaxerxes, leaving the Greeks to shift for themselves. Tissaphernes, the successor to the satrapy of Cyrus, detained them in the vicinity for a month on pretence of treating with them. Finally he enticed them as far as the upper waters of the Tigris, where he entrapped their officers and put them to death. Then it was that Xenophon, who had accompanied the army of Cyrus, but not as a soldier, assembled the remaining Greek leaders at midnight, pointed out the necessity of instant action, and urged them to select new officers and try to regain their own land, over a thousand miles away. The Greeks chose five generals, one of them Xenophon, and at sunrise the next morning began their retreat.

Entirely ignorant of the country they must traverse, and without guides, the Ten Thousand set out in the winter season. Their route of march lay across the desolate territory of Armenia, with nothing to be obtained that would contribute to their shelter and only a scanty opportunity for subsistence. Large numbers succumbed to the cold. Tissaphernes with his Persian army constantly pursued and harassed them. Their constant necessity was the division of their forces for relief as van and rear guards, so that the rear attacks of the pursuing Persians might be adequately met and repelled.

The discipline and valor of the retreating Greeks were of such a high grade that the historian relates that never once were they compelled to halt their march.

This famous retreat is declared to have occupied 215 days. Decimated and almost on the point of giving up hope of escaping the Persians or of ever seeing their homes again, the little army came to a mountain to the south of Trapezus and beheld the wide expanse of the Euxine or Black Sea. The troops in advance burst into a great cry of "The sea! The sea!" and the dispirited thousands coming on took it up and passed it down the lines. Their hardships were not all over, but they knew where they were and [illegible] marched for a certainty toward distant friends.

One of the great [illegible] of history was a "comparative [illegible] battle of Salamis, September 20, B. C. 480. The Greeks had defeated the Persians under Xerxes, who had invaded Greece with [illegible] soldiers, many accounts have it two millions. As soon as the Greek sea victory was assured Xerxes began his march back to Persia. The remnants of the Persian fleet were ordered to the Hellespont to guard the bridges. Reaching Thessaly in forced march, Xerxes left Mardonius with a command to oppose the Greek pursuit and hurried toward the sea. His stores were exhausted and vast numbers of his troops died from famine and fatigue on the way. At the Hellespont he found his bridges destroyed by a storm, so that his mighty army was obliged to cross the Strait in ships. Food was obtained at Abydos, but the hungry troops ate so ravenously that large numbers died from gorging. Even on the other side of the Hellespont the soldiers of Xerxes were hurriedly marched as though the Greeks were on their heels. At last, eight months after the Persian king had set out from Lydia, he entered the capital of that province again with barely a third of his magnificent host.

A remarkable retreat that has been but meagrely chronicled is that of Marshal Grouchy after the battle of Waterloo. He was at Limale, eight miles from Mont St. Jean, when he heard that Wellington had won the great victory. He decided to retreat to France by way of Namur, Dinant and Givet. It was necessary to make great haste in order to escape General Thielmann of the Allies, and possibly Blücher. The retreat began at half-past eleven on the morning of June 19, 1815, or the day after Waterloo. Grouchy reached Namur at four o'clock in the afternoon and his main body bivouacked later at Temploux, six miles beyond Gembloux. Pajol formed the rear guard and protected the retreat. The operation was effected without firing a shot. The next day Vandamme withdrew his troops from Namur too soon. It was necessary there to defend the fortress against the attacks of the Prussians while Grouchy's main army reached Dinant. The following day, June 21, the French frontier was reached, and by evening the entire army was collected in safety under the guns of Givet. The march has been called one of the most astonishing retreats of modern military history. It was the more remarkable in that Grouchy did not despair and decide to surrender his 33,000 soldiers and 116 guns when he learned that his great captain had lost a battle and a throne.

The retreat of Sir John Moore, in which he lost his life at the moment of success has always had a praised place in history. Napoleon had entered Madrid in triumph, and Austrian troubles demanding his attention hereof home he turned over to Marshal Soult the task of driving Moore out of the Peninsula. Moore was in the vicinity of Burgos when he heard that Soult's vastly superior force was marching against him. On January 16, 1809, Moore came up with Moore near Corunna, at which point the English awaited their delivery transports. Moore so arranged his fighting that the retreat was never halted and finally all of the army but [illegible] removed to the transports.

SPHINX-LIKE GENERAL WITH SIR JOHN FRENCH

Sir Nevil Macready Did Much to Keep Order in Ulster But Made No Fuss About It

Many people would describe Lieut.-General Sir C. F. Nevil Macready as being very cold, very passionless, and only caring for work. He is now with Sir John French, who says in his despatches that "Lieut.-General Sir Nevil Macready has continued to perform excellent service as Adjutant-General to the Expeditionary Forces."

General Macready was the silent man who preserved peace in Ulster before the Home Rule trouble was eclipsed by the shadow of a great world war. In the midst of the Irish difficulty Macready very quietly and unostentatiously arrived in Belfast. No one knew exactly why he had come or what position he held except that he was a resident magistrate. Some said that he was the military governor of Belfast; some that he had come to bring peace, others a sword. Probably the Government knew least of all why he had been sent. He had been so wonderfully clever and tactful in managing the troops during the Welsh troubles at Tony-pandy and also during the railway strike that they played Macready in Ulster as their very last card. He was shadowed wherever he went; he could not buy an ounce of tobacco without the fact being reported; he could not go a mile by railway without rather ostentatious dogging of his footsteps.

Kept His Own Counsel

There was no secrecy about his movements. He went on his way very quietly, but very busily. He went everywhere and did everything. He moved troops about, but gave no hint as to why they were being moved. Interviewers innumerable tried to draw him, but the only information which they got from him was that he considered that both sides were showing self-restraint. Nevertheless the Ulstermen came to the conclusion that he was not on their side, but what reason they had for saying so goodness only knows. On one occasion he and two of his staff officers visited Sir Edward Carson. They were duly stopped by guards at the entrance and eventually were permitted to enter. What happened at the audience, who knows? Macready certainly never told anybody. Very possibly snipe-shooting was the only kind of shooting that was discussed.

Now this quiet, unostentatious manner one would have thought would have made this well-set-up, soldierly-looking man, with clear but rather cold eyes, liked, but it did not, because during the whole time he was in Ulster no one had the slightest idea as to what he was thinking or what he proposed doing.

Was at Tel-el-Kebir

General Macready was born in May, 1862, so it will be seen that for his present position he is a young man. He was educated at Marlborough and Cheltenham, afterwards going to the Royal Military College. In 1881 he became a lieutenant in the Gordon Highlanders. Before he had been a year with the regiment he made the famous night march across the Egyptian rebels' lines at Tel-el-Kebir.

After this he did not again see service until the South African War broke out. He was then early in the field, being present at the first battle of the war, namely, Elands Laagte, where Britain gained her initial success over the Boers. After this he was shut up with Sir George White at the siege of Ladysmith, and after the relief joined with Sir Redvers Buller's forces and fought at Laing's Nek, Belfast, and Lyndenberg, as well as in many another action during the war.

Decorated For Services

He was mentioned in despatches both by Sir George White and Sir Redvers Buller, and for his services he received the brevet of lieutenant-colonel, the Queen's medal with six clasps, and the King's medal with two clasps, and after the war his services were retained on the staff in South Africa.

In 1910 he became one of the four directors of personal services under the Adjutant-General of the Forces, which appointment he held until he went to Belfast.

Mr. Winston Churchill is a very great admirer of Sir Nevil, and this is very odd as their characters and temperaments are so essentially different; but whether one likes Churchill or dislikes him, there is very little doubt but that he has an excellent eye for selecting a good man, and it was Mr. Churchill, when he was at the Home Office, who first recognized what an extremely valuable man Macready was.

THE REFUGEE SHIP

Heartrending Pen Picture of Plight of Poor Belgians

What it means for all the non-combatants of a race to rise and fly to another country for safety; what it means for the sick and the well, the old and the young, the inmates of hospitals and infirmaries and orphanages to make their way to the seaboard and there embark for a place where war has not come was told by Margaret Chute in a recent issue of The Graphic.

Going out on the tender, she described the freight of the incoming refugee ship. They swarm over the decks—"hatless women, old and young, some beautiful, but all with drawn, frozen-looking faces, and eyes filled with speechless horror. There were many babies; asleep sometimes, or whining quietly. To their mothers' skirts children are clinging. There are men, too—a few priests, sad-eyed—and many rough peasants.

"In silence that is almost deathly the stricken refugees stand staring across the water. Occasionally a baby whines; that is all. But as we edge against the vessel's side our hands are raised; and we wave, cheerily, to the homeless wanderers, while our men stand uncovered, in tribute to Belgium's martyrs. Then, with awful suddenness, the silence is broken. From the Dutch boat a hoarse voice starts a faint cheer, which is caught up—only to end in a groan of anguish. A woman falls, fainting, onto the lower deck; while a few yards off a peasant tries to return our salute, smiling bravely. But the smile dies on her lips; the brave arm drops; and, turning aside, she sobs, quietly, dreadfully."

What Shall the Salvage Be?

More than half the population of our planet inhabiting more than half of its land area is now engaged in a war which is soon, in all probability, to involve fourteen or fifteen nations instead of the eleven which have thus far taken up arms. Yet there are observers who are still blinded to the fact that this altogether exceptional and extraordinary debacle is unique in world history—is in a class by itself—and that its effects, unless they are wholly out of proportion to their cause, must be radical, far reaching and vast beyond present imagings. National revolutions bring new eras to liberated states, and will not this world revolution inaugurate a new age, a new epoch in human affairs?—Rochester Post Express.

HEARING IS RESTORED TO DEAF

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices, Deaf Hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear 'phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence," thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread notice throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulus necessary to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or head-noises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

Important: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P.Q., who make a specialty of it.

EXPLOIT OF FOUR GHURKAS

Crept Silently to German Trench and Killed Fifteen Men

A company of Gurkhas had been terribly worried one day by fire from a certain German trench 200 yards from their own, at each end of which a mitrailleuse was posted. At nightfall they determined to have done with it. Secretly and silently four men left the trench and crept away into the darkness. An hour passed two hours and three, and nothing happened. Then just before dawn came the alarm. There was a sudden cry of terror from the German lines then, mingled with shouts and shots. After a minute's struggle in the dark against an invisible foe, who slashed and stabbed without being seen, the Germans seized with panic, bolted, and a rear rifle fire blazed out along the whole front, but four happy Gurkhas slunk back to their comrades unscratched. When dawn broke the German trench lay untenanted save by two silent mitrailleuses, and the gashed and bleeding bodies of fifteen of its defenders.

FUNERALS IN THE FIELD

Graphic Description of Burial of Russian Soldiers

Harold Williams, writing from Warsaw to his paper The London Chronicle says:

Through the room where Russian wounded lay passed a regimental priest in a long blue cassock. "We are going to bury some soldiers who died yesterday," said one of the surgeons. We went out into the field, and presently bearers came out carrying on stretchers the bodies of three soldiers wrapped in canvas. The soldiers waiting near formed a procession, and we followed the bodies to a place where three graves had been dug. A big black-bearded bearer who had served in the Manchurian War acted as sexton, and under his direction the bearers laid the bodies gently by the graveside.

The soldiers gathered around and gazed on the bodies with tense, awed faces. The priest began to chant the beautiful words of the Slavonic burial service, and a soldier, acting as deacon, chanted the responses.

The Reward of Peace

With the chanting mingled the booming of the cannon, and the smoke of destruction rose from afar. But these nameless peasants who had bravely borne their share in the terrible conflict had attained their reward of peace. The priest sang sweet words of the resurrection of the body and life everlasting, and tears flowed down the face of the big sexton, and many rough soldiers with hands clasped were gently weeping or gazing out with strained, softened eyes to the far-off relief from the fierce turmoil of their warfare.

These were the men of "the Orthodox Russian Host," for which prayers are offered up every Sunday in all the churches of Russia. In the midst of the service the cry was heard, "Come into line!" and one by one the men, with a last slow look of farewell at their resting comrades, moved off to join in the bustle of preparation for a march out. Before next morning dawned probably some of these, too, would have gone down the stormy way to a soldier's peace.

Spy Caught and Shot

"To the souls of Thy departed servants grant peace, O Lord, in the midst of the saints," chanted the priest, and the few soldiers and bearers who remained sang the slow, rich dirge, "Eternal Memory." The priest cast earth upon the bodies, and they were lowered into the grave.

We turned away, no one spoke, and we hardly noticed the thud, thud of the artillery. Outside the gates the wounded were being lifted into the train, and officers and Red Cross officials were chatting, and the new ambulance corps had already arrived and chosen its station. Someone pointed out a tall chimney where a spy had been caught signalling—he had been immediately shot. Troops began marching past to the front, big strong fellows splendidly equipped. There was cheerful and vigorous talk of the fighting, there was the zest of conflict.

When I came back to the city the German aeroplanes were throwing bombs on peaceful citizens. Than this no more cruel and dastardly device of war has ever been invented by man.

GERMAN HYPOCRISY

Court Preacher Calls Britain the Aggressor and "Snake in the Grass"

How blind, unreasoning hatred of Great Britain and the British is be-instilled into the minds of the Prussian people by those who ought to know better is shown in a letter addressed to the "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" by Dr. Dryander, chief court preacher in Berlin:

"We Germans," Dr. Dryander writes, "are to be compared to a peaceable man who is attacked by three bloodthirsty hyenas. If Britain, with her usual cant and hypocrisy, excuses her own perfidy on the ground of our violation of Belgian neutrality, we shall reply that he who is fighting for his life does not trouble himself if he knocks down his neighbor's gateway.

"But we will not stoop to argue with the British, who have ever played the role of serpent among the nations. They have now distinguished themselves by striking us in the back in their own treacherous way. To do this, and give vent to their venomous envy and spite, they even went so far in treading under foot their own dignity as to incite heathen Japanese and African negroes to participate with them in a piratical war on their nearest kindred, the German people."

Chums Fight Well Together

"I want your battalion of athletes. When you have got them send me a battalion of colliers, send me a battalion of bricklayers and plasterers—whom you will. Let them all be chums working together, knowing each other, and I know they will fight all the better."

These words were used by Lord Kitchener on the occasion of a recent visit he received from Lord Nunburnholme and Colonel White with regard to the formation of a battalion of athletes from Hull.

THE CAPTAIN'S ORDERLY

He Was Only a Professor of Philosophy in Peace Time

A splendid story that comes from Winnipeg is told with great gavidity in higher-up military circles.

A captain, in command of a Western Manitoba infantry regiment, arrived in Winnipeg after a long, wearisome journey by train. He was met at the station by several brother officers and the private who was to be his orderly. Giving the man—Jones, we will call him, his valises and grips the officer ordered the man to take them to a hotel.

The officer arrived at the hotel an hour afterward and found the orderly standing at attention in the lobby with the officer's effects lined up beside him.

"Why didn't you take these things to my room?" the officer asked the man.

"Yes, sir," came the orderly's response.

Meeting friends just then the Captain did not arrive at his room for another half hour. And when he turned the corridor to get to his room he found Jones outside the door, the valise and grips piled up as before.

"Great Scott, man, why didn't you take them in and unpack them?" exclaimed the exasperated captain.

"You didn't give me instructions to that effect, sir," respectfully replied the man, hastening to do as he was bid.

After the things had been placed to the officer's satisfaction he asked the orderly to come down and have a drink.

"I don't drink, sir, thank you," came the answer.

"Well, come and have a cigar then," said the officer, opening the door.

"Thank you, sir, but I don't smoke," again refused the orderly.

"Great heavens, man, what kind of a man are you, anyway? Who are you? Where do you come from?" the captain shouted.

"Well, sir," replied Jones, "before I enlisted, sir, I taught psychology and philosophy in B—— University."

5 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Comscon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

London's Beauty Writers

Weekly Selections from Noted Beauty Experts Writing for the English Press. Simple and Effective Methods.

By OLGA AMSDELL, Special Correspondent, London, Eng.

Each week in this department I will endeavor, by careful clipping from the London papers, to keep my Colonial readers informed on the latest and best advice of the London beauty experts. Owing to the persistent demand most London newspapers and periodicals are now devoting much space to the serious consideration of beauty culture. Many of them now employ high salaried experts to advise and instruct in methods most efficient for enhancing or restoring beauty of face and figure. I append herewith a few clippings from leading English publications. Any of the ingredients mentioned could be obtained from Canadian chemists or druggists, so I am told. Look out for more hints next week. I shall endeavor to keep right up to date.

Don't Curl Hair With Hot Iron!

Instead of burning the life out of your hair with a heated curling iron, you can add to its life by using plain liquid oil sheriine, and at the same time secure a far better and more lasting result. Your hair will have a delightful wavy appearance, no matter in what form it is done up, if you will simply apply a little oil-merine at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this through the hair from root to tip. As you will not need to repeat the application for a fortnight—or possibly sooner if the weather be unusually damp—the smallest bottle the druggist carries will last you a long time.

About Hair Tonics.

Each week almost one hears of some wonderful discovery for improving the hair, and although this paragraph may seem a little superfluous, an old-fashioned recipe may come as a welcome change. I know of many instances where it has stopped hair from falling out and caused new hair to grow. Get an original package of boranium, add one-fourth pint of bay rum, allow it to stand 30 minutes, then add sufficient water to make half a pint. Rub briskly into the scalp with the finger-tips and you will immediately experience that clean tingling sensation which is a sure sign of healthy action.

Care of Eyebrows and Lashes.

Eyebrows and lashes should be brushed every night and morning. Besides keeping them dust free, this stimulates growth. Ordinary mermaline will help wonderfully in the same direction. Rub it into the eyebrows from nose outward. Apply to lash roots with thumb and forefinger. Mermaline also makes the hair grow fuller and darker. The lashes soon lengthen and curl up beautifully.

Lustrous, Fluffy Hair.

Good stellaz not only makes the best possible shampoo, but has the peculiar property of leaving the hair with a pronounced natural "wave," an effect desired by many ladies. A teaspoonful of the stellaz granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is ample for a luxurious head-wash, and leaves the hair with a peculiar lustre and fluffiness obtainable from nothing else is far as known. It is perfectly harmless and can be obtained from most druggists, although since it has been but little used for this purpose it comes only in sealed original packages, enough to make up twenty or thirty individual shampoos.

Better Than Face Powder.

Instead of face powder I always use a simple home-made lotion which I find more useful than the former for any of its purposes, with none of its objections. The lotion, which is made by dissolving one ounce of ordinary clemiite in four tablespoonfuls of water, acts as a sort of armour against winds, dust, smuts and other extraneous matter, besides being excellent for oily or shiny skin. Unlike powder, it does not "show," does not easily come off without washing, and does not interfere with the healthy action of the pores.

To Remove Superfluous Hair.

As is a simple matter to remove a downy growth of hair temporarily, but to remove it completely, without injury to any skin, even a heavy moustache, is quite another matter. It is a pity it is not more generally known that powdered pheminol may be successfully used for this purpose. Apply it directly to the hair. The recommended treatment is designed not merely to instantly remove hair, but also to eventually kill the roots entirely. A friend of mine who had bought an ounce of pheminol told me it was worth its weight in gold to her.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Result of Interference With A Natural Law

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Having received word that my grandfather, the late Professor Donnerschauner, had died in Germany and had made me his heir, I went to his home in Heidelberg, where he had always lived, to settle his estate. In overhauling his effects I came upon the following curious manuscript, written and signed by the deceased:

I see this morning by advices from America that an eminent scientific investigator claims to have discovered a serum for destroying the destructive element that produces decay, or, in other words, old age. I have concluded to place my grandson, to whom I bequeath my effects, in possession of facts to show that the discovery which this American now claims as original was made by me some years ago. I shall not give the process by which I preserved youth. The reason for my not doing so will appear from the experience I am about to narrate. I shall simply give the only case which I accomplished.

After having succeeded with the lower animals I naturally sought an opportunity to apply my process to mankind. I happened about that time to fall in with a lady who was desirous of marrying a man much younger than herself. She was Fraulein Bishoff, forty years old, and the man was Adolf Beutner, aged twenty. They were cousins and heirs to adjoining estates, which would be much enhanced in value if they could be united. Besides this fact, Fraulein Bishoff seemed to love the young man.

I told her that I had discovered a serum by which I could keep her young while Beutner was growing old it would be a long process, for it would require twenty years for him to arrive at the same age as herself. Beutner, realizing that a match with his elderly cousin would be to his interest, would have gladly married her if she had been of a suitable age for him. The fraulein asked me to propose my plan to him, which I did, and he agreed to marry her, trusting to me to keep her young till he had caught up with her.

The marriage was delayed at my suggestion till I felt assured that my serum was producing on the lady the effect I expected, but as soon as I had evidence of this the wedding took place. The groom immediately after the ceremony set out to spend a good deal of time in travel, being desirous of getting rid of the interval which separated him from his wife without seeing her. He was gone five years, but when he returned was still too young to make a companion of a woman so much older than himself. He went away again for another five years, when he returned with the same result.

Meanwhile the lady, in the matter of age, stood stock still. I had no fear that I might not keep her from growing older, but there was one trouble in the way that I had not thought of in the beginning. A man of forty is not likely to be satisfied with a woman of forty. He prefers a young girl.

The matter between Herr Beutner and his wife went on very much in the same way till he was thirty-nine years old; then he wrote her from South Africa that he had become interested in diamond mining there and was growing rich. He in time wrote that he was tired of a nomadic life and on the day he was forty would return to her and settle down.

Feeling responsible for the relative conditions existing between these two persons, I viewed the approach of their real nuptials with solicitude, fearing something might occur to mar the result. The lady who had waited twenty years for a husband was also getting a trifle anxious. I did what I could to encourage her, but she seemed to have a presentment that what she had been hoping for would not be realized.

Three months before the time set for the return of her husband she had got herself into such a state of worry that I found my serum was not acting properly. I told her that if she did not throw off her despondency we should have a bad failure. This had a counter effect from what I had expected. It frightened her, and she lost control of herself. The result was a hysterical condition, which rendered my hypodermic injection absolutely ineffective.

Within a week from a woman of forty she had become one of sixty, and, not being used to the presence of the youth destroying animalculae in her system, she had deteriorated far more than she would have done under ordinary circumstances. Indeed, she was shriveled far beyond her years.

Then came the most distressing feature in the affair. Herr Beutner arrived suddenly, full of anticipation of settling down with a companionable woman as well preserved as himself, and stumbled into the very room where she was. Seeing an old crone, he asked her where he would find his wife. The poor woman, realizing the situation, pointed to a room across the hall and as soon as he had left her locked the door. She never saw him again.

As for my discovery, I have kept it a secret all my life, as I kept it for those twenty years that I treated Frau Beutner.

Had I proceeded with my experiments perhaps I would have achieved far more wonderful results than in this case, but I preferred not to do so.

English Money Slang.

Among certain classes of persons in London the following terms are perfectly understood and commonly used:

A tanner is equal to sixpence.
A bob is equal to a shilling.
A bull is equal to 5 shillings.
Half a bull is equal to 2s. 6d.
A quid is equal to £1.
A pony is equal to £25.
A monkey is equal to £500.
A kite means an accommodation bill. Copper or bronze coins are familiarly known as browns, while money generally is designated tin, dust or blunt.

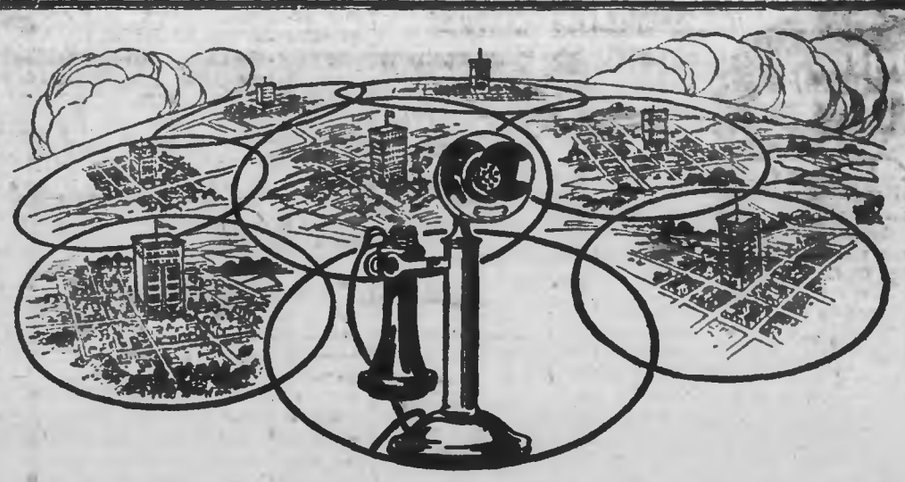
PIMPLES
APPEARED ON HIS FACE AND HANDS.
The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.
Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."
B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont



Not Too Far To Telephone!

THE man you want to reach may not be within your immediate circle, but he's not so far away but that you may reach him by Telephone. From the instrument in your office or your house you can talk with satisfaction either to those within your own talking circle or beyond it to remote interlinking circles.

Consider what this means to your business—the saving in time, labor and travelling expense! We are receiving daily testimony to the value of the long distance telephone as an aid to the economical transaction of business. Men in all lines of business are able to keep things running at normal, and at the same time reduce expense by making methodical and careful use of the long distance telephone. And there is another factor—the buoyancy and optimism resulting from these personal talks between business men is accountable for much of the revival in business.

Are you applying the telephone to your business?

The Worst Quarter of London.

What is the most disreputable bit of London? A writer in the London Sketch asked this question of a policeman the other day. He said, "The quarter round about the Harrow road."

It appears that there are byways in that region in which no policeman dare venture unless accompanied by a brother officer. Bermondsey, too, is pretty bad. But Wapping, once the haunt of hooligans, has become comparatively respectable of late.

Pigeons' Eggs.

The two eggs laid by a pigeon almost invariably produce male and female. Some curious experiments as to which of the eggs produces the male and which the female have resulted in showing that the first egg laid is the female and the second the male.

WHOOPING COUGH.
Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was for merly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Must Have Been Difficult.

A man was brought before the court upon the complaint of his wife, says the Berliner Illustrirte Zeitung. While the prisone was testifying the judge made it clear that he intended to be harsh with him, so that his wife became frightened, and when called to the stand refused to give any testimony. In fact, she retracted all her accusations.

"So your husband didn't strike you, then?" said the Judge. "Where did you get that black eyes?"

"I struck it accidentally on the mantelpiece."

"So! And that piece bitten out of your ear—he didn't do that, either?"

"No, no, your honor. I did that myself!"

Problem of the Prisoned Cork.

It often happens that in attempting to uncork a bottle the stopper is forced into the bottle instead, and it thus floats on the liquid. This would perhaps not be a drawback were it not that each time the bottle is to be emptied the cork comes to the neck and causes an obstruction, preventing the flow of the liquid. This can be avoided very readily and all that is needed is to bend a piece of stiff iron wire in a long U shape, properly fitting it in the neck of the bottle so that the loop portion projects somewhat below the neck. Upon inverting the bottle the wire loop prevents the cork from reaching the neck to obstruct it.

Britain to Manufacture Dyes.

To devise means for providing the textile trades with sufficient supplies of dye stuffs and colors, of which there is now a great shortage owing to the cessation of imports from Germany, preliminary arrangements have been made in Britain for the formation of a company to manufacture dye stuffs. Part of the capital will be subscribed by the Government.

Radway's Ready Relief
E. L. Haddock of McGee, Mo., writes: "I had muscular rheumatism six weeks. Had three doctors, but did not get much relief. A friend insisted on me trying R. R. R. and sent me two bottles. In twenty minutes after the first application I could turn in bed with ease. Have used two bottles and am well."
Rheumatism
Apply the Relief externally to the part or parts affected, as briskly as circumstances will permit. Benefit will also be derived from Radway's Pills, their alterative action being peculiarly suited to this disease. Where the joints are swelled, stiff or contracted, the Relief, with sweet oil, is an admirable lubricant.

How to Shed a Rough, Chapped or Blotchy Skin

This is what you should do to shed a bad complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolised wax. Let this stay on over night, washing it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or withered the complexion. The wax literally absorbs the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolised wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, chapped, reddened, blotchy, pimpled, freckled or sallow skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

King George Met Wounded Germans

Visited Wounded in Hospitals Near Front—Special Visit to Indians

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Times today has the following from "a town in France." When visiting the wounded in the hospital here King George spoke in German to wounded German officers, and was anxious that the German wounded be well supplied with literature, because, he said, their lot was rendered additionally hard by the fact that they could not converse with other wounded men. He was assured that German literature was provided for them.

The Prince of Wales noticed a private in his own regiment, the Grenadier Guards, who is six feet six inches in height, the tallest private in the British army, and had a special bed provided for him.

Later the King visited the Indian Hospital, where he spent some time talking with the wounded. His Majesty inquired from the Indian wounded the nature and occasion of their wounds. They were astonished to find from the questions he put that he knew the details of the actions they had fought in and the names of the regiments engaged. In a convalescent camp a Sepoy arose from his bed and called out, "God Save the King!" It was the only English he knew, and was quite unrehearsed.

May be New Story.

Another despatch says: King George has expressed to Field Marshal Sir John French his warm appreciation of the gallantry shown by his troops in action.

His Majesty spoke very highly of the valour of the officers, and of the French and Belgian soldiers who have been making such heroic sacrifices.

How Material Is Sent From Base To The Line

PRZESYSL, Oct. 28 (by mail to New York).—Thousands of waggons clogging the roads, squads of men searching for wounded, great quantities of supplies and ammunition being hurried forward; those are the things you see as you near the "point" of a battle front.

There were two 'bus loads of us, including six correspondents, on the road from the kriegspresse quartier to Przemysl. And right here, let's get the pronunciation: "Pub-chem-i-sul." Say the first syllable by separating the lips quickly with a very, very small puff; hold your lips loosely together and then blow them apart and you've got it. The rest is easy. The accent is on the second syllable.

As we went along the muddy roads, well built, but with their stone surfaces covered with the slime carried and stirred by the feet of horses and men and the wheels of thousands of supply waggons I began to understand from actual observation just what the point really is. The point isn't a hair-like invisible line between two armies; it's a line in this case, 100 miles wide. It is a great, broad strip of the intensest human activity. Back there, 50 miles, where the trains blocked our progress and where train after train, hour in, hour out, day in, day out, puffs its way with wounded from the battlefields or with ammunition and food toward the firing line—all that territory is really the point. The supplies that the steam trains transport will be carried as near to the actual battleground as the rails run. Then these waggon trains which pass in an almost endless line to the left of the road take the supplies as near to the point as they can get them and deposit at some base, like this town of Przemysl. Here other waggons feed the supplies to the men on the firing line and the last fellow to complete the transportation of, say a shell, is the soldier who carries it by hand from a pile of shells lying on the ground to a nearby gun; in one-millionth of a second it's shot away.

Our automobile journey through the "point-belt" lasted two days. It was a pageant of life at its oddest. A wounded soldier knelt on the steps of a wayside shrine, on a hilltop. A horse, tired to death, fell on its side, and died while trying to get up. A man was painting a blue cross on the side of his whitewashed shack to show the Austrians that he was a Roman and not a Russian Catholic. A Hungarian soldier stepped up to me and said: "Oh, I know your country by heart. I used to work in the Ford factory at Detroit, and I ran an automobile clear across the continent once, to San Francisco."

One town where 95 per cent. of the population are Jews a storekeeper who lived in New York 22 years told me: "There isn't a family in this town that hasn't got some relative in the United States, and I'll bet you epery Jewish family here gets money from somebody in the United States, regularly."

That Awful Ache of Lumbago Rubbed Away For All Time

Hoorah! No More Suffering—Every Ache Goes Quick

RUB ON NERVILINE

Lumbago is a peculiar sort of rheumatic trouble that affects the muscles about the loins and back. At times its agony is intense. Severe spasms of pain shoot in all directions, and become more severe on stooping.

In treating lumbago or stitch in the back, it is necessary to keep warmly covered to prevent a sudden chill. Attend to this and then apply Nerviline freely.

Almost instantly you feel its warm soothing action. Right through the cords and muscles the healing power of Nerviline penetrates.

Quick as a wink you feel the stiffness leaving. You realize that a powerful pain-subduing remedy is curing the pain, is easing your distress, is making you well again.

Nerviline quickly cures backache, and lumbago because it has the strength, the power and penetrating force possessed by no other known remedy. Its amazing curative action is due to certain extracts and juices of rare herbs and roots, combined by a truly magical medical marvel.

Any sort of aches in the muscles and joints Nerviline will cure quickly. It eats the pain right up—relieves stiffness, restores the muscles to their wonted elasticity and vigour.

It's the quickest thing imaginable for rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia.

As for earache, toothache, sprains, or strains, nothing can excel good old Nerviline.

Get the large 50 cent family size bottle, it's the most economical; trial size, 25 cents. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Desperate Fights For Capture of Silk Flags

PARIS, Nov. 10 (by mail to New York)—Although regimental standards are no longer carried in the forefront of the battle, modern methods of warfare have not altogether eliminated those picturesque "fights for the flag" dear to the heart of the novelist and painter. Most of the French and German regiments carry their colours with them, and there have been several desperate fights for these silken trophies, the fiercest recorded being that for the standard of the Sixth Pomeranian Regiment, which now hangs in the Chapel of the Invalides for the inspection of French sightseers. The story of its capture is told by a French dragoon, whose regiment brought back the trophy.

"Under a heavy shell fire," he said, "our guns supporting the Dragoons had to move to another position and the enemy, thinking that we were in retreat, hurried their advance, the Sixth Pomeranians coming up at the double. Suddenly three large shrapnel shells from their own guns burst over the regiment, doing terible execution and throwing the whole column into confusion.

GERMANS FLED IN WILD CONFUSION.

"It was the right moment for us, and the Dragoons charged home with lances. The Germans rallied and formed into a square, but the volleys they fired were not sufficient to break the charge, and we rode over them. Trampled on by the horses, sabred and transfixed by the lances, the Germans fled in wild confusion.

"One little group, however, was rallied by its officers near a small copse. We did not realize the motive of their resistance until we caught sight of a gold and purple flag fluttering in the breeze. They had rallied to save their flag. We rode up to them and shouted a demand for surrender, but the only reply was a volley which sent 20 horses cantering riderless back to our lines. Our officers ordered a charge in scattering formation and the gallant little group was riden down.

"The flag fell from the hands of a German captain who had received a terrible sabre gash across the head. It disappeared for a minute in a turmoil of horses and struggling men, and then we saw it again waved defiantly by a German sergeant, who, with three other men, fought themselves free. They retreated shoulder to shoulder a few yards and then, with his back to a tree, the old sergeant was left alone with the flag. But he sank to the ground in a moment, his chest transfixed by a lance. He was a brave man.

"When we brought the flag back we saw in golden letters across its town and bloodstained folds the words, "Champigny, 1871."

ALSATIANS SHOWED THEIR SYMPATHIES.

When the French retook one of the towns east of the Allies' field of operations, a number of prisoners captured were seen to be wearing tricolour cockades in their helmets, although otherwise clad in German uniforms.

"Why do you wear our colours?" asked an officer.

"We come from Upper Alsace," was the reply, "and don't want to be Germans."

"Do you want to become French again?" queried the officer.

"No," they said, "we are already French." Then they threw aside their helmets and tunics, shouting, "Vive la France! A bas la Prusse," much to the surprise of the other German prisoners.

FRENCH SCHOOLS HAVE RE-OPENED.

The schools of France have partially resumed after holidays, which started early in July. They are badly disorganized, however, both on account of the fact that fully 25,000 schoolmasters are serving with the colours, and that many of the older boys are on the firing line. By order of the Minister of Public Instruction, the first lesson of the term took the form of an address on the war, commemorating those who have fallen already in defence of the country.

In the girls' schools, two hours a day are to be spent knitting for the soldiers.

GERMANS MARKING TIME.

Compelling Belgians to Set Their Clocks by Fatherland Standard.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 1.—Up to the present the Germans have requisitioned $400,000 in Courtrai, as well as forty thousand litres of brandy, 3,000 bottles of wine, six million cigars and cigarettes and much clothing.

A traveller from Belgium says that chaos reigns throughout the country and that great tension exists between the civil and military population in Brussels. The Germans everywhere are compelling the Belgians to set their clocks according to the German time. Famine conditions in Malines are prevailing.

The Germans are meeting with little success in their efforts to establish friendly relations with the Belgians.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay grey! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

N. Y. Telegraph Operator Held in $5,000 Bail by Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—L. L. Linder, a telegraph operator employed by the Postal Telegraph Company and stationed in the office of the New York Globe, was held in $5,000 bail for the action of the Grand Jury when arraigned in the Tombs Police Court to-day, charged with violating section 552 of the penal law, in that he revealed the contents of certain news messages sent out by the Associated Press.

Linder was released in the custody of his counsel until a surety company could renew his bond of $5,000.

AID TO WESTERN FARMERS.

May Cost Govt. Nearly Two Millions Instead of One Million.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 1. — The aid to the western farmers who last summer lost their crops is much more extensive than at first reported. In place of $1,000,000 it is almost $2,000,000.

The exact expenditures up to date on seed grain for the afflicted farmers is $1,800,000. This will enable them to put in heavy crops over the greatly increased acreage proposed next year.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it.

IN KANSAS CITY TO SELL CATTLE NOT BUY BOOSE

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.—John Barleycorn made a threat at the Kansas City stockyards thirty-two years ago, and he has not come "clean" on it yet; in fact, he never will, because John is "old John" now and has outlived his day of grace in live stock circles.

But John, on that beautiful June morning, in 1882, was watching cattle sell. He was counting his usual rake-off from the cowmen of the southwest. He had no need to worry; his brand was on all of them, and from training with the old ones the young ones could not escape. So John was about four fingers in a ranchman, and that individual was watching his ten car bunch of longhorns over the scales.

"Well, what do you think of the sale?" asked the salesman of the recent owner.

"Damn good, damn good!"

"Well, I am glad you are pleased," returned the commission man and started to direct his attention to other sales.

"Aren't w going to buy the drinks?" demanded the ranchman.

"No, sir," replied George W. Campbell, who sold the cattle. "I came here to sell cattle and not to buy booze."

And then John Barleycorn doomed George Campbell to business ruin—no more business for him, no more patronage from the riders on the alkali of the southwest; not a maverick that had drawn brand in the open would come his way. The ranchman was one of the big men of the southwest then, and John Barleycorn's utterances, through him, meant a big curtailment of business.

Sales 'Washed Down."

That was George Campbell's first day at the Kansas City stockyards, and his first sale. He had come from St. Louis and joined one of the big firms here. After he had received a big "calling down" from the senior member of his firm, he left the stockyards that night about the bluest man on the western hemisphere. But he has never bought any booze; John Barleycorn never bothered him again, and he is the only man selling cattle in the Kansas City stockyards to-day who was actively engaged in the business in 1882.

That may not be singular to some, but any one who knows what the live stock business was fifteen to thirty years ago, and saw how all the deals were "washed down" at the old Transit House, at the corner of Bell and Sixteenth streets, knows that if you keep selling cattle you can't buy booze.

The young man of 1882 who had the nerve to knock down John Barleycorn out of his saddle now has the satisfaction of seeing him knocked on all sides by the live stock business.

Four years ago the Kansas City live stock exchange ruled that any member buying meals, drinks or sending liquor to country customers was liable to fine, and the third offence drew suspension. The object in including meals in the list largely was to do away with the drinking that usually accompanied it.

A few months ago the Kansas City Stockyards company was contemplating establishing a bar in the southwest wing of the exchange building. In less than twenty-four hours George E. Collett, vice-president and general manager of the stockyards company, was presented with a petition signed by more than 90 per cent. of the commission men protesting against such an action.

The bar is not there.

Ban On Drinker.

The strongest evidence of the change at the yards is that commission men resent the prevailing idea that the business at the stock yards is the only big industry in the country that can keep going and yet drink. The contrary is true. Not a commission firm will employ a man who is known as a "drinker"; not a packing house will trust its large outlay to a man who even tipples, and the saloons in the vicinity of the yards draw their revenue from the regular "bar flies" and the few shippers who still believe that a sale calls for a drink. As a commission man put it recently:

"The commission man of to-day cannot drink himself nor can he permit his employes to, if he hopes to stay in business. No shipper will risk a deal with a man who has not his senses self predominant, and competition is so keen on both the buying and selling sides that not a mistake goes undetected. Commission men here at the stock yards loan between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000 each year on cattle, comparatively little of it their own money, and no institution will trust its funds to a firm's judgment that permits the use of liquor. Curb traders employ drinks to get business, but they are a 'washy' bunch and don't stick long. From all I have seen and heard, the commission man is strapped to the water waggon more closely than any other business man."

So John Barleycorn's threat of 1882 cannot be carried out; he has lost his popularity; he is losing his patronage on all sides, and if the question were to be settled by Kansas City commission men he would be kicked clean out.

Exact.

On one occasion a census clerk, in scanning one of the forms to see if it had been properly filled up, noticed the figures 120 and 112 under the headings, "Age of father, if living."

"But your parents were never so old, were they?" asked the astonished clerk.

"No," was the reply, "but they would have been if livin'."

"Let George Do It"

Is that your attitude in regard to insisting on "Made in Canada" goods? Are you inclined to think that your own purchases are so small as to be of no importance, or is it because you are thoughtless, and neglect to say "Made in Canada"?

If you are, just remember that it is every Canadian's duty to help now.

You, or you and your family, spend more than 55 cents per day —yet that amount spent each day by every Canadian for "Canadian-made" goods is sufficient to keep every factory and every workman in Canada busy.

You see, your share is important. "Let George do it" if you like, but—

Say "Made in Canada" Yourself.

GERMANS ESCAPE THE RUSSIAN TRAP

Have Cut Through Out of Perilous Position at the Sacrifice of Thousands of Lives---Operations in the East May Settle Down Into a Siege Similar to Western Situation

Special to The Examiner:

CUT THROUGH TRAP

PETROGRAD, December 2.—It is now admitted that in the vicinity of Lodz and Lowicz, the Germans have succeeded in cutting their way out of the trap which had been laid for them. This was accomplished however with terrific losses.

A BLOODY BATTLE

The bloodiest day of the fighting in Poland to date is said to have been last Friday. Throughout that day the Siberian corps stormed the German trenches in the Lodz region. The Russians charged and carried the fighting directly to the German lines. The enemy offered terrific resistance. Ammunition was cast aside and the two forces fought bayonet to bayonet or clubbed each other with the butts of their rifles. Many resorted to bare fists before giving up. Not a single German was left alive when the Russians finally came into undisputed possession of the works. The Russian troops were soaked with blood, which froze to their uniforms.

CONTROL THE VISTULA

By holding Plock the Russians control the Vistula, which has been serving as an important line of communication for the Germans, it is declared here. Several barges loaded with supplies and ammunition have already been captured. The Russian troops are said to be withstanding the hardships of the winter campaigning much better than the Germans. All the prisoners captured declare they have endured terrible suffering. Many have frosted or frozen feet and hands. Supply trains have been wrecked and there is a shortage of warm clothing for the army.

REICHSTAG'S WAR SESSION

BERLIN, via The Hague, December 2.—Imperial Chancellor Von Bothmann Holweig is expected to-day to outline to the Reichstag the position of Germany from a military standpoint after 120 days of war. This is the second war session of the Reichstag. Practically the only business to be transacted is the voting of additional war credits. Optimism as to the situation on the eastern frontier is steadily increasing. A general advance is expected momentarily.

It is admitted that in the vicinity of Lodz the Russians all but succeeded in enveloping a large German force. The Germans fought their way out, however.

Little interest is manifested here at the present time in the operations in the west in Belgium and in France. The German forces there are known to be able to hold their present positions until the eastern issue is settled, and offensive operations may be resumed.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraphs wires from Central France:

"Once more the Germans have turned their faces towards the sea and are trying to hack their way to Calais and the sea. A new army has been brought up on the scene, and a new road has been chosen, and it is rumoured that the German fleet will not be idle.

Telegraphing from west Flanders, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Heavy fighting has begun near Elverdinghe, north west of Ypres, after the longest pause of the war. Promiscuous artillery fire by the Germans has been resumed near Ratscapelle and Pervyse."

SOFIA, December 2.—Reports reaching here to-day declare that the situation in Servia appears to be serious. The Serbs are reported to have evacuated Belgrade and communication between that city and Nish the temporary capital, has been interrupted.

RIFLES FOR HOME GUARDS

Have Been Granted the Use of Collegiate Guns for Drill Purposes While Ross Cadet Rifles Will Be Purchased

WILL WAIT ON COUNCIL

At a busy session of the Executive and Company Captains of the Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association Home Guards in the old Murray street Baptist Church last night, considerable progress in completing the organization of the Regiment and in arranging for shooting and drill was made. The most important features was the decision to secure twenty Ross Cadet Rifles for target practice, and to wait upon the City Council to urge that the City purchase the arms and ammunition.

Lt.-Col. Goodwill was in the chair, and there was a large attendance.

The first business taken up was the report from the representatives of the Guard who had visited Kingston to take up a number of matters in connection with the organization with Col. Hemming, the officer commanding the district. This was given by Major R. E. Layfield, who informed the meeting that Col. Miller and himself had been most cordially received at Divisional Headquarters, and that approval had been given of the manner in which the organization of the Home Guard had been proceeded with, especially in connection with the service sheets.

The report was received and on motion the thanks of the Guard was extended to Col. Miller and Major Layfield for the valuable assistance they had rendered in representing the organization at Kingston.

Capt. W. H. Munro presented the report of the Committee in charge of securing accommodation for rifle practice. He remarked that the members, by looking around the room, could see for themselves what had been done. A partition of six inches of sand and gravel, enclosed between two wooden partitions and backed by a steel plate, had been built and the Committee could guarantee that there was no danger of a shot penetrating through this protection.

In connection with the letter from Col. Frederic Nicholls of the Canadian General Electric Company, announcing the offer of a trophy for competition in rifle shooting among the Home Guard, it was decided to express the very hearty thanks of the Executive and members to Col. Nicholls. A committee was appointed, composed of Mr. E. G. Patterson, Musketry Instructors Capt. W. H. Moore and F. Bartlett, and the Captains of the different Companies to take up the details of the competition. Lt.-Col. Miller announced that the Board of Education had unanimously agreed to loan to the Guards the Cadet rifles, for drill purposes, the only condition being that a bond should be put up for their return in good condition. The thanks of the Guard will be extended to the Board of Education.

Reports were received from Captain Dunsford of the Professional Company, Capt. Parsons of the Engineers and Capt. Edgar of the Civil Service, in regard to the organization of their units.

Major Layfield suggested that on account of the difficulty in securing other kinds of ammunition, that twenty Ross Cadet Rifles and a sufficient quantity of 22 calibre ammunition be secured for target practice. The suggestion was endorsed by Musketry Instructor Moore and others, and was embodied in a motion. The feeling was expressed that the City Council should be approached in regard to the purchase of rifles and it was decided to bring the matter before them.

The meeting approved of a resolution that the Mayor be asked by a joint committee to urge the displaying of the national flag on all homes and public buildings, the use of the Union Jack itself to be confined to the homes from which soldiers have gone.

The resolution passed, expressed approval of this proposition, pledged all members to decorate their houses and exert influence on others and justified the appointment of a small committee with others in this regard.

Lt.-Col. Goodwill expressed the thanks of the officers and members to Lt.-Col. Young of the 10th Brigade C. F. A., and Major Hall of the 24th Field Battery for their kindness in offering the Guard the use of their orderly rooms and gun shed in the Armouries.

On motion, it was decided to ask Lt.-Col. Young if he would accept a position as one of the honorary Colonels of the Guard.

A DEADLOCK EVERYWHERE

Strenuous Efforts Will Be Made to Bring Some of the Long Drawn-out Struggles to a Decision

VICTORY BY CHRISTMAS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 2.—(Special Cable.)—"A decisive victory by Christmas, either in the west, in Poland or upon the sea." This is the popular cry to-day with the rulers of the five countries now at the front. It is believed strenuous efforts are to be made to bring some of the long drawn out struggles in progress in the vast war zone, to a decision.

STALEMATE IN WARSAW.

In the Warsaw region the struggle has swung in the balance for a time and then came to a deadlock. The present fighting in Poland threatens to become bitter, but as indecisive as the battle for the possession of the Coast in the West. The Russians now officially admit that the German army is in a position to offer determined battle and is in no danger of annihilation. Berlin expects the Germans to resume the offensive, but with the vast Russian forces in the field Germany may be held in check indefinitely, it is believed here.

THE SIEGE OF PRZEMYSL.

This is the 120th day of the war and the forty-seventh day of the battle for the French coast. In Galicia the Russians and Austrians are engaged in the longest single struggle of the war at Przemysl. That fortress has been besieged for three months, practically without a break.

All reports indicate that the Russians are rapidly enveloping Cracow, and another siege is virtually in progress there.

A virtual state of siege also exists of the sea. The British fleet can only keep up their patrol duty. The Germans remain in their ports.

A 300.

Along the entire line from the coast to Switzerland both the German and allied armies are dug deep in the ground and a three hundred mile long siege line is established. The troops are unable to keep warm. The suffering from frozen hands and feet is intense. Sickness is declared to be thinning the German ranks, but neither side has struck the blow which would bring decision and shift the scene of operations.

RULERS AT FRONT.

King George is expected to meet President Poincare of France while at the front. King Albert of Belgium may also meet the British monarch. Kaiser Wilhelm and Czar Nicholas will be with their troops in Poland for the critical fighting of this week.

Matter Has Been Arranged

Canadian General Electric Company Will Pay the Annual Rental For These Miles of Track

The lease respecting the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian General Electric Company has been arranged to the satisfaction of all parties. As matters now stand, the Canadian General Electric Company will undertake to pay the annual rental of one hundred dollars, in consideration of which they will be permitted to use three miles of track, now owned by the Grand Trunk Railway, and known as the old Chemong line. This track is to be used for the purpose of testing out the electric locomatives which the company propose to manufacture in Peterborough. This will obviate the necessity of the City having to submit a by-law to the ratepayers at the coming municipal elections, to authorize the City's undertaking respecting the lease.

95,700 WILL BE ENLISTED

Canada Will Have That Number Under Arms Shortly Announces the Minister of Militia

20,000 MORE INFANTRY

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.—A statement was issued by Major-General Sam Hughes this evening containing additional details in regard to the enlistment of 50,000 men in Canada to undergo training for active service at the front. According to the Minister of Militia 95,000 men will have been enlisted for the front in the Dominion in a few weeks, this including the force already in England. Details show that this force will be made up as follows:

Forces now in England	33,000
On guard duty in Canada	8,000
Enlisted for second contingent	23,000
Additional units proposed	31,700
Total	95,700

The additional forces proposed to be raised are:

Cavalry, 9 regiments	5,500
Infantry, 19 regiments	20,000
Army Service Corps	2,000
Army Medical Corps	1,500
Six batteries artillery	1,200
Engineers	1,000
Signallers, cyclists	500

The divisional scheme of enlistment proposed will be on the following basis: No. 1, London, two squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 2, Toronto, two squadrons of cavalry and three regiments of infantry; No. 3, Kingston-Ottawa, two squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 4, Montreal, two squadrons of cavalry and one regiment of infantry; No. 5, Quebec, one squadron of cavalry and one regiment of infantry: No. 6, Maritime Provinces, three squadrons of cavalry and one regiment of infantry; No. 10, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, six squadrons of cavalry and four regiments of infantry; No. 11, British Columbia, three squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 13, Alberta, six squadrons of cavalry and three regiments of mounted infantry.

DRAW HEAVILY FROM WEST.

The cavalry who are mentioned in the statement will really be mounted infantry. A large number of the latter will be raised in the West, which will, in fact, furnish proportionately more men for all arms of the service. The divisional scheme of mobilization will be adhered to. In Quebec it is altogether probable that the two infantry regiments to be raised will be recruited jointly with headquarters at Montreal and Quebec, one to be an English regiment and the other French.

As regards the Toronto divisional area, one regiment will be recruited in New Ontario, and Sudbury will probably be its headquarters. Ottawa and Kingston will be the recruiting centres in Eastern Ontario. Instructions for mobilization on these lines will be issued as soon as the above plan is finally approved.

AMBROSE DORIS [redacted] WITH BATTERY AT SALISBURY

Ambrose Doris, familiarly known to his friends as "Buck" has written an interesting letter from Salisbury Plains. He recently spent a holiday in London, where he met a number of wounded soldiers convalescing. They spoke of the engagements at the front as beyond the average imagination and told of incidents which had been missed in the newspaper reports. Mr. Doris said the reception Canadians received was splendid, only the weather man failing in this respect. There was one bright day in a month, for which the fellows were extremely grateful. Mr. Doris said rheumatism had bothered him somewhat last summer, and he was afraid the wet would lay him up. However, the effect was the reverse. The change of climate or some such cause seemed to act as a counterbalance, and he was in fine condition. Mr. Doris did not go to the front from Peterborough. He quietly went to Cobourg and joined the battery, only a few of his friends knowing that he had gone.

ALLIES ADVANCE TOWARDS LAON

To-day's Official Communique Shows Progress in the Centre---German Infantry Attacks on Trenches Captured by the Allies Near Ypres Are Easily Repulsed

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, December 2. — The German attacks upon the trenches recently taken by the allies in the region of Ypres, have been repulsed, the official communique from the war office states to-day. A vigorous offensive by the allies betwen the Aisne and the Lette Rivers on the main highway leading to the fortress of Laon, occupied by the Germans, is evident to-day in the official commique report of the fighting.

"At Craonne a German battery was destroyed," the communique states. "There was a heavy bombardment in the region of Vendresse." Vendresse is 5 miles west of Craonne and three miles north of the Aisne. It represents the nearest point to Laon attacked by the allies from the Aisne.

PARIS, December 2.—President Poincare and General Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, visited King George yesterday at the headquarters of General Sir John French, commanding the British forces. The President and General Joffre had luncheon and dinner with His Majesty. To-day it is likely King Albert of Belgium will join the party. President Poincare returned to Paris this morning. The President and King George visited the British army at the front together. They rode through the lines in an open automobile and were roundly cheered by the troops.

General Joffre accompanied President Poincare to the British headquarters but left before dinner there, at which King George, President Poincare, the Prince of Wales, General French and other British Officers were present.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS

SANTIAGO, Chile, December 2. --- Anti-German riots are reported in Valparaiso to-day. Crowds gathered in the streets and stoned the German Consulate, and other buildings. The troops had to be called out, and several persons were wounded before peace was restored.

OTTAWA, December 2.—The special committee on remounts of which Sir Adam Beck is the head, is in the Capital to-day conferring with the Minister of Militia. It will be necessary to procure 6,000 horses for the cavalry. The same method of purchasing will be followed as was adopted when the horses were purchased for the Artillery Brigade and the necessary steps will be taken to prevent dealers holding the department up for excessive prices.

THE TROOPS IN ACTION

At Their Concentration Camps---Come and Pick Out Your Relatives and Friends---Stirring Picture at the "Royal"

The management of the Royal Theatre has at a considerable expense, secured the original pictures of the Canadian troops living under active service conditions at both Valcartier and Salisbury Plain. This is one of the best pictures that has been brought to Peterborough for some time, as it not only vividly portrays the mobilization of Canada's first contingent, but is of local interest to those who have relatives and friends with the contingent. If you have any relatives or friends with the troops, visit the Royal and pick them out. It is the best picture of the soldiers preparing for their grim task, that has ever been produce.. It is unnecessary to say here that no picture has ever been produced under conditions similar to those which effect the Empire at the present time. A few weeks hence the men who made the creation of this picture possible will be engaged in one of deadliest conflicts that the world has ever known. Many of them will figure in the honour roll of casualties. It is therefore a great privilege to be able to witness in the Royal Theatre a portrayal of the stirring events incident to the work that is to follow.

MAY LEND RIFLES TO ASSOCIATION

Col. Miller, at the Board of Education meeting last night, advocated the lending of the Cadets' Ross rifles to the members of the Civilian Rifle Association. He said that the Association would be willing to guarantee that the rifles would be returned without damage.

On the motion of Messrs. Eastwood and Burnham, it was decided to leave the matter of lending the rifles to the Supervision committee with power to act. The Board was practically unanimous in expressing the opinion that there would be no objection to lending the rifles.

BELGIUM.

Belgium is certainly paying the price. The German Kaiser, not satisfied with ruining Belgium, laying its territory waste, and inflicting unimaginable suffering upon a brave and unoffending people, whose only crime is defending their hearths and homes and liberties, now burdens the country with a demand of seven million dollars a month from wasted Belgium to help crush herself—to maintain the German army. Then we have the Germans taxing food supplies sent by the United States to succour and save from starvation their Belgian fellowmen. And that is probably not the worst. After compelling Belgium to add $2.60 a hundred to food supplies by way of taxation we shall see the Germans stealing this food after it has paid the taxes.

It is only divine goodness that can have patience with such refinement of cruelty, such excess of barbarism; human patience can't stomach it.

A CHANGE.

Mr. Joseph Mantell, a former Peterborough citizen, now living in Toronto, at the age of 104 years, tells of his boyhood days, nearly a hundred years ago, when he and other little fellows playing in the fields, armed with sticks, would slash off the heads of weeds with the exclamation "there goes another Frenchman!" Then France, or rather France incarnate for the evil moment in Napoleon, was the enemy of Great Britain. Then the French nation had lost itself and yielded to the influence of the same kind, that animates Germany at this time—was under the spell of a mad ambition for empire and conquest, though Napoleon in his worst manifestations of ruthlessness was no more comparable to the modern Atilla that now misrules Germany than a lamb is to a wolf. France and Great Britain are now fighting shoulder to shoulder against the same enemy that Britain fought a century ago — the enemy to democracy and free institutions. A hundred years ago Britain was not fighting against the French people any more than it is today fighting against the German people. Then, as now, they were fighting against the evil genius of the hour—whose ambition takes no account of the rights of the people nor the interests of humanity.

TRAITORS WITHIN.

We are justifiably severe upon the wickedness of the one man and his war party in provoking and conducting the most barbarous war of history. We charge him with a responsibility he well deserves for the ruin, devastation and suffering he has inflicted upon unoffending Belgium. We reprobate his alliance with the Turks which brings the same suffering and outrage, on the part of the Turks, in Armenia. But is our superior civilization superior, to something — in quality if not in effect—as bad as the savagery of the Germans and Turks? The Cleveland Plain Dealer, in an article, refers to the United States army contracts scandals, which were responsible for more deaths of United States soldiers than the bullets of the enemy. It adds:

> Great Britain, confronted by an infinitely greater emergency, already has her war scandals. Contractors have supplied shoddy uniforms of such vile material that after one march in the rain the soldiers have been able to thrust their fingers through the rotten goods. A combination for holding up the price of all kinds of war supplies is definitely asserted by the British press.

If this is true it is a very serious matter, and it is no wonder that martial law has been declared in Great Britain. In the case of the United States the consequences had comparatively only an individual bearing. The life of the country was not at stake. In the case of Great Britain and the Empire it is another matter. Britain and the Empire are now fighting for national existence, fighting for the prevalence of the principles that make the Empire great, and also fighting for the principles that involve the prosperity and happiness of all peoples who look to a true democracy as the ideal of national welfare. The future life of the Empire and the involved benefits depend upon victory; and victory depends upon the efficiency of the man behind the gun—upon his physical fitness, which is, in turn, dependent upon good food and comfortable clothing. Taking advantage of our country's peril; making personal profit out of the lives of fellow-citizens, and imperilling the success of the nation's cause, is the blackest possible treason. It comes under the reprobation of Tom Moore, in his "Fire Worshippers"—

> O for a tongue to curse the slave
> Whole treason, like a deadly blight,
> Comes o'er the councils of the brave
> To blast them in the hour of might.

We visit treason with the severest punishment. The man who betrays his country's secrets is rightly adjudged to death. But the man who profits by his country's need, and betrays his country's interests, weakens her arm. is a villian of deeper dye. But if detected he escapes easily. If he has political "pull" he may even be rewarded by getting other contracts that will enable him to cheat the soldier in the field; cheat the people whose money he is spending and wrose than wasting; cheat the Empire whose very existence his rotten goods, his shoddy clothing, and makeshift military supplies, are helping to imperil. His fate should be a short shrift — if Heaven holds shrift for such a man—and a long rope.

We hope that things like this do not obtain in Canada. We hope that no Canadian contractor for government supplies of any kind will try to apply German "kultur" methods in his work. We must avoid the very appearance of evil; we must deal with the work of furnishing supplies in a way that will insure only the best, goods — articles that can be trusted to. There is, however, a danger, which has been referred to, that should be avoided. As in Britain, so in Canada, a political truce has been declared. We have pooled all our party interests and are acting upon the assumption that "none are for a party—all are for the state." We are told, and it is hoped wrongly, told, that contractors, making application for war supplies work, are asked if they are on the party "patronage list," and that if they are not, there is no work for them. If this is so, it opens the door to scandals, and the evils that come from taking advantage of the nation's and Empire's peril to make undue personal profit. We must allow no favouritism. We must allow no consideration, either personal or party, to interfere with giving Canada and the Empire honest work in goods of first-class quality in the matter of the furnishing of war supplies. We send first-class supplies in the way of soldiers; nad we should see that their equipment shall be of the same character.

THE KAISER'S OBSESSION.

We are proverbially assured that those whom the gods wish to destroy, they first make mad. This suggests the German Kaiser who was war mad to bring on a conflict that will surely end in his destruction. Further evidence of his madness is to be seen in his bumptuous claim to divine right, which includes his heir, the Crown Prince. Contributing to his own defeat and destruction the Kaiser has placed this stripling above seasoned military commanders, and we see a good deal of the result in the western war field. Now we are told that this precious Crown Prince is to direct a new assault on the western battle line. This is good news. We can anticipate the result of "sending a boy to do a man's work." Another of the Kaiser's insane obsessions is to win through to Calais and seize the coast of France. In this hitherto futile attempt he has sacrificed men as if they were wooden images; he sets no value on human life when his inhuman ambition is to be served. It is stated that Germany has now a million and three-quarters men arrayed against France and Britain, while fewer than 600,000 are opposing the Russian hosts in the East. We shall see what the Crown Prince will do against such military commanders as Joffre and French.

AREAS OF DESOLATION.

Everyone knows the horror that has come upon Belgium. A nation abolished, a people starving, cities in ruins, fields devastated. No other fact of the war so impresses the mind with war's cruelty.

But there are other regions which have doubtless suffered as severely as Belgium. Four times has East Prussia been swept by the Russians, twice in advance and twice in retreat. Galicia has been one vast battle field since the beginning of the war. Poland has been devastated by the Germans as East Prussia has been devastated by the Russians. Only of late is America beginning to realise the depth of the misery of these remoter regions.

And now there is a new place of woe. The Russians are advancing into Armenia, and the retiring Turks look upon the Armenians as enemies and traitors. For centuries Armenia has been accustomed to oppression, massacre and robbery. Located so remotely, the Armenians may have hoped to escape torture in the great European war. But the blow has fallen, and Armenia will probably be torn and mangled again and again. The outside world will know little of Armenia's agony, and will give comparatively little heed; for the outside world has grown hardened to the wretchedness of Armenia.

Belgium will continue to be the one outstanding tragedy. Nowhere else, probably, will an entire nation be trampled. Other localities which have suffered are merely parts of the great warring countries, and these countries will be expected to heal their own wounds and attend to their own problems. Belgium alone stands as a suppliant before neutral civilization, calling for succour to keep her millions from perishing. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Easily Overlooked.

"These people may have culture," said Representative Stanley Heflinger in a war discussion at the Cleveland Republican club. "Their culture, though, reminds me of the ham sandwich.

"A messenger boy in a quick lunch joint said reproachfully to the girl behind the counter:

"'I don't see no ham in this here sandwich, lady.'

"'Oh, you ain't come to it yet,' said the girl.

"The boy munched solemnly on. Then he said:

"'Still no ham, lady.'

"'Oh,' said the girl, "you've bit over it now.'"

AN OUTSIDE VIEW OF THE TEMPER OF CANADIANS

It is perhaps true that Canada was least prepared of any part of the British empire for a disturbance of international peace that should directly involve the mother country. For several years it had been at once an extensive railroad builder and a heavy borrower. The opening of its west presented prospects and possibilities that appeared to justify almost unlimited expansion, much of it speculative. Immigration increased, settlers and capital crossed the line, great areas of new territory were put under cultivation, the soil yielded immense crops, villages sprang up over the wide prairies and grew into towns and cities, prosperity reigned from the Atlantic to the Pacific until a few months before the outbreak of war, when London began to call in loans and to refuse extensions. Then Canada realized that it had been travelling beyond its means, and that to meet its obligations and maintain its credit it must slacken its pace. It had, in fact, entered on a period of retrenchment, and was rapidly recovering from depression, caused by the abandonment of many great projects and the modification of others, when the blow was struck that shocked the world.

Our Ottawa correspondence tells us that Canadians have heard or read probably more plain speaking about their affairs during the last two months than during any previous decade. It is to their credit that they have taken this plain talk in a sensible mood. They listened to it while they were entering upon the initial stages of what they regarded as a sacred patriotic duty; they have listened to it patiently and even humbly through all the steps that for the time being have been leading them away from purely home affairs; now that they have performed in part a filial duty and have taken measures to continue and completed it at any cost, they are looking around them.

What they find is a situation that might be very much better, but one that could as easily be very much worse. If there was ever a time when individual courage and unity of effort were requisite to the national welfare of Canada, that time is the present. And this is apparently clearly recognized from Halifax to Vancouver. Every interest, private and public, in the Dominion, so far as may be judged from surface indications, is alert to the necessity of concert of action. The very first move made exhibited the disposition of the people. This was toward the discovery of a best-rock basis, and it was successful. Every move since then, no matter whether it has been taken with haste or deliberation, has been entered upon with regard for this foundation. The result is that readjustment is proceeding favourably; problems are taken up and handled intelligently; the best is being made of every opportunity; something is accomplished daily, and Canada, like her neighbour across the line, is looking to the future with confidence.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Diminishing of receipts in the southwest helped today to give an upward swing to the price of wheat. Altho gains were not fully held, the market closed steady at ⅝c to ¾c net advance. Corn wound up the same as last night to ⅝c higher, and oats up ¼c to ⅜c. In provisions, the outcome was 10c to 20c decline.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Quotations on the Board of Trade are as follows:

Manitoba wheat—Lake ports, new crop, No. 1 northern, $1.22½; No. 2 northern, $1.19½; No. 3 northern, $1.14⅝.

Manitoba oats—Lake ports, new crop, No. 2 C.W., 59½c; No. 3 C.W., 57c.

American corn—Old. No. 2 yellow, 81c, Toronto; new, No. 3 yellow, 71c, Toronto; Canadian corn, 83c, Toronto.

Ontario wheat—Carlots, $1.10 to $1.12, outside, according to freights.

Ontario oats—New, outside, 56c to 51c.

Peas—No. 2, $1.00 to $1.05, carlots, outside, nominal.

Barley—Good malting barley, outside, 63c to 70c; Manitoba barley, 66c to 70c, lake ports.

Rye—No. 2, 83c, outside.

Rolled oats—Per bag of 90 pounds, $3.10 to $3.25; in smaller lots, $3.25 to $3.35; per bushel, $5.75; wholesale, Windsor to Montreal.

Buckwheat—71c to 73c.

Millfeed—Carlots, per ton, bran, $25 to $26; shorts, $27 to $28; middlings, $29 to $30; good feed flour, $27 to $28.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb. sacks, $2.65 to $2.75.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $6.60 in bags; second patents, $6.10 in bags.

Ontario flour—Winter, 90 per cent. patents, $4.60 to $4.70; Montreal, nominal.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—There was little more enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today: but, as all the bids were out of line with values here no business resulted. The tone of the local market for coarse grains is steady under a fair demand for oats and barley, but there is very little doing for export, owing to the fact that the prices being bid are out of line. An active trade continues to be done in all lines of millfeed, and the tone of the market is strong.

The trade in butter is quiet, and the tone of the market is easier, with prices tending towards a lower level.

In cheese the feeling is firm, but business is quiet, navigation now being practically closed for the season. Eggs active and firm.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 1.—Wheat—No. 3 hard, $1.13⅜; No. 1 northern, $1.14⅝ to $1.17⅛; No. 2 do., $1.10⅝ to 1.13⅛; Dec. $1.13⅜.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 55½c to 56c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 45½c to 46c.

Flour and bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Dec. 1.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.17⅜; No. 1 northern, $1.17⅜; No. 2 do., $1.13⅜; Dec., $1.15⅝.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 701 cattle, 1549 hogs, 1184 sheep and lambs and 72 calves.

Butcher Cattle.

A few lots of good steers and heifers sold at $7.25 to $7.75; medium steers and heifers, $6.75 to $7; common at $6 to $6.50; choice cows at $6.75 to $7; good at $6.10 to $6.50; medium cows at $5.50 to $6; canners and cutters at $3.75 to $4.60; bulls at $5 to $7.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders of good quality were in demand. Good to choice steers, $6.25 to $6.50; medium steers, $5.75 to $6.25; stockers, $4 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, light ewes, $5 to $5.75; heavy, ewes and rams, at $3.50 to $4; culls at $2.50 to $3.50; lambs sold all the way from $7 to $8.75; culls at $6.50 to $6.75.

Hogs.

The bulk of the hogs sold at $7.75, weighed off cars, and $7.50 fed and watered, but a few brought 10c per cwt. more.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 600 head; active and steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 50 head; active; $5 to $12.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 800 head; active and steady; heavy, mixed, yorkers and pigs, $8.15 to $8.25; roughs, $7; stags, $4 to $6.50.

INDIAN GIVES UP.

One of the Slayer of Turnkey Coxford Taken by Posse.

PEMBROKE, Dec. 2.—Peter White Duck, one of the Indians wanted for the murder of Turnkey Robt. Coxford in the Renfrew County Jail here Sunday night, was captured last night near Golden Lake Reserve by Alexander Patterson of Pembroke, and a posse. He had separated from his companion, Anthony Jocko, who is still at large. White Duck will be brought to Pembroke to-day.

The Indian practically gave himself up, hunger and exhaustion forcing him to seek shelter at a farmer's house. The farmer notified the posse headed by Mr. Patterson, who effected the arrest.

On Short Allowance.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 2.—(Via London.)—All male British subjects up to the age of 55 who are still in Brussels, The Amsterdam Handelsblad says, have been interned in a military concentration camp.

The inhabitants of Antwerp, according to this same paper, are allowed only ten ounces of bread per capita daily.

Admiral Mahan Dead.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Rear Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan, retired, the noted naval expert and writer, died here yesterday.

German Chancellor Speaks To-day.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—(Via London.)—Addressing a committee of the Reichstag yesterday Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, spoke in praises of the good spirit shown by the German army and navy and the unity of the German people in the present struggle.

The Reichstag meets to-day. The Chancellor will then express, before a full sitting of the body, his views on the general political situation.

LITTLE GIRL HAD CHRONIC COUGH

Left from Whooping Cough—Was Terribly Rundown and Weak—Mother Tells How She Was Cured by Vinol.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"My little girl aged thirteen years had the whooping cough which settled into a chronic cough, with a run-down system and lung trouble. She had to stay at home from school while being treated by the doctor, and nothing seemed to help her. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it. I soon noticed an improvement, and after giving her four bottles her cough is gone, her strength has returned and she has a good appetite. We think there is nothing like Vinol."—Mrs. M. Wertz, Philadelphia, Pa.

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for others, for it is the healing, curative, tissue building influence of the medicinal elements of the extract of cod's livers aided by the blood making, strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so successful in such cases, and children like to take Vinol because it is pleasant, and it is much better for them than "cough medicines" which have no strengthening power, while Vinol builds up the body and throws off the cough.

Remember, if Vinol fails to benefit, we return your money.

Cold Weather Tips for the Motorist

"Winter days have their motoring problems," declared President C. H. Larson, of New York. "You cannot ignore them, you must meet them. Primarily, owners of touring cars, expecting to drive during the cold season, should add a closed body to their equipment, thus insuring warmth and comfort. The demand for town cars has increased so rapidly in recent years that it has resulted in many dealers and manufacturers giving special attention to the development of closed bodies of all styles and at all prices from $100 up. There is now being shown such a great variety that the needs of every one, both as to style and price, can be filled. The patterns range from the two-passenger cabriolet to the large limousine. Special features demanded for service in the metropolitan district have been embodied in the bodies built on specifications furnished by the dealer and are exclusive.

"Furthermore, the winter motorist must realize that the car of steel and wood, leather and rubber, is a sensitive creation, inuenced by the frosts of winter. Perhaps the self-starter will only spin the motor at 80 revolutions per minute, whereas in summer it will turn it half as fast again. Your motor will not start as well on a cold day; you may reduce your battery charge; the load of electricity for the lights is much heavier than in summer—in a word, you are operating in a much different atmosphere of conditions.

"If your carburetor has not a hot-air connection on it to bring air from the exhaust you may not get as good results from your fuel as you should. Even gasoline is affected by the cold. It will not flow as rapidly through the nozzle of the carburetor. Half an hour after starting and the temperature rises from 40 to 135 degrees under the bonnet an entire new regime has been set up. It is a big jump in so short a time. You can assist in the work. Some carburetors have valves to shut off the supply of cold air and thus put a greater pull on the gasoline. This is good. Others take another method of solution, making a larger opening for the gasoline to flow from them from starting and for a few minutes, perhaps one-half hour, after starting.

Be good to your car and it will serve you well. It, like you, is a creature of weather and temperature. Give it a little consideration. Do not forget to make sure that the anti-freezing compound you use this winter is the one recommended by the maker of your car. Be warned now that the use of some other mixture, well endorsed by a friend, might work havoc with your car's radiator and circulating system."

ALSACE AND LORRAINE FATAL TO GERMANY, SAYS FERRERO

Famous Historian Declares Ill-Advised Annexation of Two Provinces in 1871 is Responsible for Long French Bitterness, Has Made Possible the English-Russian-French Alignment, and Given Britain 100 Years More Life.

(By Guglielmo Rerrero, the Noted Italian Historian.)

Several weeks ago the Figaro reprinted a letter written in October, 1870, by Emile Olivier, the last Minister of Napoleon III., to Wilhelm I., King of Prussia. The second Empire had already fallen at Sedan, and the Prussians were then besieging Paris.

Emile Olivier was on his way to Italy in voluntary exile, and from his place of refuge he wrote to the King of Prussia exhorting him to be generous, as becomes a victor, and refrain from annexing any part of the French territory. He added that should he abstain from mutilating France, the latter would soon forget the war and reconcile herself with her formal rival. Should he decide otherwise, hatred would be the everlasting torment of France, and the future generation would witness the "alliance of the Latins with the Slavs, against Germany."

What a prophetic vision of the future this letter contained. To-day, after forty-four years, we have all seen its realization. Had triumphant Germany not snatched from France, Alsace and Lorraine, she would be equally rich and strong, and instead of being forced to wrestle against a European coalition, she would very probably be the mainspring of a Franco-Russo-German alliance directed against England, and she would, perhaps, have already led Europe to a partition of the British Empire.

Indeed, up to twenty years ago, England had been the rival of France and Russia, that is, the power that had opposed with every available means their expansion in the world, in the same way in which for the last twenty years she prevented Germany from securing a dominating position, both economically and politically, in the world. On the other hand France, in the last twenty years, has no longer been in direct competition with either German or English interests, owing to the slow increase of her population, and has, instead, specialized in a certain number of industries appealing to the wealthy classes, preferring at the same time to represent, in her commercial enterprises, the principle of quality as opposed to that of quantity. Thus France had become free to ally herself with either Russia or England in the same way that Russia, being rather an agricultural than an industrial Empire, was a good client of both German and English industries.

Alliance Against England Logical.

An alliance of Germany, Russia and France against England would therefore have been logical. Would England have been in a position to defend herself against such a formidable coalition? It does not appear probable. But the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine saved once more the British Empire, perhaps for another century or two. As Olivier had predicted, France could not forget.

The fear of the revenge which France would one day or the other seek pushed Germany into the arms of Austria; the Austro-German alliance forced Russia to seek France's support. On her part England ably prompted by the hatred and fear that the alliance of the two German empires had aroused in Russia, reconciled herself with her two former rivals and laid the foundation of the formidable coalition of the Leopard, the White Bear and the Cock, to which sooner or later Germany and Austria must yield.

What are then the two provinces which have changed the history of Europe and the whole world, and which have again kindled the torch of war in the heart of old Europe? Are they, perchance, a slice of paradise, something belonging to the world of legends and dropped squarely in the middle of Europe? No; they are undoubtedly two fertile provinces, very rich in historical associations, but not more so than many other European territories which for many centuries have thriven in peace and obscurity without causing any war between nations. Why then has a different lot befallen these two fatal provinces?

Because nations, like individuals, have their passions, their hatreds and their eccentricities, and to these they sacrifice even their material interests, their money and their existence. He who observes Europe and America may at first sight believe that their inhabitants are solely intent on looking after their material affairs. But this is a mistake. Every one of these peoples is actuated by different, deeply-rooted passions which governments must take into due consideration, be they just or unjust. Unfortunately for Europe, and perhaps for the whole world and civilization itself, it has so happened that two powerful nations should both be determined, for various reasons, to retain these two provinces at any cost, even at the price of rivers of blood.

France Has Never Forgotten Loss.

I have said for "various reasons" France has never grown reconciled to the loss of Alsace and Lorraine, because she has always considered them as indispensable to the proper balance of her national life. We must never forget, if we want to understand the history of Europe, that France is a country different from every other country of Europe, as it consists of a synthesis of conflicting elements. France is neither a wholly Northern nor a wholly Southern country; it is neither entirely Germanic nor entirely Latin; it is neither completely industrial nor completely agricultural; it is not thoroughly Catholic nor thoroughly Protestant, not a conservative nor a revolutionary country. It combines Northern and Southern climates, Germanic blood, traditions and tendencies, industry and agriculture, Catholicism and Protestantism, revolutionary spirit and a veneration for traditions. Nor does she only combine these conflicting elements, but she actually attempts to blend them in a sort of superior synthesis. The tragic grandeur of the history of France is due to her titanic efforts to harmonize these elements, which is never completely realized, representing a permanent source of delusion and wonderful triumphs.

Now, in the play of these conflicting elements Alsace and Lorraine represented the indispensable Germanic balance necessary to equilibrate Provence and the Southern provinces. Of Alsace it has been stated that she is undoubtedly German and that France has no right to own her. But, on the other hand, France is determined to have her for that very reason, because it would provide to the great French family a population endowed wkith the peculiar qualities of the Germans; namely, calm, patience, deliberation and perseverance; thus modifying the spiritedness and the rather superficial rashness of her Southern population.

Since 1870 France has felt that with the loss of Alsace she no longer possessed her national integrity, that she had been deprived not only of a slice of her territory, but had lost an almost vital organ. And this explains why she has not been able to forget her two little provinces, although she has conquered an immense African Empire.

German Responsibility Impossible to Fix.

But what were the reasons that prompted the Germans to annex at any cost these two provinces, thus preventing themselves for forty-four years from enjoying in peace the fruits reaped in 1870? The question has been long debated, but even today we are ignorant of who was responsible for this ill-advised step. Some writers imputed it to Bismarck who, as far back as 1848, when he was a rather obscure journalist, wrote that the union of Germany could not be considered as accomplished until the Prussian flag was hoisted on Strassburg Cathedral. Others threw the blame on the General Staff, who based their action on military and strategical reasons, the fact is that the only one responsible, if responsibilities can be allotted in cases like this, is the German people, and more especially its representative classes. Bismarck claimed these two provinces, because, immediately after Sedan, the whole of Germany, her press, her poets, her cultured men, as well as her humble peasants, cried aloud that peace was impossible without Alsace and Lorraine.

These two territories, which had been German, and were yet partly inhabited by a Germanic race, represented for the Germans a symbol of their victory over France, of their revenge for all the humiliations which the Revolution and the Empire had inflicted on Germany. The population claimed them, and the King of Prussia and his powerful Minister bowed before the popular will because it was not possible to deny this compensation to those who had shed their blood in the war. Political common sense was forced to submit to popular passion, and the German people obtained Alsace and Lorraine.

In a year or two they will have to sadly admit that in order to possess for less than half a century the two contested provinces they have lost that share of the world empire to which they could have had legitimately aspired. The British Empire, on the other hand, will owe a century more of its existence to the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine by Germany in 1871.

To Have Rinks For The Schools

A letter from Mr. H. A. Yenney, principal of the Queen Alexandra School, brought the attention of the Board of Education last night to the matter of providing rinks in connection with the local public schools during the coming winter. The Board, as Mr. Crane expressed it, felt that something should be done in this matter. The basketball in the school had proved a splendid success, and the equipment had not been costly. So he favoured the giving of immediate attention to the matter of rinks. On the motion of Messrs. Crane and Burnham the matter was referred to the Property Committee with power to act, it being understood that some arrangement for rinks will be made.

MANITOBA TO CLOSE THE BARS AT 7 O'CLOCK AT NIGHT

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 1.—The announcement was made this morning by Sir Rodmond Roblin, of a new Provincial policy affecting the sale of liquor, in which the following are the main provisions:

A general Cabinet meeting will be called to pass an order-in-council to secure the closing of all places where intoxicating liquor is retailed, at seven o'clock p.m.; to prevent the sale of liquor in social clubs after that hour, and close all wholesale places at six p.m.

These measures are expected to be aided by license holders agreeing to close at the hour stipulated, in the absence of a law to that affect. At the next session of the Legislature, a bill will be introduced, amending the License Act, to permit the Governor-in-Council in times of stress or necessity to vary the hours during which liquor may be sold and to give municipalities the right to regulate by popular vote, the number of licenses to be granted.

It is stated that these changes wil lbe made immediately. Premier Roblin in his statement, says that in the Province there has existed since the declaration of war; "a strong sentiment in favour of earlier closing of the bars than provided for in the present License Act, based at first chiefly upon the ground that the occasion required upon the part of all classes of the people the exercise of more than the usual prudence and economy. Another reason," the Premier points out, "is furnished by the presence in Winnipeg since this place has been made a training point of a large number of citizen soldiery whom it is desirable to protect as far as possible and practicable from temptation."

Canada Life Service

The Canada Life management studies to extend and broaden its service to the policyholders, while constantly aiming at increased efficiency. The Company is quick to adopt any measure which will promote either.

An Example of Canada Life Usefulness

By means of an annual deposit with the Company, a man may now arrange that in the event of his death his wife, or other dependent, will at once enter on an income of, say, $50 per month. This sum is beyond the reach of poor investments and is absolutely assured to her for life—or for a minimum of 240 payments to the estate should the beneficiary die. The amount of the guaranteed monthly payment may be adjusted to suit the means of the assured.

This is the ideal provision in that it furnishes a guaranteed income for life, payable every month. As it may be provided through moderate annual payments to the Company, it is within the reach of every business man.

BOYS WANT NEWS FROM HOME

The Examiner has received the following letter from one of the 24th Field Battery men at Salisbury Plain with the Canadian contingent:

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I take the liberty of writing these few lines, thanking you in anticipation for the publication of the same. We have just read with interest a few old copies of the Examiner which one of the boys had sent him. We have all felt keenly on this matter, since leaving Valcartier, that we have had no news of the town we left. We are proud to learn that the boys of Peterborough are rallying to the good old flag, in the shape of the second contingent, and were proud to read of the speeches and the fine reception and the good send-off accorded them. We wish to thank the ladies of Peterborough for the "housewives" they kindly sent us, which are proving invaluable to us here; also for the cholera belts, and to express our gratitude to Major Rolsten's wife for her kindness in supplying us with knitted caps and wristlets. But we feel there is one thing lacking, and that is news of Peterborough, in the shape of newspapers, and we should feel greatly honoured in receiving a few papers for the benefit of the boys to help pass away the long nights in camp.

We are pleased to say that we are all in good spirits and receiving great benefit from our training, and we are eagerly waiting the summons to take our stand in the defence of the Empire.

We are, dear Sir, yours faithfully —Eight Peterborough Boys, 7th Battery, 3rd Brigade.

NINETY-SIX THOUSAND IS PROPOSED STRENGTH OF CANADA'S TROOPS

Minister Says Thirty-One Thousand, Seven Hundred Men Will be Recruited—Additional Force Will Consist of Nine Regiments of Cavalry and Nineteen of Infantry With Smaller Units.

OTTAWA, Dec. 2. — Concerning the enrollment of Canadian troops, Maj.-Gen. Hughes, Minister of Militia, has made a statement in general terms. The enrollment so far consists of 33,000 troops now in England, constituting the first contingent; 8,000 on guard and outpost duty in the Dominion, and 23,000 recruited and mobilized in the Dominion for the second contingent. This makes a total of 64,000 already enrolled.

It is proposed to add to the above number 31,700 men. These will be contributed as follows: 9 regiments of cavalry, or 5,500 men; 19 regiments of infantry, or 20,000 men; army service corps, 2,000 men; army medical corps, 1,500 men; six batteries of artillery, 1,200 men; engineers, 1,000 men; signallers, cyclists, etc., 500 men; total 31,700 men.

This makes a grand total of 95,700 men.

The proposed details of the additional 31,700 by divisions and districts will be as follows, subject always to revision:

Div. 1.—Headquarters, London; cavalry, two squadrons; infantry, two regiments.

Div. 2.—Headquarters, Toronto; cavalry, two squadrons; infantry three regiments.

Div. 3.—Headquarters, Kingston; cavalry, two squadrons; infantry, two regiments.

Div. 4.—Headquarters, Montreal; cavalry, two squadrons; infantry, one regiment.

Div. 5.—Headquarters, Quebec; cavalry, one squadron; infantry, one regiment.

Div. 6.—Headquarters, Maritime Provinces; cavalry, three squadrons; infantry, one regiment.

Div. 10.—Headquarters, Manitoba and Saskatchewan; cavalry, six squadrons; infantry, four regiments.

Div. 11.—Headquarter, British Columbia; cavalry, three squadrons; infantry, two regiments.

Div. 12.—Headquarters, Alberta; cavalry, six squadrons; infantry, three regiments.

The present plan is to distribute this additional number at various cities and towns throughout the country, and to mobilize them later on when needed.

It is the intention to have one of the regiments for the Toronto division raised in the north country, probably with headquarters at Sudbury or North Bay, the supply of men to be drawn from the country between Fort William and the Ottawa river. For the two regiments in eastern Ontario there will be headquarters at Ottawa and Toronto. In the Montreal and Quebec divisions, there will be at least one French-Canadian regiment raised.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I write you for information and on account of the importance of the things that are at stake. The Government sent an inspector to look over the military supplies that the Ackerman Company is making for the Government. The Government wrote to Mr. Burnham to chose a local man to work with the inspector. Mr. Burnham appointed Mr. Godfrey. He could not act, and recommended to the inspector D. Gocheen. This was satisfactory to both Mr. Burnham and the inspector; but I understand Mr. Ackerman objected, and insisted upon the appointment of a man of his own, and after consultation with Mr. Burnham, Mr. Roberts was appointed to help the inspector. I am told that this gentleman was booked for the position before Mr. Burnham had his say, and he, according to the letter from the Government, appointed Mr. Godfrey with the result that happened.

Now I want to know whether it is the right thing, and if it is the way of the Government to allow a contractor to pick one of the men to examine and pass or condemn his work? Which is to have the say, the man sent by the Government and the member, or the contractor who is an interested party? It does not seem to me that such a way of doing things is exactly right; but then, what I think may not cut much ice. I am not a politician, but a plain, common, honest mechanic, who wants to see everybody, even a government, get

SERVICES AT THE TABERNACLE

At the Tabernacle, last night, Evangelist Long spoke on the Friendship of Christ. He said a true friend will always reveal the whole truth. Christ is a true friend because He will not allow a soul to be kept in darkness with regard to their future life, but declares the whole truth, although it may not always be just what man would wish to hear.

Christ showed His friendship to the Pharisees in declaring to them that they were deceived. He told them that they were deceived as to the Father. They professed to be true worshippers of God, bue were in reality worshipping the devil. In proof of this the Evangelist quoted the words of Christ, in John 8:44: "Ye are of your father, the devil, and the lusts of your fathers ye will do.

The friendship of Christ was manifested by His voluntary sacrifice on the cross. Jesus said, "I lay down My life; no man taketh it from Me. I lay it down of Myself."

After the audience was dismissed there were those who remained to pray and seek Jesus as their friend. Hear Evangelist Long to-night on "The reward of the whole-hearted seeker of God." Service at 8 o'clock.

WORKING HARD BUT ALL ARE IN GOOD SPIRITS

Letter From Sergt. Allan Harper Outlines Soldier's Routine at Kingston---57th Are Doing Well

Mr. Meserve, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., has received the following interesting letter from Sergt. Allan Harper, who is in Kingston with the second contingent of the 57th Regiment:

Kingston, Dec. 1, 1914.

Dear Mr. Meserve,—Received your letter and parcel O.K., and should have written sooner, but have been pretty busy.

The fob is certainly a fine one, and much more than I expected. I will carry it in fond remembrance of you and the Y.M.C.A. and the good old times I have spent there.

The 57th are doing well down here and all are well. The whole battalion is now rounding into good condition. There are some 1,200 men and officers down here. All have to work hard, but get very good meals and accommodation. We sleep in bunks built three high in rows. Each man gets a straw mattress and two blankets. He also gets a complete outfit of clothing, including 2 suits of underwear, shirts, sweatercoat, etc.

We have a long day of it. Reveille blows at 6 a.m., and we have to crawl out. We fall in again at 8:30 and drill till 12 o'clock. After dinner we generally have a route march of about 15 miles or go to Barriefield for target practice. Supper is served at 5.30 and the men are allowed out till 10 p.m. But we non-commissioned officers have to attend a "course of instruction class" at the Armouries from 6 p.m. till 10 p.m. five nights a week, so you see you are ready for bed when "lights out" is sounded. But we should worry; that is what we are here for.

Was sorry to see Mr. Carson's mother was ill and hope he finds her improving.

Yours to the finish,
ALLEN HARPER.
E Co., 21st Inf. Battalion.

With English engineers doing the work the Russian city of Baku will obtain a new water supply from mountains 120 miles distant.

PUT SEALS ON BACK OF LETTERS

Mr. George Ross, Post Office Superintendent for Canada, has asked that special intimation be given throughout the Province that Christmas seals must be used on the back only of all mail matter. This is specially stipulated by the Postmaster-General at Ottawa. No mail having seals on the face can be forwarded to destination. All such mail will be held back as contrary to regulations. Thousands of people throughout the Province are already using Christmas seals. To any one of these the above may be a vital matter as important mail matter may not reach its destination if the Postmaster-General's order is not adhered to.

WERE DRUNK WHILE ON THE BLACKLIST

Two Local Men Were Fined Ten Dollars Each-A Gallery of Drunks.

The prisoner's box proved too small for the harvest that had been garnered in by the police force since yesterday morning, to-day, most of the offending prisoners being drunks.

John MacFarlane was charged with being drunk while on the blacklist. He admitted that he was on the blacklist and that he had been drinking, but said that he wasn't drunk. He was fined $10, however.

"Where did you get your liquor?" asked Chief Thompson.

"A man with one arm asked me where Elliott's liquor store was and I asked him to get me a bottle, too," was the reply.

"Do you know who he was?"

"No," answered McFarlane.

Frank Fountaine, who is also on the prohibited list, was charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty and was assessed $10. He said that he got his liquor in Port Hope.

Thos. McKinley was charged with being drunk in a public place. He denied the accusation, but P. C. Savanti said that he arrested McKinley because he was very drunk. The fine was $2.

John McCarthy pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place. He was assessed two dollars.

Francis Hughes was found lying drunk on the railway track in East City. He was also assessed two dollars.

ENGINEER MAY YET RECOVER

Ambrose Smith in Dangerous Condition From Fracture of the Skull —Fellow Trainmen Are Out of Danger

Hopes are still held out for the recover of Ambrose Smith, the Engineer who was so seriously injured in the rearend collision at Campbellford yesterday morning. His skull was fractured and he received several minor injuries which may prove fatal, but all hopes of his recovering from his injuries have not been lost yet. Engineer St. Ours, it is thought, is not so dangerously hurt. He received a bad shaking up and is in a serious condition in the Nicholls Hospital, but is thought to be out of danger. Brakeman Weatherup who had his arm broken, is suffering also from a severe shaking up. All three men are making as good progress as is possible under the circumstances. They are all in the Nicholls Hospital and are being attended by G.T.R. Physician Moir.

Conditions Are Better Than Was First Expected

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 2.—The labour conditions generally in the Dominion are much more satisfactory than might have been expected, is the opinion expressed by J. C. Walters, President of the Trades and Labour Congress of the Dominion.

"There is no doubt," said Walter today, "that the recruiting of troops has relieved the situation very considerably A further good feature is the large number of contracts which have been let both by Canada and the allied governments for war supplies."

ANOTHER FURNACE OPERATING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 2.—An official notification was issued this morning from the Dominion steel plant that number 1 blast furnace, closed down since August, had been again reinstated. This makes two furnaces in active operation.

The Universal Lunch Box

Fills a Long Felt Want—This and Innumerable Other Household Necessities Round Out the Stock of the Morgan Hardware Co'y.

Universal lunch boxes are used by the armies of the world. At the present time several million of them are in daily use. They are not only used by the defenders of the Empire on the blood-drenched battlefields of Europe, but by the man of peace, whose duty it is to remain at home in order that the wheels of industry might be kept in motion. The latter style of lunch-box is sold in Peterborough by the Morgan Hardware Company. The former type is a creation of the war department.

In addition to the actual comfort to be derived from using the Universal lunch box, such as is sold by the Morgan Hardware Co., it falls under the classification of a necessity when one considers its use from the standpoint of physical welfare and health. To the hard-working business man or mechanic, the growing child at school, the confined clerk in the office and in fact to anyone who engages in steady, concentrated mental or physical labour throughout the day, it is essential that the noon meal be composed of fresh, substantial, tissue building food. The Universal lunch box retains all the wholesome invigorating qualities of the food.

An Extensive Stock.

This is one of the many lines that is being offered by the Morgan Hardware Company. Other lines include the Universal coffee percolators, coffee machines, toasters and grills. Also a complete line of "Rogers 1847" silverware and "Community" flatware, such as knives, forks, spoons, etc. Carpet sweepers and vacuum cleaners find a worthy place among the extensive stock of the Company. For the children there are skates, hockey sticks and sleighs, and for the country people the "1900 Washing Machine" that not only saves the clothes, but reduces the labour of washing them to a minimum. The Morgan Hardware Company carry a stock of goods that not only fulfill every want, but each and every article of which it is composed, carries with it, a guarantee of quality plus durability.

Not The Much Wanted Ray

It is denied that W. P. White, now in the Waterloo County jail on remand on a charge of issuing a forged check is the much wanted and elusive bank swindler, James Ray. White was arrested in Toronto two weeks ago at the instigation of the Galt police. Another charge of issuing a forged check of $100 to Julius Knauff, of Waterloo, has been preferred. This check was signed "James R. Phillips."

Something Novel in The Restaurant Line

The "White Dairy Lunch"—The Latest Handy Lunch Room in the City

There are good times ahead. The price of living is coming down, and work will be abundant.

The sudden breaking out of the war caused many to "run to cover." Like the chicken on whom the rose leaf fell, some of us became a prey to fear about how we were going to be fed and clothed. Now our vision is clearing, our alarm has fled and we are seeing something more real than a mirage.

Good times are ahead, and strangers to our City are coming in and seeing and seising openings on our business streets to coin money that we could not see.

In a day or two a new and novel business, catering for public patronage, will open up at 384 George Street, in the store lately vacated by Charley Banks. It is to be known as "The White Dairy Lunch," and will be conducted in first-class city style by Peter Manpmouris and Co. from Washington, D.C., where several other similar branches are running successfully. The novel methods which particularly characterizes this new venture from other restaurants is as follows: Everybody serves themselves. The gentleman, or lady, who desires a quick lunch walks up to the marble-top steam table or counter and orders from a conspicuous painted bill of fare. The lunch is handed out, and the patron waits on himself, or herself, and carries it to one of the peculiar looking combination lunch-chairs, to which is fitted on one arm of the chair a unique little table. Then, sitting down, monarch of all you survey, the lunch is enjoyed sans waiter or other attentions. You pay when you order, and the trouble is all over. This special lunch embraces roasts, stews, etc., but not steaks; no regular dinner, but is varied with all the toothsome appealing dishes of the season. The manager, Mr. Manpmouris, has had fifteen years' experience in this line in the United States, and has fitted up and equipped his new restaurant premises in an attractive and comfortable manner. A very expensive ornamental tile floor and white tile walls has been put in, with a clear white ceiling, which gives a handsome appearance to the interior. The paper hangings are in varnished tile pattern, the work being done by Mr. John Victor, and the tile work by the Canada Tile Co. The manager states that his restaurant will be run in such a way as to show his patrons that they can always be assured of a refreshing quick lunch on short notice. Watch for the official opening announcement to-morrow.

Apparatus to be fastened to a man's feet as he lies in bed to make his legs go through the motions of walking has been invented to treat victims of partial paralysis.

THE MYSTERIOUS PAUL SCHLICHT

LINDSAY, Dec. 2.—Chief of Police Short received the following letter yesterday from Mr. A. M. Ross, chief constable, Ottawa:

"Dear Sir,—I am desirous of obtaining some information about a man named Paul Schlicht, a man aged about 50 years, who claims Lindsay as his home. He also claims to have been promoting some large company in Lindsay and to have come from your town to Ottawa. Whilst apparently a clever man and according to what he tells is possessed of considerable means, he seems to be short of cash since he came to this town. He also impresses people as not being in possession of all his faculties. Any information will be appreciated.

A. M. ROSS."

It will be remembered that Schlicht was in Peterborough a week or so ago. While here he discussed the promotion of a number of industries.

MOTHERS' CLUBS' SPLENDID WORKS

At the regular meetin of the Board of Education last night Dr. Morrison, Chairman of the Board, paid a high tribute to the work that the Mothers' Associations are doing in connection with the various schools of the City. Dr. Morrison said that they had been very active and had accomplished much that was worthy of praise. There were children attending school regularly at present who, were it not for the kind assistance of the mothers' organizations, would be unable to attend school at all for the want of decent clothing. They were providing many with suitable clothes and were industriously striving to increase their sphere of usefulness. The mothers, he understood, were prepared to render valuable assistance in supplying warm clothing to children who would otherwise have to remain away from school in the cold weather, and they deserved the Board's heartiest congratulations and commendations.

Mr. Mowat reported that more chairs were needed to accomodate the mothers who meet in the King Edward School.

On the motion of Messrs. Hill and Smith this matter was referred to the Property Committee with power to act, it being understood that the necessary number of chairs be procured at the least possible outlay.

Citizens of Peterborough and Vicinity

Male and female, old and young, rich and poor:—Wise and rich men have advised their friends to buy land, in the way of a growing City, and they also would become rich.

It has been my good fortune, late in life, to become the owner of just such land, and as I never play "the dog in the manger," being neither able nor willing to use it myself, I am determined to distribute it amongst those who can use or hold it for a short time until it is annexed to the City, at which time the owners will be positively certain of a large profit on their investment. Your own eyes and judgment will prove this statement. This sub-division lies south and west from the C. G. E. Works, between May's School and the Gravel Road, at the west end of Cottesmore, Chamberlain, Romaine and Landsdowne Streets. Because of the beautiful location of this land, the size and class of lots, the very reasonable prices and terms unheard of, which I am offering, cannot fail to ensure a very speedy sale of every Lot.

The great majority of the above-named classes wish to make money, even the rich, and I guarantee satisfaction to every buyer or his money back in one year from date of purchase, if desired.

Size of lots chiefly 30 x 123, sold in blocks of 2 Lots under one number. Price, $150, $200, and a few specials at $250 per lot, except corners.

TERMS.—Cash buyers will get full value of their money.

Pay $5 cash and I will add $5, giving receipt for $10, then $5 monthly.

Pay $10 cash and I will give receipt for $20, then pay $10 monthly.

No interest until May, then 6%. Proper building restrictions. Men out of work with families, will get gardens, free of rent. Every person earning money should save at least a little and this is the plan, none other to compare. Come to my Office, see plans and get full information on every point.

THE GERMAN POSITION AT LODZ IS UNTENABLE

Reinforcements From Western Front Will be Required if Invaders of Poland Are to Hold Place Before Great Ring of Russians—Other Eastern Battles Are Still in the Balance.

LONDON, Dec. 2. — The Petrograd correspondent of The Times says: According to the view in military circles here the situation in Poland has assumed an extraordinary and unprecedented importance. Nothing like it in respect of interest and danger has presented itself hitherto, yet all the indications point to the maintenance and even increase of the present tension, in as much as the Germans persist, despite the awful climatic conditions, in holding their positions facing Lodz and Lowics, whence the Russians are inflicting such terrible punishment. It is obvious the enemy expect soon to bring up reinforcements, but how this can be done the Germans alone know.

The Russian armies are disposed in an unbroken and invincible ring along the whole eastern front and also along that of the Austrians, who are hopelessly defeated and war-sick. The Germans are either unable or unwilling to send further aid. It is equally clear that East Prussia is too far remote to afford scope for a counter-demonstration, even if the Russians did not possess a crushing superiority in numbers there, while the region between Plock and Soldau is not available for the movements of troops at this season of the year.

Military critics of leading newspapers agree in predicting the continuation of the German offensive, and conclude that the only possible quarter from which reinforcements could be obtained is the western front.

The announcement that the Kaiser has arrived at Thorn strengthens this conclusion. Incidentally it bears out the presumption that a further German advance will proceed from that point up the left bank of the Vistula. It may be assumed that the necessary counter measures already have been ordered.

The Russians are quite confident of victory. Besides, the movement of German troops from the west to the east is a help to Russia's allies.

Against the Austro-Germanic forces in the south the Russians continue to gain more decisive results. They are now in possession of all the Austrian positions, and are said to have arrived abreast of Cracow, while their captured for three weeks amount to 50,000 men.

In East Prussia the Russians have succeeded in penetrating about 30 miles beyond the border, and in Galicia it is reported that the Austrians have been swept back to the gates of Cracow. In all these regions, however, the issue still hangs in the balance.

Turks Dislodged.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 2.—The Army Messenger says that the Russians are holding their own against the Turks, dislodging the Ottoman troops from a position in the Euphrates Valley, and capturing many prisoners and two guns.

Monarchs at the Front.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The battle in northern Poland, concerning the progress of which there has been so much mystery, is now being fought out under the eyes of the German Emperor on the one side and the Russian Emperor on the other. These two monarchs left for the front yesterday, so that virtually all the heads of the nations which are at war are with their troops. The King of Great Britain is in France, the King of Belgium, as usual, is spending all his time with his soldiers, while M. Poincare, the French President, started yesterday for another visit to the northern battlefield.

TEACHERS APPOINTED TO PUBLIC SCHOOL AND INSTITUTE STAFF

Local Schools Will Close for Christmas on Friday, December 18th, and Open on Monday, Jan. 4th

The Board of Education met in regular session last night, Dr. Morrison, Chairman, presiding. There were present Messrs. John Crane, T. B. McGrath, Col. Miller, Dr. Burnham, V. Eastwood, W. H. Hill, J. Smith and J. J. Turner, Jr.

A letter was received from Miss Mary I. Williams, accepting the appointment to the staff of the local Collegiate Institute.—Received.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, reported by letter to the Board that the rooms in the P.C.I. were lighted with old style 16 candle-power carbon lamps. The lights had to be used during the latter part of the day now, and they were used to a marked disadvantage. He suggested that Tungsten lamps be installed. The Board felt that this matter should be remedied at once, and it was left with the Property Committee, with power to act.

It was moved by Messrs. Eastwood McGrath that an account of $395 arrears be paid to the Peterborough Light and Power Company. The Company had agreed to 10 per cent discount for prompt settlement, so the amount would be about $349. The motion to pay the account was passed.

"Will that pay up to the present?" asked Mr. Smith.

"Up to the end of the Company's career," answered Mr. Crane.

The account of Duranceau and Archibald for $443.14 was referred to the building committee with power to act.

It was decided, on the motion of Messrs. Smith and Crane that the present school term close on Friday, the 18th of December, and that school re-open on Monday, the 4th of January.

IN CAPITAL AT LAST.

Gen. Pancho Villa Leads His Army into Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—(Via El Paso.)—Gen. Villa entered the capital yesterday at the head of about 35,000 troops. He arrived during the afternoon in the suburbs, where he remained during the evening receiving delegations and foreign consuls. Villa will no enter the capital part of the city until the arrival of Provisional President Gutierrez.

Gen. Villa issues the following statement to the Associated Press:—

"My only mission is to restore order in Mexico and not to take personal revenge on any one. I promise that order will be restored at once. I am acting as the subordinate of Provisional President Gutierrez and the national convention.

"The Provisional President is now the supreme power in Mexico and I am merely acting as field commander of the armies. All foreigners and foreign property will be protected."

Austrians Failed In Attack.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—A violent attack by the Austrians on the Servian front running from Lazarevats to Maljen, along the River Ljid, in Northwestern Servia, was repulsed, says a despatch from Nish yesterday to the Havas Agency. It is reported that more than 800 dead and wounded were found on the battlefield. The positions occupied by the Austrians were on the right bank of the Ljid. Twenty officers and 500 soldiers are reported to have been captured.

ITALY IGNORES THE ADVICE

Advice to Take Tunis From France Rejected With Scorn

ROME, Dec. 2.—The German Government apparently has not yet despaired of seeing Italy rise to a well-baited hook, but the Italian papers say it will take more to draw Italy back into the German net than the latest snare spread for her. These remarks refer to an article in The Deutsche Tageszeitung inviting Italy to step in and take over Tunis, now that she has the chance. The paper points out that, reinforced by the Turkish fleet and the Austrian navy, the Italian fleet would easily be a match for the Anglo-French squadron in the Mediterranean, and energetic action in common would inevitably result in the quasi-automatic acquisition of Tunis by Italy, an acquisition which would be legitimate in law by reason of the predominance of the Italian element in Tunis. Little reflection, concludes the tempter, should suffice to convince Italy that all she needs is the decision to do and dare; the result would be as easy to obtain as it would be profitable and far-reaching. In quoting this article, the Italian papers declare "there is good authority for asserting that it undoubtedly reflects the ideas of Wilhelmstrasse, and was indeed directly inspired by the German Foreign Office."

STRENGTH IS EXAGGERATED

German Claim of 100 Army Corps Nearly Twice Actual Number

PARIS, Dec. 2. — A semi-official communication concerning the German armies in the field made public here last night says:—

"Germany at present has at her disposal 25 1-2 active army corps, of which 21 1-2 are operating against France and four against Russia. Of the thirty-three German reserve army corps 22 1-2 are now employed against France and 19 1-2 against Russia.

"These figures show that there is a total of 58 1-2 army corps, active or reserve, fighting for Germany on the two fronts, and not 100 army corps, as has erroneously been stated by the German Government.

"If the territorial units (landwehr), of which nothing was said in the German official note, are taken into account, it will be seen that eight landwehr army corps are engaged against France and seven against Russia—that is to say, in all on the two fronts, 30 territorial divisions."

COL. MACQUEEN DELIVERS LECTURE

In Lakefield to a Large Audience

Special to The Examiner:

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 2. — Miss Frances Dench, of Fowler's Corner, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. Q. Dench at "North Douro Lodge."

Mr. Dudley Cornell-Chads left on Tuesday last for Kingston to join the Second Canadian Contingent.

Miss Ferguson, of Peterborough, arrived on Wednesday last to take duty as nurse to Mr. Walter Strickland, who is lying seriously ill at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. R. Tate.

Mrs. Elmo Bogue is visiting friends at Lindsay.

Mrs. Tackabury, who has been in the village visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. S. Carter, for the past two months, has returned to her home at Lion's Head.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonnycastle and daughter were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cassan at "The Cottage" for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chant, who have been spending two weeks visiting friends at Unionville, returned home on Monday last.

Mr. C. Joynt, who has been relieving at the G.T.R. Station during the absence of Mr. J. H. Chant, returned to Sunderland on Monday last.

Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, of Toronto, spent the week-end at the Lakefield House.

The members of B Company, 46th Regiment, paraded to St. John-the-Baptist Church on Sunday evening.

Miss Traill was in Peterborough on Monday.

The citizens of Lakefield had a rare treat on Friday evening last in hearing Lieut.-Col. F. W. Macqueen, of Toronto, on his famous lecture "Historic and Patriotic Sketches of Canada." The lecture was given in five parts, and patriotic songs were sung during each interval. The hall was packed to overflowing, and Colonel Macqueen, who has a keen sense of humour, had no difficulty in holding the attention of the audience, as even the smallest boy listened to him with keen interest, and his lecture will doubtless create in old and young, a desire to know more of the history of our own country. After the entertainment the members of the Soldiers' Comfort Club enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. F. J. Tate at her residence on Queen street. During their stay in Lakefield Colonel and Mrs. Macqueen were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham on Colbourne street.

Mr. Reginald Strickland, of Toronto, is visiting his sister, Mrs. E. R. Tate at "Bendenis."

A tiny electric oven, which can be placed on the platform of a microscope for heating or drying objects that are to be examined, is the invention of a German scientist.

TROUBRIDGE DUPED.

Germans In Possession of Naval Code Tricked British Admiral.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. — The German cruisers Goeben and Breslau escaped from the British Mediterranean fleet in the Straits of Messina in the first week of the war by a use of the British Admiralty wireless code, according to a story received by The New York Sun by mail from London. The story is, in part, as follows:—

"There was much astonishment when Admiral Troubridge was absolved of all blame in connection with the escape of the Goeben and Breslau. That he would be dismissed from the service, if nothing worse, seemed assured. His complete vindication was inconceivable.

"By means of his log book and the testimony of his flag lieutenant, his secretary and his wireless operator, the admiral was able to prove absolutely that he received a radiogram in the British Admiralty's secret code, worded and signed in regulation form, ordering him to permit the Goeben and Breslau to escape."

It turns out that the despatch was probably sent by the Goeben herself although her knowledge of the jealously guarded code is a mystery.

LOTS OF WORK YET.

But Danger Is Past, Is French's Message Through Officers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A London cable to The Herald yesterday morning says: "The danger is over, but there is plenty of hard fighting to be done."

This is the message from Field Marshal Sir John French, which British officers who are here from the front on a few days' stop brought to their families and friends. The officers are back for a glimpse of civilization, and society is alive and lionizing them.

Dinner parties, with khaki-clad officers at many tables, enlivened the leading hotels and clubs in London yesterday. The officers look splendidly fit and have gained weight. They say the best food London can provide is not so good as the fine bacon and other delicacies they receive daily.

The officers, almost without exception, say's Lord Kitchener's strict censorship and no-war-correspondent policy has saved thousands of lives, and they say the Russian method of announcing the news after it is all over is the best method. This also explains, they believe, why so little is said of the victorious Russian operations in Poland.

Bulwark Blown Up By Accident.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A cable to The Herald from London says:—

The authorities, it is stated, are not absolutely satisfied that the disaster to the battleship Bulwark was due to an accident. According to The Daily Express, just about the time the vessel was blown up a man of military bearing, with his hair and moustache close cropped, was seen on the bank of the Medway near the scene of the calamity. A description of this man has been sent to the police throughout the country.

Another Local Boy For The 2nd Contingent

Alan Munro, son of Mrs. Geo. Munro, 450 Reid Street, one of the engineers on the Campbellford section of the Trent Canal, has resigned his position with the Government and joined the engineering corps of the Second Contingent in Kingston.

Mr. Munro is well fitted both by training and engineering experience for this branch of the service.

Local Youths Are Charged With Theft

And East City Man is Accused of Receiving Stolen Property

An East City youth, seventeen years of age, and an Elm Street lad of the same years, appeared in this morning's police court charged with having broken into the Central school on Friday the 20th of November and stealing $1.80 in money and a pair of scissors. They were also charged with entering Potvin's confectionery store and stealing from there chocolate to the value of $1.00. On both charges the young fellows elected to be tried by Magistrate Dumble and pleaded "guilty."

To the police, the two young fellows admitted that they entered the East City schools, the Central school, St. John's church and the Queen Alexandra school. They also, they admit, entered Henderson's barber shop on Simcoe Street, stealing a quantity of tobacco and some razors, and Potvin's George Street store. The two lads were rounded up through the efforts of P. C. Blade, who was detailed in plain clothes by the chief to this particular series of crimes. His investigation led to the arrest of the two young fellows. They were apprehended last night.

In police court this morning only the two charges named above were preferred against the youthful offenders. Acording to the story they gave the police a local man gave them a skeleton key and urged them to make the entrances they did, asking as his share half the booty. He was charge this morning with receiving stolen goods and elected to be tried by jury at the general sessions of the peace next week. He is alleged to have received a quantity of tobaco, some cigars and some razors, knowing that they were stolen by one of the young fellows. He pleaded "not guilty" to the charge, and while he admitted receiving the goods, he said that he did not know they were stolen.

DIPTHERIA IS STAMPED OUT

To the Board of Education last night Inspector Mowat reported that the epidemic of diphtheria which has been prevalent in the city, effecting some of the schools has completely passed away. There are no cards up at all, and consequently no homes in quarantine at the present from diphtheria, according to the inspector's verbal report.

Great Britain and Ireland consume 30,000,000 rabbits as food annually.

The Norwegian government maintains an agricultural college and three experiment stations.

Under normal conditions human beings perspire about twice as much when asleep as when awake.

In China an oil well has been drilled to a depth of 3,000 feet with the most primitive native tools.

Christmas Presents For The Soldiers

Boxes Sent by the Ladies of Peterborough This Morning

The Christmas boxes for the Peterborough boys at Salisbury Plain were despatched this morning. The boxes are a dark green with red lettering—"From the Ladies of Peterborough." Inside is a good-sized piece of Christmas cake, a khaki handkerchief, a cake of soap, 2 packages of chewing gum, 1 box of cigarettes, 3 plugs of tobacco and a greeting card.

The Christmas cards were donated by Masters Billie and Freddie Trebilcock. The tobacco was given at cost price and five hundred cigarettes were given free by Mr. Clysdale, the tobacconist. All the contents of the boxes were given at cost price by our patriotic merchants.

The committee desire to thank the Oddfellows, who, by loaning their spacious club rooms, made it possible to hold such a successful bridge drive. Also to thank the press, who very kindly put in all the notes.

The gifts were sent to Major Bennet, to be distributed to the 57th; to Major Rolston, for the 24th Battery; and to the Prince of Wales Dragoons.

Boxes were also sent to Harold Matthews, Vivian Fessenden, Pete Campbell, Maitland Wood, Tom Miller and Barker Dean, whose homes are in the City, but who have enlisted in other regiments.

A sample box is on display in Mr. Hooper's window.

A "Round Robin" of Christmas Greeting

From the Wives, Mothers and Sweethearts to the Boys at Salisbury Plains

A sentimental "round robin" is being prepared to be sent to the Peterborough boys at Salisbury Plain. A letter has been written extending Christmas greetings to the boys across the seas and best wishes for a safe return to their native town. A request is made that all the mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of Peterborough soldier boys, sign the letter. Copies will be left in the Review and Examiner office, where signatures may be affixed. The "round robin" to be sent to England will be got up in attractive style and will have the original signatures attached thereto. Those who are privileged to sign this communication are asked to do so by Saturday of this week, as it is desired to send it away on that day.

OMISSIONS IN VOTER'S LIST

People Who Are Entitled to a Vote But Have Been Inadvertently Omitted From the List

The persons whose names are set forth in the subjoined list number one, are entitled to vote in the municipality, as shown in the said list, but are omitted from the voters' list. The persons mentioned in list number two are wrongly stated in the voters' list. List number three represents persons in respect to whom there are errors in the description of property or otherwise in respect to which the names are entered on the voters' list.

List of Errors.

List number one, showing voters omitted from or not entered on the voters' list: W. H. Bradburn, Frederick Dover, W. G. Robertson and Joseph Gray.

List number two, showing voters wrongly named in the voters' list: Edward Keating, J. H. Renwick, Joseph Gray and Pennington Alexander.

List number three, showing voters whose qualification is erroneously described in the voters' list: J. M. Campbell, Sidney Mitchell, Frank White, George Coleman, Daniel Coughlin, J. E. Wyatt, W. C. McAuliffe, Samuel Taylor and J. Frith.

A Boy I Know.

I know a little bright-eyed boy
Who lives not far away,
And though he is his mother's joy,
He plagues her, too, they say.
For when his task he's bid to do,
He sits down and cries, "Boohoo!
I can't! I can't! I can't!"

Yes, whether he's to practice well,
Or do his horrid sums,
Or "Hippopatamus" to spell,
Or clean or wash his thumbs,
It matters not, for with a frown
The corners of his mouth go down—
"I can't! I can't! I can't!"

Oh, what a joyful day 'twill be
For mother and for son
When smiling looks they both shall see
Beneath the smiling sun!
For in his heart he knows 'tis stuff,
And knows that if he tries enough
He can! He can! He can!

PROVINCIAL ENGINEERS

Will Be Asked to Report on the Site for the City's Proposed Sewage Disposal Plant

As stated in yesterday's Examiner, the Provincial Board of Health has reserved its decision respecting the location in the township of Otonabee, of a sewage disposal plant to serve the City of Peterborough. Deputations representing both the city and township waited upon the Board yesterday. The discussion was heard in the Private Bills committee room at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. The city's claim was present by City Solicitor G. N. Gordon. The engineering difficulties were outlined by City Engineer R. H. Parsons, His Worship Mayor Buller and others of the City Council were also present.

Was Strongly Opposed.

Reeve Anderson of the Township of Otonabee, Messrs. Kitney, McMartin, Deyell and about fifteen others comprised the deputation for the township. Mr. E. A. Peck appeared on behalf of the Council of Otonabee and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the residents. This deputation strongly opposed the location of a sewage disposal plant in Otonabee, on the site selected by the city.

Dr. McCullough gave the deputation a patient hearing and will take the whole matter up with the provincial engineers and health authorities, making a personal survey of the place. After this he will decide what is to be done.

Electrically operated cash carriers for stores have been invented, the motors of which are supplied with current through the wires on which they run.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Leading Football Players Are Joining The Colours

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Representatives of the leading London professional football clubs when driven to bay passed a sarcastic resolution offering to discontinue the games and close the grounds simultaneously with the closing of race courses, golf links, theatres, music halls, picture places, and kindred entertainments. Meanwhile professional players continue to join the army. Fifteen of the leading Llanelly players joined yesterday.

The anti-professional advocates disclaim all desire to interfere with ordinary playing. Thus the announcement that a representative team from the Canadian troops now in London will play the Public School Battalion's Rugby team on December 12, has been generally welcomed.

"It's not football we need to abolish just now,' says the Times, "but professional football, just as we should need to abolish any other game that hired large numbers of able-bodied young men away from the country's service."

Another Villa player, Herbert Smart, is engaged with the Royal Field Artillery, and Albert Evans, the famous Villa back, and J. Windmill, are members of the Birmingham City Battalion. All honour to them.

H. G. Bache, the West Bromwich Albion forward, has been granted a commission, but to what battalion he will be gazetted is not known. He is anxious to get to the front. Apparently the speeches to the spectators at the close of the Albion and Bolton Wanderers match—Bache was one of the speakers—had a useful result. At any rate the "West Bromwich Albion" Company of the 5th Staffordshire Battalion has been filled.

Another Third Lanark player has joined the colours. Following the example of amateurs Galloway and Ferguson and Director Oliphant, R. Riley, the Lancashire footballer, who has performed well for the "Volunteers" since going North, has enlisted. He has joined Lochiel Camerenians, where he will meet Mr. Oliphant, Milne, the ex-Third Lanark centre-forward, who has also given his services to his King and country.

James Turnbull, the old East Stirling-Dundee-Aberdeen, Bradford Park avenue centre forward, has signed on for Hurst, a Lancashire Combination club. After leaving the Avenue Turnbull spent a season with Chelsea, but his appearances in the first team were very few. At the beginning of the present campaign it will be remembered he was given a month's trial with Manchester United—the club with which he made his name. He is playing a good game for Hurst.

Some surprise has been felt at Lacey, the Irishman, being left out of the Liverpool team. The reason is that he has gone stale, and the hope is expressed that a rest will be beneficial, and will act as a tonic.

R. McNeil, the Chelsea forward, was only seventeen when he made his debut in Scottish first division football.

Aston Villa directors have obtained permission from the War Office for their players to use the shooting range at Kingsbury, which is situated in the heart of the country in Warwickshire.

Bob Crompton, considered the greatest back of all times, has played 503 league matches for Blackburn Rovers, and is still going strong. Crompton played his first game against Scotland in 1902, and it seems highly probable that he will make his thirteenth appearance against the Scots at Hillsborough next April. Meredith, of Manchester City and United fame, at present suspended for an indiscretion, has played 621 league games out of a possible 651 since 1894.

William Thorp is the name of Hardwick Collier's custodian. Strange to say he lives in Williamthorpe Lane, in Williamthorpe Parish, and is employed at Williamthorpe Colliery.

Sam Anderson, ex-Hamilton Academical, was left out of the Bradford City team the other week, Jimmy McDonald, an old St. Bernard player, taking his place, James Marshall, late of Partick Thistle, had a trial spin with the reserves.

David Hill, who was in the Third Lanark team at left half when they won the Glasgow Cup in 1909, has been in Canada for some years. He is now with the Canadian Engineers at Salisbury Plains, and is a sapper in the regiment.

Footballers of various grades will remember Walter Kimberley, who previously played both at full-back and forward for Aston Villa, Coventry City, and Walsall. Now he is Lance-Corporal Kimberley, of the 1st Coldstream Guards. He was a reservist, and was living at Coventry when war was declared. He is now a pirsoner of war at Doeberitz, in Germany. He says he is fairly well, but is naturally chafing at the inactive life he is living. Walter Kimberley is an Aston boy, and was associated with various local sides both at cricket and football. He enlisted in the Coldstream Guards when a young fellow and served three years. He helped Aston Villa for five years.

Another Aston Villa footballer who has been fighting and has unfortunately fared badly is Stuart Doncaster, who on many occasions has played centre-forward for Aston Villa, but migrated to Glossop. Doncaster was recently wounded, and has been invalided home.

NOMINATIONS FOR THE O. H. A.

The consideration of a number of amendments of considerable importance in many cases and the election of officers are the principal items of business at the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association in the Temple Building, Toronto, on Saturday morning.

Mr. Ken. Casselman, of London, has retired from the office of vice-president because of business reasons, and his place has been filled by Mr. Jas. T. Sutherland, of Kingston, and Sheriff Paxton, of Whitby, has been elected to the office of second vice-president. There are five candidates for the executive, of which four are to be elected. The list of nominations is as follows:

Past President—H. E. Wettlaufer, Berlin.

President — Charles Farquharson, Stratford.

Life Member—J. Ross Robertson, Toronto.

A. A. U. of C. Governor—Francis Nelson, Toronto.

First Vice-President—Jas. T. Sutherland, Kingston.

Second Vice-President—Sheriff J. T. Paxton, Whitby.

Secretary—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

Treasurer—Dwight J. Turner, Toronto.

Executive Committee (four to be elected)—A. E. Copeland, Midland; R. M. Glover, Peterborough; A. M. Kerr, Preston; Frank Hyde, Woodstock; C. L. Macnab, Orillia.

The annual fee for clubs already members of the association is $6 per team, while new clubs are required to pay $5 additional as entrance fee. All clubs desiring to play in the association this coming winter are requested to notify the secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Daily Star Office, Toronto, specifying the series in which they are desirous of playing. All applications must be accompanied by the membership fee and a list of officers and colours of the club.

WILL NOT PAY FINE.

Antwerp Demands Amelioration of German Oppression First.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 2.—Trouble is brewing between the German and the Belgian authorities there, the Germans being annoyed at the impossibility of obtaining payment of the fine of $10,000,000 which they inflicted upon the city. The local authorities have made it plain that they will pay this only in return for a solemn undertaking that the German army authorities will not only refrain from all further commandeering in kind in Antwerp, but will pay cash, and a proper price, for all stores they may requisition. This the Germans will not do. As the Belgians argue that any other course is contrary to the stipulations agreed upon when the city surrendered, a deadlock has arisen.

Alien Women Ostracised.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Women's clubs in England have been enlisted in the movement to hold off the activities of possible German spies, and Austrian and German women have been asked to resign or discontinue their attendance at many clubs which formerly welcomed them.

A number of prominent literary women have urged that English women should be as cautious as Englishmen about their associates.

Confirmation of Audacious Accident.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Confirmation was received by mail yesterday that the British battleship Audacious was blown up by a mine on Oct. 27 off the north coast of Ireland. The ship is reported to be in drydock at Belfast and her injuries are so much less serious than had been supposed that it is believed she will be in commission within a few months.

Montreal Engineers Would Disband.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—Because orders have come from Ottawa that officers of the British army, now in Canada, are to take command of the field company of engineers organized by City Engineer Geo. Janin, the members of that corps have asked to be released from their oath, which would mean the disbandment of the company.

The corps includes 282 men.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Findlay Reid, a Chatham Township farmer, died Monday night from injuries received when knocked down by a bicycle.

By a vote of 201 to 2 the town of Lauzon, on the south shore, some five miles from Quebec, decided Monday evening, to go absolutely dry for all "ages."

Donald Clark, father of Col. Hugh Clark, M.P., died on the farm in Kincardine Township, where he had lived for sixty years. He was in his ninety-fourth year.

The Servian War Office, in a statement dated Nov. 27, says that the Austrians were driven across the river Lim losing 1,500 men and 20 officers in prisoners.

The Minister of Inland Revenue has appointed W. A. D. Baby as collector of Inland Revenue at Hamilton, replacing Collector Miller, who has been made an inspector.

Charles Davidson, engineer, and Richard Seaton, fireman, of Kingston, had a narrow escape yesterday from being scalded to death when the water gasket on an engine blew up. They jumped in time.

Lt.-Col. Frederick Stanley Maude, who as Major Maude was military secretary to the Governor-General under the administration of Lord Minto, has been made a brigadier-general of the 15th infantry Brigade.

Charged With Spying.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Henry Beigel, of New York, who says that he is an American citizen, was remanded after a hearing yesterday in the Bow Street Police Court on the charge of being an alien enemy. He was arrested at the Savoy Hotel. The detective who made the arrest testified Beigel had admitted that he was a deserter from the German army.

The prisoner had an American passport dated Aug. 4.

Macdiarmid's New Secretary.

TORONTO, Dec. 2. — H. M. Passmore of the editorial staff of The Toronto Telegram has been appointed secretary to Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, Provincial Minister of Public Works.

Mr. Passmore has been engaged in newspaper work in Toronto for the past fifteen years.

Denies Peace Story.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke, American Minister to the Netherlands, late yesterday denied often published reports that he had reurned to America with a special message from Queen Wilhelmina to President Wilson about a movement to restore peace in Europe.

"The desire of the United States for peace," he said, "is a well-known fact. All things, however, have a proper moment. We can trust President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to determine when that moment arrives."

The President will receive Dr. Van Dyke and discuss conditions in Europe with him to-day.

RUGBY

Peterborough was well represented on the St. Michael's team which yesterday won the Intermediate Championship of Canada. Corkery, Hickey and Feeney of the St. Michael's team all hail from here.

MEETING OF ATHLETIC CLUB

All Members Asked to be Present on Monday Night

A meeting of the Peterborough Athletic Club will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday night next for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the club. All members, especially those who were in charge of subscription lists, are asked to be present as it is desired to have the funds collected returned to the subscribers as soon as possible.

COO DION HAS GONE TO FRONT

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.—Coo Dion, the well-known amateur hockey star, who was in great demand by Canadians and Ottawa last season, has been granted a commission in the 23rd Battalion of Montreal and will leave to-morrow to join the regiment for service in the European war. Dion held a commission in the Guards, but was transferred at his own request. He will act as lieutenant. Dion was offered $2,500 to play with the Ottawa last year but he turned it down, preferring to remain an amateur. He played with the Ottawa Cliffsides when they won and lost the Allan Cup, and also with the Winnipeg Victorias when they were champions of Canada. Dion makes another addition to the long list of hockey men who have enlisted. Frank McGee is in training at Kingston, while Mr. Frank Ahearn, one of the Ottawa directors, is at Toronto with the mechanical transport division of the Army Service Corps.

NICHOLLS CUP A HANDSOME THOPHY

Will Be the Prize for the Shooting Competition of Civilian Rifle Association

The silver cup that has been offered for competition among the members of the local Civilian Rifle Association by Mr. Frederick Nicholls, of the Canadian General Electric Company, is in the city and is certainly a very handsome trophy. The cup was only accepted last night and its arrival in the city to-day was unexpectedly prompt. It is a splendid silver trophy, handsomely mounted on a black wooden bas. The handles of the cup are of a dull finish, while the body of the trophy has a bright highly polished surface. The cup is indeed a desirable one, and will make an appropriate prize for the shooting match.

The appeals against the decisions of the Court of Revision will be heard in the County Court this afternoon. There are twenty-nine appeals altogether, so it is likely that the hearing will be carried over until to-morrow. Mr. E. H. D. Hall is appearing for the appellants.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The basketball game between St. Paul's and Cressman's, which was postponed from last Thursday evening, was played Tuesday evening of this week, and proved to be a very fast and exciting contest. The game was won by the Cressmans, by a score of 25 to 21. F. Cressman had five goals to his credit, and Raynor, four, while D. Loucks did the best shooting for St. Paul's.

Basketball scheduled for to-night is between the Senior Business Men and the Dreadnoughts. The public in general is invited to witness the game, which will be played at 9 o'clock.

A letter just received from Physical Director Carson, who is at Moncton, N.B., at the bedside of his mother, states that there seems to be no hope of Mrs. Carson's recovery, as she has taken no nourishment for over a week, simply kept alive by hyperdermics. Mr. Carson does not know when he will return, but he expresses appreciation to the volunteer workers who are keeping the classes going in the gynasium.

All men who wish to participate in the Checker Tournament Tuesday evening should leave their names at the office some time during this week. Good sport is expected and doubtless all the old checker fiends will be out together with the young bloods, who think they can succeed at the quiet game of dross. Should the tournament not be completed on Tuesday evening, another evening will be arranged for the finals.

CONSERVATORY RECITAL

At the week-end recital, held at the Conservatory of Music, the performance of the pupils evidenced not only their own innate ability, but the efficiency of the methods of the teaching of Miss Hazel Dean. The programme was given by ten junior pupils of Miss Dean. All those taking part were all former kindergarten graduates, and their playing reflected great credit on their teacher.

The following was the programme:
Evening Chimes—Alice Brown.
Little Patriot March — Eleanor Eastwood.
Cornet and trombone duet — Paul and Harold Lancashire.
Village Dance—Marjorie Turner.
Simplette—Jack Turner.
Doll's Dream—Helen Lamb.
Clarinet Solo—Otto Gliddon.
Barcarola—Thelma Darling.
A Day Dream—Gladys Graham.
Cabalette—Lillian Brown.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND CAMPAIGN

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The Patriotic Fund campaign is about to be launched and it is being done right this time and will succeed. If Mr. Dan. O'Connell had been in the chair, as he was on Monday night, everything would have gone right from the start. Do not blame the public too much, sir, for correct organization was lacking.

Yours truly,
P. S. WALTON.

HINDEN VONBURG MORE POPULAR THAN KAISER

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—That Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg is considered the man of the hour in Germany is indicated by an incident reported in the newspapers. It appears that a field post received a postal card directed simply to "the most popular man in Germany." The card, it is stated, was delivered to Von Hindenburg.

The return of Field Marshal Baron Von Der Goltz to Constantinople, according to the Lokal Anzeiger, is due to a promise made to the Sultan by Von Der Goltz when he left the Turkish service eighteen years ago to return if Turkey ever needed his services. He renewed this promise to Sultan Mehmed when he visited Constantinople in 1910.

Lieutenant-General Von Oswald of Wurtemberg, who was taken from the retired list and given command of a Landwehr infantry brigade, has been killed in the battle in the west.

Lieutenant-Generals Hennings, commander of an infantry division, Bennо and Von Grumbkon, the latter the commander of an infantry brigade, have died of illness in the field.

NO CHANGE ON THE WEST FRONT

GERMANS REMAIN ON THE DEFENSIVE

THE GERMAN FORCES ARE COMPLETELY SEPARATED FROM THE AUSTRIAN ARMY

Cracow is Threatened and its Fall Means the Russian Invasion of Silesia---German Army Corps From Breslau Have Cut Their Way Through to Main Body.

RUSSIANS RETAKE MANY POINTS

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, November 30. — The advance of one and a half German army corps under General Francois from Breslau and Wielun, via Piotrkow, seems to have resulted in this column escaping capture, and by cutting away from Przeziny and Koluski northeast through the Russian forces joining the German main army in the neighbourhod of Lentchitza. The Russians from the Cracow front, moving north, cut the communications of this column, but the Russians from the Warsaw front did not envelope General Francois' force, which after a desperate dash, reached safety.

The German line, after two weeks of fighting, extends from Miava, Plotzk, Gostynin, Kutno and Lentchitza to a point west of Lodz. The Russians have retaken Piotrkow, Brzeziny, Glowno and Gumbinen. It is not clear what permanent strategic advantage the Germans expect from the present invasion of Poland, unless it is to push the attack on Warsaw, which seemingly is not attainable. In the meantime the complete separation of the German from the Austrian armies appears to have weakened the latter. The Russians having forced the passage of the Raba river and taken Berchia, are approaching Cracow from the south. If Cracow falls the apparently unprotected condition of the Austro-German frontier would expose industrial Silesia to a Russian invasion. Hence the present German attempt seems to be a makeshift, because Russia appears to be able to push the campaign on Cracow and at the same time have sufficient forces to meet the Germans in the north.

PETROGRAD, November 30.—Princess Shakhovskaya, the first woman aviator to be commissioned for war service by the Russian government, left for the front to-day. She will join the northwestern army, operating in East Prussia. Princess Shakhovskaya applied for a commission as an army aviator earlier in the war, but was refused because it was feared that if she were captured by the Germans they might decide she was not entitled to the rights of a soldier, and orders be issued that she be shot as a spy.

MADRID, Spain, November 30.—News of fresh outrages committed by the Germans on Spanish subjects in Belgium and Germany, will be the subject of a new interpellation in Parliament. It is plain that the news of the outrages printed recently have influenced public opinion in Spain against Germany, notwithstanding the fact that at the beginning of the hostilities there was a strong pro-German sentiment in certain elements of the population.

PARIS, November 30.—No changes along the battle line in Belgium or France were reported in to-day's official communique. It was declared that the Germans nearly everywhere remain on the defensive. Sporadic attacks only are the rule. "The enemy continues on the defensive in Belgium; we hold all our positions, and the enemy's cannon fire continues to slacken," the statement declares. "Attacks upon Bagatelle in the Argonne have been repulsed. Soissons has been subjected to fire from the enemy's artillery.

"On the Meuse heights a heavy fog prevails. The forest of Apremont was bombarded by the enemy without success and the situation in the Woevre district is unchanged."

INDIAN HERO WILL GET THE VICTORIA CROSS

Sole Survivor of Party of Fifteen Killed Ten Germans Before He Was Brought Down By a Bullet

HAS FIVE WOUNDS

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A Times' Boulogne despatch says: "Havildar Ganna Sing, of the Fifty-seventh Rifles, is the first Indian to be recommended for the Victoria Cross. He has arrived aboard an hospital ship, a bundle of splints and bandages, but very cheerful and full of heart. He has five bullet wounds. Havildar, with fifteen men of his regiment, was attacked in a trench before dawn. The Germans were stopped for some seconds by barbed wire entanglements and lost heavily before they broke through. In the hand to hand struggles that ensued, Havildar shot the German officer whose bullet grazed his head, and then took the German's sword and killed ten more before he was brought down by a bullet in the foot. "Otherwise," he said, "I should have killed more." Ganna Sing was the sole survivor of his party."

TRANSFERRED TO CYCLISTS

Three Peterboro' Boys Will Ride Gasoline Bikes at The Front

Pte Percy Gray of the 57th Regiment, who has been in Kingston with the 21st Battalion, is in the city visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gray, Brock Street, having obtained several days' leave of absence. Pte. Gray, with Privates Jarrett and McNab ,also of Peterborough, have been transferred from the 21st Battalion to the Cyclist Corps. The Kingston platoon of motor cyclists will go to Toronto on Wednesday and will take up quarters at the Exhibition grounds. Pte. Gray returns to Kingston to-morrow.

Rev. Mr. Connors Said Farewell

Yesterday morning the Rev. F. A. Connors, Pastor of the Park Street Church, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation. There was a good attendance and the Pastor took for his subject "Mutual Helpfulness." His sermon was a scholarly one and made a deep impression on the congregation. His subject in the morning was "The More Abundant Life," and on this theme he also preached an inspiring sermon. At this service Miss Lighthart rendered a very acceptable solo.

New Church Will Be Opened Dec. 6

The Church of the Immaculate Conception will be dedicated and formally opened on Sunday, December 6 by Bishop O'Brien who will celebrate Pontificial High mass at 10.30 a.m. Bishop Scollard of North Bay and former priest of St. Peter's Cathedral will preach. Rev. Father McShane, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Montreal, will preach in the evening. Father McShane was a classmate of Bishop O'Brien. He is an able speaker and has charge of one of the most important parishes in Montreal.

WILL THERE BE AN ELECTION IN THE SPRING ?

Indications Point to The Government Going to The Country Early Next Year.

PREPARING LITERATURE

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.—The latest political gossip is that the government is quietly laying plans for a Federal election early in the spring. From present intentions, so far as the government is concerned, a short session will be held, starting January, and the election will take place probably at the end of February. Already preparations are going forward for the contest. The city from day to day is full of Conservative members and candidates who are continually in conference with those members of the government to whom are entrusted the task of organizing and winning elections.

Campaign literature is being assiduously prepared at the government bureau and a tactfully prepared pamphlet purporting to answer the question, "why three dreadnoughts" has already been extensively circulated. In addition orders have been given for preparations of cartoons calculated to appeal to the electorate on behalf of the government. Organization preparations are also going forward at various centres.

Sentiment In Sweden With The Entente

Germany's Demands Have Aroused the People—Wanted Newspapers Suppressed

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent says that Germany has demanded that the Swedish Government suppress untriendly utterance against Germany in Swedish newspapers and has threatened reprisals in the event of non-compliance.

Telegraphing from Copenhagen, the Daily Mail's correspondent represents that Germany's declaration of wood as contraband of war has caused a tremendous revulsion of feeling in Sweden and Norway against Germany, and agitation for an understanding with Russia. Sweden's loss by reason of this declaration, as estimated by the correspondent, will amount to $15,000,000 a year.

"The temper of the Swedes," says the correspondent, "is such that they are discussing whether or not it would be advisable to send cargoes of wood to England through the Kattegat and Skager-Rak under escort of Swedish warships and defy the Germans to attack them. It is contended that Sweden, Norway and Russia could form a profitable commercial agreement which would be greatly to the advantage of themselves and the allies and to the disadvantage of the Germans."

ARE ANXIOUS TO GET TO THE FRONT AT ONCE

Veterans in the Canadian Contingent Are Becoming Weary of the Long Delay in Salisbury Camp

SOME ARE TRANSFERRING

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—Letters received here from the veterans of the South African and other wars with the First Canadian Contingent at Salisbury Plain, indicate that they are becoming weary of the long delay in getting to the front. One of the South African veterans who travelled to Valcartier at his own expense to enlist with the Strathcona Horse, writes that he did not do this with the idea of spending several months in a barracks, and that if the Canadian contingent does not go forward soon he proposes to apply for a transfer to a regular British cavalry regiment now at the front.

Presentation To Rev. Dean McColl

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held on Friday evening, and a very pleasant evening was spent by those present. An interesting paper on France and Russia was read by Mrs. Bruce Law, in which she cleverly dealt with the respective location, customs and languages of the two countries now so much before the public.

A splendid musical programme was rendered, the following taking part: Miss Simons, Miss Crough and Messrs. Legendre and Picard, the accompanists for the evening being Misses Doherty and Pierce.

The evening was brought to a close with a very pleasing presentation to the Very Rev. Dean McColl who for five years has been Hon. Pres. of the Society. The address, read by Mrs. L. B. Treacy, was accompanied by a beautiful leather chair, the gift of the ladies. The Rev. Dean spoke feelingly at the conclusion, thanking the ladies for their gift and also for their co-operation in the past and extending his good wishes for the future welfare of this flourishing society.

God Save the King.

Fire in Norwood High School

Was Checked in Time—Joists Were Burned Away

Examiner Special:

NORWOOD, Nov. 27 — The High School building by fire, recently. In being gutted by fire, recently. In some way the floor surrounding one of the registers in the laboratory caught fire and was smouldering quite extensively when discovered at noon by the Principal, who went to lock the door prior to leaving for dinner. Attention was attracted by smoke issuing from the room. The joist was burned away in one place, while two holes had also been burned in the floor. It is most fortunate the fire was discovered as soon as it was, or it might have assumed serious proportions during the noon hour when there would be few persons, if any around upstairs to notice it.

"The Final Triumph Will Be Ours"

"This is a War For Humanity" General Joffre Tells Special Correspondent---France Will do Her Duty to The Absolute and Until Final Success Crowns Her Efforts.

(By Wm. Phillip Simms, copyright 1914, by the United Press)

Examiner Special:

MEAUX, by auto to Paris, France, November 30.—"General Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, received me with other correspondents of the neutral countries appointed to make the tour of the battle front, at the city hall here to-day. He made a special trip from his headquarters for that purpose and in an interview stated the cause of France for the neutral countries of the world.

" 'France did not desire this war,' the commander of the French army said. 'It was thrust upon her, but now the nation is prepared for any sacrifice and she will do her duty to the absolute end until final success crowns her efforts.'

"General Joffre said we had undoubtedly been able to observe the excellent spirit of the troops at the front.

" 'I hope that you have been able to see all that you wished to see of our fighting forces,' he added and then he shook hands with us bidding us good bye. He repeated, 'This is a war for humanity, and the final triumph will be ours.'

"General Joffre is a man of action and not of words. His departure from headquarters to meet the party of newspaper men from neutral countries is therefore unprecedented. With occasional lightning like flashes, especially when he spoke of the triumph that must come to France, the eyes of General Joffre recalled those of Mark Twain in their kindly depths being stirred by passing emotion. General Joffre was clad in an extremely plain, simple uniform. He wore no decorations or ribbons denoting honours which have been accorded him, although he is the possessor of the most important decorations. The French army commander has an artistic hand. His fingers are tapering; his nails are well kept, but the commander in chief's duties at the front had prevented him from shaving for a couple of days. General Joffre received us cordially with dignity as befits his manner but without the slightest pose; he shook hands with a firm grasp, looking each one squarely in the ye. His gaze became searching. He talked directly at each one of his interviewers."

SALISBURY PLAINS, Eng., Nov. 30.—General orders at the camp of the First Canadian Contingent say that officers and men marrying since their enlistment or commissioning, need not apply for separation allowances, as they will not be granted.

AUSTRIA'S HEAVY LOSSES

PETROGRAD, November 30, via London. — On the basis of the reports received in Petrograd from Hungary it is stated here to-day that Austro-Hungarian casualties to date amount to 19,000 officers and 900,000 men.

Six hundred prisoners, seven guns and many wounded fell into Russian hands in yesterday's fighting to the west of Lowicz where the Russians took ten miles of German trenches between Glovno and Sobota, according to information received to-day through trustworthy sources.

Head Office In Peterboro'

Mr. P. A. Ferguson Will Commence Duties on Monday

Mr. P. A. Ferguson, who has been chief representative of the Dominion Life Assurance Company of Waterloo, Ont., in Lindsay, has been promoted to manager of the company for Central Ontario, with his main office in Peterborough.

Mr. Ferguson, for some time past has been considered as one of the leading business producers by his company and has undoubtedly paved his way for the position which he is now about to occupy. Mr. Ferguson's strong personality, coupled with his never-failing energy, backed by a sterling company, like the Dominion Life Assurance Company, will undoubtedly warrant him great success in his larger sphere of service. He will resume his new function to-morrow.

The office formerly occupied by Mr. George Leader on Hunter Street, opposite the Oriental Hotel, is being fitted up for occupation by the Dominion Life Assurance Company.

Italian tests of ploughing with electric motors demonstrated that it cost about half as much as if horses had been used, and about two-thirds as much as steam ploughing.

Shall The War Interfere With Peace Celebration?

Should the Hundred Years of Peace celebration between Canada and the United States and between Great Britain and the United States be abandoned because of the war This question has evoked a considerable amount of discussion both in Canada and the United States. In a circular just issued by the Canadian Peace Centenary Association the answer is given. The Association took the wise course of consulting the Executives of the British and American organizations and of requesting the opinion of a large number of leading men throughout Canada.

At a meeting held in Ottawa on August 19, last, the following resolution was passed:

"That the Association desires to record its opinion that, notwithstanding the present war there should be an appropriate celebration commemorative of the Hundred Years of Peace between the British Empire and the United States. The Association recognizes, however, that having regard for the very serious nature of events arising out of the war, it would be inexpedient to attempt at present, definite arrangements as to time and place for a celebration of an international character. With this exception it is decided that the Association proceed with its educational and other work as far as may be possible."

At this meeting letters were read from Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. One sentence of Sir Robert Borden's letter expresses his view clearly: "The project of marking in an appropriate manner the completion of a century of peace between the British Empire and the United States ought surely to command the widest sympathy. That terrible storm of war now sweeping Europe, the ravages of which reach even to the shores of this continent, brings into clearer relief the more excellent way which these two great powers have found and followed." Sir Wilfrid Laurier is also equally emphatic: "I am certainly of the opinion that the celebration should not be interfered with by the war. On the contrary, at this moment more than ever, it would be advisable that the American people and the Canadian people should give an example to the world of their unflinching and determined desire to maintain peace."

The Chairman of the American Committee wrote after conferring with his colleagues:

"If there was reason for holding a celebration over the historic fact of a century of peace, there is doubly the reason for celebrating peace in the light of the awful war in which Europe is engaged."

The New York "Times" asked editorially, "Why should the plan to celebrate a century of peace, between the two branches of the English-speaking race be deferred on account of the war in Europe, in which one of them is involved?" And continued, "it will be all the more appropriate that we and our British brothers shall call the attention of the world to the wonderful benefits that have followed the long uninterrupted reign of peace between us, and, so far as may be, to its causes."

From the opinions of leading public men the following may be quoted:

It is gratifying to know that the Canadian Peace Centenary Association is proceeding with its educational work, that literature is being prepared for the schools, that prizes will be offered for the best essays on Anglo-American relations, that church services will be held on February 14, next and that organization is being kept intact with a view to the holding of public festivities after the conclusion of the war. The relations between Canada and the United States for some years past have been more than friendly, and the attitude of a large majority of Americans towards Great Britain, in the conflict which has been thrust upon her by German greed and aggression, is such to-day, that if a great celebration between our neighbour and ourselves can be arranged, it will elicit the warmest enthusiasm on both sides of the boundary.

must, in union with her allies, definitely abolish its causes.

"Indecisive victory and a precarious peace would expose to-morrow the genius of France to fresh insults from that refined barbarism which assumes the mask of science the better to slake its instincts of domination.

"France will carry on to the end by a union of all her children and with the unflagging aid of her allies the work of European liberation now begun. And when she has completed the task she will find a fuller life of glory, concord and security."

The Presidential party afterwards left army headquarters for an extended tour of the battle-front.

DANDRUFF ON HEAD IN DRY CRUST

Hair Came Out. Scalp Itched and Burned. Scales Like Sawdust. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed In Six Weeks.

The Pas, Manitoba.—"Four years ago I began to lose my hair. It used to come out any time that I combed it. I think it was because my head was full of dandruff. Whenever I brushed it the scales flew off like saw-dust. My scalp also itched and burned and my head was like a dry crust. The dandruff showed very plainly.

"I applied several remedies but found no improvement till I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a few days I found a great difference so I continued with them six weeks and they completely healed me." (Signed) L. D. Lockwood, June 4, 1914.

RASH OVER BABY'S CHEST

99 Follis Ave., Toronto, Ont.—"From birth my baby grandson had a rash over his chest which prevented his sleeping and seemed to irritate him a great deal. They were a mass of tiny red pimples on his chest and arms. He was too young to scratch but was very cross and fretful.

"I used the samples of both Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they appeared to afford him relief immediately so I bought more. In three or four weeks he was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. L. Compton, May 23, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each with 32-p. Skin Book will be sent free upon request. Address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

WAR'S RICHEST PRIZE IS INDIA TO RUSSIAN EYES

So Sure of Winning is the Russian Bear That Constantinople, Her First Gateway, She Now Calls "Tsargrad," and She Sees the Fulfilmen of the Testament of Peter the Great.

With Turkey's entrance into the war a perilous undercurrent is struck beneath the ships of state of Britain and Russia, sailing ostensibly side by side in the calm waters of friendship and alliance, an undercurrent which will ebb and flow with the swift force gathered through one hundred and fifty years of opposing interests vital each to its own plans of expansion.

The undertow of a mighty river changeth not, and among the great nations the undertow of the stream of aspiration in expansion changeth not, the sublime passion of the creators of its first power stamping their purpose upon the nation's ambition with enduring vitality.

Russia is — officially — outraged at Turkey's entrance into the war, the ally of the two Kaisers, at a time when the Tsar's own allies, Britain and France, are not free to come to his assistance with the full quota of their reinforcements, and she must punish Turkey by himself. There are, however, members of the Turkish Government who profess to be equally outraged at Russia, intimating that Russian bribes accepted by renegade Turkish officers brought about the overt acts of hostility, the bombardment of Odessa without warning and the attack upon the Russian coast of the Black Sea, which forced the declaration of war.

Outraged—But Prepared.

The Tsar's Government, if outraged, was prepared up to the last detail, even regarding instructions to the Press Bureau, for this latest move in the war game, so advantageous to her ambitions. In less than a week the newspapers throughout the vast empire had learned that Constantinople had disappeared from the Russian map, that "Tsargrad" had taken its place. The suspicion of the bribery of Turkish officers by Russia can be borne with serenity now that Russit has the coveted chance to strike once more for the possession of Constantinople, the objective point of her expansion since Peter the Great made the semi-barbarous state into a great nation.

Ascending the throne when he was but seventeen, an uncouth giant in appearance and a cruel savage at heart, securing autocracy by the imprisonment of his mother and the torture of his brother, he found Russia a small congregation of Asiatic tribes almost cut off from the civilized world, with only the one seaport Archangel on the White Sea, which was sealed by ice against navigation during the greater part of the year; and he left Russia an empire, with ports on the Baltic, the Caspian, and the Black Seas, pushing out with unflagging persistency into Asia. The full realization of his dream, a far-stretching empire balanced between Europe and Asia, with Constantinople —the capital of the Caesars for eleven hundred years—as the capital of Russia, he left to his successors, with this injunction:

"Keep in mind that the commerce of India is the commerce of the world, and that he who can exclusively control it is the dictator of Europe."

Always "To Constantinople."

barbarous spirit and cruel methods.

The authenticity of Peter the Great's political testament addressed to the occupants of his throne has been questioned. But there can be no question that the plans he formulated are the plans to-day of Nicholas II., his ministry, his army and navy. The Russians have followed these plans for 300 years with Peter the Great's unbaffled by temporary defeats, returning anew to the attack without deviation from the main point of achievement, the occupation of Constantinople as the centre of an eastward advancing empire toward India.

Catherine the Great turned aside to accept from Frederick the Great of Prussia her share of Poland, the "door mat upon which she could step into Europe." But she did not forget to seize the Crimea from Turkey, to name one of her grandsons Constantine, nor with flaunting arrogance to set up in Moscow a gate called "On the Way to Constantinople" and another at the mouth of the Dneiper "Opening Toward Constantinople."

Britain has been steadily for 400 years pursuing the imperial policy of the Elizabethan statesmen, Cecil, Raleigh, Bacon and Walsingham, who lifted their country from its island obscurity to a position of commanding world-wide influence. The winning post of the race they set the nation to run was gained when Disraeli proclaimed Queen Victoria Empress of India in 1876, plucking the fruit of the tree planted in 1600 by Elizabeth when she chartered the East India Company. In between is the seventeenth century, which is the history of Britain's bitter rivalry with Spain and Britain's victorious onward march over her enemy's prostrate form, never again to rise in its full stature of former glory.

The eighteenth century is no less the history of Britain's herculean struggle with France and her increased importance and power at the cost of France, with Canada wrested from the weakened enemy and the death blow inflicted upon her imperial ambition at Waterloo one hundred years ago. These are stories finished to the concluding chapter. Spain is not sought as an ally by either side in the war of 1914, having so little to give. France, which in the eighteenth century under Napoleon I. was the conqueror of Europe, and could only be conquered because all of Europe joined with Britain against her—France to-day braves war with Germany because, in addition to Russia Great Britain is supporting her. The republic accepts with gratitude the alliance which Delcasse made so humbly with France's one-time rival, now so infinitely her superior.

The twentieth century will mark the history of the struggle between Great Britain and Germany for the command of the seas. It has but just begun.

India the Great Prize.

But the history of the nineteenth century, filled with the rivalry between Great Britain and Russia, as poignant and as relentlessly pursued on both sides as any rivalry in ancient or modern annals, its concluding chapter has never been written. Neither has vanquished the other. Neither has deviated one jot or tittle from the main issue. Both cannot win, because both aim at the same thing—Britain to keep India, Russia to wrest it from her and add it to her own possessions.

Russia has had Constantinople within her grasp more than once. The Tsar Nicholas I. obtained in 1833 from the Sultan Mohammed Ali the exclusive right of way through the Dardanelles. Great Britain, alarmed that such a short route to India was to be closed to her and opened before the Northern Bear, laboured feverishly until in 1841 Palmerston could command Russia to relinquish her prize. The Crimean War, in which Turkey had the assistance of Britain and France against the Tsar, left Nicholas unsubdued. His brother Alexander II. quietly extended his Asiatic frontiers across the Caucasus without war; then through a successful war he was able in 1871 to look forward to the day when Russia could once more call Constantinople her own.

It was a British fleet anchored in the Dardanelles within sight of the Russian fleet, and a British fleet anchored in Finnish waters within sight of St. Petersburg, which once more thwarted the Russian plans and returned Constantinople again to the Sultan.

But the Russian bear has been softly and stealthily moving eastward ever since, eastward toward India. Profuse with expressions of friendship for Great Britain, politely acknowledging again and again that "the Persian Gulf is a British lake," blandly conceding, when invited to do so, that "circumstances make it necessary for Great Britain to have exclusive control over Afghan affairs, Afghanistan lying next to India"; cordially assenting to the wisdom of keeping Tibet on the Indian northern frontier, an independent state; Russia has all the time secured for herself by bribery and secret pacts every right she has so glibly given to Great Britain, not only by word of mouth but by treaty, solemnly signed, sealed, and delivered.

Afghans March Against India.

It was only a few days after the declaration of war between Turkey and Russia, st November, that the Ameer of Afghanistan, Habibullah Khan, started to march against India with an army 170,000 strong. The announcement has since been made that the Ameer's object is war against Russia as well as Great Britain. It is inconceivable that Sir Edward Grey in London and Lord Hardinge, the Viceroy of India at Calcutta, should view it in that light. Afghanistan, nominally under the enforced protectorate of Great Britain, is in actuality as Russian as the Tsar's gold and the intrigues of his emissaries can make it.

It was in 1809, one hundred and five years ago, that Great Britain, discovering the project of the Tsar Alexander to invade India through Persia, began her first negotiations with the then Ameer of Afghanistan, and erected it as a buffer state between Persia and India, to be isolated from all European influence except the British. Russia made an official acknowledgment of her acquiesence and pledged herself to make her own communications with the Ameer only through the British. The historians had scarcely the time to record this fact about the presence of a Russian mission at Cabul, the Ameer's capital, brought about the First Afghan War of the British, 1838-1842. In 1868 Shir Ali Khan became Ameer through the assistance of the British, and the Governor-General of India supplied him with money and ammunition to protect his western frontiers against the Russians. But Russia so openly ruled at Cabul that the Second Afghan War of the British was precipitated in 1878. The Third Afghan War, 1879-1880, was led by Sir Frederick, later Lord Roberts (recently deceased), and he achieved such a brilliant victory over the Afghans at Kandahar that the name became linked for all time with his title.

But in 1880 the Russians succeeded in persuading the Afghans to elect as Ameer, Abdurrahman, whom the British had driven out of the country during the previous war. Lord Dufferin, then Governor-General of India, made a masterstroke in inducing Abdurrahman to visit him at Calcutta in 1885, and to accept British subsidies to reorganize his army and improve the civil administration of his country. This accomplished, the Ameer haughtily declined further British advice or British visits, either in Cabul or Calcutta, although not declining the allowance still regularly sent him from the Governor-General's treasury.

Thanks for Toys, but No Treaty.

His son Habibullah Khan, the present Ameer, cannot be accused of duplicity by the British. He has remained coldly indifferent to all their overtures, thereby probably incurring the displeasure of his friend the Tsar, who at frequent intervals, "when invited to do so," glibly acknowledges Great Britain's right to exclusive control over Afghan affairs. The Ameer's reception of the British mission sent to Cabul in 1904, headed by Sir Louis Dane, Foreign Secretary at Calcutta, would furnish material for a roaring farce. Short, stout, and sallow, bearded like the pard, with an active intelligence and a vast vanity, the Ameer received with condescending aloofness the presents so carefully selected by Calcutta, a $3,000 motor for his own use and a cinematograph for his harem among them, his childish delight over the new toys escaping in spite of himself. The British presented the draft of their new treaty with confidence. It was curtly declined, and the Ameer offered one of his own. Dane had to wait six weeks to communicate with Calcutta and London, and during that period the Ameer, to avoid the dangers of succumbing to the blandishments of his guests, took to his bed with an attack of gout lasting until the hour of the British departure, and so severe that he could see no one but his own household, each member of whom is known to be in the pay of Russia. When Dane received authority to sign the Ameer's treaty the Ameer had changed his mind and would only renew the declaration of friendship signed by his father. The British left, to the orchestral accompaniment of seven gramophones simultaneously discharged in wildly discordant glee by the ladies of the harem.

In 1907 the Ameer made his memorable visit to Calcutta, the first acceptance of British hospitality since the visit of his father, in 1885, appeasing the discontent of his pro-Russian subjects by posting up declaration that he had abrogated the treaty signed with Dane.

Russian intrigue has accomplished in Tibet the same preponderating influence as in Afghanistan. In Outer Mongolia, which rests its northern border against Siberia, the Russians have constructed one of the finest roads in the world, seven hundred miles long from Siberia south and eastward, the shortest route for the Tsar's Siberian troops to get to India through that part of China furthest away from remonstrance from Pekin, building this road almost to completion before the enterprise was suspected by the other Powers. The integrity of Outer Mongolia has been agreed to by Russia, a fact which, however, does not prevent the Tsar from keeping a surprisingly large number of soldiers in the country and having at Petrograd a confidential emissary from the ruler of Mongolia, a Russian stationed in Mongolia for his own Government for many years.

The Prize of War.

India covers an area of 1,766,000 square miles, about equal to the whole of Europe without Russia, and contains a population more than double the historic 120 millions which obeyed the rule of Imperial Rome. Its revenue in 1913 was close to 500 million dollars. It is Britain's richest Imperial prize. What is known of the Russian efforts to obtain it is learned only through British sources, from former Government officials stationed in India and travellers attempting to awaken Britain to her danger.

The Tsar's representatives dog the footsteps of even the most distinguished travellers with passports from London who are curious to study Afghanistan, Tibet, or Outer Mongolia, overwhelming them with courtesy, refusing to be parted from them, but discouraging them, to return. The Russians themselves say nothing.—New York World.

JOFFRE IS HONOURED

Receives Medaille Militaire, the Greatest Recognition France Can Offer for Military Exploits

ABOVE LEGION OF HONOUR

PARIS, Nov. 28.—President Poincare has conferred upon General Joffre the Medaille Militaire, the highest honour that can be conferred on a General. The presentation was made in the presence of Premier Viviani, Minister of War Millerand, the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and the members of the General Staff.

In the making of the presentation President Poincare said the simple medal, which was the emblem of the highest military virtues, and which was worn with equal pride by illustrious Generals and humble soldiers, was a mark of the nation's gratitude to their Commander-in-chief. M. Poincare added that he associated with him in his sincere congratulations General Joffre's devoted collaborators of the General Staff and the magnificent armies of France.

"The horrors of this sanguinary warfare," M. Poincare continued, "will not damp the enthusiasm of the troops. The grievous losses suffered by the nation will not disturb its constancy nor shake its will. France exercised all means to spare humanity in this unprecedented catastrophe. She knows that to avoid its recurrence she

NO CHANGE IN MOTHER.

No matter how old the children may be,
In the mother's heart they age always young,
The lullaby soft, or the story gay
Always the babes to which she sung
Related, to charm the pain away,
Of hurt received in childish play.

The boy at her side may grow bearded and grey,
Her girl the mother of children may be—
My boy and my girl, you'll hear her say,
The same as when babes they lay on her knee—
Their griefs her griefs, their joy her joy,
Her love is given without alloy.

No matter how old the children become,
A welcome is sure to meet them, when
On a longer or shorter absence from home
They gladly return to their mother again—
In anticipation she welcomes with joy
The return to home pleasures, her girl or boy.

The world may treat them with cold scorn,
Stern fate their dearest hopes destroy,
But the mother's heart is always warm
With pity and love for girl and boy:
She folds them close in her sheltering arm,
And defies the world to do them harm.

$288,000,000

That sum of money is paid out in wages every year by Canadian factories—if they are running at normal production.

One half of it, or $144,000,000, is spent for food—mainly farm produce—vegetables, dairy products, flour, meats, etc.

If that buying power is kept up to its normal state, certainly the farmer has nothing to fear in the way of "hard times."

The way to keep it normal is to keep the factories busy, keep these people employed.

The way to do that is to buy nothing but "Made in Canada" goods.

It's more than patriotism, it's more than helping the workers—it's helping yourself.

Investigate Canadian-made goods every time you make a purchase—and if they're just as good remember that to buy them is helping your own market.

Sanitary Inspector Spence Secures Diagnosis of Chicken's Liver

A few days ago, Sanitary Inspector Spence forwarded a chicken's liver to Prof. Edward of the Ontario Agricultural College for diagnosis. The Inspector was of the opinion that the chicken was afflicted with tuberculosis.

To-day Mr. Spence received a reply from the bacteriologist expert, confirming his opinion. Mr. Spence also reported on a turkey that he believed to be afflicted with the blackhead disease. Prof. Edward would not submit a positive diagnosis of this unless the liver was forwarded to him. He said that the symptoms pointed to blackhead. As to the Inspector's inquiry re marketing of fowl suffering from blackhead, Prof. Edward said that he knew of no regulations prohibiting the marketing of a blackhead turkey. In fact he did not believe that the disease was transmissable to the human family under any conditions.

PRIZE WINNERS IN ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

At the July Entrance examinations held in Peterborough there were three prizes open to all candidates who wrote in Peterborough.

The first prize was a gold watch, donated by J. H. Burnham, M.P., and was won by Isabel Baird of the Queen Alexandra school.

The second and third prize winners were the boy and girl standing next in rank to the winner of the first prize. To each of these was given five dollars in gold. These prizes were donated by Dr. Burnham, and the winners were Ralph Turner and Muriel Moran of the Central school.

In addition to three above-mentioned prizes a prize was given to the pupil standing highest in each of the five Public schools that sent candidates up to the Entrance examination. The winners of these prizes were:

Central school—Margaret Connal.
Queen Mary—Norman Green.
Queen Mary—Nomarn Green.
King Edward—Wilfrid Fuller.
King George—Harold Miller.

The donors of these prizes were:—Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. H. Hill, E. A. Peck, W. G. Morrow, V. Eastwood and B. F. Ackerman.

BUTTER FROM SIBERIA

Now Being Shipped to England Through Panama Canal.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Siberian butter is now being shipped to England through the Panama Canal, it was stated among butter dealers here today.

Siberia is one of the world's greatest butter producers, and has marketed the product largely in England and Germany. The German market is now closed to them, and the usual water routes to England also are closed. In consequence it is said that the Siberians are shipping their butter overland to Port Arthur, Manchuria and across the Pacific to the canal.

WILL MANAGE BULK OF THE COX FORTUNE

TORONTO, Nov. 27—Mr. H. C. Cox heretofore vice-president of the Provident Investment Company, has been appointed president, and Mr. A. H. Cox, managing director, has been appointed vice-president and managing director. These changes were necessitated through the death of the late president, Mr. E. W. Cox.

Mr. Alfred H. Cox, the vice-president, is a son of the late A. A. Cox, of Peterborough, and was born in that Town on April 7th, 1884. He is a nephew of the late Senator Geo. A. Cox.

In 1900 Mr. Cox entered the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company as a clerk. In 1907 the late Senator Cox secured his services to manage a number of his extensive personal investments, and the confidential relations thus brought about afforded him excellent opportunities to fit himself for his present position.

FILIPINOS EAT 3,000 TONS OF GRASSHOPPERS A YEAR

Keep Down Insect Plague by Driving Them Into Tank—Dry and Sell Them.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 25. — "Dried grasshoppers are used as food in the Philippine Islands," said Henry Jackson Waters, President of the college, in a talk before the Agricultural Society in the Kansas State Agricultural College. "Three thousand tons of grasshoppers were marketed in Manila in a year. Some good and tempting dishes are prepared from them.

"There is a grasshopper plague every ten years in the Philippines," says President Waters, "and the problem of combating the grasshoppers in a warm climate like the Philippines is more difficult than in countries where cold weather serves as a check.

"There are many acres of unsettled country which serve as breeding places for the grasshoppers. The method used in capturing the grasshoppers is to organize a drive. A large shallow tank is constructed which has wings of galvanized iron. The tank is filled with kerosene. The natives then start the drive three or four miles away and close in gradually, driving the grasshoppers before them into the tank. The grasshoppers are then dried and sent to market."

PRE-DREADNOUGHT WARSHIP BULWARK IS BLOWN UP

British Battleship Destroyed by Explosion in Her Magazine and Nearly all the Crew Were Drowned

ONLY TWELVE SAVED

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 26.—IT IS OFFICIALLY ADMITTED THAT THE BRITISH BATTLESHIP BULWARK HAS BEEN SUNK OFF SHEERNESS, ENGLAND, AND ONLY TWELVE SAVED OUT OF A CREW OF ABOUT EIGHT HUNDRED.

According to the explanations given by Winston Churchill in the Commons this afternoon, the Bulwark was blown up as a result of an explosion in her magazine. The accident took place in the River Medway, one of the estuaries of the Thames river, about thirty-six miles from London.

The Bulwark was in the Formidable class, built in 1902. She was 431 feet long, and her armament included four twelve-inch, twelve six-inch, and many other guns.

It is reported here that two German submarines have been hemmed in, in Sheerness basin close to where the Bulwark was blown up. The Bulwark was being equipped for war service when she was blown up.

According to the navy list Captain Guy Schlater was in command of H. M. S. Bulwark. In London to-day there are many rumours concerning German spies on British warships. To further questioning to-day in the Commons, Churchill said his best information was that an internal magazine had caused the disaster.

All London was shaken by the report that German submarines had been found near the Bulwark. Sheerness is but 35 miles from London and directly down the Thames.

Churchill announced that the Bulwark was blown up at 7:50 this morning. Vice-Admirals and Rear-Admirals were present at the time he said and reported that they were convinced the disaster was due to an internal explosion. "They reported," said Churchill, "that the explosion rent the ship asunder. There was apparently no upheaval or water. When the smoke cleared away the Bulwark had entirely disappeared."

A special inquiry has been ordered to be instituted to-morrow.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The German submarine terror was upon London this afternoon. Between 700 and 800 men were lost in the destruction of the Bulwark. The entire complement was on board when a terrific explosion rent the Bulwark from bow to stern. The band was on deck playing when the detonation split the heavens, sending up a vast column of smoke and blowing men and parts of the ship high in the air. When the smoke cleared away the Bulwark had entirely disappeared beneath the waters. It was Churchill who was forced to announce that in the appalling disaster only twelve men out of seven or eight hundred on board the ship were saved, although they were in their home water when stricken. "The loss of the ship doesn't sensibly effect our military position," said the First Lord, "but I regret that only twelve men were saved. I think the members of the House would wish me to express in their behalf the deepest sympathy and sorrow with which the news was heard in the House, and the great sympathy that is felt for those who lost relatives and friends." These remarks of Churchill were received with subdued cheering.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th, 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FORD PROFIT SHARING HAS WORKED WONDERS

Employes Are Buying Homes, Adding to Savings and Increasing Life Insurance

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—At the end of the first year of the Ford profit-sharing plan with employees, every workman in the great plant is either banking savings or purchasing home sites at the rate of $40.76 per month. Homes to the value of $5,000,000 have been sold Ford workmen, of which amount $1,200,000 has been paid. The gain per man in bank deposits is 130½ per cent., in life insurance 86 per cent., in homes owned 87½ per cent. Eleven hundred foreign-born employees in the Ford establishment are being taught English by fellow employees, without compensation, and the spirit of co-operation has turned the plant into a great hive of industry.

HOW MR. NOBLE KELLY MADE A DISCOVERY AND ASSISTED IN RETURNING 19 GEESE

Mr. Noble Kelly, one of Bridgenorth's most prominent young men, was instrumental in returing a flock of geese to their owner yesterday. The circumstances were somewhat peculiar, but are interesting enough to warrant a narrative of the incident. Nineteen apparently wild geese flew down Chemong Lake yesterday (Thursday) afternoon and came to rest on the ice just out from Hopwood's cottage. Mr Kelly, fresh from the deer trails back of Ketchecum, couldn't resist the temptation. Up through the park he went with his gun until he arrived opposite the flock. His first shot left a dead goose on the ice, and the problem of bringing it to shore was solved by a youth who was light enough to tread the two hundred yards of ice in safety. The goose proved to be a tame one, and it was afterwards learned that the flock belonged to Harry Bell on the 12th Concession of Smith. Three weeks ago their number totalled twenty-three. They had been just the average Alice-sit-by-the-fire geese, contented to waddle around the farm, until they got two or three dollars worth of fat under their feathers. They had displayed no propensities to wander, and in the aggregate represented $60 of Pettrborough's festive money.

Came the big winds of the changing seasons that whistled across the farm lands with the rush of a "Beautiful Bertha." The geese spread their wings to prevent being carried away, but their protection proved their undoing. They soared with the gale and kept going until they reached Chemong. During the three weeks' wandering they covered seven miles. In the end they were discovered by Noble Kelly's marksmanship. They were lured to the Ennismore shore and rounded up, 19 of the original 23 being returned to Mr. Bell. Mr. Kelly's prize was thin from its flight far from the base of supplies.

GERMANY TO BLEED

Fights so Well Defensively That's Impossible to Figure How Long She Will Stay in the Game—Wonderful System of Trenches is Secret—Far Superior to French System.

TO DEATH SLOWLY

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(By mail to New York)—Germany will have to "bleed to death" slowly, drop by drop. She fights so well defensively that there is no telling how long she can stay in the game.

Competent, impartial military observers here are coming more and more to the belief that the Germans are prepared to hold on indefinitely and to fall back by inches rather than by miles. The secret lies in the wonderful German system of trenches. Even French military experts now admit France is far behind Germany in the art of concealing and protecting her armies in the field.

German officers have studied every recent war profoundly. No war has been too small for Germany to ignore. She has found something in all of them to put into practical use.

The French army, since 1870, has made use of the three usual means of concealing infantry—sitting, kneeling and standing room trenches. The individual soldier, advancing a few yards at a time under fire, makes use of a shallow, individual trench which he digs himself, throwing the dirt in front and placing his knapsack on top of the dirt. A company of 250 men carries 80 picks and 80 short-handled spades attached to the knapsacks. It takes several minutes to get at these utensils.

This means of entrenchment has been found to be insufficient and dangerous. The practice of placing knapsacks in front of the individual trenches makes it easy for the enemy to count the exact number of men with whom they have to deal.

The German plan is different. The German trenches are made as invisible as possible, and in series. There is an advanced trench two feet wide by five deep. The excavated earth is sprinkled about so that from a distance of 300 yards the trench is invisible. Back of it and connected by zigzag runways is a second trench the same size as the first. The runways permit the Germans to fall back without exposing themselves. These trenches are 100 yards apart. A third trench, 100 yards behind the second, is carefully constructed. In it are the machine guns, under turrets. It is usually covered with green logs placed crosswise. On the logs earth and bushes are placed to conceal the trench.

But the Germans do not stop even here. As soon as this series of three trenches is completed, even though they are under fire at the time, a second series, far more elaborate, is being constructed. This second series of trenches is skilfully and intricately protected not only against infantry attack but from exploding shrapnel as well, so as to be almost equal to permanent outer defences of a fortified place.

It must be said, however, that since the war began the French have profited by viewing the German trenches from which they have driven the enemy. For this reason the war has developed into a series of sieges, or it might be called a war of the trenches; for frequently these entrenched positions are so close to each other that Galicia and Teuton soldiers pass many moments "kidding" each other. "Sniping" has become the pastime of the day.

Blood of Iron. Nerves of Steel

The Hero of Waterloo an Example of the Red Blooded Leaders of Men Who Have Moulded the British Empire.

Red Blood is the foundation of health, strength, vigor and courage. When the blood is rich the nerve cells, wasted by work and worry, are quickly replaced, and the high-water mark of health and vigor is maintained.

With an abundance of red corpuscles in the blood you can defy colds, contagious diseases and the ills and pains which accompany sudden changes of temperature.

The remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a restorative of exhausted nerves and a run-down condition of the system is due to its influence as a creator of new, rich, red blood. It is a true tonic, a builder of cells and tissues, and for this reason is both thorough and lasting in the benefits which it bestows.

Mr. R. B. Hillman, Purbrook, Muskoka, Ont., writes:—"About four years ago I was all run down and could not work, and as to writing a letter, I could not do it on account of my hand shaking so badly. My nerves were unstrung and I was troubled with a nervous breakdown. I could not sleep soundly, and would start up so suddenly as to almost jump out of bed. My kidneys were bad, too, and I had awful pains in the back all day. I doctored with our family doctor, but he did not seem to know what I needed. I was recommended to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and could sleep well three nights after starting the use of the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I take great pleasure in recommending these medicines, as I have proved that they do all that is claimed for them."

ENNISMORE'S CONTRIBUTION

Raised $110 at Patriotic Concert Which Has Been Given to the Local Fund.

A SPLENDID EFFORT

Ennismore, Ont., Nov. 25th, 1914.

Last Sunday after mass, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick spoke on the war, the magnitude of the task, which the Allies are trying to accomplish, and the necessity of every British subject, irrespective of creedor nationality, uniting against the common enemy of human liberty. Father Fitzpatrick quoted passage after passage, from Count Von Bernhardi's work, "Germany in the Next War," to show the false principles underlying the military spirit of Germany, her anticipation of just such alliances as this war, has brought about, and her thorough and systematic preparation for the accomplishment of her ambitious aims, viz., "World Power." Father Fitzpatrick then appealed to his people, to stand firm by that flag which has brought liberty, prosperity and independence to British subjects, in every quarter of the world, which has ever respected the rights and possessions of other nations, and which for us Canadians, is the emblem of true peace, concord and solidarity.

A concert was then announced for Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th, and the large enthusiastic gathering in the Township Hall clearly evidenced the good spirit, loyalty and devotion of the people of Ennismore, to the worthy cause for which Britain and her allies are sacrificing the lives of so many of her young men.

The receipts of the concert reached the handsome sum of $110, which was handed over to the committee of the Patriotic Fund, Peterborough.

This was the first Patriotic Concert held in the township, but if necessity demands, others of a similar nature will be held, for the same laudable purpose.

OLD MAN ROBBED OF HIS WIFE

The Alleged Usurper Has a Wife Living in Peterboro'—Story Told to the Police.

LINDSAY, Nov. 26.—To be driven out of his home and robbed of his partner in life was the experience of an old man named Young, a former resident of Bobcaygeon, according to the story told Chief of Police Short.

Young, who is 78 years of age, went to the United States fourteen years ago to live with his daughter, who resided in a small town in New Mexico. While there his wife died, and a short time afterwards he fell in love with a young woman (a resident of Bobcaygeon). They resided happily together until three years ago, when his health failed him and his wife (who is forty years his junior) advised him to go back to his daughter, where he would regain health and strength. He had no money, however, but his wife loaned him $25 and also advised him to settle his affairs before leaving as he might never come back. He accordingly deeded the property to his wife and left for the States. In his absence another man (a well known resident of Bobcaygeon), went to live with his wife and usurped the old man's rights. The wife of man No. 2 had left him and settled in Peterborough, so he took up with Young's wife. When Young returned to the Village there was no welcome for him in his own home, so he had to shift for himself. He secured work with a farmer who finally threw him over on the Town of Lindsay.

Chief Short took the old man up to Mr. J. R. McNeillie with a view to having him placed in the House of Refuge. He would like to get back to his daughter but has no money to pay his way.

THE TURK AS AN IDEAL WARRIOR

FIGHTING QUALITIES of the TURK

By Richard G. Conover.

The sword is the key of heaven and of hell. A drop of blood shed in the cause of God, a night spent in arms, is of more avail than two months of fasting and prayer. Whoever falls in battle, his sins are forgiven.

Turkish battle incentive from the Koran.

Siege of Constantinople. Ancient Drawing of a World Disturbing Event.

Ready for the Bulgarians at Hadamkiou. From "The Balkan War," By Hilaire Great (Genl. Maynard Co., Boston, 1913).

JUDGE the battling possibilities of the Turkish soldier by five martial centuries of the Janizary. You must do this to appraise the war value of the Sultan's fighters in comprehensive entirety. Moslem valor reached its apex in the accomplishments of this ideal warrior of Islam, and not since Murad IV., the last of the army leading Sultans of Turkey killed with his own hand a gauntlet casting giant of the Persians, at the siege of Bagdad in 1639, has there been a noteworthy victory epoch under the banner of star and crescent. But they who measure military performance surely declare the fighting spirit of the soldier of Turkey is dormant, not dead.

For the Sultan's battler has not failed altogether to prove his mettle during the last three centuries. Twice of recent years he has performed with his old-time brilliancy, vigor and pluck. Gallantly he drove the Russian before him at the defense of Silistria, at the outbreak of the Crimean War. And Europe rang with plaudits when, under Osman Pacha, at the siege of Plevna in 1877 he showed there was plenty of lusty "fightability" in him.

But not often has he been victor since his decadence first began, and his defeats seldom have earned him the solace of praise that often goes to the valiant vanquished. His triumphs mostly have been what the world has deemed massacres and persecutions, in Balkan and Grecian territory, where he has fought with overwhelming odds in his favor. Still, apart from this, almost every expanding nation of Europe during the last one hundred years has taken a whack at him and found him willing to fight. Near the seraglio in Constantinople there may have been a sluffer and diplomatic faker under the fallen fez, but on the firing line the Turkish soldier meant business and met death bravely.

The Janizary fighter represented the standing army of Turkey from the time his famous [illegible] was created by Sultan Orkhan in 1358 until its tragic annihilation by Sultan Mahmoud II. in 1826. Ottoman glory and Ottoman shame were due to his sword very often during these centuries. The glory was won on many famous battlefields and in the conquest and annexation of territory. The shame attended palace rebellion, where Sultans were deposed and murdered according as the Janizary fighting machine desired. They were a counterpart descendant of the famous Praetorian Guard that made and unmade many a Roman emperor.

And, curiously enough, for three hundred years not a single Janizary was a native born Turk. This crack corps, upon which the fate of the Ottoman empire so often depended, was formed and continued during the years 1358 to 1650 by enrolment of boys of the best physique from Christian families of conquered countries. Not a single Turkish youth was admitted to the renowned corps until Mohammed IV. altered its exclusiveness by a radical promulgation. He decreed in 1636 that no more Christian children were to be added to the organization, the recruits being restricted to the offspring of former Janizaries and Moslem appointees.

The Christian boys enrolled in the corps were taken very young and added at the exact rate of one thousand every year. They were forced to become Moslems. Their training as soldiers was very severe. Discipline, fortitude, endurance and spirit were inculcated with the vigor and rigor of the ancient Greeks. They were kept constantly at martial exercises from their tenderest years. They were allowed no rewards in land or territorial concession. Their skill in the profession of arms procured them rapid advancement. This great corps, cut off from all kindred, possessed a strong community of interest, and they became the pride, the pet and the scourge of the empire, according to circumstance. In time of war other Turkish troops were of course added to the army, but the Janizaries were the flower of the Sultan's forces.

It was at the fateful siege and fall of Constantinople, May 29, 1453, that the Turk reached the most famous point of his fighting history and the Janizary his greatest glory. For fifty-three days artillery hammered at the double walls of the doomed city, until at last they were a heap of ruins. History has it that thirty-one Janizaries were the first to mount the outward fortifications. They were thirty picked soldiers of the famous corps, headed by one Hassan, a Janizary of gigantic strength and stature. Scimitar in one hand and buckler in the other, this ideal of the fighting Turk pressed toward one of the breaches made by Mohammed's cannon. Eighteen Janizaries perished before they had followed Hassan fifty feet. Onward the remainder of the band pressed through the battered breach and up to the summit of the inner fortifications. There a swarm of the besieged seized the giant Janizary and hurled him from the ramparts. He rose on elbow and again rushed up the death-dealing slope. An avalanche of darts and [illegible] him and his few followers not already slain. But the picked band of thirty-one had shown that a successful assault might be made at this fatal point, and within a few minutes a dozen companies of Janizaries covered the walls and towers. From there, heading the common army, they rushed through the breaches of the inner walls and were soon in the city's centre. Constantinople, the capital of the Eastern Roman Empire, thus fell one thousand years after Rome and the empire of the West, dating from the Caesars.

Sultan Mohammed himself rode his war steed as close as possible to the assaulting point, and with iron mace in hand, surrounded by the Janizaries that he reserved for decisive occasions, directed and impelled the battle. As assault after assault failed and the outer ditch was filled with Turkish dead he gave the word to the commander of the chosen corps. The Janizaries drew themselves up, flashed their scimitars and with invincible ranks pressed to victory. Hassan and his thirty bedged the first dash at the wall. The honor was grumblingly accorded them and the Byzantine capital fell.

At the battle of Maritza, fought in 1364, the Janizary gave an excellent account of himself. The Turks were scattered over a wide range of territory adjacent to the Maritza River and an expedition comprising Hungarian, Servian, Bosnian and Wallachian armies advanced on him in numbers of at least two to one. But the Christians, assured of victory, spent the night before the battle in revelry at which they were surprised. It was the first encounter between Turk and Slav. Hand to hand combats were the order of the conflict, and again the Janizaries outfought their enemies. Thousands fled on foot to escape their dread pursuers and perished in the Maritza.

Again, at the battle of Kossovo, the soldier of Turkey, led by the famous trained corps, inflicted an overwhelming defeat upon Serbs, Bosnians, Poles and Magyars, June 15, 1389. The Christians gave ground at noon and were pursued by the Janizaries and Sultan Murad I. himself, brandishing a mighty iron mace and felling all who opposed him. In the moment of victory a Servian warrior, Milosh Kobilovich, gained access to Murad's tent and plunged a dagger in the Sultan's body. He was torn to pieces by the victorious Janizaries returning from their chase of the defeated allies.

In 1394 all of Christian Europe arrayed itself against Islam. At the battle of Nicopolis, fought September 24, 1395, the Turk defeated all of the nations pitted against him, and the Janizary demonstrated that he, indeed, was the pick and the ideal of all Turkish fighting men. At this battle a corps of French knights charged the Sultan's front, driving in his outer lines. They did not know it was always a Turkish practice to place the weakest troops in the van. Hacking right and left, the chivalry of France rode over the bodies of those they had cut down until they reached the Janizaries, whose corps formed the front line of the main army of 40,000 lances. Immediately they were enveloped and cut to pieces.

At the battle of Angora between the Turks and Timur, or Tamerlane, "the Tartar"—who, by the way, was also a Turk and a leader of Turkish fighters—in 1402, Sultan Bayezid, of Bajazet I., was utterly defeated, only the Janizaries and a Servian contingent giving any good account of themselves. The Sultan was taken prisoner and carried about in a triumph pageant in a barred litter. Again at the battle of Varna, fought November 10, 1444, the soldier of Turkey proved his bravery. At first the Serbs, Hungarians and Bosnians were successful and Sultan Murad II. turned his horse to retire from the field. One of his commanders implored him to fight the battle out. He had wavered but a moment, however, and he urged his Janizaries to one more supreme effort. They won the day, their leader cutting off the King of Hungary's head and carrying it on his lance to mark a rallying point.

The next noteworthy fighting of the soldier of Turkey was at the battle of Chaldiran, 1514, in which a Persian army was decisively defeated. The chief commander of the Janizaries, Sinan Pacha, induced the Sultan Selim I. to fight for delay rather than go immediately into battle after a march across the desert. When the battle was on he purposely retreated, tempting the Persians into a fatal pursuit. The Janizaries held them until they opened ranks and revealed their artillery, which played upon the advancing army with great slaughter.

History records no battle record more interesting than the defeat of the celebrated fighting Mamelukes of Egypt by the Janizaries of Selim I. Both corps had a proud record and a high spirit. In many a sanguinary field they had been victors. At the battle of Reydaniya, in 1517, the two bodies met. The Mamelukes mistook the Janizary chief Sinan Pacha for the Sultan, cut their way to him and speared him to death. But this splendid cavalry foe was overwhelmed by Janizaries, cooked by Selim's artillery. Egypt fell into the hands of Turkey.

In 1522 Suleyman, or Solomon I., the Magnificent, besieged and took Rhodes after severe fighting in which at close range the Turkish soldier performed many heroic deeds. Belgrade had been taken in a preliminary campaign. Then the Sultan found his interests with respect to arranging the administration of his kingdom were not to be easily carried out because of the Janizaries. They liked not peace. War and booty they must have. So they began to mutiny. The Sultan tried a bold course at first, slaying two of the leaders of the insurrection with his own hands. But he had to pacify them with a large bribe and a declaration of war against Hungary.

So in August 29, 1526, the battle of Mohacs was fought between Turkey and Hungary. The Sultan won and through the victory of his soldiers Hungary became a Turkish province for 140 years. After several unsuccessful attempts to take Vienna, Suleyman the Magnificent died in his tent during a battle, leaving his kingdom at the very pinnacle of its grandeur and prosperity. After him came martial decay, principally because the personal courage and valiant spirit that had characterized all of the Sultans from the founding of the empire were not to be found in his successors. The very nature of the nation demanded unusual wisdom and energy to insure its continuance.

The Janizaries lost their fighting character and could not be trusted to wage war as of old. They were more open to bribes. They were not instructed in the new war tactics employed by other nations they encountered. Their commanders were no longer appointed through merit. Their Sultans no longer led them to battle. Before their final dissolution, however, there came one or two gleams of former glory to brighten the darkness of decadence.

Murad III. was the last fighting Sultan to lead the soldier of Turkey against the enemy. In the ninth year of his reign there was a mutiny of the Janizaries. They demanded the head of his Grand Vizier and sixteen others. He was in a "night box" and forced to order the slaying of his chief aids. When he was able to resume his authority he gathered some loyal troops and sent the Bosphorus based on its tide the bodies of hundreds of Janizaries. The Sultan himself walked the streets, often carrying out his own death sentences. In 1638 Murad marched to retake Bagdad, recovered by the Persians after its capture of some years before. The garrison made a desperate resistance, but Murad led in person and stood guard in the trenches. The Janizaries, shamed or encouraged by his example, performed old time prodigies of valor. The Persians sent out a burly champion to taunt and defy the besiegers. History has it that Murad clove him from crown to chin. The chain armor he wore is still preserved in Constantinople. Bagdad fell, to remain in Turkish hands to modern days. At the head of his Janizaries Murad entered Constantinople amid the shouts of his people. The next year, at the age of twenty-eight, the last warrior Sultan died.

From here on calamity follows calamity. The Grand Viziers did most of the leading or the ordering of the movements of the Turkish soldier. The Sultans stayed at home. The Turk fought hard at Vienna, but unavailingly. At the battle of Zenta, against the Austrians, in 1697, 20,000 Turkish soldiers were slain and 10,000 drowned. But they fought gamely.

Then came the final ringing down of the curtain on the famous Janizaries. It was Mahmoud II. who took this most radical step in defiance of all Turkish tradition. The Janizaries had got beyond control. They had deposed and murdered Ahmed III., who ascended the throne in 1703. They forced Selim III. to abdicate after his ascension in 1789 had not brought advantage to them. His successor reigned only a few months because of their power. They had fallen from their high military plane. So bigoted and jealous of their privileges had they become that revolt was looked for over night if they got peeved.

Mahmoud II. sized them up exactly and determined to get rid of them. He had a Master of Ordnance whose proper name was Ibrahim, but who was more commonly called Kara Gehennin or Black Hell. To him Murad whispered what he wished done. The Janizaries were ordered out for drill and review. The hour didn't suit them, so they upset their camp kettles, which was their hurry call to revolt. But Mahmood unfurled the Sacred Standard of the Prophet, called on all true believers to assemble near him, and told Black Hell to begin. Hundreds of Janizaries fell and the remainder of the corps retreating to the barracks Black Hell pointed his cannon at them—some six thousand men in all—and blew the building to bits. Those who did not perish in this way fled to the streets and were killed by exasperated civilians. Thus in a few hours passed this historic corps whose deeds are intertwined with the battle history of all Europe and northern Africa. This was in June, 1826.

Immediately a new army was raised and equipped to the number of 40,000, according to European ideas. Mahmoud himself started to learn the art of war, studying French tactics and uniforming himself dragoon fashion. Just at this time came the war of Greece for independence—the period when Lord Byron romantically espoused the cause of the successors of the ancient dwellers in Athens and Sparta. The naval battle of Navarino and a Russian army brought double defeat to the Sultan, despite his military reforms. Greece was wrested from him forever.

But the moulding over of the soldier of Turkey continued. German instructors of tactics and strategy were called in. No less a personage than the late Field Marshal von Moltke was one of those who came all the way from Prussia to teach the art of drill and war. Turkey, however, began to be called the "Sick Man of Europe." Her soldiers fought when their country got in difficulty, but the animus to victory was not there. Once in a while there was a spurt, but in such cases the accomplishment of the fighting man of Turkey was due to the energy and persistency of some one leader personally admired rather than patriotic adhesion of the army.

This was demonstrated in the 1877 war with Russia. For five months a strong army of Russians and Roumanians laid siege to the fortress of Plevna, held by Osman Pacha. The Turkish sortied repeatedly and always with success, inflicting damage and consternation on the allies. Starvation was the only key that finally got the besiegers within the walls. The 32,000 Turkish soldier defenders were with their commander to a man, performing valiant deeds daily during the siege. At his final command they made a supreme effort to cut through the lines, and died willingly. It cost Russia 50,000 men to enter Plevna. The world has since proclaimed Osman Pacha a military genius of high grade and dubbed his army heroes. During the war the Turkish soldier also won a worth-while victory over the Russians at Kizil-tepe in Asia, driving the enemy back from Kars.

The last war in the Balkans spelled defeat for the soldier of Turkey from the start. He was entirely unprepared and was opposed by an array of allies who had been looking for the conflict almost hourly. Bulgaria poured into Turace because of the Kotchana massacres. She drove the Ottoman forces many miles. Turkey was compelled to declare war. A Servian army marched on Uskub, while the Montenegrins began the siege of Scutari. The Greek navy got busy. It was a bad outlook for the fighting man of Turkey, and he was defeated finally in the battles of Kirk Kilisse and Kumanova. Salonica surrendered later. Then Adrianople was encompassed, and for a time it looked as though the fighting men of the lusky allies would go right through to Constantinople. But internal dissension and diplomacy of the greater Powers prevented the Sultan being everything he has in Europe. The Turkish soldier had done all he could, handicapped with unpreparedness and the decay of patriotic ambition.

A romantic individual case of the fighting quality in the soldier of Turkey is that of Prince Jem or Zizim, as his name has often been called in Europe. He was one of the sons of Mohammed II. and much better fitted for the throne than his brother Bayezid or Bajazet. He had energy, vigor, grace, culture, ambition and a national pride. But Bajazet heard first of the death of his father and, hastening home, was first to reach Constantinople with bribes for the Janizary support. A civil war began between the brothers. In several battles Jem made a specialty of Janizary killing because of having been robbed of his throne through them. The chronicles tell of single combats that make the battles of Homer's heroes look like small affairs. Finally Jem was defeated so that he could not rally another army. He sought refuge with the Knights of Rhodes. Then began an imprisonment of the Prince, in which he was transferred from one European point to another and kept in pawn to please his brother, who feared his return to Constantinople. He was finally poisoned. To this day his prowess is sung.

So is the story of Roxelana still told. She was the clever and unscrupulous wife of Suleyman the Magnificent. The Sultan by his former favorite Circassian wife had a son, Mustafa, the ideal of the Turkish fighting man. He inherited his father's talent and wisdom, and while Governor of Carmania had fought valorously against the provinces it became necessary to subdue at intervals. Roxelana bore Suleyman a son—later Selim II. She saw no chance for Selim with Mustafa alive. So through her plottings the Sultan was convinced his son was a traitor, and so had this valiant soldier come to Constantinople and enter his presence alone. From an inner chamber he saw seven mute executioners bowstring the young Prince. Roxelana's other name was Khourrem, or the "Joyous One." It is said she never was more like her name than when she knew this murder had been done. Twice after she is said to have accompanied the Turkish army to battle in disguise of a man and to have killed several of the enemy.

Analyzers of armies and their units have spent much time in dissecting the value of the soldier of Turkey in the light of his decadence during the last two or three centuries. To most of these the star and crescent fighter is only under a cloud through which the sun of glory will shine again. To others the Turk is permanently eclipsed, and only by amalgamation with some other nation, after a political division has upset Europe and Africa, will his ancient spirit of battle be manifest in its full force again. Those who hold to the latter opinion are far in the minority in the list of authorities.

Those who have studied the Ottoman soldier at very close range and after a long residence near his side insist that the fighting spirit is ever inherent in the race. They assert that no matter how indolent or unpatriotic or bestial a Turk may seem, the moment you put a sword in his hand he swells with the lust of battle and will die like a hero. With all his faults, cowardice in battle is declared to be an unknown quantity with him. It is an odd fact, however, that his greatest achievements were those dating back to the time when he fought Janizary fashion rather than according to modern ideas of war.

Von Moltke, who taught the first army raised under the modernized system, had this to say concerning the battling outlook for the Turkish soldier:

"The splendid appearance, the beautiful arms, the reckless bravery of the old Moslem horde had disappeared, yet this new army had one quality which placed it above the numerous host that the Porte could summon to the field in former times—it obeyed."

This would seem to be the key to the puzzle of the Turkish soldier's efficiency. Will he obey as Western armies are taught to obey? Has he had his fighting spurs clipped too short by compelling him to submit to the tactics of the West? Is he not perhaps still in a sort of transitional military state? While military obedience is referred to as a Western characteristic, there must not be forgotten the military obedience of Japan at the other point of the compass. And yet the obedience of Japan has been declared to be always a national patriotism in arms rather than a military body whose first duty it is to obey and question afterward.

According to the law of Islam there was a distinct equality among all battlers engaged in a righteous war—and Sultans generally made their wars righteous ones. The old Turkish officers were content to lead without domineering, because of this. The spirit of change that has come out of the West makes the officer a superior being, who segregates himself, carries himself upstairs and is not interested in the simple details of his soldiers' lives.

In the recent Balkan war there were Turkish soldiers who displayed their old bravery, devotion, patience and calmness under fire. This would seem to surely indicate that the lesson of obedience had been learned. Yet stories come from Asia Minor that entire divisions had refused point-blank to take any part in the fight of their country against the Allies. Since then have the fighting men of Turkey achieved a unified and solidified battling obedience? There is nothing to indicate it by anything significant or recent happening. The Turk has not probably lost his love of the sword nor the courage necessary to its wielding. But does the incentive to extreme [illegible] or questioning obedience exist?

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 26.—Numerous British sailors who perished off the Chilean coast when the German fleet sank the cruisers Good Hope and Mammouth might have been saved had the Germans made any effort to rescue them.

This is admitted by the Germans, themselves, according to a sworn statement made here to-day by the Captain of the French bark Valentine which was captured and sunk off the Juan Fernandez Islands. The Captain and members of the Valentine's crew were held prisoners on one of the German warships for ten days. In his sworn statement the Captain asserted the Germans said they might have saved numerous Englishmen who were swimming in the water, but they deliberately let them drown. The crew of the Valentine was shamefully treated, he swore for refusing to aid in the transshipment of coal from the bark to the warships. The Germans, he said, robbed the Valentine of everything before sinking her.

KNOW THE LOVE OF CHRIST

Balm For the Wounded Soul—"Come Unto Me"—"All Ye Weary and Heavy-Laden"—Divine Character Slandered—Fals Theology Driving Many Away From God—Predicted Hour of Trial Upon the Whole World—Thousands Falling Into Infidelity—Correct Understanding of Bible the Only Remedy.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Pastor Russell's theme for to-day was based upon the text, "That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God." (Ephesians 3:17-19.) He said in part:

The word Love is as warming and cheering correspondingly as the words Hatred and Selfishness are cold and discouraging. To some who all their lives have been immersed in a world of selfish frigidity, the real quality of the word Love is disallowed, disputed, claimed not to exist. Nevertheless, in every human being there is a craving for love, pure and sincere, even though expected never to be found.

For the majority inevitable reverses and failures take the place of anticipated successes. However strong, courageous, or even brutally fierce has been the warrior in the battle for bread, fame and glory, he craves ultimately, in his partial or complete disaster, the love which he has neither shown to others nor ever really expected that others would show to him. Whether he succumbs to financial disaster, to immorality, to narcotic stimulants or to disease—it matters not which—the balm of Gilead for the wounded soul is Love.

Sometimes this love comes from the partner of life—the wife or the husband; sometimes from parents or children, sisters or brothers. Thank God for these sometimes, and for the evidence they afford us of some measure of the image of God in humanity! But alas! in a vast majority of cases the failure, the disaster suffered, not only shatters hope, but cools friendship and destroys the semblance of love, which were merely emotional or perfunctory or admiration. At such a time the Message of the Love of God and Christ is a balm indeed, if it comes to the wounded and discouraged one.

It is our thought that particularly at this time such discouragement is being borne in upon large numbers of the human family. With the opening of the year many properly made resolutions to themselves, or to their friends or to the Lord, that they would live more noble lives, that they would be loyal to their Creator, to their companions, to themselves and to all of their interests and obligations. But as the year slipped away, it has brought trials, testings, and to many defeat and discouragement.

Now is the opportune moment to these discouraged ones to hear the voice of Him that speaketh from Heaven, telling them of His love, His sympathy and His willingness to aid all who will accept His assistance. Hearkening obediently to His voice, such may change the hour of defeat to the hour of victory by the Lord's assisting grace; just as, many a time in earthly warfare, victory has been wrested from defeat by the arrival of reinforcements at the opportune mo-

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER.

Bright's disease is a term applied to one of the most serious of all diseases of the kidneys, the symptoms of which are often of a severe character.

Severe pains in the back appear at first and are followed by disturbances of the urinary organs which show that the urine contains a large amount of albumen. Dropsy is also another forerunner of the dreaded Bright's disease. On the first sign of any kidney trouble you should at once put the kidneys right by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The pill that cures kidney troubles only.

Mrs. C. A. Heistand, Mooswa, Alta., writes: "Last May I was taken down sick. The doctor told me I had Bright's disease. My kidneys got so bad I could not rest day or night. The doctor's medicine did not give me any relief. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they put me in good shape again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pill, so when you ask for "Doan's" do not accept any others with similar names.

ment. The moment of discouragement, of loss of confidence in earthly progress, and of hopeless despair, is the opportune moment for the discouraged one to recognize his need of the Saviour, to cry unto Him and forthwith to receive the reinforcements from Him who has declared, "My strength is made perfect in your weakness"; and again, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly of heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

But it requires faith to believe in a Saviour whom we have never seen, with whom we have not been acquainted, and especially One who has been so frequently misrepresented to us as having prepared from before the foundation of the world for our eternal torment. How can we assure ourselves of His Love? How may we know that He is not the cruel One that has been pictured to us? How may we know that He is a loving, generous, kind, faithful Friend—a God who delighteth not in our trouble, who rejoiceth not in iniquity, who rejoiceth not in eternally tormenting His creatures, nor even in destroying them eternally in the Second Death; but, conversely, in doing us good, in exhibiting towards all who will receive it His loving kindness and tender mercy, enabling them more and more, in the language of our text, to appreciate the height, the length, the breadth and the depth of His Love—a God who eventually will have all men saved (recovered) and brought to a knowledge of the Truth, to obedience and character-development, to life everlasting in the Paradise of God?

We see the difficulty of such; and it cries aloud to those of us who have learned the way of the Lord more perfectly, to let our light shine, to let all the world who are not completely blinded by the Adversary see the true character of our God and of the Son of God, to let them see the Scriptural presentation of the love, the mercy and the abundant provision arranged for in the Divine Purpose.

What the world needs is to get over its fright respecting the Lord and the future, and to see the Love of God and His gracious provision in Christ. This alone will win the heart, in the proper sense of the word. Fear may bring torment, but only the Truth can sanctify and happify—fulfil our Redeemer's prayer, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth."

The fright that is upon the world came from the Dark Ages and is echoed by all the creeds of orthodoxy, breeding in the hearts of men distrust, hatred of God and of the Bible, which is falsely accredited with being the fountain from which have been drawn these brackish waters of tradition represented by the creeds. It is time that every true Christian should take his stand for the right, the Truth, for the Word of God, for the exposition of the falsehoods which have slandered the Almighty Character, which have benumbed the zeal of the saints, and which have repelled the weary and heavy-laden as they looked for relief and balm in the direction of the Creator.

Is it not time that all ministers of the Gospel announced and manifested their freedom from the creedal misstatements of the Divine character and purpose, which in their hearts they have rejected long ago? It is well that all such should lift up their voice like a trumpet, and give no uncertain sound to the masses of the groaning creation, who are awakening and are hungering and thirsting for the Bread and the Water of Life, which alone can satisfy their longings.

This is the Message which we bear to the troubled and discouraged ones. Until they have time to take up with us a thorough study of the Scriptures and demonstrate the fact to themselves, they must take our word for it that the Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power of God are all enlisted on behalf of Adam and his race—to save us from our sins and from the dead and dying condition in which we find ourselves, mentally, morally and physically. Nor should it be very difficult to exercise this degree of faith. The Scriptures declare, "He that cometh unto God must believe that He is, and that He is a Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Hebrews 11:6.) This involves a faith in the Justice of God that, having invited us, He will not spurn us when we respond to His call.

Moreover, it should appeal to every reasonable mind that God should be just and loving towards all. The thought of an angry, vindictive, torture-loving Creator should be rejected instantly by every reasoner—often as being ungodlike, demoniacal. No doubt this would have been so had it not been that the misconception on the subject, which the Apostle calls the "doctrine of devils," was imposed upon our minds from our very earliest childhood, and often by those who we properly loved and whose piety we reverenced, but who were themselves deceived.

It is high time that more reverential, more loving, theological views were seen by all mankind. It is the lack of this true theology that is driving many away from the Lord and His Word into vain philosophies and "science falsely so-called"—Higher Criticism, Christian Science, Evolution, Theosophy, etc., etc.—1 Timothy 6:20.

The world has discovered that the bonds of ignorance and superstition have been holding it for centuries, and that its eyes of understanding have so long been covered that now they blink in the dazzling light of the dawning Millennial Day. At one bound the so-called scientific world has left God's Word and leaped into a refined agnosticism, which professes a faith not possessed. The middle and the lower classes are ever ready to follow their leaders; this means, very shortly, what the Scriptures predict—"a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation"—a social, religious, financial, political upheaval—anarchy.

Thank God for the assurance of His Word that the spasm will be a brief one! "A short work will the Lord make with the earth." Everything has been prepared for the establishment of the Millennial Kingdom upon the ruins of present systems. It is folly to think of holding the people back, of bandaging the eyes of their understanding, and of enslaving them again with ignorance and superstition. Those who are thus endeavoring to meet the situation show clearly that they do not understand it. The tidal wave of liberty of mind can no more be repressed than can the ocean tide be stayed with a broom.

There is just one remedy—the correct understanding of the Bible teachings. Whoever fails to receive the Truth fails of everything with respect to the present life. This statement applies not only to the world in general but also to the entire Church of Christ.

The hour of trial predicted to come upon the whole world is now upon us; and the Apostle Peter's declaration is that it must begin with the Church—the House of God. (1 Peter 4:17.) The statement of the Prophet is that one thousand will fall to one that will stand—"A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee." (Psalm 91:7.) St. Paul's exhortation respecting the same time of trial is, "Take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the Evil Day, and having done all, to stand." (Ephesians 6:11-13.) Who shall be able to stand? is the question.

We are not able to tell the wonderful measurements of God's Love—nor can others tell them. Indeed, as the Apostle suggests, the privilege of appreciating these measurements is granted only to the saints, and to these in proportion to their saintliness. Thus a babe in Christ, though beloved of the Lord and carefully cherished, cannot comprehend these measurements of the Divine character, because he is only an infantile saint.

When first he believed in the Lord, he saw something of Divine Love and Mercy, which influenced him, drew him to the exercise of faith and the renouncement of sin. From the standpoint of Justification by Faith, he could see more of the Lord and could appreciate more the measurements of Divine greatness. Then, called and appreciating the call, he bowed his heart before the Lord and made a full surrender to Him in response to the invitation, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Romans 12:1.

Having thus done all in his power and having laid himself at the Lord's feet, he received the begetting of the Holy Spirit, not with outward show or demonstration, but with inward grace and enlightenment of the eyes of his understanding. From this new standpoint of consecration and harmony with the Divine will, he began to see more of the length, more of the breadth, more of the height, more of the depth of God's Love. If he has lived up to his privileges faithfully, he has been growing hourly daily, monthly, yearly—growing in grace, in knowledge, in ability to see these measurements of the Divine character.

Note that this is the very expression of our text and context: The reception of Christ into our hearts by faith brought, as a rule, mighty strengthening by His Spirit in the inner man—to the new nature. As this Spirit of Christ dwelt, or resided, in our hearts by faith, it tended to root us and to ground us in His character-likeness, which is the same as that of His Father—Love. This experience enables us to comprehend with all saints these measurements of our Creator's character as others cannot appreciate them. Yet, as the Apostle says, even we who now know only in part shall, after experiencing the resurrection change from earthly to Heavenly nature, see our Lord as He is, and shall know as we are known. How grand will be this consummation!

So our text, which applies to the present life, the Apostle declares that even the saints cannot know the Love of Christ; for it passes knowledge. He then gives a further intimation of how this keen appreciation of the glorious character of God comes to His consecrated ones—by their being "filled with all the fulness of God." This means, not only the renouncement of sin, not only faith in the Lord as our Redeemer, but also a filling with His Spirit, His mind, His disposition. This, as already stated, is a gradual work. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord."

The Spirit of the Lord is one of holiness—not only of separateness from sin, but of opposition to it; not only of sympathy with righteousness, but of activity on its behalf; not only of putting away from our hearts every sympathy with the unfruitful works of darkness, but also of the receiving of that spirit which condemns them by daily life and a word fitly spoken; not only by an appreciation of the fruits and graces of God's Spirit—meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love—but so great an appreciation of them as more and more induces us to stamp these gracious characteristics of Divinity upon our own thoughts, words and deeds.

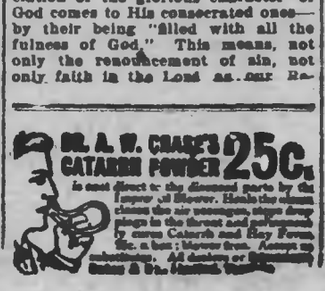
Not only did the great Apostle Paul preach Christ and shun not to declare the whole counsel of God, but he never once referred to eternal torment or anything akin to it—and his writings constitute more than one-half of the New Testament Scriptures! The severest penalty that he ever declared is that of everlasting destruction—the Second Death, from which there is no hope of deliverance. Undoubtedly he was right in this course. On the contrary, he preached and wrote not only about the length and breadth and height and depth of the love of Christ, but in the context he tells us that he prayed for the Church, that they might be able to attain such and more of the Love of God. Undoubtedly this is the great need of the Church to-day.

Let us all pray, not only for ourselves, but also for each other, a wider opening of the eyes of our understanding and a fuller comprehension of the length, the breadth, the height and the depth of the Love of God in Christ. From this attainment come our blessing and also the world's blessings. The light from the great Sun of Righteousness, which shortly is to flood the world, will be "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God"—of Divine Mercy and Love.

"Jesus, my Lord, Thou are my life,
My rest in labor, strength in strife;
Thy love begets my love of Thee;
Thy fulness that which filleth me.

"Mine effort vain, my weakness learned,
Weary, from self to Christ I turned,
Content to let His fulness be
An unbought fulness unto me.

"Life's heavenly secret was revealed—
In Christ all richness are concealed.
We try and fail; we ask, He gives,
And in His rest our spirit lives."



TURKS HAVE LOST MANY

All Their Regiments Suffered Heavily in Recent Engagements—German Field Marshal Rushed to Aid Them

LONDON, NOV. 29—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following despatch received from the Russian army headquarters in the Caucasus:

"The Turks defeated in the recent fighting suffered enormous losses in all their regiments. The 28th and 29th divisions lost half their effectives and the 88th regiment was almost entirely destroyed. The commander of the 34th division was killed near Maslagat. The comamnder of the 33rd division deserted, and has been replaced.

"The Turkish commender-in-chief has decided to disband the Kurds, whose work was unsatisfactory.

"The fighting recently has been unimportant."

Von der Goltz Sent for.

A despatch from Berlin by way of Rome states that Field Marshal Baron von der Goltz has been relieved from his position as military governor of the portions of Belgium under German control and attached for the remainder of the war to the entourage of the Sultan of Turkey. General Freiherr von Bissing has been nominated as successor to General von der Goltz as military governor of Belgium.

According to a despatch from Constantinople to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the Sultan has appointed Zekki Pasha, former commander of the Turkish troops and lately commander of the 8th Army Corps in Damascus, as general-adjutant in the suite of Emperor William of Germany.

CHASING TURKS BACK TO FORTS

Russians in the Caucasus Are Driving Routed Enemy Before Them

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—That the Turkish forces are still retreating before the Russians in the region around Erzerum is recorded in the following statement from the general staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus made public here to-night.

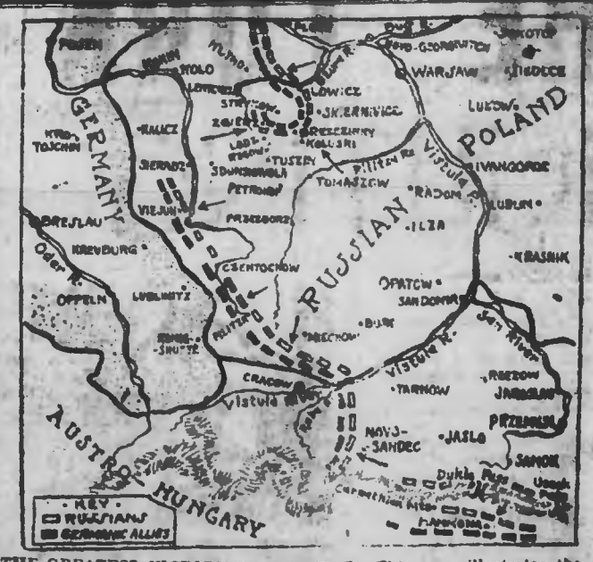
"In the direction Erzerum our troops continue to chase before them the bulk of the Turkish forces they have defeated. We are capturing many prisoners and much ammunition and stores.

"The roads along which the Turks are retreating are strewn with the frozen bodies of their dead.

"Prisoners taken are unanimous in declaring that the defeated army is making haste with a view of seeking shelter behind the forts at Erzerum and Deve-Boyun.

"The situation elsewhere remains unchanged."

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.



THE GREATEST VICTORY OF THE WAR.—This map illustrates the remarkable success gained by the Russians. The Germans advanced from Posen and from Thorn on the northeast to Lodz and Lowicz and Brzezinany. Russians in the vicinity of Kalisz were outflanked by the Germans, but turned round and attacked the flank of the German army at Lodz from the west. Russian troops from Warsaw pounded the other flank from the east. It is likely that almost the entire German army will be captured.

EVERY NEURALGIC HEADACHE CURED! USE "NERVILINE"—IT WON'T FAIL

The Miraculous Healing Power of This Liniment is Unfailing

RUB ON NERVILINE

There may be a thousand pains; yet, excepting sciatica, neuralgia is the worst. Most remedies are not strong enough or penetrating enough to relieve neuralgia. You know everything you have tried has failed to give even momentary relief, and you have decided that neuralgia must be borne forever.

Do not make this mistake—try NERVILINE.

Apply it to the sore spot. Notice the glow that spreads deeper and wider as Nerviline's curative power is carried further and further into the tissue. How quickly the pain is soothed! How rapidly it lessens! In a little while you have forgotten the pain—it has actually gone.

Neuragia gives Nerviline an opportunity of demonstrating its superiority over all other pain remedies. No magic, as you might imagine after you have used it—simply the application of scientific knowledge to the relief of pain.

Nerviline is a great outcome of modern medical ideas. You cannot afford to without it, because pain comes quickly and comes to us all. Guaranteed to cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Large bottles, 50 cents, trial size 25 cents; at druggists, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE POSITION OF ALLIED ARMIES IS SATISFACTORY

Large Portion of Britain's New Army of One Million Men is Now in France and Have Already Won Considerable Distinction--Activity at Sea Expected.

Special Morning Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A large portion of England's second army of 1,000,000 men is now in France. This was clear to-day, following the receipt of Gen. French's report giving details of the fighting between October 11 and Nov. 20, in which he mentioned the presence of the fourth army corps commanded by Sir Henry Rawlinson.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO THE NEW MEN.

The report of General French is the first mention of this army at the front. Gen. Rawlinson's command was in Belgium as early as the middle of October, when the retreat of the Belgians from Antwerp was covered. The British commander pays a high tribute to Gen. Rawlinson in carrying out this operation, which he declares was most difficult.

In concluding his report, Gen. French declared that there were now signs that fighting from Armentieres to Ypres is entering its final stages.

It is accepted here that the position of the allied armies is entirely favourable. It is confidently believed, however, that with the slackening of fighting on land in the western theatre, greater activity may be shown at sea by the Germans.

Work at ZeeBrugge is being pushed with the utmost speed. The German submarines there are now reported entirely ready for use duty and parts of additional vessels are said to have arrived by rail for construction in the dock yards.

AGRICULTURE | HORTICULTURE | DAIRYING | POULTRY

IN CANADA'S LARGEST ORCHARD

Where is the largest orchard in Canada?

In the matter of number of acres actually planted, its ownership may be a matter of dispute. It has been well settled, however, that the orchard of Mr. Gibson, of Newcastle, Ont., must come first when the area already in bearing is considered. There are now 65 acres of bearing orchard on the Gibson farm, and altogether 100 acres have been planted to tree fruits.

A few weeks ago an editor of Farm and Dairy called in on Mr. Gibson for a few minutes. Of course, our conversation was mainly along the line of apple marketing, and we inquired for the success of their co-operative society. "Our society," said Mr. Gibson, "is small in point of numbers, though fairly large in point of output. There are only seven members actually listed in the society. This year, however, we were helping our neighbors who are not in the society and who have not been able to sell their apples at all through buyers. Altogether we will handle about 19,000 barrels of fruit."

Before leaving we took a trip through the orchards. Everywhere the trees were laden with well-grown fruit that would grade a very high proportion of No. 1's. Mr. Gibson directed our attention particularly to two rows of apples on which the district representative, Mr. R. S. Duncan, had conducted a spraying experiment. On one of the rows Bordeaux mixture was used for the summer spraying and on the other lime sulphur. There was nothing to choose between the results of these two mixtures this summer. In average years, however, Mr. Gibson is inclined to favor concentrated lime-sulphur for the first or dormant spraying and Bordeaux mixture for late sprayings. The Bordeaux he regards as the better fungicide.

Thinning, the operation most recently introduced in Canadian orchards, was practised quite extensively in the Gibson orchards this year, and this accounted in no small measure for the high proportion of No. 1 fruit on the trees we inspected. Mr. Gibson summed up the results of his experience in thinning in his characteristically concise form.

"Yes," he said, "it pays."

The section in which Mr. Gibson's orchards are located is one of the finest fruit growing sections of Ontario. We were informed that in the orchard competition conducted from Ottawa, three out of the five prizes offered in the Lake Ontario district were captured by members of the local cooperative association, and four of the prizes were left in the immediate vicinity.

HOME INFLUENCE COUNTS

It is the home which moulds the minds of our boys and girls—home influence, home example. Mothers and fathers should never forget that during the first years of their boys' and girls' lives they look up to their parents as gods—to be obeyed, to be imitated in all things. Then comes the critical stage, when children have passed beyond the blind faith of childhood and learn to know their parents. Happy the mother and father who can fearlessly face this period, knowing that their efforts and their lives, though very faulty, yet bear the stamp of sincerity.

It argues ill for the home influence when "a long talk with mother" is not regarded as a privilege by the girls, for there are many subjects that only her handling is delicate enough to touch upon, and, on the other hand, it is sad when "a chat with father" is dreaded by the boys.

The parents' treatment of each other does much to raise or lower them in the eyes of their children, and also influence the boys and girls in their behaviour to each other. If the boys see father offering mother the most comfortable chair in the room instead of taking it himself, they will be equally unselfish with their sisters. If father opens the door for mother, the boys will almost unconsciously learn a lesson of politeness.

"Selfish parents make selfish children." Unselfishness is too fine a thing to act otherwise than as an inspiration and incentive to imitation.

A WHITE CLOTHES ROOM

No matter how old fashioned a house may be, if it is roomy one can have a white clothes room, a room which I consider almost a necessity in every home.

Select a convenient room either upstairs or downstairs, paper neatly with very light paper (perfectly white if you can procure it), having a white and green border. Paint all woodwork with good white paint, floor included. Place a square of white linoleum on the floor. Hang a shelf in a snug corner and curtain with white cretonne. Paper the top of shelf with shelf paper, green or white. Paint a small old fashioned rocking chair white and cover with white and green cretonne, having a cushion of white. You can drop into this chair while you are admiring your fine white clothes that have been beautifully laundered and symetrically arranged in this neat little clothes room. You might also place in the centre of the room a stand painted perfectly white on which could be kept flowers.

This style of clothes room is suitable for old fashioned houses. Modern houses have clothes rooms, but they are costly and elaborate.

Can We Afford To Build Concrete Roads?

ESSEX county, Ontario, considered expending a great sum of money on concrete highways that would connect all parts of the county. Concrete roads are expensive. Was Essex county wise in the choice of materials for construction? No one questions the wisdom of its decision for good roads. We will have to go to the United States to determine just how the concrete road is meeting the demand for a durable highway in actual practice. In Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Pennsylvania, both state and local communities are turning to the concrete road as the solution of their problem and with excellent results.

Taking a 16 foot concrete road as a basis, highways of this character have cost on the average about $12,000 a mile, while maintenance costs have been practically nothing. For example, in Bellefontaine, Ohio, a concrete road put down 20 years ago has cost less than $25 a mile a year for maintenance, while the average maintenance cost of macadam for two years. Beginning, then, at the third year, and estimating maintenance costs for concrete at $25 a mile a year, the Bellefontaine figures: the total maintenance costs on 600 miles of concrete road would, at the expiration of seven years, be only $37,500. In the case of macadam, basing costs on New York and New Jersey figures for 1912, repair costs would reach the enormous total of $1,350,000. Where concrete roads are very narrow, say nine feet wide, and have a dirt road at the sides, they could be built for $7,500 a mile. Maryland has built excellent concrete roads of standard width for a little less than $12,000 a mile.

It is upon the above economic basis that farmers are beginning to look at the road question.

But aside from moderate first cost and practically negligible maintenance costs, the popularity of the concrete road is rapidly growing in rural communities due to the experience of those who have used it. For the farmer it is the ideal highway. Described briefly, the building of a concrete road consists of putting a wet and mushy mass of Portland cement, sand and stone in the centre of a highway, where it hardens into imperishable rock. The accompanying illustrations give a very good idea of the building of a road and its appearance when finished. The first picture shows the construction of a concrete road near Mason City, Iowa. The concrete has been placed between rigidly staked side forms. The road is then troweled with wooden floats. The view of the finished road in Maryland shows its admirable surface.

A Type of Road That is Being Widely Adopted Where Traffic is Heavy

This 12-foot concrete road has been giving good service in the State of Maryland, and while its first cost was heavy, maintenance charges have been practically nil. Essex county, Ontario, has been considering the construction of roads of the same material. Were it not for motor cars travelling through country districts, such expensive roads would be neither necessary nor advisable. Question—What proportion of the cost, therefore, should be borne by motorists?

This type of road appeals especially to the farmer and his family, because it provides them at all seasons with an excellent place to walk as well as a thoroughfare for vehicles. It is a fact that in Wayne county, Michigan, children go to and from school on roller skates over the wonderful concrete roads of that locality. Horses never slip or fall upon these roads and will draw twice or three times their accustomed load. It is needless to say torrential rains cannot wash through these roads.

Method of Constructing a Typical Sixteen-Foot Concrete Road

The templet used to strike the crown is shown against the concrete in the foreground. Back of this are the installing devices for expansion joints. They are holding steel protecting plates in position and will be removed before the concrete hardens. Beyond, men are trowelling the surface.

IF HEAD ACHES AND YOUR EARS BUZZ YOU SURELY HAVE CATARRH

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, or how often you have failed to get relief—even though Catarrh may effect every organ in your body, you can be permanently cured by inhaling the soothing vapour of Catarrhozone.

A few breaths through Catarrhozone inhaler clears the phlegm out of the throat and stops your cough. The nostrils are cleansed of offensive mucous discharge, and sneezing and sniffling stop at once. Partial loss of hearing and headache (very common symptoms of catarrh) are quickly cured, and in a short time every trace of catarrh disappears.

Nothing can be simpler or more pleasant than Catarrhozone. It's healing piney vapour sends a warm cleansing sensation through all the air passages in the head and throat—makes you feel better in half a minute.

"My ears buzzed by the hour and I had frightful head noises," writes J. P. Purdy, from Port Huron. "Catarrh fairly filled my whole head and throat. I got relief mighty fast when I tried Catarrhozone; it hit the spot instantly. You bet Catarrhozone has cured me and I simply swear by it."

Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the trick in a hurry—never fails; small size 50c; trial or sample size 25c., sold by dealers everywhere.

WHEN THE WAR CLOUDS HAVE ALL PASSED AWAY

WHEN the war clouds roll away and we calmly survey the developments of the present with the wisdom of the future a feature that will be given a prominent place will be the self-sacrificing service of the women who wait at home. And prominent among them all will be the members of the Women's Institutes of Ontario. Every session of their convention in Toronto last week thrilled with the spirit of patriotism. But it is in deeds that these women excel.

"We have received from the Women's Institutes so far about $20,000 in cash and 525 large packages of material," reported Mr. Noel Marshall on behalf of the Red Cross Society. "To the women of your institute we owe practically one-twelfth of the entire contribution of the Dominion to Red Cross and relief work." At one of the sessions Dr. Margaret Patterson, who presided, sat behind a mound of Balaclava caps, stockings and kit bags, reminders of the great work now being done by women of the institute. The majority of the speeches dealt with the work of the hour.

For Better Citizenship.

But work incidental to war has not caused the Women's Institute to lose sight of its greater work, the building of a better citizenship in Canada. This object the women hope to attain by public effort as well as individual service. An excellent opportunity to expound the public aims of the Institute was given to Miss E. J. Guest, of Belleville, when she presided at the Wednesday night meeting at which Premier Hearst was one of the speakers. "We are working for medical inspection in the schools," Miss Guest informed her audience. "We already have the best system of medical school inspection in Toronto in the world. We have found through investigation that country school children are just as defective as those of the city. We aim to extend this inspection work through the whole province."

Other "wants" mentioned by Miss Guest were a bureau of child welfare and more liberal provision for the instruction of mothers. "If $50,000,000 isn't too much to give to slaughter people, it isn't too much to give to build up better people," she declared amidst applause. And finally, taking advantage of her excellent opportunity, she informed the Premier in no undecided manner that the women want the vote. "The one thing that women once believed man could do alone, but which they have now found that he can't." Premier Hearst, in his address, which followed, made no pronouncement on the important subject thus brought to his attention.

Women and War

President Falconer, of Toronto University, paid a fine tribute to the humanitarianism of woman. "I am persuaded," said he, "that had the women of Germany had years ago the same influence that Canadian women now have, there would not have been war." He then told of the influence of the Empress Augustine being used to thwart the blood-thirsty policy of Bismarck, who refers in his memoirs with irritation to "politicians in petticoats," whom he, Bismarck, believed were too much influenced by humane English thought.

"We must look to the healthy youth of the country for the recruiting of our universities," said President Falconer in discussing the university in its relation to people. Of the student body at Toronto 1,500 are from the city of Toronto and 2,400 from the country and smaller towns. The group of enlightened young men and women who leave the university each year are a power for democracy, and this the President regarded as one of the greatest works of the Institution of which he is the head. A new tendency in educational development is for the university, through extension work, to carry knowledge to the larger student body without its walls.

Belgium Learns From Ontario

The foremost place occupied by the Women's Institute of Ontario was shown in a striking manner by C. C. James when he stated that their fame had reached Belgium, that the Belgium government had sent an investigator across the Atlantic to enquire into their organization, and that as a result Women's Institutes had been introduced in Belgium. Proceeding to his theme, "The Agricultural Problems of the Day," Mr. James called for two improvements that would hold the people on the land. "Farming must be made profitable and country life must be made attractive." The latter, he thought, depends largely on the women, and they must work through three agencies, the rural home, the rural church and the rural school.

Speaking more particularly of the latter, the speaker made a strong plea for consolidated schools. "It is the surest, readiest solution," he declared. "At present we have five or six little schools in a district, a girl in charge of each, a city girl perhaps, who knows nothing of rural problems. Her hands are full with pupils of all ages and in all stages of learning. It is not her fault that she cannot give efficient instruction. We have never yet measured up in our ideas of the education to which the country child is entitled."

Manitoba consolidated schools were cited as a proof of their practicability. In one district a consolidated school took the place of seven schools and seven teachers. There are now six teachers and a modern school building. All of the teachers are specialists. The average attendance has increased 27 per cent and the children are continuing their studies longer. The principal is paid $1,500. "That means greater efficiency," concluded Mr. James. "You can't get efficiency unless you pay for it. You can't pay for it unless you consolidate."

Community Hospitality

"The Stranger Within Our Gates" was the subject dealt with in a sympathetic and enlightened manner by Mrs. J. M. Godfrey, of Port Credit. Mrs. Godfrey called attention to what the European immigrant has done for Canada. It is now our problem to do something for the immigrant to make him a good citizen. His children, the speaker contended, were equal mentally and morally to any Canadian child. To give them proper education she suggested securing the assistance of the school trustees, so that the village school might be made a community centre as a basis for bringing the foreigner into the life of the people. The agricultural laborer, she said with truth, was prone to desert the agricultural district from pure lack of sympathy and companionship.

The foreign woman in our midst whose children will be Canadians, and, therefore, whose environment should be considered as having effect in their after life as valuable citizens, was the object of a sympathetic talk from Mrs. Dawson, of Parkhill. She, too, laid much stress on the importance of the school. They should be looked after morally and literally. The children sent from careful nurture in sanitary homes must have these surroundings not lowered among intellectual efforts; and who can better supervise the school work than the mother. "Twenty-five years devoted to home still leaves 20 years for state and community," said Mrs. Dawson. 'An intelligent mother never stops growth, but widening in knowledge, judgment and sympathy may well be a power for good in a community."

Education for Defective Children

A strong plea for the education of children, either mentally or physically defective, was made by Dr. Helen MacMurchie. At present, she said, absolutely nothing is being done for these unfortunates who really require more attention and consideration than normal children. It is from their ranks, due to this neglect, that criminals are largely recruited. Another medical authority of the Women's Institute, Mrs. Wilson, of Parkhill, estimated that 50 to 90 per cent of the children in rural schools were suffering from defective eyesight. Was it any wonder, she asked, that the rural districts were awakening to the benefits of medical inspection.

Probably no feature of the proceedings bore stronger testimony to the vigor with which the Institute is pursuing its work than the reports from the various branches. The spirit that dominates everywhere is that of helpfulness to each other. Of all the work of the branches, Superintendent Geo. A. Putnam considered the rest room one of the best.

It would seem that the appreciation in which Mr. Putnam holds the Women's Institutes is equalled by the appreciation in which Mr. Putnam is held by its membership. "The one man in Ontario who can get along with 25,000 women," with all due ceremony, was presented with a purse of gold at the meeting in Convocation Hall, with which it was suggested that he buy a car in which to visit the branch Institutes "in case the government is willing to supply the gasoline."

Altogether there were some 500 or 600 delegates present at the 13th Annual Convention. They packed the Foresters' Hall to the doors. If one may judge from the spirit of the convention the outlook for still better work in the future is surely promising.

♣ ♣ ♣

"It ain't everybody I'd trust my little gal to," said old Farmer Skinner to the love-lorn swain who in the far West had become enamored of Miss Sally Skinner, and wished to carry her from the loving care and shelter of her home nest.

The "little gal," who was five feet eleven inches high in her bare feet, as she was at that moment, hid her happy, blushing face on the dear, fond old father's shoulder, and wept happy tears, as he said to Sally's deeply-moved and sympathetic young lover, "You must take good care of my wee birdling, Jack; recollect that she has been raised kind o' tender like.

"Two acres a day is all I've asked her to plow and an acre of corn a day is all she is used to hoeing. She kin do light work, such as making rail fences and digging post holes and burning brush, and all that, but she ain't used to regular farm work, and you mustn't ask too much of her. It's hard for her old dad to give his little sunshine up. He'll have to split his own firewood and dig his own taters now, but go, birdie, and be happy."—London Tid Bits.

"You're trying hard to be a man, it seems," said the disgusted husband the other day to his wife.

"Well," she replied, "don't you think we need one in the family?"

FILLINGS FOR PIES

Apple Filling

Peel, core and slice good tart apples such as the Baxter, chop fine and add granulated sugar to sweeten and the desired seasoning. Bake with upper and lower crust. This makes a delicious pie, better to my taste than sliced apples. If cooked apples are used stew them with as little water as possible so the sauce will be thick. Add sugar and seasoning when done.

Custard

Take two eggs, a large half-cupful sugar, pinch of salt, about one-quarter teaspoonful grated nutmeg, or half teaspoonful extract of lemon, one pint milk. This, if properly baked, will quiver like jelly and will cut firm. Custard pies are spoiled by overcooking or too quick cooking. They should be slowly cooked in a moderately heated oven. To test when done try running the knife blade into centre of pie. If knife comes out clean pie is done.

Lemon Pie

Two eggs (yolks), one cup sugar, one tablespoon corn starch, one cup water, a pinch of butter, juice and part of grated rind of one large lemon. Beat eggs, sugar, etc., together, then cook thoroughly on stove, taking care not to burn. Do not add lemon juice until cooked. Have pie crust baked in a slow oven, then add filling. Make frosting of the whites beaten with about one-half tablespoon granulated sugar.

Pumpkin Pie

Take a cupful of pumpkin, add two well-beaten eggs and milk (whole milk) to make proper consistency. Sweeten and season to taste. (Maple syrup makes a superior sweetening).

A word about pumpkin sauce, as there is pumpkin sauce and pumpkin sauce, and a great deal of difference in the methods of preparing it. Some cooks stew sliced pumpkin in water until soft, then take out of kettle and squeeze through a colander. Others steam pumpkin and treat it likewise. By either method the good of pumpkin is lost in water. Try this method:

Prepare pumpkin in the ordinary way. Put in a kettle with a small quantity of water, cover and let cook slowly for about two hours, or until thoroughly cooked, then mash with a potato pounder. Leave cover off and continue cooking, taking care not to burn, until juice is all absorbed, or until sauce is perfectly dry. A cupful of this is worth two or more of the ordinary to thicken, and is real pumpkin. To cook a large pumpkin is the work of the greater part of the day; but it doubly pays for the trouble.

FOLLOWING THE MASTER'S EXAMPLE

"Now as He walked by the Sea of Galilee, He saw Simon and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And Jesus said unto them, 'Come ye after Me.'"—Mark 1: 16, 17.

This verse is typical of the ranks from which Christ drew His first coworkers, not from the rich, the more powerful, the more influential, but from the poorer, the more humble, the less influential. Yet in the majority of our churches it is the former that are sought after, and courted, not the latter.

Why will we not give a welcoming hand shake, not a condescending one, not a patronizing one, but a close, hearty one, to the man with the ragged coat, the sin-marked face, the discouraged heart; and the worse the rags, the more evil the face, the deeper the discouragement, the more he needs our church and our help.

Passing through a poorer section of a city lately, I saw a stirring, rousing sight. A place was being dug out for the foundation of a new church, evidently to be a very large one. There were working old men and little boys and girls. Evidently the able bodied ones were at their ordinary daily work. The aged ones were digging and filling the wheel-barrows which the younger were carrying off and then emptying elsewhere. As I looked at the happy, busy crowd, all more or less poorly dressed, I pictured the church that was to be complete and when finished the result of love's labor. Judging from the scene I thought the congregation would be such as thronged around our Saviour, such, too, the earliest members of His church.

Recently also a Social Service meeting was held at which many different labor organizations were represented, as well as other societies, including members from the Ministerial Association. In the course of the proceedings the first named upbraided the last for lack of knowledge, sympathy and cooperation with their interests. Two ministers answered; one acknowledged the justice of the charge, and said he would do anything in his power to work with them. He realized the gulf of separation, but was doing his best to bridge it, and the men realized he was. The other minister made a long speech, and in many respects a fine one, but the whole tone was so condescending, though he had not the slightest idea of it, that the gulf was only broadened and deepened.

If Christ's teachings had been conscientiously followed such a gulf would never have existed. If we wish to draw all classes into the church, and help them there, we must follow our Saviour's example, as He mingled with men, and must enter into their lives, their needs, and their work.—I. H. N. —Farm and Dairy.

IS THE ART OF PLOWING LOST?

F. C. Nunnick, B.S.A., Commissnor of Conservation, Ottawa

The art of plowing, if not lost, has certainly been much neglected during recent years and very few of the younger generation of farmers have really acquired it. In travelling through the country one sees repeated evidences of the lack of interest in this very important branch of tillage operations. Plowing, as the first and heaviest operation in preparing the soil to receive the seed, should receive particular attention.

Many attribute the present-day lack of interest in plowing to the advent of the two-furrow and machine plow. In using two-furrow or machine plows, it is necessary first to acquaint oneself with the workings and mechanism of the plow, to be thoroughly familiar with it when in operation; little or no difficulty will then be experienced in obtaining satisfactory results. A plow suitable to the soil should be chosen. If the soil is loamy, and requires to be turned flat, choose a plow with sufficient width of share, a board with ample turning capacity, a beam high enough to permit the use of the jointer when turning under green or coarse manure, and sufficient length of handles to enable the plowman to control it with ease. If the soil is heavy and inclined to cement, use a narrow plow—one that will set the soil up, give a good harrow edge, and have sufficient press to the board to place the furrow over so that it will not fall back.

In using either a single or two-furrow plow, care should be taken to turn over the whole furrow and to leave no part unplowed. Get away from the cut-and-cover plan. Teach the boys that anything worth doing is worth doing well, especially plowing. The old adage that more grain grows on crooked furrows than on straight ones is a poor incentive, and is not helpful in building up a reputation as a model farmer. Plow the back field as carefully as the field adjoining the road, and see that all fields are plowed in such a way as to attract attention by their neatness. It is cheap and efficient advertising. Good plowing pays; if a fair crop can be grown on a field which has been poorly plowed, a better crop can be grown on a well plowed field.

SUFFERED FROM BILIOUS HEADACHE.

At Times Thought She Would Go Mad.

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles a person can have. They are many and varying, but when the headache starts you may be sure that there is some other chief cause of this most painful difficulty. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that there is some other baneful disease which is liable to assert itself unless the cause of the headache is removed. Get rid of the headache and thus perhaps save yourself many years of trial and suffering.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and has also proved itself to be a remedy that cures where all others fail. It does this by removing the cause of the trouble.

Miss Mary A. Roberts, Hampton, N.B., writes: "For about two years I have suffered from bilious headache. At times I thought I would really go mad. Not long ago a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did, and after taking three bottles I have never been troubled with any kind of a headache. I think that B.B.B. is one of the wonders of the world. I can safely recommend it to all who suffer from bilious headache."

Burdock Blood Bitters is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

1914 HONEY CROP IN ONTARIO IS SHORT ONE

The 1914 Ontario honey crop will be a short one. President Byer, in his address to the Ontario Beekeepers' Association, assembled in augural convention at Toronto last week, deplored the crop failure but did not regard it as an unmixed evil as it would check the rush into beekeeping and enable the members to dispose of their surplus of last year's large crop.

The fact that there is a surplus from last year called forth a discussion on ways and means of extending the honey market. An advertising campaign that will make the merits of honey better known was favored by some. Make it known like breakfast food" suggested one. The privilege of selling honey in connection with their exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition was craved by others, a privilege which the management denies.

It was agreed that recent tariff changes will cut a slice from the beeman's income as many keepers use hundreds of pounds of sugar in a season. At the same time many of the members were willing to tax themselves five cents a colony to further foul brood inspection work. Mr. Morley Pettit, Provincial Apiarist, reported some progress in fighting the disease. In the year 603 visits in the European foul brood district had revealed 300 cases of infection. American foul brood was looked for in 713 yards and found in 219.

Of particular interest was the address of Wm. Linton, Aurora, Ont., who advocated the use of sweet clover as a honey producing, soil building crop that is more valuable for forage than most farmers suppose. The rest of the discussions were of a technical nature and designed primarily for advanced beekeepers. The election of officers resulted in the return of the entire directorate.

GERMANS ESCAPE THE RUSSIAN TRAP

Have Cut Through Out of Perilous Position at the Sacrifice of Thousands of Lives---Operations in the East May Settle Down Into a Siege Similar to Western Situation

Special to The Examiner:

CUT THROUGH TRAP

PETROGRAD, December 2.—It is now admitted that in the vicinity of Lodz and Lowicz, the Germans have succeeded in cutting their way out of the trap which had been laid for them. This was accomplished however with terrific losses.

A BLOODY BATTLE

The bloodiest day of the fighting in Poland to date is said to have been last Friday. Throughout that day the Siberian corps stormed the German trenches in the Lodz region. The Russians charged and carried the fighting directly to the German lines. The enemy offered terrific resistance. Ammunition was cast aside and the two forces fought bayonet to bayonet or clubbed each other with the butts of their rifles. Many resorted to bare fists before giving up. Not a single German was left alive when the Russians finally came into undisputed possession of the works. The Russian troops were soaked with blood, which froze to their uniforms.

CONTROL THE VISTULA

By holding Plock the Russians control the Vistula, which has been serving as an important line of communication for the Germans, it is declared here. Several barges loaded with supplies and ammunition have already been captured. The Russian troops are said to be withstanding the hardships of the winter campaigning much better than the Germans. All the prisoners captured declare they have endured terrible suffering. Many have frosted or frozen feet and hands. Supply trains have been wrecked and there is a shortage of warm clothing for the army.

REISCHSTAG'S WAR SESSION

BERLIN, via The Hague, December 2.—Imperial Chancellor Von Bothmann Holweig is expected to-day to outline to the Reischstag the position of Germany from a military standpoint after 120 days of war. This is the second war session of the Reichstag. Practically the only business to be transacted is the voting of additional war credits. Optimism as to the situation on the eastern frontier is steadily increasing. A general advance is expected momentarily.

It is admitted that in the vicinity of Lodz the Russians all but succeeded in enveloping a large German force. The Germans fought their way out, however.

Little interest is manifested here at the present time in the operations in the west in Belgium and in France. The German forces there are known to be able to hold their present positions until the eastern issue is settled, and offensive operations may be resumed.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraphs wires from Central France:

"Once more the Germans have turned their faces towards the sea and are trying to hack their way to Calais and the sea. A new army has been brought up on the scene, and a new road has been chosen, and it is rumoured that the German fleet will not be idle.

Telegraphing from west Flanders, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Heavy fighting has begun near Elverdinghe, north west of Ypres, after the longest pause of the war. Promiscuous artillery fire by the Germans has been resumed near Ratscapelle and Pervyse."

OTTAWA, December 2.—The special committee on remounts of which Sir Adam Beck is the head, is in the Capital to-day conferring with the Minister of Militia. It will be necessary to procure 6,000 horses for the cavalry. The same method of purchasing will be followed as was adopted when the horses were purchased for the Artillery Brigade and the necessary steps will be taken to prevent dealers holding the department up for excessive prices.

A DEADLOCK EVERYWHERE

Strenuous Efforts Will Be Made to Bring Some of the Long Drawn-out Struggles to a Decision

VICTORY BY CHRISTMAS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 2.—(Special Cable.)—"A decisive victory by Christmas, either in the west, in Poland or upon the sea." This is the popular cry to-day with the rulers of the five countries now at the front. It is believed strenuous efforts are to be made to bring some of the long drawn out struggles in progress in the vast war zone, to a decision.

STALEMATE IN WARSAW.

In the Warsaw region the struggle has swung in the balance for a time and then came to a deadlock. The present fighting in Poland threatens to become bitter, but as indecisive as the battle for the possession of the Coast in the West. The Russians now officially admit that the German army is in a position to offer determined battle and is in no danger of annihilation. Berlin expects the Germans to resume the offensive, but with the vast Russian forces in the field Germany may be held in check indefinitely, it is believed here.

THE SIEGE OF PRZEMYSL.

This is the 120th day of the war and the forty-seventh day of the battle for the French coast. In Galicia the Russians and Austrians are engaged in the longest single struggle of the war at Przemysl. That fortress has been besieged for three months, practically without a break.

All reports indicate that the Russians are rapidly enveloping Cracow, and another siege is virtually in progress there.

A virtual state of siege also exists of the sea. The British fleet can only keep up their patrol duty. The Germans remain in their ports.

A 300.

Along the entire line from the coast to Switzerland both the German and allied armies are dug deep in the ground and a three hundred mile long siege line is established. The troops are unable to keep warm. The suffering from frozen hands and feet is intense. Sickness is declared to be thinning the German ranks, but neither side has struck the blow which would bring decision and shift the scene of operations.

RULERS AT FRONT.

King George is expected to meet President Poincare of France while at the front. King Albert of Belgium may also meet the British monarch. Kaiser Wilhelm and Czar Nicholas will be with their troops in Poland for the critical fighting of this week.

ANOTHER FURNACE OPERATING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 2.—An official notification was issued this morning from the Dominion steel plant that number 1 blast furnace, closed down since August, had been again reinstated. This makes two furnaces in active operation.

95,700 WILL BE ENLISTED

Canada Will Have That Number Under Arms Shortly Announces the Minister of Militia

20,000 MORE INFANTRY

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.—A statement was issued by Major-General Sam Hughes this evening containing additional details in regard to the enlistment of 50,000 men in Canada to undergo training for active service at the front. According to the Minister of Militia 95,000 men will have been enlisted for the front in the Dominion in a few weeks, this including the force already in England. Details show that this force will be made up as follows:

Forces now in England	33,000
On guard duty in Canada	8,000
Enlisted for second contingent.	28,000
Additional units proposed	31,700
Total	95,700

The additional forces proposed to be raised are:

Cavalry, 9 regiments	5,500
Infantry, 19 regiments	20,000
Army Service Corps	2,000
Army Medical Corps	1,500
Six batteries artillery	1,200
Engineers	1,000
Signallers, cyclists	500

The divisional scheme of enlistment proposed will be on the following basis: No. 1, London, two squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 2, Toronto, two squadrons of cavalry and three regiments of infantry; No. 3, Kingston-Ottawa, two squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 4, Montreal, two squadrons of cavalry and one regiment of infantry; No. 5, Quebec, one squadron of cavalry and one regiment of infantry; No. 6, Maritime Provinces, three squadrons of cavalry and one regiment of infantry; No. 10, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, six squadrons of cavalry and four regiments of infantry; No. 11, British Columbia, three squadrons of cavalry and two regiments of infantry; No. 13, Alberta, six squadrons of cavalry and three regiments of mounted infantry.

DRAW HEAVILY FROM WEST.

The cavalry who are mentioned in the statement will really be mounted infantry. A large number of the latter will be raised in the West, which will, in fact, furnish proportionately more men for all arms of the service. The divisional scheme of mobilization will be adhered to. In Quebec it is altogether probable that the two infantry regiments to be raised will be recruited jointly with headquarters at Montreal and Quebec, one to be an English regiment and the other French.

As regards the Toronto divisional area, one regiment will be recruited in New Ontario, and Sudbury will probably be its headquarters. Ottawa and Kingston will be the recruiting centres in Eastern Ontario. Instructions for mobilization on these lines will be issued as soon as the above plan is finally approved.

Conditions Are Better Than Was First Expected

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 2.—The labour conditions generally in the Dominion are much more satisfactory than might have been expected, is the opinion expressed by J. C. Walters, President of the Trades and Labour Congress of the Dominion.

"There is no doubt," said Walter today, "that the recruiting of troops has relieved the situation very considerably A further good feature is the large number of contracts which have been let both by Canada and the allied governments for war supplies."

COL. MACQUEEN DELIVERS LECTURE

In Lakefield to a Large Audience

Special to The Examiner:

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 2. — Miss Frances Dench, of Fowler's Corner, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. Q. Dench at "North Douro Lodge."

Mr. Dudley Cornell-Chads left on Tuesday last for Kingston to join the Second Canadian Contingent.

Mrs. Tackabury, who has been in the village visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. S. Carter, for the past two months, has returned to her home at Lion's Head.

Miss Ferguson, of Peterborough, arrived on Wednesday last to take duty as nurse to Mr. Walter Strickland, who is lying seriously ill at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. R. Tate.

Mrs Elmo Bogne is visiting friends at Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonnycastle and daughter were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cassan at "The Cottage" for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chant, who have been spending two weeks visiting friends at Unionville, returned home on Monday last.

Mr. C. Joynt, who has been relieving at the G.T.R. Station during the absence of Mr. J. H. Chant, returned to Sunderland on Monday last.

Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, of Toronto, spent the week-end at the Lakefield House.

Miss Traill was in Peterborough on Monday.

The members of B Company, 46th Regiment, paraded to St. John-the-Baptist Church on Sunday evening.

The citizens of Lakefield had a rare treat on Friday evening last in hearing Lieut.-Col. F. W. Macqueen, of Toronto, on his famous lecture "Historic and Patriotic Sketches of Canada." The lecture was given in five parts, and patriotic songs were sung during each interval. The hall was packed to overflowing, and Colonel Macqueen, who has a keen sense of humour, had no difficulty in holding the attention of the audience, as even the smallest boy listened to him with keen interest, and his lecture will doubtless create in old and young, a desire to know more of the history of our own country. After the entertainment the members of the Soldiers' Comfort Club enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. F. J. Tate at her residence on Queen street. During their stay in Lakefield Colonel and Mrs. Macqueen were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Graham on Colbourne street.

Mr. Reginald Strickland, of Toronto, is visiting his sister, Mrs. E. R. Tate at "Bendenis."

French Taking Cautious Offensive in Alsace—Germans Strengthen Their Coast Positions and May Strike Again for Calais

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Dec. 2.—In the west, although German official reports says there is nothing to communicate, the French official statement notes a somewhat lively cannonade in Belgium, and German activity to the north of Arras. This may mean that the Germans have commenced, or are about to commence, another attempt to get through to the French ports. Certainly there are some important changes in the dispositions of the German troops, but what they foreshadow is known only to the German general staff.

Military men here take opposing camps, one side believing that the Germans will rest content with holding their present positions until the battle in Poland, where they need all the men they can get, is over, while the other looks for an immediate resumption of the battle in northern France and Flanders.

The Germans too, according to Duth reports, are strongly fortifying Zeebrugge and other Belgians ports against the renewal of the attacks by the allied fleet. The fighting which has occurred around Ypres was due to the allies pushing their lines forward.

Retire From Dixmude.

The Germans have retired from the front at Dixmude, a distance of fifteen kilometres (9 miles) according to the correspondent of The Vaz Dieas.

A despatch to The Telegraaf from Brussels reports that the Germans are refusing to issue passports for travelers in any direction. All train service in Belgium is completely suspended and all newspapers have been conthcated, even those published in German. The probable reason for the latter move is believed to be that the authorities are keeping secret all measures which are being taken in connection with the situation on the eastern front.

Heights Occupied.

The French troops has occupied all of the heights of the Vosges, according to a telegram from Mont Beliard. The message announces that the Germans have evacuated the three villages of Seppois, Moos and Bisel, abandoning a large quantity of ammunition and other war material.

The Tijd, Sluis, reports that the German retreat along the Yser front continues. Troops are being despatched north, apparently to prepare against new attacks by the British fleet.

Engineers Badly Hurt In G.T.R. Collision Brought To Peterboro'

Engineers Smith and St. Ours and Brakeman Weatherup were injured in a wreck that occurred on the Grand Trunk line about four miles the other side of Campbellford, this morning. They were brought to this City on a special train which arrived here about 1 o'clock, and were rushed to Nicholls Hospital. Comstock's private ambulances met the train and two of the injured men were taken to the Hospital in the motor ambulance. The other, who was not so seriously injured, was taken to the Hospital by automobile. One of the engineers is very seriously hurt, and may not recover. The other is also suffering from severe injuries. Brakeman Weatherup had his left arm broken and is badly bruised.

The heavy fog is given as the cause for the accident.

The collision occurred when a double-header grain train going east, crashed into a work train, going in the same direction, about four miles the other side of Campbellford. In the heavy fog the engineers in charge of the freight train did not see the work train ahead until it was too late to avoid the accident and the freight crashed into the train ahead of it with considerable impetus. The rear of the work train was practically demolished, and derailed, and the two engines were very badly damaged. The work train was used to pick up the discarded rails which have been replaced by eighty-pound steel ones, and at the time of the accident was probably stationary.

It is said the train following it had been warned of its presence on the track and had even picked up the flag man whose duty it was to notify them of the proximitiy of the work train. Several cars were damaged and derailed when the rear-end collision occurred.

Two doctors from Campbellford were called to attend the injured men and came to this City with them, on a special train that was made up at Campbellford and despatched to Peterborough. Dr. Moir and the local ambulances were waiting at the station when the train arrived. One of the men, it is reported, is very badly crushed, but the exact extent of their injuries could not be ascertained this afternoon.

Brakeman Weatherup, who had his arm broken, was injured in a wreck about two years ago at Waubeshene, when one of his fellow trainmen was killed.

The freight train was in charge of Conductor Ranson and consisted of twenty cars laden with grain.

AROUND THE STORES

Peterborough Stores Begin to Wear Their Christmas Attire—Holiday Stocks Are Filling Up Fast —Suggestion to Shoppers

The war has not frightened our good old annual visitor, Santa Claus, away, for Peterborough Christmas shopping has certainly begun in our stores. And "business as usual," in the various departments of trade is quite evident. Perhaps the war conditions have modified somewhat the preparations for this big festival of the year; but investigation would show that the large stores are very much in the same state of preparedness as they were at this time last year.

To begin with all the pretty things that children love in this line are not a monopoly of the land of the Kaiser France, Belgium, Holland, Japan and other lands send their supplies, and even if none of these countries were available at this moment owing to unsettled conditions, the stock in most cases was secured long before the war began. Buyers went to Europe and the different toy markets had packed their supplies, so that the dearth expected by the public was more imaginary than real.

Plenty of Christmas Spirit.

Go with any procession of shoppers and you will begin to wonder if there is not perhaps more of the Christmas spirit abroad than ordinarily is the case. Anxiety and suffering in homes that have now a vacant chair—the old-time tenant of which is perhaps on the Plains of Salisbury, in our own camp, or it may be even at the front on the firing line—have broadened hearts and they go out to shop and secure some remembrance for others as a means of showing their sympathy.

All kinds of beautiful things are on view. Holiday books, fancy goods, and jewellery are displayed in great variety. Ladies' and gentlemen's wear brighten the store windows and show cases. The satchel, glove and handkerchief counters are favourite spots of adults, and the usual Christmas novelties in the way of ties and slippers for men friends are on hand, just as of yore.

Ask any of the girls who wait on you so deftly from behind the counter, and who keep their patience, even though they are being besieged on every side by impatient buyers, if business is any slower than last year and they will in all probability tell you.

There is, perhaps, a greater tendency to mix stocks. Merchants are not confining their displays to their regular lines, but are inclined to dip into other goods not usually allied to their regular stocks. The desire to present as large and varied a selection for the Christmas shopper as can be obtained, accounts for the temptation to trench on the domain of other regular dealers.

If there was ever a time when this paper can be of a great service it is now, when its readers are facing the hurries and worries of Christmas shopping. The advertising columns from now until Christmas eve will contain many helps to shoppers. They will give suggestions to those who have hard work to decide. The wise shopper will make full and free use of the advertising.

Thoughts of the suffering and misery across the waters will make Christmas all the more near and dear to Canadians.

There will be a meaning to the day it has never held before. And with the increased sentiment will come a wiser practical distribution of little remembrances.

PETERBORO' COUNTY CONTRIBUTED $400

To the Red Cross Fund—Next Instalment Will Go to Some Other Fund

Subscriptions for the Red Cross Fund are flowing in with gratifying regularity, according to Col. the Hon. James Mason, honorary treasurer of the Canadian Red Cross Society, who reports that since the last public acknowledgement, contributions to the Society's fund have been received totalling $6,949.44.

Peterborough's Contribution.

Four hundred dollars of this amount was received from the Peterborough County Council. This represents the first monthly contribution of $400. The next monthly instalment of $400 will likely be turned over to the Belgian Relief Fund and the subsequent one to the National Patriotic Fund. After that the matter will be in the hands of the 1915 council.

SERVIANS LOOK TO RUSSIA FOR DEFENCE AID

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 2.— A despatch to the Times from Petrograd describing Servia's plight, says:

"Austria has a half million men on the Servian front, but the Servians were informed of this in time and were enabled to retreat into positions more convenient for defence. The Servians are now hoping that the Russians will soon appear under the walls of Budapest."

HASTINGS NEWS

Budget of News From the Eastern Town

Special to The Examiner:

HASTINGS, Dec. 2—Rev. W. Tucker of Campbellford occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, and delivered a very instructive address along missionary lines.

The annual S. S. concert was held at Elgin on Friday night and was as usual, a grand success. Supper was served in the school-house, after which a very interesting proframme was rendered by the members of the School. The proceeds, which amounted to nearly $35, were in aid of the Sunday School.

One of the largest shipments of poultry which ever left Hastings, was sent out on Wednesday and Thursday of last week by Baker Bros. The consignment contained some 2,200 turkeys, besides a lot of geese, ducks and chickens.

The Ladies' Aid met in their regular monthly meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. A. Doxsee, with a good attendance.

A very successful auction sale of farm stock and implements was held on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. Percy Beavis. Mr. A. Wilson was auctioneer and performed his part well.

Collectors for the Patriotic Fund have been making a tour of Asphodel, and with marked success, the response to their appeals being very liberal.

Mr. George Brooks returned on Saturday from an extended visit in Western Canada.

Mr. Cecil Joint has returned to Hastings after spendnig a holiday out of town.

Dr. Hess has been a recent visitor at Wooler.

Miss Mabel and Mr. Erle Laing of Norwood, were in Town on Wednesday.

Mr. S. Cardwell of Westwood gave us a call last week.

Mr. Akey of Peterborough was in this vicinity last week and purchased a very fine horse from Mr. W. Beavis, for which he paid a handsome sum.

Mrs. W. Baker spent Friday at Warkworth.

Rev. Anderson attended the meetigs of the S. S. Institute on Wednesday and Thursday of the past week, held at Campbellford and Norwood.

Mr. C. McKay of Kirkfield has been been renewing acquaintances here.

We regret to say that Mr. T. Learmonth's condition is still very serious, and no hope is entertained for his recovery. His family have been called home to be with him in his last moments.

The funeral of the late Mr. Murshaw a former resident of Hastings, took place on Monday morning upon the arrival of the G.T.R. train. The remains were interred in the R. C. Cemetery.

Mrs. Smith of Cobourg is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Warner.

Mr. H. Johnson of Stirling gave us a call on Monday.

Mrs. J. Collins, Sr., is reported ill from a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McKay of Otonabee, and Miss Daisy Wright of Peterborough, spent Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Beavis.

Messrs. Kohler and Walker have returned and are on the look-out for cattle, hogs and poultry for shipment.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson spent Sunday in Campbellford taking work for Rev. W. Tucker.

Miss G. Howson is visiting friends in Westwood.

PUT SEALS ON BACK OF LETTERS

Mr George Ross, Post Office Superintendent for Canada, has asked that special intimation be given throughout the Province that Christmas seals must be used on the back only of all mail matter. This is specially stipulated by the Postmaster-General at Ottawa. No mail having seals on the face can be forwarded to destination. All such mail will be held back as contrary to regulations. Thousands of people throughout the Province are already using Christmas seals. To any one of these the above may be a vital matter as important mail matter may not reach its destination if the Postmaster-General's order is not adhered to

PRESENTATION TO REV. DEAN McCOLL BY CONGREGATION OF ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Address and Cheque as Expression of Esteem—Rector Takes Charge of The Church of The Immaculate Conception.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S REGARD

Rev. Dean McColl was the recipient of a farewell address and cheque of splendid proportions from the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral at Vespers on Sunday. His appointment as pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception in East City takes effect on Sunday, December 6th.

While not far removed from the congregation he has served during the past thirteen years, Dean McColl's new pastorate nevertheless becomes a complete severance from the Cathedral.

It was with a full realization of this fact that the congregation of St. Peter's prepared a memorial to their late rector. The church was crowded last night as an evidence of the position Dean McColl holds in the esteem and love of the Cathedral congregation. His service of theirteen years was recognized by the splendid gift from the people, and by the testimony and expression of confidence bespoken by Bishop OBrien. Dean McColl, himself, said the co-operation of the laity was the greatest recompense that could be rewarded his efforts. The progress that had been made in the parish during the thirteen years just closed was the strongest evidence of the response that had been made to his efforts towards the spiritual and temporal well-being of the people.

The Address.

Vespers were sung by Rev. Father McAuley, and before benediction a committee representing the congregation entered within the chancel. The following address was read by Dr. McNulty and Mr. John Corkery, Sr., made the presentation:

Very Reverend and Dear Father,—

It is with feelings af deepest regret and sorrow that we address to you words of farewell upon the occasion of your transference from this Cathedral Church. So intimately have you become associated and intertwined with the varied interests of the Parish, and so deeply have you manifested your concern for all that pertains to our religious and social life that your departure comes to each of us as a personal bereavement.

During the thirteen years that you have exercised in so fatherly a way the functions of your priestly office we have come to recognize the intensity of your zeal, the depth of your devotion, the sincerity of your affection, and now that these bonds of attachment are about to be severed, a great sorrow stirs our emotions. The sense of reality that surrounds us on this occasion dims for the time the more happy memories of the past.

It is on such occasions as this that the notable incidents in a cycle of a life's work stand out in relief. To enumerate the varied fields in which your energy has manifested itself, fields wherein your individuality is stamped, would be merely to record the results of that spirit of progressiveness so apparent during your regime as Pastor. Your scholarly attainments early directed your thoughts and energies to educational matters and the high state of efficiency of our schools at the present time is due in no small degree to your untiring zeal and unerring judgment. In the erection of Churches, in the enlargement and embellishment of our charitable institutions, wherein the sick, the orphaned, and the aged find a place of refuge, in the advancement of the noble cause of total abstinence., in the fostering of all that pertains to aesthetic and intellectual culture, you have taken an active and energetic part. As the pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception, we wish you every success, and our one consolation in your departure from St. Peter's Cathedral is that you will still be near us and that we will be frequently comforted by your genial presence. "The joys of meeting pay the pangs of absence."

We ask of you now to accept this purse of gold as a small token of our affection and esteem.

For St. Peter's Congregation—F. P. McNulty, M. O'Brien, C. H. Pennefather, J. V. Gallivan, D. O'Connell, John R. Corkery, David Holland, Michael Lynch, Patrick Kane, J. J. Duffus, J. J. Hickey, J. W. Fitzgerald, Maurice O'Hearn.

Dean McColl's Reply.

Rev. Dean McColl was deeply moved by the incident. He was touched, he said, by the kind words of the address and by the gift which in these times must have involved some sacrifice. The conditions that make for progress of the church have obtained in this city. The diocese has been blessed by good bishops. Our superiors have been men of good heart, and they have also possessed level heads. The second element contributing to success was good priests, and this too has been found here. And thirdly, there have been good people. There could be no progress without their co-operation. The congregation of St. Peter's could take a large share of the credit for the progress made in the parish.

Speaking of education, Dean McColl said Christ had a special love for children. It was the duty of parents to educate them and also not to allow their innocence to depart. The church takes every precaution to educate children so that their intellectual development shall go hand in hand with their moral training. Results must be good when the children receive not only broad mental education, but when in addition they receive a thorough moral education.

Dean McColl said his work at the Cathedral had been a pleasure through the hearty response it had brought from the people. In closing he again expressed his appreciation of the kindness shown him.

Bishop O'Brien.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien said he could endorse all that had been said in the address. Dean McColl had been in charge of the Cathedral for thirteen years. He had to handle its finances and he was leaving without being five cents richer.

In your gift there is indicated a strong unity between priest and people. After family ties there is no union more ideal and deeply religious than that between a priest and his people. We have progressed and it is due largely to the response of the people. The respect and love you have shown your pastor is not primarily for his personality good and kind as he may be. It is because you see in him the divinely appointed agent of Christ. You respect the authority which the priest represents. St. Paul did not hesitate to call himself the ambassador of Christ.

Bishop O'Brien said God had placed authority in the church and there it is found as nowhere else in this life. The obedience of the priest to the bishop, the people to the priest was recognized as obedience to God. The world sometimes regards this obedience as a weakness. To-day the world is plunged in grief by the war in Europe. His Lordship asserted that obedience to military discipline was most necessary. The private obeyed without question the instructions of his officers. He obeys not the officer in his own personality. The man in the ranks recognizes in the command of the officer the authority of the King. The officer is merely the agent of the Crown. Hence the army finds one of its main strengths in the obedience that is shown to those who are placed in authority.

His Lordship said the new church would bring great blessings to the new parish. Those who have been good will be made better by the House of God adjacent to their homes. Assisting at morning mass every day will be made easier for many.

It will provide for the spiritual welfare of the people in that section and with Rev. Dean McColl as pastor, it is in good hands.

Bishop O'Brien said it was a pleasure to him to have seen the warm feeling of regard that had been shown Dean McColl.

WEDDING BELLS

LIVINGSTONE—SHEARD.

Wednesday, November 25th, at 3 o'clock, the marriage was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. Henry Sheard in Grosvenor Street, Toronto, of her daughter, Miss Gertrude, to Mr. Thornton Fleming Livingstone, only son of the late Mr. Robert Livingstone, Aurora, and of Mrs. Livingstone. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Simpson, pastor of the Carlton Street Methodist Church, in the bow window of the drawing room, which was astorest of palms and chrysanthemums, an aisle being formed with heavy white cords leading to the window, where a white and gold kneeling stool was arranged for the bride and groom, the large drawing-room accommodating the seventy guests easily. The wedding music was played by the favourite orchestra, and Miss Gladys Jones, London, sang the "Happy Song" after the ceremony. The hall and staircase was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums, the orchestra playing behind a screen of tall phoenix leaves. The dining-room was arranged with yellow chrysanthemus and ferns, and the bride's table with white roses and lilies. The beautiful fair bride, who was brought in and given away by her brother, Dr. Robert H. Sheard, wore a gown of white satin with basque and court train hemmed with seed pearls, with overdress of Chantilly lace. Her veil was of tulle and lace hemmed with pearls, and crowned with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and wore the groom's present, a pearl necklace. Miss Florence McMurty was maid of honour, wearing pale blue satin with white tunic and black velvet picture hat with blue, and she carried an armful of Beauty roses. Miss Pearl Carton, Peterborough, was bridesmaid, in shell pink ninon and lace, with black velvet picture hat, and an armful of pink tea roses. Mr. William C. Gowland was best man. The groom's gift to the bride's attendants were necklaces of pink coral roses and pearls, and to the best man a silver-mounted snakewood stick. Mrs. Sheard held a reception after the ceremony, wearing a gown of black crepe de chine and ninon. Mrs. Livingstone, who was also present, wore black. The Rev. R. J. Simpson proposed the bride's health. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone left for the Eastern States by the 5.20 o'clock train, the latter wearing a black tailor-made trimmed with fur and a hat to match, and a stole and muff of ermine.

KNIGHT—BARNETT.

The marriage of Miss Clare Barnett of St. Catharines, and Mr. A. F. Knight, Manager of the Bank of Ottawa, took place this afternon in St. Catharines.

ROBINSON—HATHERLY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr William Hatherly, Otonabee on Wednesday evening, November 25th, when his second eldest daughter, Mary Ethel, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James Ernest Robinson. The bride was given away by her father. She was attired in Alice blue silk, with trimmings to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern. Her only attendant was a flower girl, Miss May Ritchie, niece of the groom, who also was becomingly attired in a dress of Alice blue silk.

The wedding march was played by Miss Olive Johnston, of Peterborough. The groom's gift to the bride was a bracelet, to the flower girl a ring, and to the organist a brooch.

Rev. A. K. Edmison performed the ceremony.

ELLIOTT—CHASE.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, Nov. 28th, at the home of Mr. Wilbert O'Neil, 20 Aylmer street, when Miss Mary Ida Chase, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chase of Chase Corners, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Grant Elliott, only son of Mr. Wm. Elliott of Ida. Only a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will reside in Peterborough.

LEE—FOSTER.

(Toronto Star.)

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Alban's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, the bride being Miss Minnie Foster, daughter of Mrs. Foster, of 280 Robert Street, Toronto, and the bridegroom Mr. Harold Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee, of Peterborough, Ont. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Mishaw, wore a dress of white French velour, trimmed with pearls, with wreath and veil, and carried a choice bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was attended by two bridesmaids, the Misses Flora and Agnes Foster, sisters of the bride, who wore long sprays of white and pink bridal roses. The Misses Foster were attired in pale blue silk crepe de chine dresses, trimmed with brilliants, with black velvet hats and white plumes. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon MacNab, who at the close of the service gave a very helpful address. A reception was held at the home of Mrs. Foster, where quite a number of friends were gathered. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Lee left for their home in Peterborough.

WYLIE—STONE.

On Thursday afternoon, November 26, at 3 o'clock, a pretty house wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stone, Webster, Mass., when their only daughter May was united in marriage to Mr. Alex. Wylie, clerk in Webster Post Office. About one hundred guests were present, and the presents were numerous, beautiful and costly, testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple are held. After a reception at the home, Mr. and Mrs. Wylie left by auto for Worcester, amid showers of confetti, from which place they go in a day or so for a trip that will include Buffalo, Toronto, Peterborough, Montreal, Quebec and Boston. While in Peterborough Mr. and Mrs. Wylie will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnston, 9 Park Street North.

McCARTHY—HEAGERTY.

The marriage of Miss Molly Heagerty, daughter of Mrs. J. Heagerty, 4009 Dorchester street, Westmount, to Mr. M. McCarthy took place quietly at St. Leo's Church, Montreal. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Gauthier. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Dr. J. J. Heagerty was unattended, she wore a midnight blue chiffon velvet suit trimmed with sable, with a black hat with white ospreys, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Francis A. Hogan of Syracuse, N.Y., was best man. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy left for New York and other cities in the United States, the bride travelling in a tailor-made suit of tete-de-negre broadcloth, with hat to match, and mink furs.

Mr. McCarthy is a brother of Mr. E. J. McCarthy, Hunter street, Peterborough.

The bride was beautifully gowned in cream satin with overdress of accordion pleated ninon and shadow lace. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and cameo necklace, and to the pianist a cameo ring. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto and western points.

(From Salisbury Plains.)

The following letter was received recently by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Buchanan from their son George, who went out with the first contingent:

Salisbury Plains, Oct. 29.

Dear Mother and Father,—Received your most welcome letter yesterday. We are having some cold weather over here just now and are still in our tents. I received your letter on the boat just before getting off at Plymouth. We had a dandy trip coming over but had a narrow escape from the Germans. We were three weeks and four days on the boat. There were three or four German submarines looking for us, but they missed us, and one of our battleships, the "Majestic," that came over with us, went out the next day and sank two German submarines that were after us. There were thirty-six boats, counting the battleships, all in a section, four abreast, that brought us over. After we got off the boat at Plymouth, some of our boats went to Glasgow and a couple were captured, but they were saved again and got the enemy, too. After leaving the boat we took the train about 12 o'clock at night and reached our camp about 4 o'clock the next afternoon. I was not a bit sick all the way across, although the sea was so rough at times that the waves would dash over the side of the boat on us when we were on the deck. A large number of the boys were good and sick. We have a good colonel and a dandy general by the name of Alderson. He led the Canadian contingent in the South African war and was glad of the chance to lead us. Lord Roberts was up one day to see us. We are all getting passes to go any place we wish to go. I am going to London next week. The Canadian soldiers do not have to pay if they wish to go to any of the shows, and everything is free to us wherever we go in the city. Well, I guess I will close my letter for this time.

Your loving son,
GEORGE.

ALLIES PREPARING AN OFFENSIVE MOVE

In the Event of Russian Victory Will Strike at German Line Enemy Has Relaxed and Attacks Lack Power

PARIS, Nov. 30.— From whatever cause the German effort in the western theatre of war has relaxed, it is officially announced that their forces in Belgium are entirely on the defensive. In France their attacks have been desultory and have lacked power.

There is an impression here that the allies are about to take the offensive in Belgium and Northern France, and that a great attack by the French and British may be looked for in the event of a great Russian triumph in Poland. Military observers incline to the belief that the Germans are suspending operations in the west until an issue is obtained in the east, and are preparing to withdraw to a second line of defences in Belgium if the issue is against them.

Have Built Strong Defences.

They have built defence works at Quadrechat, commanding the high road to Brussels, according to report from Rotterdam, and have erected strong fortresses at Courtrai, Roulers and Tournai. Fortresses stretch for miles along ranges of hills, and are supplied with guns having a range of six miles. Other unofficial reports are that the Germans are preparing for a Winter campaign in Belgium and France. Heavy guns, provisions, winter clothing, ammunition and hospital accessories are being poured into the German bases by the trainload.

German Drive Held Up.

The official report to-night stated that there was calm everywhere except near Arras, where some attacks by the Germans were made and repulsed. The expected arrve of 700,000 men against the allied line in the region of Arras has not developed, although the Germans have shown more energy in that region than in any other part of the battle line.

The fighting was not heavy yesterday. A slackening of fire from the German artillery in Belgium was again noted in the official report. The allies made slight advances in the north, and repulsed German attacks at the east of the line.

It is officially reported that the Germans are displaying great activity at Zeebrugge, their submarine and naval base on the Belgian coast north of Ostend. It is reported that they are determined to make the port a strong base for the attack planned against England. The British naval bombardment at Zeebrugge has been resumed

Advices from Holland report that railway traffic, newspapers and posts in the Brussels region are entirely suspended, it is presumed for the purpose of suppressing news of a movement of German troops to the eastward.

CORNER THE LIAR.

It should be easy to identify the lamginative individual who is guilty of sending out sensational and senseless reports of happenings from Vancouver, B.C. Before the news of the late naval battle, we have had several such reports from time to time that have been shown to be entirely unfounded. It is a very important matter that the people should not be misled by false reports. We are inclined to and, in fact, must, gauge our attitude to, and activities in relation to, the interest of Canada and the Empire in this war, by the knowledge of conditions that comes to us. If the information coincides with the actual facts our attitude and activities will take the right direction, otherwise they will not do so. The despatching telegraph office at Vancouver of such bogus reports, should be able to reveal the name of the rascal responsible. No doubt the military authorities would absolve the man in charge from the crime of revaling the necessary secrets of a telegraph office. We want our news to be true, whether they are good or bad. We don't want a counterpart of the Sayville wireless station under German prompting to be in operation in a Canadian city. Our arch enemy in this war has done so much and such systematically splendid lying, that we should find successful competition hopeless.

DRASTIC BUT WISE.

The action of King George adds another morsel to the British constitution, in the form of a new precedent, piled upon those upon which the British constitution is built. He has excused two Privy councillors, Sir Ernest Cassel and Sir Edward Speyer, names of prominence and influence in the financial world, from attendance at meetings of the Privy Council on account of their German birth, though they are British subjects. This is a mild form of dismissal; and even at that it may seem drastic in character and savour of injustice toward two men of eminence and so far as known, of irreproachable record of loyalty and good citizenship. There may easily be an injustice done, but the King or his advisers are not to blame. The dismissal of these Privy councillors, is a necessary precautionary measure justified in the interest of the nation. If there is any such thing as justifiable injustice, it obtains in a case like this. The King is not ot blame for the injustice done. That is to be charged against the Kaiser and the German war clique. They have made the name of Germany stink in the nostrils of honest men. By their breach of treaty; by their disregard of all the obligations of morality and honour, by their unconquerable crookedness in diplomacy and war waging and by their complicated wide-spread and hellishly ingenious and complete system of spying, they have brought into condemnation millions of undeserving Germans. They have made apply the Virgilian saying —Ex uno disce omnes. They constitute the standard by which all Germans, worthy and unworthy, are measured. Unworthy of trust themselves, and standing as the representatives of the German people in this war, the latter are necessarily involved in the general condemnation of German methods, German unfaith and unworthiness of trust.

A FRENCH PROPHET.

Many great literary men have been prophetic. Tennyson foresaw the use of the airship in war, when he sang of "airy navies grappling in the central blue." In a more prosaic way Lamartine, a French writer of distinction from 1820 to 1863, in which latter year he published a series of historical sketches of takes a similar role. Among these was the life of "Christophe Colombe." In his impressive and closely reasoned introduction, speaking of the influence of modern discoveries upon the unity of the world, he mentions the discoveries of printing, the application of steam, the electric telegraph, etc. Regarding the discovery of "aerostats, qui," he says, "therecent encore leur gouvernail"—that is lack dirigibility, cannot be steered — he adds, "mais qui bientot, rendront navigable un element plus universal et plus simple que l'ocean." Here is a distinct forecast of dirigible balloons, which have, in these days, become a practical and awfully destructive actuality. They are not only easily dirigible, but they carry men, guns, torpedo tubes and bombs, among the clouds from whence is distributed German "kultur" upon peaceful cities, non-combatants and women and children, and they outdo the "Lights o' London." Lamartine made prediction of the aerostat being made dirigible and mobile fifty-one years ago, when the problem of steering balloons was only academic.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner is sure that it gives expression to the sentiment of the whole city in extending cordial congratulations to Lt.-Col. Clegg upon the distinction and recognition of merit implied in his promotion to the responsible position of commandant of the Canadian Camp at Salisbury Plain — second in command, under General Alderson of the thirty-three thousand soldiers of the Canadian Overseas Contingent. This is a signal honour to Lt.-Col. Clegg and the 57th Regiment, of which he had command in the piping times of peace. It must have been military merit alone that led to his promotion. He is modest and unassuming, and not the man to thrust himself into prominence. His merit has been before recognized. It was a compliment to Canadian officers, when he was selected to command the Newfoundland contingent at Salisbury. This position he held on the occasion of Their Majesties' visit to the camp, when on being introduced to the King and Queen, Col. Clegg, held in conversation by the King, had to exercise his conversational strategy to satisfy his Majesty's curiosity as to the composition and character of the men of his command. Col. Clegg must have demonstrated his capacity by effective service, to be selected as the successor of a veteran like Col. Victor Williams, who has gone to the continent to join the staff of Field-Marshall French. Lt.-Col. Clegg, Commandant of the Canadian Camp, we salute you.

WHEN WILL THE WAR END?

We are all interested in the duration of the present war, and naturally put the question—When will it end? There are differences of opinion. A French military expert writing in the London Daily Mail, predicts a three years' duration of the war—till 1917. According to him it will take till Christmas to clear French soil of the Germans. It will take the time thereafter till April to drive the Germans from Belgium, and the rest of the time, till 1917, to overcome German resistance on her own soil.

This is the purely military view, but this can be greatly modified by consideration of how greatly Lloyd George's "silver bullet" will exert its influence. A London financial expert controverts the view of the military expert by pointing out that he regards the question from a purely military point of view, and ignores a decisive factor, the economic factor.. The Allies entered the war with far greater financial resources than Germany. From the beginning German trade has suffered, weakening her finances still further, while the commercial impairment of the Allies has been comparatively nil. The commercial credit of Germany has been impaired so that the German mark suffers a discount of 6 per cent., while the credit of the Allies is as good as it was last summer. This embarrassment for Germany is only beginning; it will be much accentuated, when the armies of the Allies are upon German soil; then the economical feebleness of Germany will be at its intensest point. Invasion will paralyze her industries. Her food supplies with the requisitions made by the invading hosts will be greatly diminished. If the Allies follow the example of Germany—in levying tribute on Belgium—the latest demand being seven millions a month—the money chests of Germany will be utterly depleted. Germany will have difficulty in feeding the armies defending her own soil, she will not be able as she is donig now in part, to seize supplies in Belgium and the north of France. Thus under invasion, Germany with her external commerce ruined; with her industries paralyzed; with her finances disorganized; with her food supplies shortened, will face disaster. The prospects of success will redouble the industrial and commercial energies of the Allies and further contribute to that financial integrity which is the greatest asset in waging war successfully. For these reasons the London financier argues that we can reasonably expect an end to the war some time in 1915. He thinks that when the German people realize that "the game is up," and that further resistance would prolong the national sufferings, bring deeper national humiliation, and add to the account to be settled, they will make short work of the Hohenzollerns and the war clique, and demand peace. Whether the war lasts a year or lasts three years, we shall prosecute it to the triumphant end. We shall need to make many sacrifices; send more soldiers and prepare for renewed enterprise in looking after those left dependent. We shall have to help those that are made helpless by the war. We shall perhaps have to do more then to make good the slogan—

MORE THAN ONE WAY TO FIGHT.

We are allies of France in the fighting now going on upon French and Belgian soil. Naturally we take the greatest interest in the fate and feats of our own troops, and our admiration goes out to the splendid fight they are making; but we must not forget that the French armies, six in number and totalling nearly two million men are bearing the brunt of the battle. An English paper points out that on the long line from the North Sea to the Swiss border, "nine-tenths of the fighting is being done by French and Belgian troops and one-tenth by the British forces." Britain, however, does not confine its efforts and usefulness in holding the German legions in check to fighting on the land. France and Belgium had their armies on the spot, ready for the invasion they expected. If the position had been reversed, and it was Britain's soil that was invaded, there would be a different story. With all their willingness and readiness, the French forces, if they had had to depend upon their own navy to secure transport to England, might have been represented in the fighting line with fewer than two million men. Great Britain's navy has been a mighty factor in the success of the alldied armies. True this help has been in a degree negative, but it had a positive influence. Thanks to it and its repressive influence, France has had the ways open to the sending in of supplies, alimentary and military, and thanks to the British navy poor battered Belgium's starving citizens are supplied with food. If we come to count influences it may be easily a debatable question as to what nation is doing the most to neutralize the power of Germany, and pave the way for her defeat. Next spring, when Great Britain will have some two million men, on the battle line, the condition as to land forces will be more equal in numbers and fighting effectiveness.

But we cannot deny a generous meed of praise to the French, and especially the heroic Belgians, for having done such splendid work in checking and defeating the designs of the invading enemy. This, however, is no time, when victory hangs in the balance, to invoice the respective contribution of the allied armies to the imminent victory. They are all in their own way doing magnificent work in the great struggle in which they have colectively put out of commission fully as many German soldiers, as the whole of the Belgian army. The role is to keep on fighting and doing our best. Each of the allies is in the fight to win, and each is nobly doing its best. Canada has done, or is doing its share; Peterborough has done or is doing its share in contributing fighting strength. But there are other battlefields to be held and won, than those in the war zone. We at home have a share in the fight; we can and should uphold and strengthen the hands of our forces in the field. Our soldiers in camp or trench will have higher spirits, will fight with more courage and hope, if they know that we they are fighting for at home, are true to them, are true to our trust in looking after those who have been left defenceless or destitute by their breadwinners going to the war. We can and must do our share of fighting by a vigourous advance in the direction of realizing the slogan—

DISCIPLINE MUST BE MAINTAINED.

We have no need of the assurance of St. James, that the tongue is "an unruly evil" and that "no man can tame it." It is axiomatically true that one is a million times sorry for what he says, but very seldom sorry for what he does not say. This is a truth that should be impressed upon every growing boy, and girl too — if we could change her nature. The tongue, in its thoughtless wagging spreads more social poison, and, especially when aided by the serpent tongue of the gossip, who maliciously and gloatingly repeats thoughtless sayings, creates more ruin of domestic and society peace, than any other agency of the devil. A man or woman who talks too much is sure to "put his or her foot in it" sooner or later. Major-General Sam Hughes, our Minister of Militia and of Wind, is an unusual combination of the man of talk and the man of action. He has acted well in his official capacity. He has shown great energy and administration "drive"—to use his own modest description of his achievements; but when it comes to talking there is no doubt that he talks too much. In the abstract there is no harm in his talking—in his blowing his own trumpet; there may be even good in it. Men of some little military ability, and with some small record of achievement, like the late Lord Roberts, the man who didn't "advertise"; the reticent Kitchener, whose flow of oratory is on a level with the conversational habits of that edible mollusc, the oyster; the taciturn French, and Joffre the Silent—these great but mistaken men will be taught by example that they make a great mistake in talking so little—about themselves. We don't condemn our Minister of Militia, for talking about himself; he can't help it—he was born of woman. He is, however, to be blamed for talking about his accidental subordinates, but, in a military sense, his military superiors in a way to subvert discipline, which is the core and kernel of military efficiency. Publicly and offensively charging an officer of experienced standing like Col. Lessard, with being an idiot and giving foolish orders, is to humiliate him in the view of his subordinates, and to the extent, that the official rudeness is heeded, weaken his influence, to impair his efficiency as a commander and play hob with discipline. Kitchener, in one of the few speeches he makes in the House of Lords, spoke of the physical fitness and "spirit" of our troops as qualities of equal importance. A soldier, sound in body and strong in spirit is the soldier that will fight to win. It would be just as bad practice, to kill a soldier's spirit by snubbing and bullying, as to weaken his body by short rations and insufficient clothing; and worse; for a soldier with ragged boots and an empty stomach may fight like the devil, as he wouldn't do if his boots were whole, his stomach were full, and his spirit broken sullen, insubordinate from verbal abuse and caddish snubbing. Discipline must be maintained.

Why do statesmen read the Weekly Sun of Toronto? Because it is a paper with a reputation that is unquestioned. It is the farmers' business paper, and is watching farmers' interests all the time. Aside, even, from its market reports which are acknowledged to be the best in the Dominion, it is a paper of weight. You should have it come to your home every week. All through the long winter nights it will furnish a wealth of interesting reading material of a thoroughly reliable character. This paper has special clubbing arrangements with the Sun. Let us have your renewal and add the Sun to your list of papers for 1915.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER

It has been generally held that there is a pertinent relation between German "Kultur" and Turkey, her new ally. Now we have litera-l evidence of how intimate is the relation between the German brand of Kulture and the characteristics that attach to the man and quality of Turkey. Here is the proof:

N. Y. Telegraph Operator Held in $5,000 Bail by Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—L. L. Linder, a telegraph operator employed by the Postal Telegraph Company and stationed in the office of the New York Globe, was held in $5,000 bail for the action of the Grand Jury when arraigned in the Tombs Police Court to-day, charged with violating section 552 of the penal law, in that he revealed the contents of certain news messages sent out by the Associated Press.

Linder was released in the custody of his counsel until a surety company could renew his bond of $5,000.

AID TO WESTERN FARMERS.

May Cost Govt. Nearly Two Millions Instead of One Million.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 1. — The aid to the western farmers who last summer lost their crops is much more extensive than at first reported. In place of $1,000,000 it is almost $2,000,000.

The exact expenditures up to date on seed grain for the afflicted farmers is $1,800,000. This will enable them to put in heavy crops over the greatly increased acreage proposed next year.

LETTERS ARE THE MOST APPRECIATED

The following extract from a letter to the Mail and Empire, from that paper's staff correspondent at Salisbury Plain, is of timely importance and should be acted upon by all friends of our local boys at Salisbury Plain, who are not already doing so:

"In passing it may be remarked that, while the books are very welcome, there is not a man in camp who would not sooner have half a dozen letters from home to read when he comes in from a hard day's training work. Too many people wait for the man himself to write to them, forgetting that when the evening comes he feels more like having a rest than writing letters. News from home is the most eagerly sought for thing in camp and often some of the men do not receive letters for weeks at a time. It's not only letters from relatives that the volunteers like to receive. They want also to hear from their friends and acquaintances, for it's good to feel that, though they are thousands of miles away, they are not forgotten. The least those who are unable to go to the front themselves can do is to write to the men who have gone and, besides, it is a splendid way to express patriotism. Every Canadian who has a relative or friend with the contingent should consider it his or her duty to write to him. Rest assured that he will answer it if he can, but whether he does or not he will appreciate it from the bottom of his heart. And, what is very important, every letter should be addressed, including the addressee's rank, name, company, battalion and brigade."

LT.-COL. CLEGG IS CAMP COMMANDANT OF 1st CONTINGENT

Commanding Officer of 57th Regiment Succeeds Col. Victor Wiliams in This Most Important Position---A Fine Honour for the Regiment and for Peterborough.

SALISBURY PLAIN, Nov. 27 —"The Canadian soldiers are now sufficiently well trained to take their place in the firing line." This significant statement was made by a high military authority here after witnessing divisional manoeuvres to-day.

Rumour says that the Canadian contingent may go to the front sooner than has been expected.

The first divisional manoeuvres were carried throug to-day at Salisbury Plain under General Aldersen, with General Pitcairn Campbell and his staff present. All the men and details took part, and marched to Enford Downs, several miles distant, being out from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and carrying rations and all equipment. The weather was favourable and the operations successful. All leave to the members of the contingent will be stopped after December 1st.

NEW CAMP COMMANDANT.

Lieut.-Col. E. B. Clegg, commanding the 57th Peterborough Rangers, has been appointed camp commandant in succession to Colonel Victor Williams. Colonel Williams was dined by the headquarters' staff before leaving to join the staff of Field Marshall French at the front.

Sidney H. Griffin and P. S. Eardley-Smith, both privates from Toronto, where the former was connected with the T. Eaton Company and the latter with the Bank of Montreal, have received commissions in the British regiment, the Gordon Highlanders.

Lieut-Col. E. B. Clegg, Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment Who Has Been Honoured With the Most Important Appointment of Camp Commandant of the First Canadian Contingent Succeeding Col. Victor Williams Who Has Joined Sir John French's Staff.

How Material Is Sent From Base To The Line

PRZESYSL, Oct. 28 (by mail to New York).—Thousands of waggons clogging the roads, squads of men searching for wounded, great quantities of supplies and ammunition being hurried forward; those are the things you see as you near the "point" of a battle front.

There were two 'bus loads of us, including six correspondents, on the road from the kriegspresse quartier to Przemysl. And right here, let's get the pronunciation: "Puh-chem-i-zul." Say the first syllable by separating the lips quickly with a very, very small puff; hold your lips loosely together and then blow them apart and you've got it. The rest is easy. The accent is on the second syllable.

As we went along the muddy roads, well built, but with their stone surfaces covered with the slime carried and stirred by the feet of horses and men and the wheels of thousands of supply waggons I began to understand from actual observation just what the point really is. The point isn't a hair-like invisible line between two armies; it's a line in this case, 100 miles wide. It is a great, broad strip of the intensest human activity. Back there, 50 miles, where the trains blocked our progress and where train after train, hour in, hour out, day in, day out, puffs its way with wounded from the battlefields or with ammunition and food toward the firing line—all that territory is really the point. The supplies that the steam trains transport will be carried as near to the actual battleground as the rails run. Then these waggon trains which pass in an almost endless line to the left of the road take the supplies as near to the point as they can get them and deposit at some base, like this town of Przemysl. Here other waggons feed the supplies to the men on the firing line and the last fellow to complete the transportation of, say a shell, is the soldier who carries it by hand from a pile of shells lying on the ground to a nearby gun; in one-millionth of a second it's shot away.

Our automobile journey through the "point-belt" lasted two days. It was a pageant of life at its oddest. A wounded soldier knelt on the steps of a wayside shrine, on a hilltop. A horse, tired to death, fell on its side, and died while trying to get up. A man was painting a blue cross on the side of his whitewashed shack to show the Austrians that he was a Roman and not a Russian Catholic. A Hungarian soldier stepped up to me and said: "Oh, I know your country by heart. I used to work in the Ford factory at Detroit, and I ran an automobile clear across the continent once, to San Francisco."

One town where 95 per cent. of the population are Jews a storekeeper who lived in New York 22 years told me: "There isn't a family in this town that hasn't got some relative in the United States, and I'll bet you every Jewish family here gets money from somebody in the United States, regularly."

Storms of Early December Will Be Attended By High Temperature

Absence of Venus Period Hints at Mild and Stormy Conditions

HICKS' PREDICTIONS

A regular storm period having its centre on November the 30th, will come to its culmination stages on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Moon will be full on the 2nd and at greatest north declination on the 3rd. The centre of the Mars period falls on the 4th. The storms of this period will, most likely, be attended by a wave of unusually high temperature for December, as atmospheric tides will flow northward from equatorial regions. The Mars influence is also decidedly electrical in its tendency. The Mercury period will add its perturbing power at this time, so that, altogether, we may reasonably look for some very marked storms, or other phenomena out of the normal course. The same general character of weather that may have prevailed in November, will be strikingly prolonged and emphasized at this period; if it has been wild and wintery, prepare for the same, and worse, at this and other December periods. If it has been open, mild and spring-like, depend upon it, the same character of weather will, for the most part, prevail in December. We repeat that the Mars factor at this time is decidedly problematical. Last winter every indication pointed to rough and stormy conditions in December, but with reversed results. This December, the Venus period is absent, hinting at mild and normal weather; but Mars, Earth, Mercury and Vulcan may spring the opposite surprise upon us. Study and watch conditions in November, and expect, we repeat— to encounter through December the same general conditions, but to greater extremes. Whatever Mars incites is, as a rule intensified—often unseasonable and reversed as to sections and localities; for illustration, frosts and freezing in California last winter, with warm, open weather northward.

A reactionary storm period will develop and run its course on and touching the 5th, 6th and 7th. The reasonable outlook for this period is that rain, turning to heavy sleet and snow, will pass from west to east, and that cloudy, Mercurial, cold weather will continue for several days after the passage of the storms. Study your barometer closely, in connection with every storm period.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th, extending from the 10th to the 16th. This is another annual period of maximum magnetic and electric disturbance. Earth's north magnetic pole makes its greatest angle with the solar equator, hence a crisis of negative currents, an inrush of boreal, interstellar energy, and excess of winter storm and weather from the north polar directions. Navigators must count on exposure and danger on the north Atlantic and Pacific seas. Winter thunder and rain will be natural on and touching the 10th. Sleet and snow will follow, ending in high baometer and cold. Another group of storm areas will pass eastwardly over the country on and touching the 14th and 15th. This will prove one of the greatest sleet periods of the month. New moon on the 16th will prolong threatening conditions into the period next following.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. If we are to have heavy, boreal storms this month—things best to count on—expect such as this reactionary period. Wild, winter gales will rage out upon the Atlantic seas, and answering storms, followed by cold, will sweep oer lake, coasts and inland.

A regular storm period is coincident with the centre of the December solstice period, being central on the 23rd, and reaching from the 21st to the 26th. This period will bring very low barometer, and on and touching the 23rd and 24th the temperature will rise, and storms of rain, attended by winter lightning and thunder, will be probable. These storms will turn to sleet and snow about the 24th and 25th, bringing change to much colder, with snow in wide areas of the country for Christmas. In fact a general snow storm will sweep out to the northwest and spread far to the east and south by the close of this period, closely followed by high barometer and cold clearing weather.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 28th, 29th and 30th. On and touching these days, a reaction to warmer, with falling barometer, and more storms of rain, turning to snow, will cross the country from west to east. High barometer and change to colder will be in sight from the west as the month goes out.

A seismic period is central on the 2nd etxending from Nov. the 28th, to December 5th. The next seismic period is central on the 16th, covering the 13th to the 19th. Volcanic unrest will be coincident with earthquakes about this time some of them violent and dangerous. Seismic disturbances, central about January 2, 1915, will begin the last two or three days of 1914.

TURNKEY MURDERED

Two Indians at Pembroke Kill Jail Official and Make Their Escape

ANOTHER WOUNDED

PEMBROKE, Nov. 30.—Under circumstances of the utmost brutality Turnkey James Coiford was yesterday evening battered to death in the local jail by two renegade Indians, and his assistant, Jailer William Brown, subjected to a beating that has left him at death's door. The assailants escaped into the open and are at large, while armed posses and volunteer searchers are scouring the countryside for them. At 8.45 an armed party left on a special G. T. R. train for Golden Lake hoping to head off the fugitives from reaching the Indian reserve maintained in that district. The town and surrounding neighborhood are stirred into a fever of excitement, and every available man is being pressed into the search. Feeling runs very high because of the obvious treachery of the attack, and the gruesome nature of the beating administered.

Immediately after the supper hour when the two Indians, Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, were being conducted into the cell, and when the turnkey was making affairs comfortable for the night, the two sprang on him from behind. From some unknown source they had acquired a heavy club fashioned from a piece of boarding, and with this they proceeded to beat him to death.

Hearing the noise of the conflict Jailer Brown ran in but by this time Coxford was dead, and the two prisoners sprang at him. Before he could lift a hand he was felled with a blow which fractured his skull. The Indians then dragged the body of the murdered man to a lavatory at the end of the corridor and escaped into the open air.

The only person who saw their escape was a little girl who reported seeing two men running across the fields towards Golden Lake. The alarm was quickly spread and the search began.

White Duck and Jocko were recently remanded on a charge of stealing from G.T.R. freight cars at Golden Lake, and had been in the jail nearly two weeks. To all intents they were harmless men.

The turnkey had no opportunity of defending himself beyond wielding his heavy bunch of keys. Jocko has appeared on a similar charge in the past.

The Pembroke jail is a strong, well-built structure, capable of confining 25 men. At the present time there are a dozen prisoners there.

Since the fugitives are understood to have run in a southerly direction it is feared that they may reach the Golden Lake reserve and persuade some of their friends to conceal them. An armed guard will patrol this place until word of the murderers is received.

Sheriff Morris has assumed charge of operations, and every road from the town is placed under surveillance.

Otonabee Council

The Otonabee Council met on Nov. 16th, when the following business was transacted:

On motion the Reeve was appointed to inspect R. Carey's application for a bonus for a wire fence.

A by-law was passed fixing the Collector's bonds at $8,000. The following accounts were passed:

R. Carey, gravel and damages, $4.36; Thos. Ryan, cutting brush, $6; W. T. Arnott, gravel, 50c.; Thomas McIntyre, bailiff fees, $4; D. Edwards, Clerk of Division Court, fees, $4; A. A. Anderson, jury selecting, $4; J. M. Drummon, $8; Wm. Wedlock, lumber, $54.27; W. J. Bullock, sheep killed by dogs, $3.34; Messrs. Anderson and Deyell, the committee appointed to deal with the matter of the proposed sewerage disposal plant in Riverview Park, Otonabee, reported that they, accompanied by James Thompson, M.P.P., for East Peterborough, went to the City of Toronto, and made objection to the Provincial Board of Health, respecting the establishment of a sewage disposal plant by the City of Peterborough in Otonabee.

Dr. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health for Ontario, agreed to take the matter up with the City Engineer, and assured them that the plans had not been approved by the Board. We also visited the disposal plant at Weston, and found it located at the foot of a hill, with not more than five feet of a fall from the outlet of the sewer to the discharge pipe that empties into the river, and is located on waste, marshy ground, well away from where any residences is likely to be erected. It is the opinion of your committee that such a plant in Riverview Park would be so objectionable that property values in the vicinity would be lowered, and that the placing of the same on a hill would require the pumping of the sewage of a large city up a hill would be a matter of great expense to the City, whereas instead of going into Otonabee and destroying a most valuable waterfront the sewage will run to a point down the river where there is sufficient fall to operate a disposal plant of the kind proposed.

Council adjourned to Dec. 15th.

Had Stomach Rumblings Distress Before Meals

Was Seldom Free From That Weary, Droopy, Half-dead Feeling

Now Cured and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. 25c. per box or five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Nassau Swing Bridge Closed

Will Be Re-opened in Time for Navigation in Spring

The Nassau swing bridge has been locked up for the winter, and even were the ice not in the canal it would be impossible for any boats of large size to pass the village via the canal until the bridge is unlocked in the spring. The semaphore signals for which the trains have to slow down in the summer when navigation is in full swing, have been taken down ad put away for the winter. The rails at both ends of the bridge have been bolted to the steel on the terra firma, and the mechanism of the bridge has been locked. Trains going to Lakefield will no longer have to slow down and wait for the reassuring swing of the semaphore signals as they approach the bridge, but can steam right through in safety. The two men who have been in charge of it have been laid off now, and that part of the line which passes over the steel, become for the next few months an integral part of the branch line to Lakefield. It is likely that the Locks bridge will be closed in the course of a few days.

ALLIES ADVANCE TOWARDS LAON

To-day's Official Communique Shows Progress in the Centre—German Infantry Attacks on Trenches Captured by the Allies Near Ypres Are Easily Repulsed

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, December 2. — The German attacks upon the trenches recently taken by the allies in the region of Ypres, have been repulsed, the official communique from the war office states to-day. A vigorous offensive by the allies betwen the Aisne and the Lette Rivers on the main highway leading to the fortress of Laon, occupied by the Germans, is evident to-day in the official commique report of the fighting.

"At Craonne a German battery was destroyed," the communique states. "There was a heavy bombardment in the region of Vendresse." Vendresse is 5 miles west of Craonne and three miles north of the Aisne. It represents the nearest point to Laon attacked by the allies from the Aisne.

PARIS, December 2.—President Poincare and General Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, visited King George yesterday at the headquarters of General Sir John French, commanding the British forces. The President and General Joffre had luncheon and dinner with His Majesty. To-day it is likely King Albert of Belgium will join the party. President Poincare returned to Paris this morning. The President and King George visited the British army at the front together. They rode through the lines in an open automobile and were roundly cheered by the troops.

General Joffre accompanied President Poincare to the British headquarters but left before dinner there, at which King George, President Poincare, the Prince of Wales, General French and other British Officers were present.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS

SANTIAGO, Chile, December 2. — Anti-German riots are reported in Valparaiso to-day. Crowds gathered in the streets and stoned the German Consulate, and other buildings. The troops had to be called out, and several persons were wounded before peace was restored.

SOFIA, December 2.—Reports reaching here to-day declare that the situation in Servia appears to be serious. The Serbs are reported to have evacuated Belgrade and communication between that city and Nish the temporary capital, has been interrupted.

Desperate Fights For Capture of Silk Flags

PARIS, Nov. 10 (by mail to New York)—Although regimental standards are no longer carried in the forefront of the battle, modern methods of warfare have not altogether eliminated those picturesque "fights for the flag" dear to the heart of the novelist and painter. Most of the French and German regiments carry their colours with them, and there have been several desperate fights for these silken trophies, the fiercest recorded being that for the standard of the Sixth Pomeranian Regiment, which now hangs in the Chapel of the Invalides for the inspection of French sightseers. The story of its capture is told by a French dragoon, whose regiment brought back the trophy.

"Under a heavy shell fire," he said, "our guns supporting the Dragoons had to move to another position and the enemy, thinking that we were in retreat, hurried their advance, the Sixth Pomeranians coming up at the double. Suddenly three large shrapnel shells from their own guns burst over the regiment, doing terible execution and throwing the whole column into confusion.

GERMANS FLED IN WILD CONFUSION.

"It was the right moment for us, and the Dragoons charged home with lances. The Germans rallied and formed into a square, but the volleys they fired were not sufficient to break the charge, and we rode over them. Trampled on by the horses, sabred and transfixed by the lances, the Germans fled in wild confusion.

"One little group, however, was rallied by its officers near a small copse. We did not realize the motive of their resistance until we caught sight of a gold and purple flag fluttering in the breeze. They had rallied to save their flag. We rode up to them and shouted a demand for surrender, but the only reply was a volley which sent 20 horses cantering riderless back to our lines. Our officers ordered a charge in scattering formation and the gallant little group was riden down.

"The flag fell from the hands of a German captain who had received a terrible sabre gash across the head. It disappeared for a minute in a turmoil of horses and struggling men, and then we saw it again waved defiantly by a German sergeant, who, with three other men, fought themselves free. They retreated shoulder to shoulder a few yards and then, with his back to a tree, the old sergeant was left alone with the flag. But he sank to the ground in a moment, his chest transfixed by a lance. He was a brave man.

"When we brought the flag back we saw in golden letters across its town and bloodstained folds the words, "Champigny, 1871."

ALSATIANS SHOWED THEIR SYMPATHIES.

When the French retook one of the towns east of the Allies' field of operations, a number of prisoners captured were seen to be wearing tricolour cockades in their helmets, although otherwise clad in German uniforms.

"Why do you wear our colours?" asked an officer.

"We come from Upper Alsace," was the reply, "and don't want to be Germans."

"Do you want to become French again?" queried the officer.

"No," they said, "we are already French." Then they threw aside their helmets and tunics, shouting, "Vive la France! A bas la Prusse," much to the surprise of the other German prisoners.

FRENCH SCHOOLS HAVE RE-OPENED.

The schools of France have partially resumed after holidays, which started early in July. They are badly disorganized, however, both on account of the fact that fully 25,000 schoolmasters are serving with the colours, and that many of the older boys are on the firing line. By order of the Minister of Public Instruction, the first lesson of the term took the form of an address on the war, commemorating those who have fallen already in defence of the country.

In the girls' schools, two hours a day are to be spent knitting for the soldiers.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS TOOK PART IN THE CONCERT

Left Half of 21st Battalion at Kingston Had Pleasant Evening—57th Men on the Programme.

ENJOYABLE EVENT

Examiner Special:

KINGSTON, Nov. 27—The left half of the Battalion, writes one of the Peterborough boys at Kingston, held its first smoking concert last Wednesday in the Cereal building, which is our Kingston home. After supper the mess room was arranged for the occasion.

At 8 o'clock the chair was occupied by Col. Hughes, O.C. of the 21st Battalion, assisted by Col. Hemming, O.C. of the 3rd Division, and Col. Ponton of Belleville. The mess room by that time was filled to the doors.

In the opening remarks Col. Hughes said it was the first time he had been able to speak to the left half of the Battalion. He would not take up the time in making a long speech as he could see by the length of the programme that they had some splendid talent in the Left Half. "But I want to say," remarked Col. Hughes, "I am more than proud of you boys. You are a splendid bunch of men, and I am more than proud of the way you are getting down to business and the way the men are conducting themselves when out for pleasure. The Kingston Police say you are the best behaved soldiers that have ever been in Kingston. But play the game boys, and you will never be afraid to meet any Germans.

Needless to say E Company was to the front, as usual, supplying two of the talent — Peterborough boys. Pte. R. Custance, the talented singer and clog dancer, whose singing was loudly applauded and also his clog dancing, after his song, "Enjoy Yourself." He possesses a very rich tenor voice and used it to perfection. When he had finished his song, and clog dance, the audience demanded an encore, but he promised to give another clog dance later in the evening, which would be the Sailor's Hornpipe, and was congratulated by the officers at the end of his numbers.

Pte. Frank Roberts of Peterborough sang the solo "The Pattern to the World, in splendid voice and was heartily aplauded, having to respond to an encore, singing "The Call to Arms." He was congratulated by Col. Hughes, Col. Hemming and the other officers on his singing and the splendid songs he had chosen.

Another number was an exhibition of bag-punching by Pte. Harrison of G. Company. He is certainly very clever, and Col. Hughes remarked that if we can use our bayonets as well as that fellow can punch the bag, I pity the Germans."

At the interval refreshments were handed around, consisting of hot rolls and sausage. Cheese was also passed around and the Mayor of Kingston presented us with a large barrel of apples to be given to the boys. Cigarettes were also presented. After the rest of the numbers on the programme were given the concert was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King," at 10.30, led by the R. C. H. A. Band. Lights out at 11 o'clock.

Following is the programme:
Speech—Col. Hughes.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.
Speech—Colonel Hemming.
Song—Sergeant Murtagh, "Land of Hope and Glory."
Speech—Col. Ponton, of Belleville.
Exhibition bag punching—Private F. W. Harrison.
Speech—Major Bennett.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.
Song—Private Fitzgerald.
Song—"Enjoy Yourself," and clog dance—Private Custance.
Speech—Major McLean.
Clog dance (sailor's hornpipe)—Pte. Custance.
Song, "Pattern to the World," and encore, "Call to Arms"—Private Roberts.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.

Refreshments—Part II.

Bagpipe selection—Private W. A. Nelson.
Recitation—Private Smith.
Song—Private Carruthers.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.
Piano selection—Sergeant Sterling.
God Save The King.

DEATH OF C.P.R. INSPECTOR

Was Well Known in Peterboro—A Clever Electrician

PORT HOPE, Dec. 1.—After an illness of some months, the death occurred here of Fred C. Robertson, of Toronto, Inspector of C.P.R. Telegraphs for Ontario. The late Mr. Robinson was born and borught up in Port Hope, but spent most of his life in Toronto. For some years he was in charge of the electrical and operating departments of the company in Toronto, and a few years ago was appointed Inspector for Ontario. The deceased was well and favourably known among telegraph and railway men in the Province, and was considered one of the cleverest electricians in the country. Interment will take place at Port Hope at 3 p.m. to-day.

HAVELOCK COUNCIL.

The municipal pot is beginning to boil in Norwood, where Councillor T. Morrison has announced himself as a candidate for the Reeveship. Reeve B. W. Squire will offer himself for re-election. Municipal news in Havelock is conspicuous by its absence this year, and it is altogether likely that the old Council will be re-elected by acclamation.

LOCAL MINSTRELS MADE BIG HIT

Huycke's Company of Vocalists Scored Complete Success Before Havelock Audience in the Village Hall Last Night.

Huycke's Minstrels journeyed to Havelock last night and played in the Town Hall to a large audience. They received a hearty reception and made a decided hit, the people of the Railroad Village giving every evidence of being positively delighted with their minstrel show.

The production was identical with the one in the Conservatory of Music Hall, which pleased the Belmont Club so well last Wednesday night, with the addition of a few "frills" that made the show a finished article.

The members of the Company were just a little more sophisticated in the art of enlisting the interest of the audience than at their previous performances and the result was that the entertainment was given with even greater smoothness and confidence. There can be no doubt whatever but that the Minstrels scored a big success in Havelock, last night.

The only thing about the whole presentation that came at all near falling flat was George Daly, in "Tipperary," when he slipped on the edge of the stage. He managed to recover his balance, however, and his dignity and the singing of the famous British marching song made a bigger hit than ever. "Harmony Bay" scored again, and Asa Huycke's two original overtures, made a fine impression. The quartettes, duets, solos and dancing specialties all took well, as did the comedy and dancing acts.

The performances was given under the auspices of the Maids of Havelock Club.

Magistrate Gives Fowl Judgment

Dismisses Charge in Important Test Case in Which Woman Was Alleged to Have Sold Fowl Unfit for Food

Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court dismissed the charge against Mrs. H. L. McIlmoyle, accused of offering for sale a turkey which was unfit for food owing to disease. Mr. R. Ruddy conducted the defence and Mr. Widdifield appeared for the city.

Last Saturday Mrs. McIlmoyle was confronted with the charge. A local woman who had bought a turkey from her on the market said that when she opened it on Monday she found the liver diseased, with large yellow and brown spots on it. She called in the Sanitary Inspector and he condemned the fowl, which she consigned to the garbage can. Mrs. McIlmoyle said that she did not know the fowl was diseased when she sold it, and Sanitary Inspector Spence admitted that the disease might not be discovered while the bird was alive.

In his judgment this morning the Magistrate ruled that the prosecution had not proved to any degree of satisfaction that though the bird was diseased, it was unfit for food. This was a quasi-criminal charge and he did not feel justified in making a conviction against the defendant who did not know the fowl was diseased. Two of the same flock had been sold elsewhere in the City and they had proved to be in perfect condition.

Sanitary Inspector Spence maintains that all that it was necessary to prove was that the bird was diseased. He is taking the matter up with the Provincial Board of Health as this was a test case of an important nature.

KICKED INTO INSENSIBILITY

LINDSAY, Dec. 1.—A bad case of assault was reported to the police Saturday night. It seems that Thomas Teevins was set upon by four men in the yards at the rear of the Benson House and seriously beaten up. The affray took place about nine o'clock in the evening. Teevins was badly bruised about the body and received numerous cuts in the face and head. Both his eyes were blackened and he was kicked insensible. He does not remember much about the matter, but states he recognized one of the men. How the free-for-all started is not known. Teevins was conveyed to his home in a rig by a passerby. He was confined to his bed this morning from his injuries.

GROVE SCHOOL BOY DROWNED

Sydney Craven Broke Through Ice While Skating at Lake Katchewanooka and Loses His Life.

COMPANION RESCUED

A sad fatality occurred at Lakefield yesterday afternoon, when Sydney Craven, a pupil at the Lakefield Preparatory school broke through the ice while skating on Lake Katchewanooka and was drowned. A number of the pupils and others were skating on the lake, one part of which is considered quite safe. The unfortunate boy, who was about fourteen years of age, accompanied by another pupil, went beyond the mark of the safety limit and the two went through the ice. Floyd Rogers of Lakefield, at considerable risk to himself, succeeded in rescuing Craven's companion by pushing a rail out to him. He afterwards dived into the icy water in an effort to save Craven, but his plucky attempt was unavailing.

Prof. McKenzie, principal of the Preparatory school was summoned, and he hurried to the scene and dived into the water, finally, bringing the body of the young boy to the surface. All efforts at resuscitation were fruitless.

The victim of the accident has attended the Grove school for several years and was a general favourite. He had been prominent in different branches of school sport and his death has cast a gloom over the pupils and staff. His relatives in Annapolis have been notified, but no arrangements for the funeral have yet been made.

Death's Call Was Sudden

Well Known Chemong Park Visitor Passes Away

Death's call came very suddenly last night to Mr. Walter Rogers Hartshorn, of 141 London Street. Mr. Hartshorn, who was a citizen of the United States, was a well known summer visitor at Chemong Park, where he resided each summer for some some eighteen or twenty years. During the last few years he and Mrs. Hartshorn had spent part of each winter in Peterborough, taking up residence here.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn were dinner guests at the home of Dr. Carmichael, Water Street. During the course of a game of cards which followed, Mr. Hartshorn was suddenly stricken with an attack of apoplexy and collapsed. His physician, Dr. Young, was summoned and Mr. Hartshorn was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where he died shortly after.

The late W. R. Hartshorn was widely known and very popular in Peterborough, and the news of his sudden death will come as a great shock to his friends and acquaintances. He was fifty-seven years of age. His wife here and a number of relatives in the United States survive.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clegg Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary Here

November 25, 1864 — November 25, 1914

Such are the years of happy married bliss which have fallen to the lot of a worthy Scotish pair—Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Clegg, of Midland, Ont.

The town of Kilmarnock, Scotland, saw the happy culmination of the aforesaid parties' love affair in the year 1864. Ten years later Mr. and Mrs. Clegg packed up their "duds" and hied them for the shores of Canada, in those days the voyage taking from six to eight weeks in accomplishing. They landed at Quebec and, striking inland, made their way to the Township of Onida, Ont., where they started farming and, after the years of farm life, they gave it up and removed to their present home in Midland.

But the locally interesting part is that the worthy couple are the parents of Mr. Andrew Clegg, the engineer of the yard engine of the G. T. R.

The celebration of the event referred to took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Clegg, 260 Stewart Street, Peterborough, last Wednesday evening, where Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clegg were feted in royal style and received gifts and the hearty congratulations of a wide circle of friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clegg look and feel hale and hearty, and judging from this are likely to enjoy many more years of wedded bliss, which is the wish of the Examiner and the many friends of the couple.

ENGINEER MAY YET RECOVER

Ambrose Smith in Dangerous Condition From Fracture of the Skull —Fellow Trainmen Are Out of Danger

Hopes are still held out for the recover of Ambrose Smith, the Engineer who was so seriously injured in the rearend collision at Campbellford yesterday morning. His skull was fractured and he received several minor injuries which may prove fatal, but all hopes of his recovering from his injuries have not been lost yet. Engineer Sm. Ours, it is thought, is not so dangerously hurt. He received a bad shaking up and is in a serious condition in the Nicholls Hospital, but is thought to be out of danger. Brakeman Weatherup who had his arm broken, is suffering also from a severe shaking up. All three men are making as good progress as is possible under the circumstances. They are all in the Nicholls Hospital and are being attended by G.T.R. Physician Moir.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Nov. 30.—Industrial Canada, the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, warns its readers that unless the Made in Canada campaign be made permanent, it may do more harm than good. It might lead manufacturers to increase their facilities for output while the volume of business is large, and then to find that these facilities were made unnecessary by a loss of trade later on. The position taken by Industrial Canada is sound. Sentiment will not hold trade for all time to come, and the manufacturers will do well to study economy in production and distribution, and if they do that, the Made in Canada campaign will result in permanent benefit.

The tendency in grains has been to lower levels. Meats, however, are up and other lines of produce hold firm at the old levels.

WHEAT

Wheat quotations fluctuate but slightly. The possible entrance of Islam into the conflict has not greatly strengthened the market. In fact quotations have dropped a cent or two in the week: No. 1 Northern, $1.22½; No. 2, $1.19½; Ontario wheat, $1.11 to $1.12.

COARSE GRAINS

The tendency is to weakness, but generally price cutting has not been serious. There is a good demand for buckwheat and also for peas. Quotations: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 56c; No. 3, 55c; Ontario, 50c to 51c; corn, 71c; peas, $1.60 to $1.70; rye, 76c to 80c; buckwheat, 72c to 75c; barley, malting, 65c to 67c; feed, 46c to 48c. At Montreal quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 56c; extra No. 1 feed, 57½c; local white, 55c to 56c; barley, feed, 63c; malting, 76c to 78c.

MILL FEEDS

The demand for bran is active at $24 to $25; shorts, $26 to $27; middlings, $30 to $32; feed flour, $49 to $54. Montreal dealers quote bran $23; shorts, $27; middlings, $30; feed flour, $32 to $36.

HAY AND STRAW

Hay is steady at the old, high levels. Quite a few rural districts in Eastern Ontario compete for the offerings along with the cities. No. 1 baled hay, $16 to $16.50; No. 2, $15.50 to $16; No. 3, $11 to $13; baled straw, $7 to $7.50. The Montreal market quotes No. 2 hay $19 to $20.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Fresh eggs have taken a decided slant upwards, that is the selected, guaranteed kind. They now go at 40c to 45c. Other quotations: Selects, 35c to 38c; fresh gathered, 28c to 30c; storage, 25c to 28c. At Montreal eggs are active and firm; Fresh, 40c to 45c; selected, 32c; No. 1 stock, 23c to 25c; No. 2, 20c to 22c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Potatoes are now in better demand and Ontario's here command 65c to 70c in car lots; New Brunswick's, 10c higher. Montreal quotations are similar.

Beans here are quoted $1.75 to $2.00 for primes; $2.00 to $2 for hand picked.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The butter market, after a period of uneasiness, is holding about steady. Demands are coming in from country points, which a few weeks ago were shipping to Montreal. Quotations have been asked from New York on June creamery. It is reported that some has been quoted at 32c, but most refused to quote under 33c. Prices are not expected to go much lower. Shipments of Danish butter have recently been made to New York, and the last shipment of Siberian butter arrived at New York from Archangel. The Canadian make in the meantime, it is predicted, will be much lower than last year.

Some late October and November goods are still arriving on the market from country points, but generally dealings in cheese are confined to export sales. So far shipments have not come up to those of last year by some 134,638 boxes. Lack of ocean room is accountable for small shipments now. Western cheese is quoted 15c to 15½ and Easterns, 14½ to 15c.

LIVE STOCK

The removal of the United States embargo against Canadian cattle is already having its effect in higher quotations. Whatever fear the government inspectors may have entertained as to the healthfulness of Canadian live stock, the packers do not seem to entertain them as they are glad to take our shipments, particularly of the highly finished sort. And they are getting them. The soarcest kind of meat on the Toronto Stock Yards is prime, well-finished shipping steers. Canners too are in great demand. Quotations are as follows:

Shipping steers, $6 to $6.35; handy choice steers, $7.75 to $8; butcher steers, good, $7.50 to $7.75; cows, choice, $6.75 to $7.50; heifers, $6 to $7.75; choice cows, $6.50 to $7; com. to good, $5 to $6.50; butcher bulls, $4 to $7.25; feeders, $6.50 to $6.75; stockers, $4.50 to $6.50.

Milch cattle are cleaned up at steady prices: Choice, $60 to $100; com. to med., $40 to $60; springers, $60 to $100. Veal calves run at $5 to $10.

Lambs are steady at $6.25 to $6.50 for light; heavy, $7 to $7.50; culls, $5.50 to $6; light ewes, $6.25 to $6; heavy sheep and bucks, $4 to $5; culls, $3 to $4.

There is an improved demand for hogs, and at the close of last week packers were buying actively at $7.15 f.o.b. country points.

MANITOBA TO CLOSE THE BARS AT 7 O'CLOCK AT NIGHT

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 1.—The announcement was made this morning by Sir Rodmond Roblin, of a new Provincial policy affecting the sale of liquor, in which the following are the main provisions:

A general Cabinet meeting will be called to pass an order-in-council to secure the closing of all places where intoxicating liquor is retailed, at seven o'clock p.m., to prevent the sale of liquor in social clubs after that hour, and close all wholesale places at six p.m.

These measures are expected to be aided by license holders agreeing to close at the hour stipulated, in the absence of a law to that affect. At the next session of the Legislature, a bill will be introduced, amending the License Act, to permit the Governor-in-Council in times of stress or necessity to vary the hours during which liquor may be sold and to give municipalities the right to regulate by popular vote, the number of licenses to be granted.

It is stated that these changes will be made immediately. Premier Roblin in his statement, says that in the Province there has existed since the declaration of war: "a strong sentiment in favour of earlier closing of the bars than provided for in the present License Act, based at first chiefly upon the ground that the occasion required upon the part of all classes of the people the exercise of more than the usual prudence and economy. Another reason," the Premier points out, "is furnished by the presence in Winnipeg since this place has been made a training point of a large number of citizen soldiery whom it is desirable to protect as far as possible and practicable from temptation."

TO-DAY'S MARKETS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Union Stock Yards.—Receipts were moderate only, 65 cars, 701 cattle, 1,549 hogs, 1,184 sheep and lambs, and 2 calves.

Cattle—Few choice cattle were on sale and the highest price reported was $7.75. The bulk of the fat cattle was common to medium. Canners and cutters again were in demand at firm prices. Choice butchers' steers, $7.50 to $7.75; good butchers' steers, $7.00 to $7.40; medium butchers' steers, $6.60 to $6.90; common butchers' steers, $6.00 to $6.50; choice butchers' heifers, $7.75; common butchers' heifers, $7.00 to $7.25; choice cows, $6.50 to $6.75; good cows, $6.10 to $6.50; canners $5.75 to $4.50; bulls, $5.00 to $6.75.

Feeders and Stockers—Market quiet at steady values. Few choice lots on sale. Choice steers, $6.25 to $6.50; medium steers, $5.75 to $6.25; stockers, $4.00 to $5.50.

Milkers and Springers—The demand was greater than the supply at $60 to $105 each, bulk sold at $70 to $85 each.

Calves—Receipts were light and prices steady. Choice veals, $9.00 to $10.00; common to good, $4.50 to $8.00.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts were not nearly so heavy and prices were about the same. Sheep, $5.00 to $6.00; culls and rams, $3.50 to $4.50; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $6.50 to $6.75; heavy lambs, $7.00 to $7.75; culls $6.00 to $6.50.

Hogs.Receipts moderate and prices very firm. Selected, fed and watered $7.50 and $7.15 f.o.b. cars, and $7.75 weighed off cars, and in a few instances 10c more was paid.

The Universal Lunch Box

Fills a Long Felt Want—This and Innumerable Other Household Necessities Round Out the Stock of the Morgan Hardware Co'y.

Universal lunch boxes are used by the armies of the world. At the present time several million of them are in daily use. They are not only used by the defenders of the Empire on the blood-drenched battlefields of Europe, but by the man of peace, whose duty it is to remain at home in order that the wheels of industry might be kept in motion. The latter style of lunch-box is sold in Peterborough by the Morgan Hardware Company. The former type is a creation of the war department.

In addition to the actual comfort to be derived from using the Universal lunch box, such as is sold by the Morgan Hardware Co., it falls under the classification of a necessity when one considers its use from the standpoint of physical welfare and health. To the hard-working business man or mechanic, the growing child at school, the confined clerk in the office and in fact to anyone who engages in steady, concentrated mental or physical labour throughout the day, it is essential that the noon meal be composed of fresh, substantial, tissue building food. The Universal lunch box retains all the wholesome invigorating qualities of the food.

An Extensive Stock.

This is one of the many lines that is being offered by the Morgan Hardware Company. Other lines include the Universal coffee percolators, coffee machines, toasters and grills. Also a complete line of "Rogers 1847" silverware and "Community" flatware, such as knives, forks, spoons, etc. Carpet sweepers and vacuum cleaners find a worthy place among the extensive stock of the Company. For the children there are skates, hockey sticks and sleighs, and for the country people the "1900 Washing Machine" that not only saves the clothes, but reduces the labour of washing them to a minimum. The Morgan Hardware Company carry a stock of goods that not only fulfill every want, but each and every article of which it is composed, carries with it a guarantee of quality plus durability.

A tiny electric oven, which can be placed on the platform of a microscope for heating or drying objects that are to be examined, is the invention of a German scientist.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Diminishing of receipts in the southwest helped today to give an upward swing to the price of wheat. Altho gains were not fully held, the market closed steady at ⅝c to ¾c net advance. Corn wound up the same as last night to ⅝c higher, and oats up ⅛c to ¼c. In provisions, the outcome was 10c to 20c decline.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb. sacks, $3.65 to $3.75.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $6.60 in bags; second patents, $6.10 in bags.

Ontario flour—Winter, 90 per cent. patents, $4.50 to $4.70; Montreal, nominal.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—There was little more enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today; but, as all the bids were out of line with values here no business resulted. The tone of the local market for coarse grains is steady under a fair demand for car lots. Demand for flour is steady for export and country account, but there is very little doing for export, owing to the fact that the prices being bid are out of line. An active trade continues to be done in all lines of millfeed, and the tone of the market is strong.

The trade in butter is quiet, and the tone of the market is easier, with prices tending towards a lower level.

In cheese the feeling is firm, but business is quiet, navigation now being practically closed for the season. Eggs active and firm.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 1.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.13½; No. 1 northern, $1.14½ to $1.17½; No. 2 do., $1.10½ to $1.13½; Dec. $1.13⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 55½c to 56c.
Oats—No. 3 white, 45½c to 46c.
Flour and Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Dec. 1.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.17⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.17⅛; No. 2 do., $1.15⅝; Dec., $1.15⅝.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 701 cattle, 1549 hogs, 1184 sheep and lambs and 72 calves.

Butcher Cattle.

A few lots of good steers and heifers sold at $7.35 to $7.75; medium steers and heifers, $6.75 to $7; common at $6 to $6.50; choice cows at $6.75 to $7; good at $6.10 to $6.50; medium cows at $5.50 to $6; canners and cutters at $3.75 to $4.60; bulls at $5 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, light ewes, $5 to $5.75; heavy, ewes and rams, at $4.50 to $5; culls at $2.50 to $3.50; lambs sold all the way from $7 to $8.75; culls at $6.50 to $6.75.

Hogs.

The bulk of the hogs sold at $7.75, weighed off cars, and $7.50 fed and watered, but a few brought 10c per cwt. more.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 400 head; active and steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 50 head; active; $5 to $12.50.

The French-Canadian regiment is now at St. Johns, Que., completing its training, and Le Canada states that it will leave there about December 15th.

COMFORTS FOR THE CANADIAN SOLDIER BOYS

Vast Quantities of Articles Are Still Required and Money for Emergency Fund Needed

A STRONG APPEAL

The following letter has been received by the President of the Women's Art Association, which is working in co-operation with the Women's War Fund Committee. The letter is self explanatory. It should be read with care, for it involves a strong appeal to practical sympathy — to practical work:

The Ladies' Empire Club,
69 Grosvenor Street,
(Personal address)
October 27, 1914.

Dear Madam,—We are addressing this appeal to you in the hope that you will interest your association in our work and also make it known as widely as possible among those women in your locality who are working for our soldiers.

When the Canadian Expeditionary Force left Canada, Miss Arnoldi and I were appointed by the Minister of Militia to accompany them and continue the work we had begun at Valcartier, namely the distribution of "field comforts." This work has been approved by the British War Office. It was realised in Canada, as it is here, that it is very necessary and important. The women of Canada are working so hard and so enthusiastically that we feel that they will appreciate to the full a direct channel for their supplies, and also the personal touch which it gives. Very careful enquiries will be made and detailed lists obtained from each Regiment as to their exact requirements.

The Canadian War Contingent Association, which has been formed here to further the interests of our force in every way, has among its objects, the collection and distribution of Field Supplies. The Hon. Geo. Perley, M.P., is the President. It may be interesting to note that each colony has a War Contingent Association. The Canadian Association has elected us to their Executive, and has appointed us their distributing agents. In this way overlapping, or wasted effort, will be prevented.

We shall need vast quantities of comforts and also money for an Emergency Fund. The men already here still require things in large numbers. Whole regiments have no cholera belts and many others are only partly supplied with these and other warm necessities.

The English papers are full of appeals for comforts for the British Tommies, and it behooves us Canadian women to look after our own men. When once they are at the front there will be much replenishing to do, and it is proposed to have a distributing depot at the base, wherever that may be. We shall be at Salisbury Plain for the present, and supplies will be received and acknowledged from there. Free transport is promised, and arrangements are being made for a receiving and forwarding depot at Montreal, as the November sailings are all from there. Notices as to this will appear shortly in the Canadian Press.

To give you some idea of how necessary they consider comforts over here I may say that the Queen has appealed for 300,000 belts and 300,000 socks, and Field Marshall Sir John French has made a special and urgent appeal for the immediate dispatch of belts. The demand is so great that it is very hard to get these supplies here, and we feel also that Canadian industries should benefit by the supplies for Canadians. We beg, therefore that you will come to our aid and make this work the big and complete thing it should be.

We shall be pleased to give any further information desired.

All packages should be clearly addressed to Miss Plummer, care of Montreal Depot, and very plainly marked "FIELD COMFORTS".

All money should be sent to Miss Arnoldi, "Field Comforts Fund," 69 Grosvenor Street, London, W.

The following is a list of the requirements: Money for Emergency Fund. We should have 50,000 cholera belts. Asked for in thousands. Woven recommended. Socks. We cannot have enough. The more hand-knit the better. These are the first and most important needs; others are:

Handkerchiefs (coloured); khaki preferred.
Sleeping caps.
Mufflers.
Flannel Shirts.
Underwear.

All outside articles of clothing should be khaki or grey in colour.

If sending large quantities it is strongly recommended that they be put in cotton bags of 50 or 100 and packed in small packing cases. A complete list of contents, with name and address of sender should be securely fastened inside the box.

We hope very much to have your support in this work, and we shall anxiously await your answer as to how you can help us.

Yours sincerely,
Mary Plummer.

P.S.—Pipes, cigarettes and other Christmas presents will be very welcome.

The above letter constitutes an appeal that should strike home. When we, a few days ago felt a sharp premonitory pinch of winter, even in our comfortable homes, within warm walls and with abundance of comfortable clothing, we pitied ourselves, as we faced in fancy the rigours of the coming winter. We, whose hearts were in the right place, gave a thought to our Canadian lads on Salisbury Plain, who, although they are now under luxurious conditions compared to those they will find when they get into the trenches, are still in need of many things that are necessary to their comfort, and what is more important, to their health.

Here is a chance for our women. Mrs. Pankhurst and her party have given up their militant campaign for suffrage, and are throwing their whole heart into war relief work. Our own women can surrender some of their social activities for the sake of our soldier boys at the front.

This letter should give an impulse to local activity. Our women are fully informed of the needs and are assured that whatever they do will be effective; will reach the men, themselves, as intended. Miss Plummer and Miss Arnoldi are officially appointed. They are doing, as they have done, splendid work, and have already had their services recognized by being promoted to the rank of Lieutenants.

Apropos of this subject the following—the initial poem in a graceful little book of verse, by "Kathleen Hale," is presented:

GREY KNITTING.

All through the country, in the autumn stillness,
A web of grey spreads strangely, rim to rim.
And you may hear the sound of knitting needles,
Incessant, gentle, dim.

A tiny click of little woden needles,
Elfin amid the gianthood of war;
Whispers of women, tireless and patient,
Who weave the web afar.

Whispers of women, tireless and patient—
"Foolish, inadequate!" we hear you say;
"Grey wool on fields of hell is out of fashion,"
And yet we weave the web from day to day.

Suppose some soldier dying, gayly dying,
Under the alien skies, in his last hour,
Should listen, in death's presience so vivid,
And hear a fairy sound bloom like a flower—

I like to think that soldiers, gayly dying
For the white Christ on fields with shame sown deep,
May hear the fairy click of women's needles,
As they fall fast asleep.

Note.—Any person wishing to help, in the way of producing comforts for our soldier boys, can get full information (and technical instructions) from the convenor of the Executive of the Women's War Fund Committee, 273 Hunter Street, telephone 218, or by sending in name and address with request for information.

MR. GEO. CONNEL PASSES AWAY AT 95

The death occurred last evening at seven o'clock of Mr. George Connel at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. William Collins, 242 Romaine Street. The late Mr Connel was 95 years of age and has lived in this district for the past seventy years. He was born in Glasgow, but came to Canada when a young man. Since his arrival in this Dominion he has resided in Keene and Lang and for some years in the township of Asphodel. For eight years, however, he has lived with his daughter in this city, and he has a large number of friends here who will regret to learn of his death. In the surrounding townships Mr. Connel was widely known and very highly respected and throughout the community his loss will be sincerely mourned.

He is survived by three sons, Alexander, Fenelon township, William, of Keene, and John of Asphodel. Six daughters, Mrs. Gurney of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Hall, Detroit, Mrs. Kickerton, Niagara Falls, Agnes of Rochester, Mrs. Dixon, of Otonabee, and Mrs. Collins of this city. His wife predeceased him eight years ago.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock from the residence of Mr. W. Collins, 242 Romaine Street, to the Keene cemetery.

BIRTH.

ELLIS—To Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Ellis, 581 Gilmour street, a daughter.

BARRY—On Nov. 24th, to Mrs. and Mr. W. Barry, 265 Lake Street, a daughter.

TELFORD.—To Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Telford, 83 Benson Avenue, Sunday, Nov. 29, a son.

M. EWEN.—On Nov. 26th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McEwen, 16 Manning Avenue, a son.

PATOINE—On Saturday, Nov. 28th, at Nicholls Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. A. Patoine, of 478 Donegal street, a daughter.

FAINT.—At Grace hospital, Winnipeg, on Nov. 25th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Faint, 317 Harbison Avenue, a daughter, Ethelwin Pethusia.

LAWRENCE—At St. Catharines, on Nov. 27, 1914, to Mrs. Ralph Lawrence, daughter of Rev. G. W. Henderson, formerly of Peterborough, a daughter.

DIED.

HARTSHORNE.—In Peterborough, on Monday, November 30th, W. R. Hartshorne, aged 52 years. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Robert Heiderman, 617 Water Street, on Thursday, December 3rd, 1914, at 3 o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Service at the house at 2.30.

WARSAW AUTO 'BUS DESTROYED

First Fire in About Twenty Years—Started in a Frame Barn

WARSAW, Dec. 2.—The first fire in about twenty years occurred last night between 12 and 1 o'clock, when a frame barn at the rear of T. Wilson's blacksmith shop and W. Bell's residence, took fire from causes unknown. The citizens turned out in wonderful time, but were unable to save the building, though with the aid of a bucket brigade, the adjoining buildings were saved. The principal loss will be the Warsaw auto 'bus, owned by Mr. W. Bell, which was stored in the building, and could not be got out.

Mr. Chas. Perrin left on Wednesday for his home in England, from whence he expects to join the army.

Miss Laura Jory is visiting friends at Uxbridge.

Mr. Llewllyn Douglas, Young's Point, is visiting relatives here.

Messrs. Cummings, Charlton and Dench, of Lakefield, attended shooting matches here last week, and were very successful.

Mr. Percy Bell held a shooting match for poultry on Tuesday.

The scholars of the Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday Schools have commenced their practices, the results of which will be exhibited on Christmas and New Year's Day.

Mr. Clayton Bellfirt, who has been living at Leamington for some time, returned home on Friday.

Mr. John Tucker will hold his annual shooting match at the Warsaw Mill Yard on Wednesday, December 23. The trophies will be twenty-one fat geese, nicely dressed.

Mr. Hugh Kidd, Lakefield, renewed acquaintances here on Tuesday.

Mr. F. J. Ferguson, Peterborough, was in the village on business on Friday last.

It is during the first days of December that the good housekeeper prepares and bakes the Christmas Cake. She knows that from the 15th on she will have not time for such an important item of the festival. So, she sends down or up or over to Choate's at Warsaw for her ingredients. She sends there because being thrifty and a keen observer, she has learned that while she is assured of getting the best quality, she can count on quite a saving in the cost. Besides that she knows that though there is a shortage of foreign fruits, she will be able to get them all at this store, owing to the foresight of their having been bought before they left their native lands. There will be Raisins from Valencia, California and Turkey, Currants from Greece, Peels from England and Ireland. Spices from the Indies, etc. It is a good time to order Private Greeting Cards with your own name and address, samples of which may be seen at the Store.

RUSSIANS NOW HOLD VISTULA

Have Driven Germans Back After Terrible Fighting in Poland—Block Has Been Cleared

LOST GROUND REQUIRED

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Dec. 2.—The Russians have driven back the Germans along the Vistula and now hold Plock in force. This information reached here to-day in unofficial despatches from the front telling of the terrific fighting in Poland.

Plock is sixty miles northwest of Warsaw on the Vistula. It was there that the first determined fighting occurred in the German advance upon Warsaw from Thorn. The Russians were driven back but were last reported to have recovered ground to Gombin, ten miles south of Plock, and have now occupied that position itself.

NORWOOD NEWS

Items of Interest From The Thriving Eastern Village

Special to The Examiner.

NORWOOD, Dec. 1.—The Home Guard has organized an indoor baseball team, and has purchased an outfit.

The La Dell Concert Company have been engaged to assist in the entertainment to be given on Monday, December 7th, under the auspices of the High School. The proceeds will be used to purchase suits for the Norwood High School Cadet Corps.

Mr. Fred Cumings, of Kamloops, B.C., is home on a visit.

The ladies of Christ Church will hold their sale of fancy articles on Saturday, Dec. 5th, in the Council Chambers. They will also serve a chicken-pie supper.

Mr. Fred Edwards, of Warsaw, spent Sunday with friends in town.

Rev. Mr. Daniels, of Toronto, preached in the Baptist Church on Sunday in the interests of the Northwest Missions.

The Norwood Home Guard attended the Methodist Church in a body, on Sunday morning. Rev. Irwin, the pastor, who is also their chaplain, preached an excellent sermon, taking as his text Exodus 20-13, Thou shall not kill, and II. Timothy 2-3, Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

Mr. W. J. Stares, who is with the second expeditionary force, at Kingston, was home over Sunday, and at the evening service sang a much-appreciated solo.

Mrs. Dafoe is visiting friends near Havelock.

At the Epworth League of the Methodist Church on Monday evening there was a most interesting debate, the subject being "That the present war will accelerate rather than retard the elevation of the human race." The affirmative side won.

Mr. Earl Laing, who was home for a two weeks' holiday, returned to Freelton on Saturday.

Mr. Leslie Waters, of Peterborough, spent the week-end at his parents' home.

In spite of the unpleasant weather on Monday evening, the Scotch supper and entertainment held in the Presbyterian Church was a great success in every respect. The proceeds amounted to $70.

Mr. F. Wilkins and Miss Gladys Wilkins are visiting friends in Belleville.

Miss Lizzie Douglas has returned from a visit in Penetanguishene.

Mr. Alva Freeman, of pelly, Sask., arrived home last week to spend the winter with his mother, Mrs. J. S. Fry.

A number from Havelock attended the Scotch social in the Presbyterian Church on Monday night.

Miss Bryce, of Keene, assisted in the programme of the Scotch social by singing several solos which were very much appreciated by all present.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

6947

Lady's Dress.

This handsome suit has a coat waist, the front forming a blouse on the present straight figure lines, ending in a plain band across the front. The back and sides extend almost to the lower edge of the skirt, while the sleeves are small and the neck high, with plain stock finish. The skirt has two gores and the open arrangement of the coat shows the front gore.

The dress pattern No. 6,947 is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires for waist 2¾ yards of 44 inch material; for skirt 2¾ yards of 36 inch satin.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

400,000 New British Troops Reach France

THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN FORCED BACK FROM LODZ REGION

ENEMY HAS MASSED TROOPS NEAR YPRES

And a Final Effort to Break Through to the Coast is Expected---Allies Are Developing a Vigorous Offensive in Region of Arras But Have Not Shown Full Force Yet

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, France, (Noon Friday), Nov. 4.—Every attack of the reinforced German forces in Flanders is now being met by the vigorous counter offensive of the allies.

400,000 FRESH BRITISH TROOPS.

Four hundred thousand fresh British troops have reached France within the last month and are now on the firing line.

The British now hold the line along the Yser where the Germans are expected to centre their main attack in a final effort to break through to the coast. Heavy cannonading has been in progress during the past 24 hours and the Germans continue to mass forces between Ostend and Ypres for a general engagement that is expected.

The full force of the counter offensive of the allies has by no means yet been felt by the enemy. This is gradually developing, however, towards an engagement of the greatest proportions

TO FORCE ENEMY BACK ON COMMUNICATION LINES.

Reports indicate that the allies are developing an offensive movement in the region of Arras. A drive which has for its objective the throwing back of the Germans upon their line of communications, has never been lost sight of and with reinforcements, a new attack may be expected if the enemy's line in the region is in any wise weakened by withdrawals to strengthen the force along the Yser for the German offensive.

DENOUNCES TALK OF A HOLY WAR

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 2. — Mr. Simon Wolf, formerly Minister to Egypt and one of the leading Jewish citizens of the United States, said it was unthinkable to him that Germany should countenance the conduct of a holy war on the part of her ally, Turkey, if it were possible to prevent it by diplomacy.

"Such a war would not mean the slaughter of one side only," he said, "but the slaughter of both sides. Jew and Christian, Catholic and Protestant, all anti-Moslems, would be singled out. If Germany has led on her ally to such an attack it would seem to me the worst kind of action. I have not placed much credence in these repeated rumours of the outbreak of such a holy war. Germany's citizens at home would be horrified at such a tragedy. No one who knows history would want to encourage something which in its effect is like a contagious disease.

"There is more likelihood of starvation in Palestine than any other disaster. Her industries have been crippled and hampered by the mobilization of troops and the disturbance caused by war, and the people face actual want."

GERMANS ANNOUNCE THAT SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

Special Morning Cable:

BERLIN, VIA WIRELESS TO LONDON, DEC. 4.—KAISER WILHELM INSPECTED THE AUSTRO-GERMAN LINES ON THE SOUTHEASTERN FRONT IN POLAND, IT WAS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED TO-DAY. THE KAISER'S FIRST VISIT WITH HIS FORCES IN POLAND WAS AT CZENTOCHOWA.

"THE SITUATION IN NORTHEASTERN THEATRE IS UNCHANGED," WAR OFFICE STATEMENT DECLARES.

As Ruth Saw It.

Of course, little Ruth should have been able to answer more precisely when teacher asked her to describe a frog. But she gave a description that at least is picturesque when she replied:

"A frog, teacher, is a big green bug with warts all over it. And it keeps its mouth open all the time, and—and—and it's always sitting down behind and—and standing up in front."

"IT'S CONFIDENCE THAT DOES IT."

PORTER S. WHITE

Citizens of Peterborough and Vicinity

Male and female, old and young, rich and poor:—Wise and rich men have advised their friends to buy land, in the way of a growing City, and they also would become rich.

It has been my good fortune, late in life, to become the owner of just such land, and as I never play "the dog in the manger," being neither able nor willing to use it myself, I am determined to distribute it amongst those who can use or hold it for a short time until it is annexed to the City, at which time the owners will be positively certain of a large profit on their investment. Your own eyes and judgment will prove this statement. This sub-division lies south and west from the C. G. E. Works, between May's School and the Gravel Road, at the west end of Cottesmore, Chamberlain, Romaine and Landsdowne Streets. Because of the beautiful location of this land, the size and class of Lots, the very reasonable prices and terms unheard of, which I am offering, cannot fail to ensure a very speedy sale of every Lot.

The great majority of the above-named classes wish to make money, even the rich, and I guarantee satisfaction to every buyer or his money back in one year from date of purchase, if desired.

Size of lots chiefly 30 x 123, sold in blocks of 2 Lots under one number. Price, $150, $200, and a few specials at $250 per lot, except corners.

TERMS.—Cash buyers will get full value of their money.

Pay $5 cash and I will add $5, giving receipt for $10, then $5 monthly.

Pay $10 cash and I will give receipt for $20, then pay $10 monthly.

No interest until May, then 6%. Proper building restrictions. Men out of work with families, will get gardens, free of rent. Every person earning money should save at least a little and this is the plan, near other to compare. Come to my Office, see plans and get full information on every point.

BROUGHT BACK FROM THE DEAD

Wonderful Operation Reported Wherein Heart Had Stopped Functions and No Pulse Responded

RESPIRATION RESTORED

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—A modern wonder of medical science was consummated this afternoon at the Good Samaritan Hospital, according to the statements of three physicians, who say that Mrs. Walter A. Akers, wife of a Californian manager of the International Fruit Products Company, was restored to life after having been dead for ten minutes.

"The 'raising' was not from a theoretical death, or state of coma, as it is ordinarily understood, said Dr. P. M. Williams, who, with Dr. C. S. Hutchison, were the principals in the restoration.

"Mrs. Akers was actually dead. Her heart had stopped its functioning; there was no pulse, the eyes were fixed in the glare which spells to every medical man the eternal sleep; there was no response to the usual tests. The patient was dead.

"The end came during the progress of a major operation for appendicitis. The operation was successful, and it was at the moment when our attention was diverted by Dr. W. S. Holman, who was administering the anaesthetic, to the woman's complete collapse — to her death in fact.

"Mr. Akers, who was awaiting the result of the operation in an adjoining room, was summoned and realised instantly that all was over. Then doctors went to work. Nurses began the administration of oxygen. Dr. Williams vigorously applied himself to producing artificial respiration.

SIMULATED HEART THROBS.

"Then Dr. Hutchison inserted his hand through the incision made in the abdominal wall during the course of the operation, slowly, carefully, until the diaphragm was reached. One finger grasped the top of the heart; his thumb was at the bottom. A slight compression, another and another followed until the physician's hand was contracting and dilating the organ of life in simulation of the heart throbs which send the blood pulsing through the body of a living person.

"There were minutes of this sort of treatment and then the faintest respiration as the lungs reluctantly again took up their burden. After that the patient rallied and in a few minutes was so far recovered that it was necessary to administer anaesthetics in order that the original operation could be concluded.

"The operation lasted more than two hours and Dr. Hutchison said this evening that the patient was in a normal condition with every chance in her favour for a complete recovery."

GERMANS LEAVING 120,000 IN POLAND

Grand Duke Had a Waterloo in His Grasp—Russians Have Taken the Offensive Again and Have Forced a Retreat —No Change Before Cracow and in East Prussia.

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Russians have resumed the offensive in Western Poland, and are driving the Germans down the Vistula toward Thorn and across the Plains of Poland toward the Warthe River.

The correspondent of the Tribuna of Rome telegraphs from Petrograd that tremendous efforts by the Germans to break the Russian centre failed signally, and that the Germans have been compelled to retreat in order to avoid being surrounded once more.

After being surrounded near Lodz, the Tribuna correspondent says, the Germans declined to consider the possibility of surrender, and with the most desperate courage ever seen in any war, threw themselves time after time against walls of Russian bayonets until they finally broke through. Only the unconquerable determination of an able and trained Russian general retrieved the Grand Duke Nicholas of a victory far greater than Sylau or Leipsig or Waterloo.

On Nov. 29 the Germans followed up their successful efforts for self-preservation by repeated and determined efforts to break the Russian centre. Four army corps attacked night and day, but were too exhausted and depleted by losses to cut through.

Forced to Withdraw.

Meanwhile the Russian right wing had reached Gombin and finally Block, on the Vistula, and had practically surrounded the German army at Lodz.

In this circumstance there was only one possible course for Lieut.-Gen. Mackensen, withdrawal toward the Warthe, in order to protect the main line of comunications from Kalisz being cut. At Lask the German withdrawal stopped for a time, reinforcements having arrived from Posen and from Northern Silesia by means of the splendid railway system at the disposal of the Germans. The Russians forced an attack at Lask, and again the eGrmans retired slowly. The news received by the Tribuna is that the battle is flowing back towards the River Warthe, the Germans fighting a stubborn rear-guard action, the Russians attempting to outflaflnk them north and south.

Correspondents in Petrograd estimate from semi-official information that the Germans lost 120,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners between Nov. 18 and Dec. 2. The Russian losses have been very heavy. The series of battles between Plock and Petrokow have been the most sanguinary and costly of the war.

Gen. Karl von Bonnenkamp's failure to close the gap through which the Germans finally broke prevented a Russian triumph that would have ended the campaign in a stroke. Well military critics assert that the operations in Poland have been a great disappointment to German hopes. Nothing vital has been gained, although a terrible price has been paid and much of importance has been lost.

Von Hindenburg's Object.

Von Hindenburg's plunge through Poland had three objects, practically of first rate additional importance, according to the critics, but none of essential military value. One was to occupy Warsaw, another to frighten the Russians out of East Prussia, the third to relieve the strain on Cracow. The second great attack toward Warsaw appears to have failed as completely as the first, and although the Germans escaped the Sedan predicted a week ago, they are nevertheless in retreat and many great difficulty in keeping the army intact. Powerful Russian armies to the south and north of the army retiring from Lodz. The only object that the Germans have accomplished by the sacrifice of thousands of their best soldiers was keeping the fighting in Russian territory.

Spreading in East Prussia.

So far as East Prussia is concerned the case is plain. The Russian hosts are their advance toward Insterburg and Koenigsberg, and have continued to overflow a large area. The invasion of Poland utterly failed as a means of creating a diversion. It is confidently believed here that a few days more will see a Russian army holding Insterburg and thereby commanding the network of strategic railways in East Prussia.

At Cracow Now.

The situation around Cracow has been more or less overshadowed by the intensly dramatic operations in western Poland, but here again the Russians have pressed forward and are in a better position to capture the gateway to Silesia than ever before. At the northeast of the City a Russian column is reported to be within 11 miles of the City. At the south-east a column has occupied Wieliczika, about eight miles from Cracow. Official announcements justify the belief that Cracow is already under fire.

Russians Block German Attempt to Move Forward

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, (noon Friday), Dec. 4.—The attempted resumption of the German offensive following the reforming of the lines of the invading army has been without result, it is claimed here to-day.

"The Russians, it is asserted, have extended their line further along the Vistula. In the region of Lewicz they have again forced the Germans to take the defensive. This line extends to the north of Lodz, and unofficial reports claim the Germans have been forced to fall back throughout this district.

RUSH REINFORCEMENTS TO CZENTOCHOWA.

"Heavy reinforcements are being rushed forward by the Germans toward the southern end of the line and at least five corps are believed to have reached Czentochowa. A strang movement by these forces along the railway toward Radomsk and Piotrkow in an attempt to relieve the pressure on the centre, is anticipated.

Austrians Take 19,000 Servians

In Recent Occupation of Vienna Servia's Casualties About 100,000 So Far

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Bulgarian Government has issued an official denial to the reports that troops were being massed in the frontier districts of Strumnitz and Kostendi on the borders of Servia. The report probably arose from the rumours that Bulgaria might take advantage of the present plight of Servia to get revenge for the humiliation she suffered after the second Balkan War.

Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria has bestowed the Grand Cross of the Leopold Order on Gen. Liborius von Frank for distinguished services in the field. Gen. Frank commanded the forces which occupied Belgrade.

Nineteen thousand Servian prisoners have been taken since the Austrians began the present offensive movement, according to a report from Vienna. Reports from German sources assert that Servia's casualties since the beginning to the war will reach about 100,000, or virtually one-third of her entire strength.

SCOTLAND COUNTS

Charles Murray in the London Times.

The Corn was turnin', hairst was near,
But long afore the scythes could start
A sough of war gaed through the land
An' stirred it to its hinmost heart.
Nae oors the blame, but when it came
We couldna pass the challenge by,
For credit o' oor honest name
There could be but the ace reply.
An' buirdly men, frae strath an' glen,
An' shepherds frae the bucht an' hill,
Will show them a', whate'er befa',
Auld Scotland counts for something still!

Half-mast the castle banner droops,
The Laird's lament was played yestreen;
An' mony a widowed cottar wife
Is greetin' at her shank aleen.
In Freedom's cause, for ane that fa's,
We'll glean the glens an' send them three
To clip the reivin' eagle's claws,
An' drook his feathers i' the sea.
For gallant loons, in brochs an' toons,
Are leavin' shop an' yard an' mill,
A' keen to show baithe friend an' foe,
Auld Scotland counts for something still!

The grim, gray faithers bent wi' years
Come stridin' through the muirland mist.
Wi' beardless lads, scarce by wi' school,
But eager as the lave to 'list;
We've fleshed o' yore th braid claymore
On mony a bloody field afar,
But ne'er did skirlin' pipes afore
Cry on sae urgently to war.
Gin danger's there, we'll thole our share,

Will Double De Wet's Fate

South African Parliament Will Deal With Captured Rebel—Fines Demanded Will Bankrupt Him

LONDON, Dec. 3.—De Wet's fate probably will be decided by the South African Parliament entirely on its own responsibility, but a demand is being raised in the Unionist press that he shall be made to suffer a rebel's fate.

Pall Mall Gazette: There can be no pity for his fall and there should be little to temper the atonement of the traitor which has been earned by his treachery. In addition of his fate something may depend upon what practical relations he has maintained and bribery, which have had so much to do with the rebellion.

St. James' Gazette: A traitor is a traitor, and a country in the hour of danger cannot afford to look beyond the fact to its physical or mental explanation.

This "Will o' the Wisp of the Veldt," as he has been referred to by his pursuers, surrendered finally without the firing of a single shot. A motor car brigade pursued him relentlessly through a sandy and undulating country, thickly wooded with thorn bush. The cars followed his trail for many miles. De Wet zig-zagged and doubled over his course in an endeavour to throw off his pursuers, but the expiring, over-ridden horses he was obliged to abandon in his flight blazed the way for the men of General Botha who were hunting him down.

Before he was finally trapped on the Waterburg farm General De Wet, with a few of his followers, rode 50 miles without a stop.

GENERAL LESSARD A GREAT HORSEMAN

French-Canadian by Birth, He is One of the Finest Soldiers the Dominion Ever Produced

The civilian who meets Major-General Lessard without his uniform instantly places him as one of the best breed of Irishmen. He has the splendid color, the attentive, friendly eye, and the naturally military bearing of an Irish squire. That's when he is without his uniform. In it, he appears to the civilian exactly what his rank calls him. He seems to have been born into his trim uniform. His eyes are the quiet, appraising eye of a man-judger, one who is capable of dividing men into the two military classes—the leaders and the led. Those are the qualities which made him just the man to take a prominent part in the mobilization and training of Canada's overseas contingents.

General Lessard's accent is unmistakably that of an English gentleman rather than that of a French-Canadian. This is easily accounted for, for during the greater part of his life he has lived in barracks associating with English speaking and not a few of them English bred officers and men. And for a long time he has lived in Ontario with only a casual association with the people of his native province. His natural tastes, too, are largely those of the English officer, running to horses, the hounds and polo.

Veteran of Boer War

The General was born in the city of Quebec in 1857. His father, the late Louis Lessard, a well known citizen of the ancient capital, was a French-Canadian, his mother, Jane McCutcheon, being of mixed Scottish and French-Canadian descent. He was educated in Quebec and at the college of St. Thomas, Montmagny, Que. He entered Quebec Garrison Artillery as second lieutenant. Removing to Montreal to engage in business, he was transferred to the 65th Battalion Royal Rifles, Montreal, and later joined the original troop of the Cavalry School Corps, what is now the Royal Canadian Dragoons, which he accompanied to the North-west Rebellion.

He took part in the South African war, proceeding from Canada with the first contingent. For three months he served on the staff of the officer commanding the cavalry division, Sir John French, and on the arrival of the Royal Canadian Dragoons he joined them at Cape Town and took command. His African service includes the relief of Kimberley. He was twice mentioned in despatches during the war, was promoted to the rank of brevet colonel by the Dominion Government, and was made a companion of the Military Order of the Bath by his Majesty King Edward VII., in recognition of his services in the field.

He has been adjutant-general of the Canadian militia, which important appointment he held until promoted to the Toronto command.

Knows All About Horses

Not only is General Lessard a good judge of horses, but he is an exceptionally accomplished horsemaster. He doctors his own horses, shoes them and has performed surgical operations upon horses, that veterinarians hesitated to undertake. He was a fine polo player in his day, and still loves to let the young fellows try his mettle. He not only breaks and trains his own ponies, but likes to do it for his intimate friends. It will be scarcely believed that when this expert horseman, then a commercial traveler, in Montreal, was first given a commission in the permanent cavalry, there was some sneering at it being given to him on account of his ignorance of horses. The criticism of his lack of experience in horsemanship, instead of offending him, spurred him on to overcome the defect in his training and he practically spent every moment of his time when off duty in the riding school.

HEART WOULD PALPITATE.

HAD WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

Palpitation of the heart is one of the most common of all heart troubles. The heart will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over the system accompanied by weak and dizzy spells, making you feel that you are surely going to die. When you feel this way what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will strengthen the weak heart and build up the nerve system. For this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better within a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble ever since childhood and finds great relief in using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CANADIAN INDIANS LOYAL

Redmen Contribute to War Fund and Offer to Fight

The first citizens of Canada, the old allies of the warring French and British, the redskins, the devoted wards of Victoria the Good and of her grandson King George, are no whit behind the Rajahs of India, the men from South Africa, or the British regulars, in testifying to their loyalty to the Crown or to the unity of the Brititsh Empire.

From almost every Indian tribe in Canada there came to the Government offers of money and men as a "tangible expression of their desire that Great Britain may ever remain the guardian of the weak and the arbiter of the world's peace."

The quoted phrase is from the resolution passed by the Blood Indians at a meeting of the tribe, which unanimously voted $1,000 from the tribal funds held in trust by the Government, "to be used in whatever way may be deemed of most advantage to British arms in this time of peril."

The resolution is typical of similar resolutions and donations from seventeen other Indian tribes from the Yukon to Nova Scotia.

All told, they contributed some $13,000 to the Government, to be used at its discretion for his Majesty's cause. Many of the Indians volunteered and were accepted for active service abroad.

HAD SAME COUGH FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Woman Fifty Years Old—Coughed More or Less Since Childhood—Found No Relief Until She Got Vinol.

Dayton, Ohio.—"I want everybody to know what Vinol has done for me. I am now fifty years old and ever since I was a young girl I have had a cough most of the time, and sick headaches which left me weak and with no desire for food.

"I took all kinds of medicines but nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally my druggist asked me to try Vinol, saying that if it did not help me he would refund my money. I felt so much better after taking one bottle I bought more. Now my cough is entirely cured. I have no more sick headaches. I have a good appetite and feel better than I ever did in my life, and I cannot recommend Vinol too highly."—Mrs. J. C. SCHNEIDER, Dayton, Ohio.

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, simply a combination of the medicinal elements found in cod livers, together with tonic iron, contains no oil and is delicious tasting. We ask every man or woman in this vicinity suffering from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, and every weak, run-down person to try Vinol.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GREY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

The Master's Voice.

"We have come," said the chairman of the committee, "to ask you to take this nomination. The city needs a man like you—strong, brave, self made, self reliant, owning no master, fearing no man."

The great man was visibly touched.

"I'll not deny," said he, "that your kind words have shaken my resolution. I trust that, if elected, I may justify your confidence and prove that I am indeed strong, brave, self reliant; that I own no master and fear no man. Suppose you wait a minute till I see if my wife will let me accept?"—New York Times.

Loss of Kiaochau Means End of German Prestige in the Orient

THE Japanese attack on the German possessions of Kiaochau, in China, is a slap back at Germany for her interference in 1895, when Japan obtained from China the Liaotung peninsula. Germany, Russia and France by the display of force and a peremptory note compelled the Mikado to retrocede the territory. Japan particularly resented German interference because at the time Germany had no possessions in China, and now that she has a possession Japan does not intend that Germany shall keep it.

Equally offensive to the Japanese was the so called "murder convention" of 1898. The Kaiser's exaction of reparation for German missionaries slain, the "manifestation of the policy of the mailed fist," the acquirement of Kiaochau bay virtually by using force, increased and hastened the Boxer troubles in China. Japan protested; Germany insisted that she must have "reparation and a coaling station." Russia intrigued; other powers announced a disapproval of German methods; Japanese opposition was ineffectual. The result was that Russia, as the price of her friendship for China, secured a lease of the Port Arthur peninsula, and England, claiming compensation, took leased territory at Waihaiwei.

FORTIFIED TSINGTAO.

Years later, although strongly fortified and stubbornly defended, Port Arthur fell into the hands of the Japanese. Great Britain, casting little apparently for Waihaiwei, simply holds the place. On the Chinese coast Hong Kong is the British naval base. But each year that passed appreciably added to the utility and preparedness of Tsingtao, the German port and fortress on Kiaochau bay.

Established at Kiaochau, the Germans labored hard to develop the harbor. They dredged and dredged and dredged. They cleaned out the channel so that the largest ships afloat could go into port at Tsingtao. They excavated at an expense exceeding $7,000,000 an outer and an inner harbor. They erected great granite piers, so arranged that ships alongside could receive cargo direct from railway trains. The docks and railway terminals at Tsingtao are models of convenience. Millions were spent to provide special facilities for ocean commerce. Some six miles back from the sea a typical German city was built. The scale on which things were done may be shown by the fact that the casino at Tsingtao cost more than $1,500,000. Included in the improvements undertaken is the extensive reforestation of the erstwhile treeless hills. The population of Kiaochau is about 120,000 Chinese and 4,728 Europeans. The acquisition of the place gave German trade and commerce their first firm foothold in the orient.

MEANT FOR STRONGHOLD.

From an official point of view, at Kiaochau, commerce is a secondary consideration. First and foremost the intention was that Tsingtao should be the Kaiser's stronghold in the far east. From the beginning the Germans have been fortifying and building more fortifications. Utilizing every natural advantage, the Kaiser's engineers have done their utmost to provide defences for Kiaochau. No outsider knows how many big guns have been placed on the heights commanding the entrance to the bay. It is notable, though, that twelve forts have been erected for the protection of Tsingtao. The barracks built in 1905 provide quarters for 5,000 men. The steel floating dock is capable of accommodating the largest Dreadnought. In addition to the regular garrison of artillerymen and marines, some years ago the authorities at Kiaochau maintained two regiments of Chinese infantry recruited from the native population of the leased territory. Officered and trained by Germans, these Chinese make fairly good soldiers. The native reserves of the colony now number about 3,000.

Exclusive of Chinese and not counting the crews of the warships in Kiaochau bay, the Tsingtao garrison, strengthened by the German and the Austrian legation guards withdrawn from Pekin, has been 8,000 men. To this force should be added 1,000 reservists, for every ablebodied German civilian in the colony was called upon to perform military duty.

ENGLAND'S MARCHING SONG.

It's a Long Way to Tipperary" Favorite Tune of the Army.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary" has become the marching song of the British army, according to London dispatches. It is not widely known in this country. The words are:

Up to mighty London came an Irishman one day.
As the streets are pav'd with gold, sure every one was gay.
Singing songs of Piccadilly, Strand and Leicester Square
Till Paddy got excited; then he shouted to them there:

CHORUS.

It's a long way to Tipperary; it's a long way to go;
It's a long way to Tipperary, to the sweetest girl I know.
Good-bye, Piccadilly! Farewell, Leicester square!
It's a long, long way to Tipperary, but my heart's right there.

Paddy wrote a letter to his Irish Molly O,
Saying: "Should you not receive it write and let me know.
If I make mistakes in spelling, Molly dear," said he,
"Remember, it's the pen that's bad. Don't lay the blame on me."

Molly wrote a neat reply to Irish Paddy O,
Saying, "Miss Maloney wants to marry me, and so
Leave the Strand and Piccadilly, or you'll be to blame,
For love has fairly drove me silly, hoping you're the same."

If an Ant Were as Big as a Man.

An ant can carry a grain of corn on the weight of its body, while a man or horse can carry loads only about equal to its bodily weight. It is not a fact, however, that the ant is greatly superior in strength. If an ant should grow to twice its original size, still retaining its geometrical and biological structure, its volume, and accordingly the weight of its body, would increase eightfold. Although the muscles grow to twice their original dimensions, the increase in length does not increase the strength, which is proportional to their cross section, and the ant would only be four times as strong as before. As it now carries but five times its weight, however, it is relatively only half as strong. It is calculated that the same ant developed to the size of a man would only be able to carry one one-hundredth of its own weight instead of ten times its own weight.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Makes It Dull, Brittle, Lifeless, and Causes It to Fall Out.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

RUSS HAS HARD TASK.

Advance Through East Prussia a Gigantic Military Undertaking.

It is said that the Russian troops have been divided into four armies of 2,000,000 men each. These armies will practically be hurled one after the other through East Prussia and Galicia toward Berlin, the goal, the succeeding armies filling the gaps of the ones ahead after each general engagement. Thus Russia expects to confront German re-enforcements with fresh troops.

The Russian War Office declares that there will be no necessity for "feeding off the country," as the commissariat is in excellent condition.

Small German fortresses will be stormed. This plan of campaign has been carried out in the clashes with German and Austrian troops with great success. But the main fortifications, such as Koenigsberg, Posen and Danzig, will be isolated, the main strength of the army marching on to Berlin.

The seizure of Insterburg, thirty miles within the German frontier, gives Russia a grip of the railroad lines which lead to the two most important seaports of East Prussia—Koenigsberg, at the mouth of the Pregel river, where it empties into the Frische Haff, which connects with the Baltic Sea, and Danzig, at the mouth of the Vistula, emptying into the Gulf of Danzig and also connecting with the North Sea.

Insterburg is an industrial town of 31,000 population. Besides being the centre of the web of railroads over East Prussia, it is on the main line between Berlin and St. Petersburg. It is 553 miles from St. Petersburg.

Koenigsberg is seventy-two miles from Insterburg. Koenigsberg, the capital of East Prussia, with 246,000 inhabitants, is a seaport of great importance. It is defended against sea and land attack. A wall surrounds the city and connects with a system of outlying works, the principal features of which are twelve detached forts, six on the right and six on the left of the River Pregel.

the principal fortified town of East Prussia.

Danzig, which is about 100 miles from Koenigsberg and 253 miles from Berlin, has a population of 170,000 and is surrounded by strong fortifications, there being a massive wall about the city and a cordon of modern forts.

The Russian advance is into regions in which are many places famous from the days of the Napoleonic wars.

General Rennenkamp, who is leading the great Russian army into East Prussia, was a cavalry general during the Russo-Japanese war. He took a conspicuous part in the battle of Mukden and in other great conflicts.

Hatred of Britain.

Nothing could better indicate the vindictiveness of Germany against Britain than the following extracts from the official German war news by wireless received by the Marconi Company. It is dated Berlin, and runs: "It is difficult to describe the unbounded exultation of all classes when the news of the British reverse at Maubeuge reached the capital. The resentment against England is particularly strong because of her intervention in this conflict and her call upon the yellow race to assist. Indeed, so deep is the resentment that news of the surrender of the British army would be received with greater joy and satisfaction than would the news of the fall of Paris. A portion of the British troops are reported to be shut up in Maubeuge."

TAKING AID TO SUFFERING CIVILIANS AND SOLDIERS, MR. HANOTAUX AND MR. WHITNEY WARREN GO TO FRONT

Seems National Supplies Are Distributed in Devastated French Villages.

WHERE WOUNDED SOLDIERS ARE DYING

Hospitals Are Shelled and Gallant Patients Are with Difficulty Removed to Places of Safety.

Specially Written by Mr. Whitney Warren.

ON Tuesday, October 27, I had the good fortune to be invited by Mr. Gabriel Hanotaux to accompany him on a trip to the front with the view of distributing "Secours National." Arriving at —— early in the morning, we were received by General M., of fine presence and with everything well in hand, both military and civil. He gave us our permits to go into the active military zone. Afterward we visited the Mayor as regards our "Secours," and he, although he had seen three successive armies pass through his town, still had his courage in both hands, needing as yet no material help. However, he asked for certain articles of "ravitaillement," such as groceries, shoes, dry goods, &c., which Mr. Hanotaux agreed to forward him for cash. We then proceeded on our way, arriving at the ancient Abbey of Long Pont, where Comte de Montesquiou, Mayor of the village, received us.

When asked if he needed anything for his "bureau de bienfaisance" he replied "No," that it was a very simple organization and consisted simply of the Countess, who took care of everything in the village. But here again the question of "ravitaillement" was important, and he asked that certain quantities of groceries be forwarded, for which he was able to pay cash. The Comte and Comtesse had lodged in the abbey the three several état majors of the different armies at their various periods of occupation. In the abbey absolutely nothing had been touched, owing to the continual presence of the proprietors and their energetic attitude. I found that generally throughout this section of the country too much cannot be said about the admirable behavior of the old families throughout the crisis, the aristocracy having held firm while the nouveaux riches and bourgeoisie had often taken themselves off to safer places.

Mr. Hanotaux's House Wrecked.

From here we passed through M——, where we made arrangements at the chateau to come back in order to dine and pass the night. We then went on to F——, which we found strongly occupied by troops in reserve; among them I remember a superb regiment of "Tirailleurs Algeriens." Above there we proceeded to Mr. Hanotaux's house at F——, "la petite maison grise," which had also had the three état majors as its guests. This charming little house and the library, containing Mr. Hanotaux's life work, had been terrifically bombarded in the last three weeks by the Germans during the English and French occupancy. Mme. Hanotaux's bedroom had fallen through into the cellar, the roof had received many bombs, while the library, in a house by itself, had received as its quota three. Still, strange as it may seem, the damage is not irreparable, and, while great disaster reigned among the books and documents—since fire has not touched them—it is quite possible to straighten things out. In the village we found the inhabitants absolutely destitute of all necessities, and we left a small quantity of salt and sugar from the supplies we carried with us, promising to take care on our return to Paris of the ever necessary ravitaillement.

In the garden back of Mr. Hanotaux's house, situated on a sort of bluff overlooking it, innumerable holes had been made in the ground by the bombs in the Germans' attempt to dislodge the English while they were there.

Intruded Her Fortune.

In this village a charming and typical incident occurred which I cannot refrain from reciting. An old lady had written Mr. Hanotaux saying that when he next came to Par—— she would much like to see him, as she had a "confidence" to make to him. On Mr. Hanotaux calling she said:—"I am indeed very old, and it does not matter much to me if the enemy takes my little fortune or not, which is here in my hand in government bonds to the order of bearer; but I have some good nephews who have been waiting a long time for it, and when I go should they not find it they would be greatly disappointed. Be therefore kind enough to put it in your pocket, place it in a safe somewhere, and when the time comes hand it over to them, and they will then always keep a kind souvenir of their old aunt." We took the bonds with no ceremony, and some day the good nephews will know that "la bonne tante" was charmingly and naively thoughtful of what had been confided to her by her parents in trust to be handed in turn to future generations. This trait is of the French—gratitude to the past and solicitude for the future.

After lunching "sur le pouce" we proceeded to E——, situated within a very short distance of Grmonne, and, according to all accounts, destroyed. A fierce bombardment was going on, shells continually bursting even about and above the village in which we found ourselves, a small one dropping in the public square while we were there. The effect of bombardment on the populations seems to be nil—they have become so used to it. Nobody is particularly sad, but all go about with a general look of expectancy, probably with reason, on their faces.

The Mayor, who was the notary of the town, claimed that there were plenty that needed help even more than his, though he had a population of 700 and had had fifty emigrants from Craonne forced on him by the military. One could not help but admire his attitude of reluctancy as he accepted the material aid which we had come to offer—a sort of pride that one was almost afraid of offending.

I found this same feeling everywhere we went, and it was good to see. No whimpering, no bewailing, everybody ready to stand the gaff "pour la patrie," with the certainty that when it is over it will be over for a long time. In fact, I lay the whole magnificent attitude of the people of France, and especially of those in the districts that have been devastated, to the era of freedom they see before them, the fact that the phantom which has been threatening and oppressing them for forty-four years has at least materialised, and while the monster is making terrific ravages for the moment, there is the certitude of cornering and caging him in the end for the good of humanity.

We left 700f. with this good Mayor, 500f. for his population and 250f. for his emigrants, for which I feel he was very grateful, although, as I have said, he assured us that there were many places worse off and consequently in much greater need of our help. As we came out of his office we met a commandant just out of the trenches, which he said were only forty metres from those of the enemy. He was gay and cheerful with the prospect of returning to his work after a hasty dinner. The little hospital of the town had seen in the last forty days 115 dead and 2,500 wounded pass through it. The rumor was that for the same period of time, along the plateau of V—— and the beautiful Chemin de D——, it had been impossible to bury the dead or to relieve the wounded. The village, in spite of its having hardly three whole roofs, had had only two civilians killed and twelve wounded, the most serious difficulty and the greatest complaint being that all the potatoes had been torn up by the troops and that all the wheat had disappeared. They had had no news for heaven knows how long, and no functionaries had been paid for three months, and yet, as I have said, everybody struck me as cheery and with but one desire—to hear a piece of good news! Superb confidence, in spite of all the misery inflicted, and patience sublime!

Game Grows Bold.

From here, at dusk, we ran across the country to the Château de M——, a glorious evening and sunset, flushing a covey of partridges from time to time, as we passed, undisturbed by the sportsmen who are now carrying arms to more serious purpose. Later, when the search lamp was lighted, hares and rabbits kept darting here and there across the road, even more brave than in times of peace. It would seem that all nature was conscious and was manifesting itself by its daring and cunning, even to the bunnies! At the château the same story of having been cleaned out by the various armies of occupation. However, our hostesses were very proud of the fact that they had been able to procure for dinner a most marvelous chicken. Truly, it must have been the last in the country, and have dated from the Ark! Poulet de guerre! To carve it was an exploit that exhausted the pair of us; to masticate, an impossibility. Our very delightful hostesses were greatly chagrined, so I tried to disguise my efforts at chewing, and finally bolting the piece I had imprudently taken, by a very narrow margin I managed to swallow it. My word, what a bird!

The next morning at six we left for V——, stopping at S—— to pick up the general commanding the brigade. I went over in the general's car, sitting beside the chauffeur, who had pinned on his wind shield a calendar; for, as he said, time sped so quickly and one day resembled another in such an extent that without it one could never remember within a week or ten days just what the date really was. It was one of these historical calendars and he read the quotation for the day, which was the following:—"28th October, 1884. Napoleon entera Berlin." The season is a little late this year, but the feast is only postponed; it is going to take place just the same—seulement il faudrait un peu de vitesse," he remarked. V—— is quite a village, having at least a thousand inhabitants. Nearly everything has been destroyed by the bombardments, all the roofs virtually gone, and the buildings, including the church, riddled. The people had been sleeping in their cellars for the last forty days, these cellars, though not very high, vaulted and large, and as comfortable as a cellar could be. No light absolutely in any of those which I visited excepting that given by a rare candle.

Hospital Is Shelled.

After having seen the authorities and arranged for the ravitaillement, we went to the hospital, which had been bombarded shortly before, when the English were in possession, and the wounded had had to be removed and treated in the cellars. Two poor chaps died while we were there, one having been shot while sharpshooting from a tree the day before, a sergeant of the 132d Reserve. He simply got bored and could not remain in the trenches and had got busy at the dangerous game which cost him his life.

From here we went up to the trenches about a mile further on—I say "up" because the line of fire is behind the crest of a sort of palisade formation. The life was most intense and amusing in spite of a steady arrival of bombs from the enemy's guns, in position about 2,900 yards from us. The enemy's trenches were, I should say, about 200 yards distant; the officers claimed less and have cause to be right, my glimpse being naturally not of long duration, but to me they seemed at about 300 metres. We could hear an accordion playing across the way, and a sort of vague singing—about the only manifestation that the trenches were inhabited, aside from an occasional shot or two.

The shells, which arrived in goodly numbers, skimmed over the trenches, bursting beyond and doing no damage to speak of. It seemed pretty useless and intended simply to indicate the presence of some one "over there," as the general said. The men and officers had all built refuges for themselves, some quite tiny, just large enough to crawl into, others more spacious, with mattresses, tables, chairs and a stove, all for comfort. What seemed to worry them was the fact of being inactive, all crazy to "get at it." Some night they will pile over, I am convinced, unable to restrain themselves any longer. The men were all in prime condition, wonderfully fed, clothed and ammunitioned (an unlimited quantity of the latter). However, the officers did tell me, as far as clothes were concerned, that what they need are long sweaters, warm drawers and warm socks, so if you have a chance to tell people of this do not fail to do so.

All Eager for Tobacco.

The officers also told me that what the men particularly enjoy is receiving packages containing such things as I have suggested, with perhaps a surprise, something like a piece of soap, chocolate, &c. People making up such packages should enclose a postal card with their address, so that the recipient may have the pleasure of acknowledging them. A bunch of cigars would indeed be a blessing—"two-furs" that is, two for five cents. One cannot imagine the joy tobacco gives these good chaps, any old smoke to smoke—George W. Childs, generous and mild, if I remember correctly an advertisement of a certain brand famous in Philadelphia. By Jove! I wish my good pals who are smoking forty cent Coronas would quit for a few days and send me their savings. I will guarantee to make twenty men share contented with life during really "hard times," and braver in consequence, for every Corona sacrificed.

Just back of the trenches was the improvised cemetery started by the English, who, good fellows, were buried in two ranks with their officers at their post to the left of the line. The first had been there for about two months already—time for the autumn flowers, which the comrades had sown, to bloom—dahlias and chrysanthemums, in this garden lost in the hills, a pilgrimage and a shrine forever to these most glorious dead. "Le petit cimetière Anglais," as the French comrades spoke of it. At the end of the line lay one of their own, shot through the heart that morning, waiting with his hands crossed on his chest the hour of his burial. Brave, brave little soldier, here unknown, one of those, no matter of how humble origin, who are reconstructing the real nobility of France, guarding its traditions, its soil and the liberty of the world, to your utmost. Glory and honor have you bequeathed to those who loved you what more can man long for, what greater tribute to have paid for humanity. Before yours all careers seem but as of futility and of vanity!

Mme. Georges' Devotion.

We took luncheon with the general and the staff at headquarters, in the court of which was a pyramid made up of Uhlan lances serving as decoration. With us was a Mme. Georges, a charming young woman of that village, whose husband was at the front, and who had been indefatigable in nursing the wounded from the very beginning. For her devotion the English have proposed her for a decoration. Her absolute simplicity, charm and earnestness were admirable, and for me, one of the profane and useless, it seemed that she was an object "pour se mettre à genoux devant." How many there are just like her all through the country! They are indeed superb!

At luncheon also was the Colonel of the Xth —— de ligne, whose third battalion was sacrificed in order to protect the Allies in retreat at O—— when the enemy was precipitating itself upon Paris. His description of his bidding farewell to the commandant of the battalion, and their struggle throughout the day, returning that night with but one left of their original thousand, was of the simplicity of the good workman having executed the excellent piece of work expected of him.

With him he brought the priest of the regiment. He was a marvellous fellow—tall and gaunt, aquiline of feature, and with an indescribable barbiche adorning his chin; under his arm his Bible, and over his chassepot a yellow waterproof of unknown material and cut. The Colonel told us with a smile that he was the most unruly of his regiment, impossible to keep him out of the trenches at all hours, absolutely fearless, exposing himself, or rather, precipitating himself to wherever there seemed to be danger. He seemed to be possessed of the idea that if only he should be killed then he would have in the world of the hereafter the sensation of having accomplished his duty to the utmost in this. As an aid said to me, "There are two men of opinions most absolutely different, and yet they love each other." It was good to see them strolling back to the trenches after our meal, chatting and laughing together, typical of the France of to-day—its two great and true forces, the army and the Church, dominant—the salvation of the country, intact in spite of twenty-five years of political oppression and persecution.

Sing as They March.

From V—— we proceeded to S——, which by extraordinary chance that day had been left almost quiet, in contrast to the day before, when the bombardment had been fierce. On the road we passed a regiment of the "Legion Etrangere," superb of allure, entrain and enthusiasm, bound to do most excellent work, or else my judgment of good workmen must be very faulty. Just the privilege of seeing them pass by rejuvenated me by twenty years, roaring at the top of their lungs the old eighteenth century marching song, "Auprès de ma blonde," of my atelier days.

No better air to march to, believe me.

At S—— we proceeded directly to the Sous-Prefecture, where we found the wonderful Madame Marcheres. You remember when the Germans were coming down on Paris several of the civil authorities followed the example of the main government and removed themselves from their posts to Bordeaux and other more remote places. When they entered they were met by a delegation of citizens headed by a woman of solid and elegant appearance. Being asked where the Mayor could be found, she replied "I am the Mayor," "And the Municipal Council?" "I am the Municipal Council." And she treated all questions with energy and judgment, even to the war indemnity claimed from the town. When I saw her she seemed still to be in charge, directing everything in the way of secours, hospitals and possibly even the municipal affairs. All this with that simple gentleness and authority that confidence in one's self and the confidence reposed in one by others can give. She struck me as very great, no pretension, nothing of what we and good old England have been suffering from lately. Circumstances and position had given her the occasion of manifesting; when circumstances change she will again become the charming bienfaitrice she has always been.

PRIEST IS INTREPID FACING THE ENEMY

His Officers Are Forced to Restrain His Eagerness to Face the Enemy's Bullets.

From here we left for Paris, passing again by V—— C——. On the road it was interesting to meet the "trains de ravitaillement" of all kinds, which only travel at night in order that the enemy may not be aware of the manoeuvre.

In the beginning of this letter I had the intention of going more into the detail of the "office" of the "Secours National," but I fear that my letter has degenerated into a thirst more of incident and actuality. All I can say is that I am convinced by what I have seen of the functioning of the Secours All Amisty (Secours National) aims to meet seriously, economically and intelligently administered. The detail [illegible] by Mr. Hanotaux, for instance, to see that only real cases of misery are relieved, making these able to pay up; also the absolute honesty of all the officials, bourgs and towns we visited, although in their not exaggerating the normal state of things, but confident of being able, by hook or crook, to pull through. This I call the bravery of the situation. Many all have immense responsibilities, others who have been left behind, others who have shirked or decamped for safer places are out of it and will never be forgiven, but those who have stood the gaff, as I have said before, have all their nerve with them, deserve all help, appreciation most deeply and, in spite of their heroic attitude, I feel need it.

Devastation Is Widespread.

As the provinces which are now occupied by the Germans are vacated the conditions are going to be pitiable beyond imagination. What I have seen passes description as far as devastation is concerned, but as the good Mayors and the good curés said: —"While we have suffered, it is still bearable in view of what has happened in other places." For instance, Craonne, five kilometres beyond Beaurieux, and still under bombardment, is absolutely evacuated, burned and pillaged. When the poor inhabitants return, think what they are to do—everything gone! In many cases even the walls of the houses, along with the beams and the roofs, and sometimes even the cellars, are caved in.

I know it will all grow up again—more beautiful than ever, let us hope—but it will be hard to duplicate those charming little French villages—the work of generations and of centuries of love and care. However, if we can help tide over these valiant souls—for they are admirable—we shall have done much to the resurrection and renaissance of that which we all love so much in France.

I have absolute confidence in their tradition and loyalty, their generosity and amiability, their courage and their spirit of sacrifice. Let us help to our utmost, therefore, to tide over. I am convinced from what I have seen that the Secours National is the best channel to employ, the most economical and the best administered. Moreover, any gifts for a specific purpose they will gladly take care of; for instance, Charlotte told me that her maid's village, near Horlecourt, was in distress, and through the Secours National I have been able to reach it.

Kaiser Sacrifices Thousands by Order to "Drive British Into Sea"

By Percival Phillips.

[Copyright, 1914, by the New York Herald Company and the London Daily Express—All Rights Reserved.]

(Special Dispatch.)

NORTHERN BELGIUM, Nov. 30, 1914.

"Drive the British into the sea."

This is a sentence from one of the latest imperial proclamations to the German army in Western Belgium.

It was conveyed to me by an Englishman who came out of Bruges this morning. He got it from the lips of a German staff officer who lunched at the Mille Colonnes Restaurant, near the Town Hall, yesterday, and who punctuated the meal with a venomous diatribe against all things British.

My informant, who speaks French and Flemish fluently, was mistaken by the officer for a Belgian.

"Belgium does not matter," said this captain savagely; "your country is simply a gateway to the real field of battle. You have been ravaged because your countrymen were fools enough to oppose us. Now you know better, and if you would keep what is left be passive and let us alone.

"It is for your good as well as ours that we should walk over the British. Every German is ready to sacrifice his life's blood to help crush that treacherous nation. Our Emperor's words are echoed in the hearts of his soldiers.

"He has said to his troops, 'Drive the British into the sea. Show the world that Germany cannot be fettered or bullied. Impose the weight of your strength on them, so that never again will they dare stand in the way of our progress as the world Power.'"

This is a summary of the imperial command as nearly as my informant could remember it without taking notes. The earnestness of the speaker who repeated it was sufficient proof of the unanimity with which the officers of the Kaiser indorse it.

Unfortunately for the Emperor, his rescript is only a worthless "scrap of paper." Instead of driving the British into the sea, the German army is being driven away from it. Every person who comes this way through the German lines brings additional evidence of its increasing weakness in the face of overwhelming odds.

The only remedy is—more troops. The German General Staff is still pouring them into Belgium from the east and southeast. In addition to the 30,000 fresh reserves of the Prussian Guards sent to Dixmude and Reuters last week—where they were speedily cut up—reinforcements went westward as far as Ghent and Ninove by train on Friday and Saturday from the armies lying before the French frontier forts.

I am inclined to believe that the investment of Belfort has again been postponed, for some of the infantry brigades passing through Namur and Ninove came straight from that front.

According to reports which I have collected from apparently authentic sources, there cannot be more than 7,000 troops all told employed for garrisoning the large towns of Belgium. There are fewer than 2,000 in Brussels, about 1,000 in Antwerp, the same number in Namur and Liege and about 1,500 divided between Ghent and Bruges. Such centres as Recloo, Audenarde, Alost and Malines contain only small posts—from twenty to fifty men each.

All the others are massed along the western front.

Austrian gunners have been sent from Brussels to the Heyst-Zeebrugge position, but I am unable to ascertain whether their formidable mortars have yet reached the coast. These guns did great damage at Antwerp. Their fire was remarkably accurate, and the manner in which they were worked showed that this branch of the Austrian service at least is highly efficient.

It is plainly apparent that the present struggle to reach Calais is the Kaiser's pet project.

The weary weeks of bombardment along the Aisne had the inevitable effect on the health and morale of the German troops. They grew stale through sitting in unsanitary trenches day and night, and when typhoid fever began its ravages their deterioration increased rapidly.

A methodical retirement to intrenched winter quarters behind the Meuse was favored by the General Staff, but the Kaiser, still convinced that he had only to deal with a "contemptible little army," insisted on a dramatic dash to the coast. He thought the battle cry of "Conquer Britain!" would rally the troops and give them an impetus which could not be checked.

German officers have voiced the Kaiser's opinion freely in the cafés of Brussels and Ghent, and what I write is an accurate summary of their views.

The Belgian army was thought to be completely broken by the fall of Antwerp—broken in spirit as well as in physique. German spies overhid their description of the fragmentary retreat, and the General Staff believed that the troops would never fight again.

The British army was thought to be too weak to withstand for long a series of sledge hammer blows which would drive it back into France.

Mistaken, too, was the forecast of the attitude of the French army. The Kaiser imagined that it would not effectively oppose an invasion directed primarily at England and not at Paris.

The Kaiser's mandate was obeyed faithfully. His troops gained the empty victories of Ghent, Bruges and Ostend, and greeted the sea with wild enthusiasm. Then the disillusionment began. The conquerors had to fight night and day in a series of battles that were for them more often than not a massacre instead of a mere defeat.

"This Shall Not Be a War Upon Our Women and Children"

HUSBANDS and Fathers, Sons and Brothers may go to Battle, but all the hordes of warring Europe shall not force them to leave grim privation and terror of want encamped at their hearthstones.

Not while we Britons who remain at home have a Dollar left shall the Women and Children of our Soldiers suffer.

The Idea of the Canadian Patriotic Fund is This:

THE soldiers have gone to fight not for their home town or any particular locality but for all Canada.

The whole of Canada should combine to take proper care of their families.

The Fund is One Fund and each locality is administered by the local branch.

In Peterborough for instance, families of the soldiers will be looked after by the local Branch acting for the National Association.

All the families throughout Canada will receive aid on the same basis and none will be neglected.

This is a sensible and patriotic plan. Peterborough will fall in line. Do all you can but do it now.

THE LOCAL OR CONTINGENT RELIEF SIDE OF THE PETERBOROUGH PATRIOTIC FUND is for the purpose of Aiding Families who may be in need owing to the war, through lack of work. There are many such and will be more. They must be judiciously aided and not want.

We are face to face with the realities of war, more dreadful than we at home yet understand, but imagination needs no help in picturing what the war means to the women and children whose natural protectors have been taken from them.

With rent to be paid---with winter coming and no fuel in the house--with the little children crying for warm clothing--with foodstuffs rising in price, war is, indeed, carried to the very hearthstones, unless WE DEFENDERS AT HOME stand in the way.

BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT

Interesting Constitutional Question Argued at Ottawa Yesterday

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—An interesting constitutional question, raising anew the rights of a provincially incorporated company to do business beyond the bounds of the particular province where it was incorporated is involved in the case of the Bonanza Creek Mining Company vs. the King, argued yesterday in the Supreme Court.

The appellant company was incorporated by the Government of Ontario, with power to carry on the business of mining in all its branches. It obtained a license from the Commissioner of Mines in the Yukon Territory, and an assignment of several mining bases and a grant from the Crown of the claims covered by said bases and agreement for a grant of all claims within the said locations that should afterwards be revested in the Crown. The petition of right was filed to recover damages for breach of the latter agreement.

The Exchequer Court ordered that the legal question of the capacity of the Company to maintain the action should be argued as a preliminary question and having heard argument dismissed the petition for want of such capacity.

BELGIAN QUEEN INSPIRING ALL

Her Careworn But Heroic Face Thrills Beholders

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs from West Flanders:

"I have just witnessed one of the most pathetic, but at the same time inspiring home-comings of the war. It was the arrival on Belgian soil of the Queen of the Belgians, the beautiful consort of the noblest King the brave and indomitable people ever have had. The Queen, carying in her beautiful features all the care which this devastating war has inflicted upon the Belgian people, came from England through France.

"When, dressed in black velvet and wearing a set of sable, she landed in France, the French and British military authorities rendered to her the fullest homage on the quay. She was received by French and Belgian officers, and automobiles were in readiness to convey the royal party to the Belgian headquarters.

"Nothing I have seen in this awful struggle has made more of an impression than the womanly figure of the Queen, bravely facing toward Belgian soil and her devastated Belgian home."

GERMAN PLANS FOR BELGIUM'S FUTURE

Proposal to Reduce Country to a State of Vassalage.

LONDON, Nov. 21 — What do the Germans mean to do with Belgium? Of course they never dream of being driven out of it, says The Chronicle. Graf von Hoensbrooch discusses the question in Das Freie Wort, a review published in Frankfurt.

That Belgium is to remain German is to him "axiyatic." Yet he does not like the idea of its absolute incorporation into the German imperial system. It would be "a splinter under the skin." His objections to outandout annexation are based chiefly on a fear of "hatred and treason en masse," (i. e., not of scattered individuals, but of a solid block of the population,) and more particularly upon the certainty that the Belgian clergy would be permanently hostile.

Much better in his opinion would be a Belgium in the state of complete vassalage to Germany: enslaved yet distinct and separate. The conditions of this vassalage would be as follows:

1. All the fortresses of Belgium, except Antwerp, would be razed to the ground and would remain so.

2. Antwerp would remain a fortress with a German garrison. This is necessary in face of England.

3. The Belgium Monarchy would disappear. The country would be placed under the government of several regents and put under the control of Germany with the obligation in all important matters of asking the German Imperial Government for instructions.

4. Under and consistently with their system of German control Belgium would be allowed to have popular representation but the Belgian Chamber would be restricted to purely Belgian economic matters.

5. Besides a formidable war indemnity to be paid outright, Belgium would have to pay every year to Germany a permanent tribute of so many millions, the exact amount to be fixed by a financial commission.

6. Belgian would not be permitted to have an army. A police force would be allowed for keeping order in the country, but this force would be under German control.

7. The Belgian Congo is to become a German colony.

8. Belgium's diplomatic representatives abroad would be abolished. Germany's Consuls and Ministers Plenipotentiary would be charged with the safeguarding of Belgian interests.

9. Belgium would keep at Berlin an agent who would act as an intermediary between suzerain Germany and vassal Belgium, which latter would cease to be a sovereign, independent State.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question and "How to Prevent Colds" is asked a thousand times every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but due to a disordered condition of the blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the body better able to withstand the varying elements.

This is the underlying reason why the medicinal fats in Scott's Emulsion quickly overcome colds and build strength to prevent more serious sickness. It contains nature's medicinal fats, so skillfully prepared that the blood profits from every drop, and it is totally free from harmful drugs.

A Horror of Peace.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker, of the City Temple, London, once had a collection, to the announcement of which he added with deep pathos: "Widows and orphans will not be expected to contribute."

A few Sundays later there was another collection for the same object.

"This time," said the preacher, "widows and orphans will not be exempt; for no battle ever made so many widows and orphans as the announcement made on the previous Sunday."

The Hospital Ship Fund.

The Canadian Women's Hospital Ship Fund, which closed as such on Sept. 1st, has reached a total of $218,034.62, over twice the amount originally called for. The said sum has been forwarded to the British Admiralty through Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, and will be used for a supplementary naval hospital at Haslar, near Portsmouth which will bear the name, "The Canadian Women's Hospital."

Wise Precaution.

At Toronto Exhibition recently a man and woman have worked together for two weeks without discussing the war.

They are married. She is French and he is German.

"No war news in our house," said the careful husband, when a friend jollied him on the subject.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Christ Risen from the Dead. Mark xvi:1-8; Matt. xxviii:11-15.

Golden Text—Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here but is risen. Luke xxiv:5-6.

1. Verses 1-3 — On what day was Christ crucified, and on what hour of the day did He give up His spirit?

2. Who were Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of James and Salome?

3. On what day and hour did these women come to Christ's sepulchre, and for what purpose?

4. Seeing the sepulchre was guarded by soldiers, and covered with a heavy stone which they could not move, how did they think it possible to anoint the body of Jesus?

5. Verse 4—In undertaking a mission of love, should we always see that all difficulties in the way of its accomplishment are first removed?

6. What proportion of the insuperable difficulties in the way of doing our duty are removed when we come up to the duty?

7. How did this stone been rolled away?

8. Does God do anything to-day for His children other than through natural law? Give your reasons.

9. Verse 5—The young man sitting on the right side of the sepulchre was an angel; is there any reason to believe that he was once a human being? Why?

10. Most Christians believe that angels are all around us; is it possible to develop sight sufficiently sensitive to see them? Why?

11. Verse 6 — Why is it that most people have such a dread of the very thought of seeing a spirit?

12. Did Christ resurrect himself, or did God resurrect Him? Give your reasons.

13. If we seek Jesus what are the chances of our seeing other spiritual persons?

14. Of what import is Christ's resurrection to us?

15. Verses 7-8 — Why was it necessary for the disciples to be told of Christ's resurrection, and especially that Peter should be told?

16. Why was it that these women were so frightened by the best news mortals could hear; and can you give any examples of similar experiences to-day?

17. Matt. xxviii:11-15. (According to Matthew's account Jesus himself met these two women after they had seen the angel.)

18. Verses 11-14 — What did those who were set to watch the sepulchre tell the chief priests?

19. This was clear testimony of Christ's resurrection from enemies; but how did it affect the chief priests?

20. How can you account for the entire council agreeing to bribe the soldiers to tell a lie, when they were the spiritual leaders of the people?

21. How would it have been possible for Christ's disciples to have stolen his body, when it was a death penalty for a Roman soldier to sleep at his post?

22. Verse 15 — What is there that money will not bribe an unscrupulous man to do?

CATACOMB OF THE BIRDS.

Curious Burial Place of the Sacred Ibis of Egypt.

Every one has heard of the catacombs of Rome, close by the Appian way, under the Campagna, which, during the third and fourth centuries, served as burial places for the Christians, and how Alaric's sack of Rome in 410 marked the end of the catacomb graves—indeed, that of the powerful city itself. Then there were the lofty corridors and spacious halls of the Neapolitan catacombs, the famous grotto of St. John, under the ancient city of Syracuse in Sicily—a subterranean city in itself.

But the most curious of all catacombs is the one in Egypt—the catacomb of the birds.

Wandering among the pyramids of Sacchara, which stand on the edge of the desert, a little south of the ancient city of Memphis, an American traveler, nearly a hundred years ago, was passing over a then unbeaten path. He was seeking, among the tombs, one of the most curious and interesting objects in Egypt. He was seeking for the burial place of the birds—the sacred ibis of Egypt.

This pyramid has no door, but a square aperture nearly 100 feet from its base and about forty feet deep. At the end of this a small hole. It was obviously an untraveled route, and the explorer was curious to descend within.

Commanding his dragoman to enlarge the opening, he passed through and down an inclined plane, a passage cut through the rock, into the vaulted chamber. Through another excavation he made his way and found himself in a second chamber, the floor of which had been cut away to form a large square pit.

Descending into this pit by bracing his arms and digging his toes into the sides, where little holes were made for that purpose, he reached the bottom. Here, crawling about on hands and knees, he was at last among the mummies of the sacred ibis, the embalmed deities of the ancient Egyptians.

The birds were preserved in stone jars, closely piled one upon the other. Knocking two of the jars together, the birds were found to be perfect as any mummied Pharaoh.

Torture of Sciatica Cured Quick!

"Nerviline" a Success Every Time

Stops the Pain Quick—Acts Like Magic—Is Harmless and Pleasant.

Sciatica is the most severe pain man can suffer. The great sciatic nerve is deeply placed, and you can reach it only by a pain remedy as penetrating and powerful as NERVILINE.

The glory of NERVILINE is in its strength—in its marvellous power of penetrating deeply. In severe pains, such as sciatica and neuralgia, NERVILINE demonstrates its superiority over every other remedy.

Extraordinary pains, such as rheumatic or sciatica, can be overcome only by a remedy as extraordinary as Nerviline. In many lands it has shown itself to be the best for little pains, best for big pains, and best for all pains.

When one has acute rheumatic pains, stiff joints or a stiff neck, do not experiment—seek a remedy that cures. Like lightning in rapidity, as sure as fate in its certainty of relief, Nerviline can never be surpassed for the removal of pain, no matter what advance science may make. It is perfection in its line. Do not trifle with ordinary or oily liniments, use Nerviline. Prove its efficacy—it's the one liniment that rubs right into the core of the pain.

A large 50 cent bottle will cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Trial size, 25 cents. Sold by all dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Austria Aims Mainly At Russia In The Great War

PRZEMYSL, Austrian Galacia, Oct. 27.—(By mail to New York)—When I began my long, eventful journey for this town, Przemysl was the very point of the line between Russian and Austrian armies, but last night, labouring in our auto through the mud, we found a grim Austrian "Uhlan" waiting for us in the rain on a hill top with the news that the Austrian armies had pushed the Russians back 30 miles.

"It was a slaughter," said the Uhlan. "The Russians had eaten nothing for six days. Their officers ordered them to go into battle but the hungry men said 'give us food and we will fight.' The officers said: 'We will give you lead food' and they turned machine guns on their own soldiers to drive them into battle. It was very bad for the Russian soldiers, nicht wahr? Behind them their own guns would kill them. Before them the Austrian guns would kill them. And, besides, they were dying of hunger."

(Paragraph cut out by censor.)

The Uhlan smiled triumphantly and started his horse off down-hill through the mud. And thus the Austrian point has slipped out of my present reach by 30 miles, but I am promised that to-morrow I shall be taken to the very point where the lines of the enemy are so near that a constant rifle fire is going on.

The big fact that stands out at the present is that the Austrian Government wants the United States to know what is going on in Austria. Vienna, for many weeks, was unrepresented in the world's news. Austria had been blamed for sending a note to Servia that brought on the war, and Austria's side of the story has never been told in the United States. Austria's side of the war question can be told in one word: Russia.

Russia, Austrians say, has driven Servia and other Balkan States to defy Austria, for Russia desires a pathway through Austrian territory to the sea, and it was only by fighting Austria that such an end could be gained. Servia killed the Archduke Ferdinand, say the Austrians, but Russia was behind Servia in the matter. Austria sent the note that caused the war to Servia, but in reality it was a note to Russia, an ultimatum that the time had come when Russia must quit her underhand methods or fight. And Russia fought.

Nothing is heard about the French or English. That might be another war for all you hear of it here. "Down with Russia!" is the cry in Austria. Everybody knows that over towards the Atlantic ocean from here there is a long zig-zag battle line dipping down into France toward Paris. But all that gigantic movement of which only a month ago I was a participating witness, seems a world-wide distance away. Here is another battle line, not in a garden-land like France, but through mountains and wild country, over 50 miles long, with 6,000,000 men at war.

It was in Berlin that I received my marching orders for Austria. Would I be welcomed? was the first question in my mind. I went to the Austrian consulate in Berlin and told them I wanted to go to the Austrian front.

"We will be delighted to have an American newspaperman tell the truth about Austria," said the consul. He found a small clear space in my vise covered passport, wrote "good for journeying in Austria" on it and refused to charge me the usual fee for such a service.

"Here's a box you can drop some money in for the Red Cross," he said. "But I won't charge an American newspaperman money for entering Austria just now. We want you there."

My next move was to go to Vienna. For several days it looked as if I'd have to walk from Berlin to the city where "The Merry Widow" was written. There were no trains.

"Wait a few days, and you'll get a train," the Austrian consul told me. "The Germans are moving 600,000 men into France and they are using the cars." And so I hung around Berlin, waiting. In Paris such a delay would have been intolerable. While I was in the French capital every place of amusement was closed and most of the restaurants and my hotel were great empty caverns. My only amusement after supper was to go to a little, nickel-in-the-slot parlour, where I could hear phonograph music. I suppose the crowd of newspaper fellows still in Paris are still spending their evenings in that way and watching o' nights for Zeppelins. But Berlin was different. I went to two theatres. I attended one of the famous Sunday noon concerts of the Nikish orchestra. I found no restaurants closed or hotels empty.

At last the Germans completed their task of sending new soldiers to France and the train service between Berlin and Vienna was resumed. I took the first train. I expected to find Vienna a place of misery, with fugitives camping in the streets and with cholera rampant. I was disappointed. True, there were fugitives, but they came from this country of Galicia, where I am now writing, but they lined up in orderly hundreds every morning to receive money which was given to them by the Austrian Government. I didn't find cholera. There is a hospital in Vienna, which contains 1,000 men who are quarantined for dysentery, but dysentery isn't cholera.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation and go prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Chestnut, B. C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

A Remarkable Race.

The Lapps are very fond of stimulating drinks. They think nothing of drinking fifteen or twenty cups of coffee a day, while their consumption of punch is on a vast scale. It is no uncommon thing to see numbers of helplessly drunk natives in the streets of Tromso, especially when the sale of reindeer flesh has been profitable. Yet robbery and, indeed, crime in general are practically unknown among them. The innate honesty of the people is quite extraordinary. — Wide World Magazine.

Wanted Results.

"You are always trying to throw cold water on my literary ambitions," growled the aspiring author. "You say it doesn't pay. Look at Charles Dickens, will you? He left a fortune of $800,000, all earned with his pen."

"I know it, dear," said his wife, caressing him, "but don't you remember that Aladdin could make more than that in five minutes by simply rubbing an old lamp? I'd so much rather you'd do something of that kind, Will!"—Chicago Tribune.

CHAPTER IX.

Riches From a Weird Source.

HER knees jolted from under her as she reached out and found no downward step. Round black passages through rock vaulted aisles, some so close the sides brushed against her, she was hustled. She had given herself completely up to her guides. She knew with a heavy despair that only accident could enable her to find her way back to the steps through all the turns they had made. Quite abruptly she felt her eyes blinded as the mantle of blackness was flung aside. For a moment she could not see; then, becoming accustomed to the transition from darkness to comparative light, she looked with a shudder of terror upon the hairy, dwarfed, misshapen creatures who surrounded her—creatures who chattered in the gutturals of mutes, creatures whom the perpetual darkness had paled to a fishlike pallor, creatures whose hydrocephalic heads were always bent far forward as though the sense of hearing had been given them in treble value because of the blindness with which the subterranean life had afflicted them.

Sick with the unwholesomeness of the sight, Lucille lifted her eyes at a shrill, chattering note in the gutturals—a note that was strangely familiar, even welcome. She stared wonderingly at the enormous carved statue of a malignant faced man—a man with mighty torso and gigantic arms, a man whose head towered far above her and whose forehead and neck and arms were loaded with blazing rubies. The alien sound that drove the mutes crouching back came from the gigantic statue. And then Lucille saw that a huge orang outang squatted complacently in the palms of the idol, his wrinkled, old man's face puckered curiously.

As though their fear had subsided the underground creatures once more closed in upon Lucille. Some impulse made her dart toward the orang as though for protection. The foul creatures were about her, clawing at her with their horrible, uncertain paws, like giant bats. The monkey seemed suddenly to waken to the situation. With a shrill note of rage he leaped from his squatting posture and snatched the necklace of rubies from about the idol's neck, flinging it squarely into the center of the mob. It had the effect of drawing them back for a moment. With shrill squeaks the orang's hairy paw plucked jewel after jewel from the idol, hurling them at the creatures with the speed of bullets. Again and again he drove them back from her and Lucille constantly fought her way closer to this strange protector.

Her heart sank as she saw the creature had no more missiles. She caught a flash of hairy arms and body as he leaped toward her, his huge, round arms flailing about him, dropping the subterranean inhabitants at every swing. Lucille, guided by some impulse, stooped and picked up the blazing necklace, extending it to the orang. He seemed not to notice. Wildly he thrashed about, the creatures dropping like ninepins. Backward, ever backward, Lucille felt her way, edging through the mob as her protector cleared a passage. The rock ribbed vault echoed and re-echoed hideously with the shrill squeals of rage from the orang, the gutturals of terror and pain from her assailants. Now they were fighting among themselves, tumbling about in a wild chaos of arms and legs and bodies.

She closed her eyes against the terrible sight. Suddenly Lucille felt her feet slipping from under her; felt herself going down toward a rippling, musical sound; gently falling through the blackness as though she sank within a soft mattress of feathers.

Cold waters rose up and broke her fall, closing about her and edging her gently to and fro. Instinctively she reached out, her hands closing about a narrow strip of wood. With every atom of strength in her frail body she clung, making out finally that the object was a canoe. Slowly she slipped down the current until a flicker of narrow light glowed far ahead.

The sight inspired her with fresh energy. She drew herself up, carefully balanced the canoe against her weight, then slipped into the bottom and lay there exhausted. She groped about as the sides of the subterranean cavern expanded. The light grew broader. A paddle encountered her fingers, and she thrust it out into the water. Came a crunching of wood as it ripped against the rocky sides of the shallow ravine, and she stared in dismay at the useless handle that alone remained to her.

Gently, lastly the canoe floated down toward the ever expanding wedge of light. Slowly, very slowly, the fresh air of the jungle met her quivering nostrils. And even as she opened her mouth, laving her throat with the intoxicating odor that had been so repulsive to her before, the canoe was lifted up, snatched up and whirled about in a gigantic swishing circle.

Lucille instinctively thrust the broken shaft of paddle into the water, finding it useless. She crouched low.

She Clambered Along the Vine.

round and round in ever narrowing circles she was whirled, the black water white now as it lashed itself into raging circles from the exact center of which rose a jagged toothed rock—a rock that imperturbably, cruelly waited this dainty morsel being brought him.

Faster, faster, in ever shortening circles the creamy foam of savage waters drew the frail canoe toward the ugly, black rock that rose from out its center.

Round and round in the circles of waters the frail craft sped. Then for a brief fraction of a second the circular progress was halted, the canoe being held steady, quivering as another force seized it and tried to fight against the whirlpool. Lucille held her breath, measuring the length of time a new hope arrived in hours instead of the seconds it really was. Then the craft shot out of the current and continued upon its wild chase toward the rock.

It was now a matter of but two revolutions at best before the end. Lucille saw this with eyes that flinched not, yet that refused to hold any dread. Something slashed against her cheek, and her hands instinctively reached up, clutching, grasping, clinging to a thick tangle of creepers.

The canoe whirled out from under her while she clung there, the savage water leaping, snapping at her feet.

Desperation loaned her strength. For just a second she rested, then bravely reached out and clambered along the thick vine until she saw the earth beneath, then dropped and lay panting upon the ground, shaking with a nervous chill as the reaction seized her.

Loud voices speaking in English tones wakened her from the state of self pity which followed the chill. She looked up swiftly, now that the dense fastnesses encircling her were easily, ...

...ate had been so kind to her and man so unkind that she realized her chief danger simultaneously with the recollection of what she had to guard. She clutched at the little sack, thrilling at the rustle of the papers she had fought so hard to gain, at thought of what they meant to her sweetheart in Manila. The diary told her that Hugo Loubeque had thousands of men working to do his will.

The shrill protesting creak of cart-locks drove away her fear, supplanting it with one of wild alarm. The men were going away—were leaving her alone here. Of the millions of inhabitants of the globe, why should she think every man a worker of the spy? She flung herself wildly through the tangle of thick vegetation that barred her way from the sound, crying aloud at the top of her voice for assistance even though she knew no sound could carry to the men. She found herself standing upon a pebbly little beach that snatched a serene crescent of water from the ocean. Straining her eyes, she could dimly see a large rowboat at the tip of the crescent, its objective point being obviously a beautifully slender yacht anchored well out.

Lucille waved her arms in the air wildly, running up and down the beach in desperation as she saw her opportunity for escape from the terrible jungle receding. Her throat was racked from the dry sobs which escaped her, sobs of rage and chagrin at her own cowardice and folly.

Suddenly she stopped dead in her tracks, her fists tightly clinched as she pressed them against her breast. "It is coming back!" she gasped, for she made out that the boat had stopped; that it was being turned.

Over and over again she repeated it. She had been seen at the last moment and was going to be taken away. And the prayer was not even finished before the boat grounded lightly at her feet and she found herself speaking to a heavy featured, youngish man who was evidently in command of the yacht.

There was something sinister about the man whose eyes were fastened upon her face in such bold admiration that she instinctively drew away.

Suddenly he turned to his men, roughly ordering them to prepare for the row out, then assisted Lucille to a seat alongside himself. Try though she would she could not feel the joy that seemed natural as the boat slipped through the water propelled by the sturdy oarsmen. She studied them keenly. Rough, powerful men they were, but she was woman enough to know them to be the sort easily handled by a beautiful woman—the weaker the easier. And she saw that the captain was heartily disliked. She noticed also that two of the oarsmen had faces that showed signs of recent battering. The intuition that had served her so well before told her Captain Wetherell, for such was the name he used in introducing himself, had been a party to this.

There was something uncanny, mysterious, about the yacht, especially about one stateroom which was always locked—save once, when Lucille caught through the partly opened door a glimpse of a man who looked like a Chinaman. But she could not be sure. The door was closed quickly.

This story can be seen in Photo-Play at the Royal Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

Aged Gen. Pau Was On Retired List When War Started

AMONG the French generals who at the outset won commands at the front at the hands of General Joffre is old General Pau, one of the heroes of the battle of Froeschviller, where at the age of 22 and as a young lieutenant he lost his right arm. So great was the gallantry which he displayed on that occasion, and so excellent was the use which he learned to make of his left arm and hand that he was allowed to remain in the service, and rose in course of time to the very head of his profession. He is praised for the patriotic fashion in which he stood aside three years ago to make way for the appointment of his friend and comrade Joffre as Generalissimo. He was retired on the score of age last year, but has now been recalled into active service.

That General Joffre was well advised in his action is shown by the fact that the veteran has become by sheer brilliancy one of the outstanding figures of the war. His army and that of the British, under General French, are fighting side by side on the allies' left, and the manner in which they have driven the Germans back for a distance of over sixty miles in the battle of the Marne is one of the most magnificent exploits in the history of warfare.

Was Troubled for Years With Kidney Disease

And This Treatment Cured Me—This Statement Endorsed By a Baptist Minister.

The great majority of people are familiar with the extraordinary curative powers of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. But for the benefit of those who are not we continue to publish from day to day reports from persons who have been actually cured.

MR. MOSHER.

The case described in this letter was an extreme one, and the writer was in a very low condition when he began the use of these pills. The cure was so marked that Mr. Mosher's pastor did not hesitate to vouch for his statement.

By their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure in complicated cases which defy the action of ordinary kidney medicines.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, Brockville, Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease, and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any other man. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are an excellent medicine."

This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister of Brockville, Ont.

By awakening the action of liver, kidneys and bowels Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure Constipation, Headaches, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney Disease, Liver Complaint and Backache. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Crumb Cookies.

For crumb cookies, use two cups fine sifted bread crumbs, one cup of lard, one cup of white sugar, one-half cup of molasses. Mix together, adding two eggs and beat rapidly. Put two even teaspoonfuls of soda into one-half cup of sour milk; add to crumb mixture. Mix one even teaspoonful of salt, with one even teaspoonful of salt, with one of cinnamon and stir all together. Add enough flour to roll, or drop from spoon. MURDER RECALLED BY RELEASE OF FOUR MEN IMPRISONED IN 1900

Slayers of Jennie Bosschieter of Paterson N.J., Are Out in the World Again—Seems Only Short Time Since the Trial Stirred the Country

JUDGE AND OTHERS HAVE PASSED AWAY

The last of the four men who brought about the death of seventeen-year-old Jennie Bosschieter of Patterson, N.J., in January, 1900, walked out free when the prison doors at Trenton, N.J., last week opened to allow Walter C. McAlister to once again take his place in the outer world.

Although it lacks but a few months of being fifteen years ago since the crime, the feeling against the four assassins was still so strong in Paterson that when in the last two years each secured his release by the board of Pardons, only one had the temerity to return to Paterson and seek to take up his life anew in his old surroundings.

Besides McAlister there were Geo. Kerr, Andrew J. Campbell and Wm. A. Death concerned in the crime. McAlister, Death and Campbell were each sentenced to thirty years imprisonment. Kerr got off with fifteen years because he turned State's evidence. He told without reservation of the entrapment of the pretty and clean-lived little mill girl, Jennie Bosschieter, and of her being given chloral with the idea only of drugging her, but which caused her death.

The only circumstance that saved the men from a death sentence was the evidence that the chloral was given only with the idea of robbing the girl of her senses. When the men had been convicted Judge Dixon, presiding at the trial, submitted them to probably the bitterest excoriation ever administered from the bench.

All of Good Family.

What particularly angered the court and incensed public opinion was that such a crime should have been committed by those occupying the social position of the four accused men. They were all from homes of culture, and all, save Campbell, in easy circumstances. McAlister was a member of a wealthy firm of silk manufacturers. Kerr and Death had profitable real estate businesses. Kerr was a brother-in-law of the then Mayor Hinchliffe of Paterson. Kerr had a wife, son and daughter; Death it was learned, had secretly been married a few weeks before the murder. McAlister, generally regarded as the ringleader in the crime, was handsome, well-dressed, known as a local "man about town." Campbell, the youngest of the quartette, had borne a good reputation. He was a bookkeeper in a big silk mill and had supported his mother and sister.

Under their sentences Kerr was due to be released a year ago, but his three companions could not expect to leave prison until 1921. Extraordinary efforts have been made on their behalf for seevral years. When they were first sentenced to prison their families recognized the force of public opinion behind their sentences, and the men issued at the time of their incarceration a public statement to the effect that they meant to serve their time, gracing it with every effort at good behaviour. But about six years later determined efforts with influential backing were made to get the men pardoned. These failed time and again.

It wasn't until Kerr had served his full term with such time off as he was allowed for good behaviour and had been released that the New Jersey Board of Pardons would consider the applications of Kerr, Death and McAlister. Meanwhile sisters, brothers and mothers of the condemned men had rarely allowed a meeting of the Board of Pardons to pass without filing applications for pardons.

Kerr, as soon as he was released, went West. He is now in Kansas City, engaged in business there, and known to few as one of the defendants in the Jennie Bosschieter case. Death went back to Paterson to live. He works daily in New York, and faces with some equanimity the stare of other commuters on the morning and evening trains. Young Campbell is a scenario writer for a New York moving picture concern. He lives in Clifton, a suburb of Paterson, but is never seen at the cafes and theatres of Paterson which he frequented as a young man. McAllister has followed Kerr to the West. It is understood that he will engage in some business in Chicago.

Three Now White-Haired.

McAlister, Kerr and Death came out of prison white-haired. All were well over forty when they were released. McAlister was fifty-two when he entered upon a new freedom last week. Campbell is now in his late thirties.

Judge Jonathan Dixon, who so severely denounced the four men and regretted his inability to give them the dath penalty had been dead for seven years. Prosecutor Eugene Emley died about two years ago, and Ralph, the assistant prosecutor, committed suicide by hanging three years ago. The building at the corner of River and Bridge streets where Jennie Bosschieter was taken and drugged was ruined by fire less than a month ago and a number of tenants had narrow escape from being burned to death.

The evidence at the trial was to the effect that the girl, who was of good character, went with McAllister to the back-room of a saloon in the belief that she was to meet there her girl chum, that the four men gathered about the table and drank liquors while the girl drank only milk and seltzer, but that in this drink the men surreptitiously put chloral or "knock-out" drops; that they then called a hack and took the girl out on a country road and mistreated her. They discovered that she was dead, and in order to give a false clue and lead the police away from the theory of drugging, they battered her skull with a stone.

They dismissed the cabman with a $10 fee and a warning that if he told of what had occurred he would "get hanged" himself. But the finding of the girl's body aroused the authorities, the cabman was identified. He told what he knew, and then Kerr weakened and gave States evidence.

BRIGHT, RUDDY CHEEKS FOR PALE GIRLS

No Longer And Need to be Pale, Weak or Anaemic.

By Following the Advice of Miss McEwen You Can Quickly Become Strong Again.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but she doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton has invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly, and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness were hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for 1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Indians Not Easy To Feed

Caste Problem in Supplies Has to Be Overcome — How Britain Feeds Her Eastern Soldiers.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 30.—The disembarkation arrangements were undoubtedly a triumph of efficient organization, in the landing of the latest contingent of Indian troops. "Rudement bien organisee" was a comment one heard at every street corner. The horses, too, though they had not yet recovered their land legs, looked very well, and their accoutrements were much admired. Lancers, Hussars, Dragoon Guards, R.F.A., Bengal sowers and Sikhs, with Jacob's Horse of the death's head badge, and many more besides — truly a brave show to gladden the heart of Notre Dame de la Garde on her hill. Marseilles, or as much of it as could secure conveyance, saw and rejoiced; and, after its consummations, made its way to Borely, where the white tents were already pitched and the lines prepared. There it saw the troopers cook their evening meal all decently and in order. A beautiful and at the same time a most impressive sight, this evening camp of the men of India, pitched in its race, course enclosure between the landlocked harbour and the stately Empire-garden of the Borely. And, to the eye of speculation, the more impressive because this coming of the men of India means something even more than the reinforcement of our battle line, because it means new voices of the West in the East, a nobler inspiration and a wider freedom under the Raj, born of the common danger and brotherhood in arms.

Maintain Scruples.

The supply problem is difficult. In the case of sheep the Sikh villager's gorge will rise when he sees meat prepared by the Mahomedan butcher, who kills by the halal, or throat cutting stroke, just as the Mahomedan feels it an outrage that meat should be hung up for sale that has been killed by the jatka — the stroke on the back of the neck affected by the Sikhs. In France now a certain amount of tinned mutton is eaten willingly by the troops, but the great bulk of commissariat meat must be sent alive to railhead and slain there in accordance with prescribed rites. Hence the herd of sheep and goats in the boulevard. I found an old abattoir full of them — goats from all the hills of France, from Corsica and Dauphine and the Cevennes, from stony Languedoc and Rousillon on the Spanish border, and bearded giants from the Pyrenees, which, standing on end, might pluck the leaves from the shisham like a young camel, a breed which is likely more than anything else to inspire the Indians with reverence for the virtue of the soil.

That the men may know whether they are eating clean or unclean flesh units are detached to a point near railhead, where each man, be he Mahomedan, Sikh or Hindu, dispatches the beast by his own peculiar sacrificial stroke, marks it as clean, and sends it on to his comrades in the trenches.

No beef is killed at the front, as the mere proximity of a Mahomedan slaughter house might carry pollution to the Hindus. For drink the army rations of the Indian troops is rum, but the Mahomedans, being debarred by the Prophet from all fermented liquor, is given an extra ration of sugar and tea. The huqa being too cumbrous an article for service equipment, the Indian soldier receives two packets of cigarettes a week. Even the transport animals have their ingrained fads, a kind of caste fastidiousness. Indian mules and country-breds, who might be having the time of their lives, nose suspiciously our sweet English hay, preferring their own chopped straw, the dryest of provender. If an English cavalry regiment ever finds itself fobbed off with Indian fodder men and horses show their disgust in their own way.

The Gurkha is proverbially an accommodating person and gives his British officer, with whom he is on the friendliest possible terms, as little difficulty as possible. But in Bombay, when a regiment was embarking, the question arose as to whether they would eat frozen meat. A conclave of officers decided that it would be better to put the case to the men. The Subadar was called, and, after a little wrinkling of the eyebrow, said: "I think, Sahib, the regiment will be willing to eat the iced sheep, provided one of them is always present to see the animal frozen to death."

Signs Of A Move Forward By The Allies

TAKE THE OFFENSIVE AROUND YPRES

SPECIAL ADDRESS TO REICHSTAG WAS FAILURE

Prominent New York Newspaper Says That Von Bethmann Hollweg's Speech Failed to Set Germany Right in the Eyes of the Outside World.

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, December 4.—The Tribune this morning in commenting editorially on Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg's latest address to the Reichstag says:

"It was a failure so far as it was intended to set Germany right in the eyes of the outside world. The Germans are especially anxious to avoid two reproaches. They want to clear themselves of the charge that their government brought on the present war by pledging Austro-Hungary a free hand in dealing with Servia. They are also casting about for some excuse for having broken the treaty which bound them to respect and maintain the neutrality of Belgium. Von Bethmann Hollweg went far beyond this line of argument, however, when he tried to show that Russia and Great Britain precipitated the war. It is an absolute distortion of the facts to say that Russia, France and Great Britain, whatever their general attitude towards Germany may have been, manoeuvred to bring about the present conflict."

THE RAID ON ESSEN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 4.—Under the caption of "an air raid on [illegible]" the Herald says: "The daring and skill of the aviators in the service of the allies again has been demonstrated, according to despatches, this time by an attack from the air on the Krupp gun factory at Essen.

Even Dr. Bernhardt Deenburg may be able to detect a difference in the methods pushed by the opposing forces in the western theatre of war as applied to fighting from the sky. To damage the great war factory of the German empire is one thing, to hurl bombs on women and children of cities without the possibility of obtaining military advantage, is another.

"It will be interesting to note what parallel the apologist for the Kaiser will be able to draw between Essen and Antwerp."

DESERT INUNDATED.

CAIRO, Egypt., Dec. 4.—The great area of desert east of Port Said, has been inundated. Following the sharp lesson which was learned on Nov. 20 when the Turkish forces defeated a small deachment of the British and were able to announce they had reached the Suez canal, military authorities took this method of rendering the city immune from attacks.

British aeroplanes which reconnaitered over the Sinai Peninsual today, reported they found no trace of the enemy, which retreated eastward from Gattia and Birelnuss.

Cases in the Division Court

To the Number of Twenty

The following is the list of Division Court cases that were heard before His Honour Judge Huycke to-day:

Wm. Irwin vs. Robert Davis and G. Davis, $50.00.

Thos. Nelson vs. Geo. Fox, $60.00.

Fred Blastorah vs. Thos. Twomey, $31.25.

John Johnston vs. Peterborough Light and Power Co., $41.40.

Henry Norkes vs. J. McCullough and M. J. O'Sullivan, $25.00.

J. J. Turner & Sons vs. Chalykoff, Drajankoff & Drajankoff, $75.00.

Dr. Frank vs. W. L. Taylor, $26.50.

A. J. Gibbs vs. J. D. Crowley, $50.

C. R. Banks vs. F. Fountaine, $61.60.

A. J. Warne vs. Thos. W. Dawson, $46.00.

A. Trotter vs. Hector Nelson, $10.20

A. M. Thorne vs. W. F. Nelson, $24.35.

Bradburns, Ltd., vs. R. E. Layfield, James Edgar, James Kendry and J. G. M. Wilson, $98.00.

Oscar Comie vs. George Wilson, $100.00.

C. J. Carroll vs. J. Collins, $59.65.

C. B. Coons vs. McAinsh Co., $3.90.

William Coros vs. Nicholas Douros, $100.00.

In the first case, judgment was given in favour of Irwin for fifteen dollars. The defendant put in a counter claim for thirty-five dollars, of which amount fifteen dollars was allowed. C. R. Banks was also given judgment for the full amount of his claim, which was alleged to be due on an account.

The Court was in progress at the time of going to press.

Harold Spunk (bless him!) of the Rochester Democrat, is a neutral after the style of the American who was asked what he thought of the war. "I'm neutral," he answered. "I don't care who licks the Germans."

November Fire Loss Is $3,650

An Increase of $2,550 Over Fire Loss in Corresponding Month Last Year

The fire loss during the past month has been a comparatively large one, owing mainly to two fires, one in the home of Mr. W. H. Baker, Dublin Street, and the other in the store of Messrs. Zacks Bros., on George street. The damage in both was considerable, the former being the result of electric wiring and the latter of an overheated stove. During the month there were thirteen fires, with a property loss of $3,650. In November, last year, there were eleven fires fith a loss of $1,100.

LOCAL MINISTER IN LINDSAY

"Citizenship" was the subject of an interesting address given by Rev. L. Phelps, of Peterborough, formerly of the Queen Street Methodist Church, Lindsay. The address was particularly good and heartily appreciated. In part Rev. Mr. Phelps said: "Social questions have loomed up large in church problems recently. I have tried in the past five or six years to emphasize the department of citizenship, and have found it practically impossible to work. We have the best of literature and good workers, but somehow the citizens department in our Epworth League has not measured up, and yet it is a part in truly religious life. To separate citizenship from our religion destroys both."—Warder.

GOOD CHANCE FOR PETERBORO'

If Authorities Get Busy at Once, a Large Number of Soldiers May be Quartered Here For Training Purposes.

NEED ACCOMODATION

The city authorities are losing a chance to secure a valuable asset for this city if they do not exert every possible effort to have Peterborough made one of the mobilization centres for this district. Orders will be issued immediately for the recruiting of 3,500 soldiers in this district—two battalions of infantry and one mounted battalion. In accordane with the peace time mobilization plans these troops would train at Kingston, the divisional headquarters. Kingston, however, has already one battalion of infantry and a battery of artillery in training there at the present time and to accommodate any more will be a big task. Here is Peterborough's chance.

Housing for part at least, could easily be secured here. The old Cordage works building has been offered rent free and could be easily converted into an admirable barracks. For indoor drilling the armouries are available, there are good rifle ranges here and ever facility can be secured.

Surely no arguments are required to convince local people of the advisability of having the soldiers quartered here. One thousand men drilling here would have a weekly pay roll of over $8,000 and most of this money would be spent in Peterborough. The supplies for feeding the soldiers would be secured here and the presence of a body of recruits would be in every way an asset to the city.

The City Council, Board of Trade and other bodies should get busy at once. To the Kingston Standard a military officer remarked yesterday: "Naturally, all things else being equal, it is the best offers that will be accepted."

"THE WAR OF THE LILLIPUTIONS"

The Empire Theatre Busy Planning For Big Holiday Business—"Right off The Reel."

"Movie Land" is being searched by the manager of the Empire Theatre, Charlotte street, for the best of the gilt-edge plays in public favour. The first three days of this week, the house was frequently crammed with people enjoying "The Million Bid." "Right off the reel" comes the amusement for Friday and Saturday of "The War of the Lilliputians"—brimful of interest, especially to the young folks. Bring them in and let them see these lively little actors.

This special was secured at extra cost for the benefit of school children and students as well as adults.

This fine photo-play is very instructive.

The Dwarfs or Lilliputians as they are called, the tallest of whom is only 3 feet 2½ inches, while the smallest is only 22 inches in height, all full grown, live contently under the reign of their beloved King Micros in their own little beautiful kingdom. Princess Piccotina, whose engagement to Prince Colitri has been announced, is attending a circus performance given in honour of the event to his loyal subjects. At the close of the entertainment the Princess is kidnapped by the soldiers of their neighbouring king, who are Giants. The Lilliputians demand the release of their Princess, and being refused, declare war on the Giants. The artillery of the dwarfs soon crush a hole in the wall of the palace, the infantry charge and capture the enemy's king and rescue the Princess. The dwarfs return to their own country, the wedding taking place in due time, and with no more trouble from the neighbours, the Giants.

Grant of $1200 To Children's Aid

By County Council of Ontario to Oshawa Shelter

A grant of $1200.00 has been made by the County Council of Ontario County to the Children's Shelter at Oshawa. The members recently visited the Shelter and were greatly pleased with the efforts being made to properly protect the neglected children. This amount will be given annually.

BIG PARADE OF HOME GUARDS

673 on Hand at The Drill of The New Regiment Last Night—Thousands Saw The Biggest Marchout Yet.

A SPLENDID SHOWING

The parade state of the Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association Home Guards, in their weekly drill at the Armouries, last night, showed a turnout of 673 of all ranks — the largest attendance yet. Over 800 members are now on the roll. Many new recruits were sworn in last night. The interest, both among the members and the general public is still on the increase, the large parade state and the huge crowds on the street being ample evidence of that fact.

The march-out was the out-standing feature of the evening. The right half battalion, with Major R. E. Layfield in command, and headed by the 57th Band, led the way, followed by the left half battalion, in charge of Major E. F. Mason, and with the Temple Band supplying the music. The route of the parade was longer than usual. Leaving the Armouries the Regiment marched down George Street to Charlotte Street, over to Water street, north to Brock street, along that street to Aylmer, down Aylmer street to Charlotte street, west to George street, and back to the Armouries. At Simcoe street, on the return up George street, the Guard marched past Lt.-Col. Goodwill and staff, who took the salute at that point.

The marching of the Guard was very steady and a noticeable improvement was seen in this Department.

The interest shown in the new regiment was indicated unmistakably in the enormous crowd of spectators who thronged the streets along the line of parade. George street was crowded from Murray street to Charlotte street, both sides of the street being deeply lined. At the Armouries, too, there were many spectators, the galleries being crowded with ladies.

On the return to the Armouries the left half battalion was marched to the new shooting ranges in the old Murray Street Baptist Church, where Col. Sergt. H. Dodds gave a very interesting address on the rifle, care of the rifle and the theory of shooting. Musketry Instructor Capt. W. H. Moore took advantage of the opportunity to lay befre the left-half battalion the rules and regulations in regard to shooting practice. Meanwhile the companies of the right-half battalion were receiving instruction in Company drill in the Armouries, much progress being made.

Presentation of the Flag.

Before the parade Lt.-Col. Goodwill announced that the Home Guard had been presented with a beautiful Union Jack by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, and read the following letter:

Dear Colonel Miller.—We wish to present to the Peterborough Home Guard the glorious old Union Jack and staff, which we hope will be acceptable, and that it will be carried at the head of that noble body of men that have enlisted under that grand old flag to protect our homes and country.

We hope that they will never be called out for that purpose, but if they are, they will be "Ready, Aye, Ready." We are proud of the men that have responded to the call of our King and Country. We are also proud to know that we have such a fine Regiment as the 57th and Bugle Band, and also to know that one of the men from the 57th, Col. Clegg, should have the honour bestowed upon him of being appointed to the command of the men at Salisbury Plain. As citizens, we are all proud of the honour conferred upon Col. Clegg, and we feel sure that if God spares him and our other noble citizens who went to fight for us, to return, they will get a reception upon their arrival that they will never forget.

Wishing the Peterborough Home Guard, its Chaplain and officers every success, we remain,

Yours truly,

J. J. Turner & Sons.

In accepting the flag on behalf of the Guard, Lt.-Col. Miller urged the members to carry out the flag enterprise, agreed upon by the Executive, and display the National Flag at their homes.

The Guard then sang the National Anthem with uncovered heads, and wound up with cheers for Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

FOURTEEN ARE FIGHTING IN THE TRENCHES

Few People Have as Many Relatives at The Front as Mrs. Phibbs, St. George St.

SON AT SALISBURY

Mrs. Phibbs, St. George street, has the honourable distinction of having more relatives fighting in the trenches in France, than anybody else in the City. In addition to her son, who is with the Canadian Contingent at Salisbury Plain, Mrs. Phibbs has fourteen near relatives, who are enduring all the hardships of actual fighting. These include four nephews, four first-cousins and two uncles. Mrs. Phibbs is a member of a thoroughly military family, for not only have the members of it readily responded to the call of the Empire in this great crisis, but both her grandfathers fought in the Crimean war.

Mr. and Mrs. Phibbs have resided in Peterborough for the past year and a half, having come here from Kidderminster, England.

FREE LECTURE THIS EVENING

Astronomical Society Will Hear Dr. Plaskett at The Normal School

One of the events for this evening is Dr. Plaskett's lecture, before the Astronomical Society, in the Normal School. A general invitation is extended to the public to attend this meeting, which promises to be particularly interesting. Dr. Plaskett will deal with the new Canadian telescope under construction, its uses, and other incidental topics. He is thoroughly conversant with his subject and should be greeted by a large attendance.

Parcels For The Soldiers

Mrs. McLean Has Charge of Service for Daughters of the Empire

There is a good deal of uncertainty and some anxiety with regard to the carriage and delivery of small parcels being sent to relatives and friends at Salisbury Plains and on the continent. Inquiry at a local Express Office showed that for delivery of a small parcel the Express Company would charge $3.30. This charge seems excessive. If there is any organization taking charge of such service as the despatch of such parcels, the fact should be made known. We are informed that Mrs. Percy McLean has charge of such a service for the Daughters of the Empire, to whom inquiries may be addressed.

ALLIES ON OFFENSIVE IN THE YPRES DISTRICT

Are Attempting to Reach Menien, Important Point on the Lys and to Get Around the German Flank in the Declaere Forest.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, December 4.—The development of an offensive northeast from Ypres, is indicated in to-day's official communique from the war office. The statement reports heavy cannonading intermittently between Ypres and Roulers. Fighting is also reported along the railway and about Declaere and the Passchendaele road. Passchendale is midway between Roulers and Ypres, being about 6 1-2 miles from the latter point. Declaire is about 4 miles south of Passchendaele. It is believed this movement represents another attempt of the allies to reach Menien, an important point on the Lys, upon which they have been unable to advance along the direct road from Ypres. The fighting reported to-day would apparently indicate a movement north-ward along the railway toward Roulers as a part of an attempt to get around the German flank in this section in the Declaere forest.

The official statement declares:

"There was heavy cannonading intermittently yesterday between Ypres and Roulers along the railway, and the Declaere and Passchendaele roads. The Germans failed of success.

"In the Argonne several infantry attacks were repulsed.

"In Lorraine and the Woevre region cannonading continues.

"Calm prevails from the Somme to the Argonne and in Alsace."

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, Dec. 4.—Athens reports state that England has landed 34,000 Canadian volunteers in Egypt, a statement issued here to-day declares.

It is supposed that Berlin's Athens correspondent has the Canadians mixed with the New Zealanders and Australian contingents who have landed in Cairo, according to yesterday's despatches.

CRACOW ALMOST INVESTED

PEROGRAD, December 4.—An attack on the outer defences of Cracow is reported to-day. With Wieliczka now held by the Russans the enveloping movement at Cracow is progressing and the city will soon be completely invested.

SUICIDES AMONG GERMANS

AMSTERDAM, December 4.—The number of suicides in the German army is rapidly increasing, according to the correspondent of the Telegraph. This is especially true among the men with families, it is stated. They feel that if they get through the war safely their health will be permanently impaired owing to the hardships which the German troops are forced to undergo.

The correspondent declares one soldier told him that going to the front was a nightmare for every German. Train loads of corpses have passed through Louvain, bound eastward for Liège, where they are cremated. The bodies are sent from the front for cremation, it is said, because the Germans are unable to spare the men from the firing line to bury the dead.

ONE HUNDRED ARE ENROLLED FOR THE RED CROSS WORK

To-night at eight o'clock in the Salvation Army Temple, those members of the Army who have enrolled themselves for Red Cross, First Aid and Ambulance training, will be given the first address on the latter two departments of the work by Dr. Sutton. Over one hundred members have enrolled themselves for this work, and when properly qualified they will be affiliated with the Home Guard.

Big Falling Off In Revenue

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 4.—The Dominion financial statement for the first eight months of the fiscal year, including November shows a decided falling off in revenue as compared with the same period last year.

The revenue for eight months was $90,468,002, which is about $24,000,000 decline from the same period last year.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, DEC. 4, 1914

THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Peterborough, has not done its duty by the Patriotic Fund, so far; either in the way of adequately meeting the demand of the circumstances, or in the way of doing credit to the city. We do not believe that the people as a whole are to blame for the shortcoming to which we have to plead guilty.

The failure seems due to lack of organisation. That lack no longer exists. On the fifth page of this issue of The Examiner will be found an announcement of the energetic officers of the Patriotic Committee, comprising our most public-spirited citizens.

The reader is urged to read and, not only, read, but study this announcement, so that he may not only be seized of, but inspired by, its spirit. The appeal it makes is a strong one, and should strike home.

Not only read the announcement in this issue of The Examiner, but look for another announcement in Saturday's issue, and read and study and head that too.

We are far from the actual theatre of war; but we are in it in the persons of our fellow-citizens who are on the fighting line. They are fighting for us, and while they are fighting our battles, we must fight the battle at home—look after the dependents they leave behind.

WITH THE BREAD-WINNER GONE—WITH RENT TO BE PAID; WITH LITTLE CHILDREN CRYING FOR BREAD OR WARM CLOTHING; WITH THE CUPBOARD BARE AND THE COAL BIN EMPTY, WE SHALL SEE THE CRUELTIES AND SUFFERINGS OF WAR CARRIED TO OUR HEARTHSTONES, UNLESS WE DEFENDERS AT HOME, DO OUR SHARE OF FIGHTING AND BEND OUR EFFORTS TO GAIN THE GLORIOUS OBJECTIVE, $50,000 FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

GET BUSY!

"Get busy" is slang, but it has the merit of also being good business. Here is a splendid chance for the city authorities, the Board of Trade, or other representatives of city interests, to do a big stroke of business for the city.

Thirty-five hundred additional soldiers are to be enlisted in No. 3 military district almost immediately, and they must have a mobilization centre.

Kingston, the divisional centre of the district has her hands full with two battalions, and it is understood that the military authorities, will avail themselves of the best place in the district outside of Kingston for the addition mobilisation centre of the new quota of another contingent; and in all respects Peterborough can fill the bill, as that best place.

In another place in this issue, on page seven, will be found details of the advantages the presence of such a force will be to Peterborough, which will thus not only be doing good to ourselves, but be assisting in the preparation of the troops to be sent abroad for the Empire's service.

There is no time to be lost. Port Hope, for instance, is making a bid, and if we do not lose our chance we want to get at once at work.

Peterborough can furnish the necessary accommodation both for the drilling, housing and rifle shooting. Why not make a prompt and energetic effort to secure the adoption of Peterborough as a mobilization centre? Sharp's the word. Such energetic effort must not be confined to correspondence, but personal push must be enployed.

We urge the Mayor, we urge the Aldermen, we urge the members of the Board of Trade, to strike while the iron is hot.

"Get busy" and put Peterborough on the military map.

IT CAN BE DONE—ALL THAT IS NEEDED IS DOING IT.

BUY AT HOME.

The appeal to do Christmas shopping at home and to do it early is always pat. Especially the buying at home when the need of keeping going, "business as usual," is the cry. There may be selfishness in such an appeal, but it is unselfish selfishness. It is the true cooperation such as is called for in this time of national stress. We can help build up the general strength and commercial and financial integrity of the country by making the civic units strong. The commercial strength as a whole will be all the stronger if every community has its commence strengthened by its own effort.

By doing our Christmas (and other) shoping at home, we shall be helping our merchants, who with our other fellow-citizens are working together to contribute to the local prosperity. The more money we help to place in circulation in the city—the more we buy from our merchants, the better we shall be serving the common interest and ourselves. Our business men these strenuous times are making a brave fight, and though they may not be making as much money as at other times, they are giving as good service; as good value at as reasonable prices as before the war, and as can be given outside the city. As a matter of fair play and loyalty to our city we owe them our patronage, and thus helping them we put them in a position to better serve the mass of the purchasing public, who are too honest, too fair-dealing to send their money for Christmas purchases outside the city. If no other consideration should move us to avoid such striking disloyalty to the city, the golden rule, laid down by the Lord of Christmas, "do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you," should exercise its power. Otherwise we deny the Christmas spirit and make its observance only a mockery—an eye service.

FOLLOW THE GERMAN EXAMPLE.

German culture and German methods do not generally furnish much temptation to imitation; but there are some things in which Germany sets a good example; one that we can follow to advantage. The slogan "Weutchland uber alles," means htat every individual and national effort should be directed to making the country great. "Made in Germany" has made Germany great industrially, and we should meet it, and apply to ourselves to the ful, the 'made-in-Canada" motto. We must live up to this in every possible way—as individuals, as communities, as a nation. Another thing in which we may imitate Germany with advantage is the bomb-dropping industry. We don't mean, of course, the dropping of bombs on peaceful cities to the slaughter of non-combatones, women and children. But as a war device we can legitimately as well as profitably employ the airship and the bomb. At one time we became panicky over the superiority and possibilities of the Zeppelin; but that has gone the way of other illusions such as the invincibility of the German armies, the irresistibility of the German war machine. British aviators have made daring and long-distance raids upon German territory and have hoist the Zeppelin with its own pelaid—played the German game. Now British aviators have made a successful raid upon the great, great—gun and armour plate factories of the Kruppa at Essen, and have dropped bombs with unknown—but certainly not beneficial—results. The Krupp works are a god object of attack. If they are put out of commission by bombs or by a successful concentration of attack by an allied army, Germany would be crippled in her right arm—her big guns. Here is another good way in which we can imitate German methods, and the British and French aviators are coming on bravely—in a double sense—it requires rare courage ,the courage that gives coolness, to man an airship. It is the most dangerous post in war.

THE HEALING INFLUENCE OF EMOLUMENTAL OFFICE

In the clash of Empires which fills the eye of the world there is danger of the personal miracle which happened to Louis Philippe Pelletier being overlooked. The miracle is as follows: A little over a month ago Mr. Pelletier resigned as Postmaster-General of Canada on the plea of ill health. It may be that Premier Borden's desire to rid himself of the loudest voice among the Nationalists had something to do with it, but at all events Mr. Pelletier resigned, withdrawing like the wounded deer to the tall timbers, there to die or get well as Providence willed. When the politicians heard that Mr. Pelletier had retired in order to be sick and not in order to take a job, they said that was another miracle. And so it was, because it was against all reason and precedent and had never been done before by a statesman who was in a position to hold up the Government and make it provide for his old age. They explained this minor miracle in various ways, not all of them complimentary to the late Postmaster-General.

But the real miracle was Mr. Pelletier's sudden recovery which, for quickness and completeness runs Naaman's, the Syrian, famous case a close second. On his last legs a month ago, Mr. Pelletier is now well and strong enough to be a Judge of the Quebec Superior Court, with the prospect of a Chief Justiceship when one falls in. We do not learn anywhere that the danger of a bigger job with a bigger salary is interfering with Judge Pelletier's health. On the contrary the prospect of added responsibilities and added emoluments acts as a tonic on his dauntless spirit and he is now ready to serve his country to his latest breath. It all goes to show what a great healing power faith is. Without faith the pool of Siloam was no better than a tank full of Toronto's chlorinated water, but with faith it cured all the ills that flesh is heir to. Louis Philippe Pelletier had faith—faith of the sure-thing sort that removes mountain chains. Some people base their faith on a slight thing like a tip, but Judge Pelletier had better grounds. When he withdrew to the wilderness he took with him, not a job, but something just as good, a cast iron promise that he would get the job as soon as the other fellow could be pried out.—Saturday Night.

BE PATIENT AND TRUSTING.

A despatch is published purporting to give the result of an interview with Lord Kitchener, who is made to express the opinion that the war will last at least three years. Kitchener should have a pretty good idea; but if we haven't been misled as to Kitchener's conversational capabilities and inclinations, we very much doubt that he ever gave an interview, in which he said at once, at one sitting, all the imaginative interviewer ascribes to him. Kitchener is too busy and too serious a man to cater to the mere idle curiosity of an interviewer, even if he was the man to indulge in mere speculative talk. He, with the mass of the British people at home and abroad, are too busy, too much concerned in bringing the war to an end, to waste time in guessing whether it will end in three months or three years. We are kept pretty much in the dark as to the details of the doings in the war area; the censorship is very strict. This constitutes a reason why correspondents in order to have a "story," yield to the temptation to make a way if they can't find a way, to get something for their papers. A great deal of the alleged news we get is imaginative and unreliable, and in reading it we have only need to have a view of the probabilities. The official reports, are about the only things we can depend upon, and we can't depend upon these, if they come from German or Austrian sources. The monthly official summary—a classic in Caesarian conciseness and simplicity—of Sir John French, is worth waiting for, if we want to get a true idea of the actualities of the situation. In the meantime we may amuse ourselves, or throw ourselves in a panic over the ghost stories of correspondents with a genius for invention; but we must make up our minds to wait, and we can wait in confidence. We know that the men at the helm are trustworthy—don't promise much but have an infinite capacity for doing; we know that they are backed by the best soldiery in the world, fighters of the bull dog breed; we know that our allies are equal in fighting strength and courage and determination; we know that our resources in men, in money, and the essentials of successful war waging are far superior, actually and potentially, to the resources of those that be against us; we know that we have the just cause; and our role is not to indulge the gossip's greed for gossip, for mere gossip's sake; it is for each of us do our best in the sphere of our duty, and all will be well as it will be in the end, be that end soon or late.

THE MARSEILLAISE.

Music always plays an important part in war. Under the stimulus of strong feelings war songs are composed and taken up by the patriotic citizens. Every great war in the history of the world has produced patriotic songs, some hare endured, while others have perished in a few years.

One of the most famous war songs ever written is the Marseillaise. This stirring war poem was written in the city of Strasburg in 1792, just before the great Revolution swept over France. The author, Claude Joseph Rouget de Lisle, wrote words and music in one night, and immediately sprang into fame. It derived its name from a band of Revolutionists, "Reds of the Midi," who sang it while marching from Marseilles to Paris. For upwards of one hundred years this stirring war song has never failed to rouse the French to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. At Waterloo, when Napoleon was about to give up in despair, the band played the Marseillaise, and as a result the famous Old Guard went forth to be annihilated. In the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71, one prominent German leader said: "Your song has sent fifty thousand gallant Germans to their death." It is a curious coincidence that Dietriche, the patron of the song, marched to the guillotine in its martial strains some months after the song was written, and de Lisle, the author, only escaped death with difficulty. In the present war, the Marseillaise enabled the French to do almost the impossible against overwhelming numbers of Germans.—Journal of Commerce.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The league basketball game Thursday evening between the Cressman's and Excelsior teams was won by the Cressmans by the close score of 20-19. The Excelsiors had led by the score of 10-9 in the first half and played such a fast game in the second half that the result was in doubt up to the call of time. Knapman and Long did all the shooting for the Excelsiors and the latter having six goals from floor an three from fouls to his credit. Goals were rather evenly divided between the members of the Cressman team. The men who represented the Cressmans last night were F. Cressman, H. Cressman, Raynor, Palmer and Hunter. Players on the Excelsiors were: Knapman, Long, Stewart, Lewis and Darling.

Saturday evening of this week two games are scheduled. At 8 o'clock Junior Business Men versus the Pirates, 8.45, Bankers versus St. Paul's.

Every evening sees three or four events under way at the same time. A man who visited the building the other evening and found some two hundred young men amusing themselves in different ways throughout the building, asked us if this was not something extra, and was surprised when we informed him that he could find from one hundred to two hundred young men in the building almost every evening at the present season. It seems as though the young men are crowding the building as never before, the day time attendance being also increased by the fact that so many men are out of work.

A letter received from Physical Director Carson states that his mother died Monday morning at 4 o'clcok and that he will be back the first part of next week. The Association membership and the community in general sympathize with Mr. aCrson in his bereavement.

Some thirty Collegiate students met Thursday afternoon to take preliminary steps towards organizing a Collegiate bowling team. Fred Soward was elected president, Douglas McDonald, sec.-treas. The young men are very enthusiastic over the project and will hold another meeting this afternoon to draw up pa schedule and select teams.

ATTEMPTED CROSSING OF YSER CAME TO A DISASTROUS END

Fighting Extends Over a Considerable Part of the Western Line, But is Concentrating in Belgium—Artillery of Allies Wakes to Find the Germans on Rafts and Takes Heavy Toll.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The News has the following from its correspondent in France:—

"Fierce fighting is now taking place along a considerable portion of the battle line. The Germans have anticipated the concerted forward movement of the allies by making a spirited attack themselves. The allies have not been taken by surprise; never was an army more ready to defend itself. The allies are now in a position to bide their time, and the new German offensive will probably not cause them to change their well-matured plans. The new German attack so far has met with no success. It has to extend more or less along the whole line, but has concentrated principally to the north of Ypres and on towards Dixmude. Fighting has been most severe here, but all attacks have been successfully repulsed. In the dark hours before dawn yesterday morning a large force of Germans crossed the flood waters of the Yser by means of big broad rafts. The venture was a desperate one, for not a man who set out on it could have been ignorant of the fact that death was almost certainly awaiting him. The rafts were punted through the shallow waters in dead silence and in utter darkness. Each carried about fifty or sixty men, and some mitrailleuses in preparation for the dawn. A further fleet of rafts drawn by motor-boats was waiting on the German side of the muddy waters.

But before dawn came the plot was discovered, and when daybreak did arrive the artillery of the allies met the advancing Germans with devastating effect. Yet in spite of their losses these Germans, brave even to madness, still essayed the crossing. They were partially covered by the heavy cannonade of their field artillery and until midday still persisted in their plan. Several rafts were upset in midstream by the fire of the French guns, and great numbers of Germans were drowned as well as shot. Once again the Yser claimed heavy toll; once again German blood stained its waters crimson. The attack eventually ceased after the Germans had suffered immense losses in men and mitrailleuses, but the artillery kept up a determined bombardment of the allied positions, meeting with a vigorous, well-directed reply.

The following official statement was issued by the French War Office last night:—

"The only interesting news relates to our right wing and to the day of Dec. 2. On the right bank of the River Moselle we have occupied Lemenils and the Signal of Xon.

"In the Vosges our troops have captured the Tete-De-Faux, to the south of the Village of Bonhomme, which dominates the range of hills on the frontier and has served as an observatory for the Germans.

"In Alsace the station of Burnhaupt has been occupied and we have established ourselves on a line comprising Aspach, the bridge of Aspach and Burnhaupt."

Yesterday afternoon's communique says:—

"In Belgium there was a rather lively artillery fire directed against Nieuport, and to the south of Ypres. The inundations have extended to the south of Dixmude.

"From the Lys to the Somme there has been a violent bombardment, particularly at Aix-Noulette, to the west of Lens. There was quiet along the entire front from the Somme to the Aisne and in Champagne.

"In the Argonne several attacks on the part of the enemy were repulsed, and we made slight progress.

"In the Woevre district the German artillery evidenced a certain activity, but with insignificant results.

"In Lorraine and in the Vosges there is nothing important to report."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Messages of condolence have been received by the family of the late Major Beattie, M.P. of London, Ont., from Premier Borden, members of the Cabinet and many others.

A shipment of 1,144 horses intended for the French army left Omaha, Neb., for New York yesterday. An order was given for ten thousand more, to be delivered after Dec. 21.

Capt. John Edmund Valentine Isaac, of the Reserve Officers' Rifle Brigade, who is among the 58 officers receiving the distinguished service order, is a member of the Vancouver Trust Corporation.

King Haakon of Norway left Christiania yesterday on the battleship Harald Haarfagre for a trip of inspection of the Norwegian coast defences from Trondhjem to Bergen, says a despatch from Christiania.

The Dublin newspaper Sinn Fein did not appear yesterday. The publishers of this journal refused to print it in consequence of having been warned by the authorities that they would be liable to prosecution.

David Lamar, was yesterday found guilty of impersonating Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of defrauding J. P. Morgan & Co., and other firms, and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, who has been confined to his home for several days, has congestion of the lungs, and although his case is not considered to be serious, he will be unable to return to his office for a week or more.

SOCIALISTS ANGRY.

Liebknecht Had No Right to Oppose War Credit, They Say.

BERLIN, Dec. 4. — The Socialist Democratic faction of the Reichstag yesterday issued a statement which says that Dr. Karl Liebknecht, Socialist, in voting against the new war credit, which was approved by the Reichstag Wednesday, acted against party discipline as especially reiterated in case of the war credit measure. Dr. Liebknecht was the only member of the Reichstag voting against the proposition. The statement expresses the deepest regret at the occurrence, which, it is said, will be investigated further.

GERMANS HAVE FORMED LINE SOUTHWEST OF LODZ

Another 1,200,000 Russians Are Summoned to Colours and Fresh German Forces Have Arrived in Poland From Kalisz

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The following official statement was issued last night from General Headquarters at Petrograd:—

"Fighting continues in certain districts along the front in the region of Lowics. Important forces of the enemy, chiefly the troops transported in November from the German west front, opened an offensive on Dec. 2, in the direction of Lioutomersk and Szersow.

"On the rest of the front on the left bank of the Vistula there is no particular modification in the situation.

"Beyond the Carpathians our troops have taken Bartfeld, capturing eight officers, 1,200 men and six machine guns."

The Petrograd correspondent of The Daily News, Frederick Rennet, cables:

The Germans to the northwest of Lowics have abandoned their active defensive under pressure from the Russians, who are well above Plock, on the left bank of the Vistula.

All the Germans columns north of Lodz are now falling back towards the frontier. At midnight and in the early hours of the morning the Germans north of Lodz, in massed columns, made a succession of furious onslaughts on the Russian position. This final attempt the military commentator of a Russian newspaper ascribes to the failure of Hindenburg's effort in Poland, which was intended to culminate in the determined outflanking of the Russian position, and to the fact that its preparation was too visible and the execution too slow. Hence, from an early stage of the fighting the Germans had to use all their energies in parrying the counter-manoeuvres by the Russians, who had seized the general initiative.

The Petrograd correspondent of The Times points out that by retaking Strykow the Russians have regained possession of the Lodz-Warsaw railway.

The fall of Cracow would lay open the roads to Vienna, Breslau and Berlin, but the main interest in the east continues to rest with the operations on the irregular front from Czenstochowa through Lodz and Lowicz to the East Prussian border. Official pronouncements as to the progress here are guarded and indefinite, and it is thus difficult to arrive at a conclusion with regard to the course of events.

It is apparent, however, that a new battle has developed to the southwest of Lodz, where the Germans have formed a new line with fresh forces brought from Kalisz, and are again trying to penetrate the Russian centre.

The Russians, too, have had time to straighten out their line, and, in the eyes of the allies, another battle following so closely that just concluded in this region must help them in the long run.

It is argued that, win or lose, the Germans will be further weakened, and, in addition, will soon have to turn their attention to the Russian offensive against Silesia and around Cracow.

However, the battle must last for some days and the opposing troops may be counted upon to fight with the same intensity as they did in the previous conflict, when the losses in killed, wounded and missing reached enormous numbers.

The London Telegraph's correspondent says:—

The great size of the Russian army will mar the German scheme of engaging the Czar's forces so that they will have to abandon the idea of invading Silesia. When Cracow falls it will checkmate the German-Austrian offensive.

Another 1,200,000 men have been called to the colors, and Russia would generously send some of her sons to France to help her ally were it possible.

The Russian army is taking a hint from the enemy and now it also uses the Vistula as a line of transport, and thus moves quickly to its objective, Wloclowek, to the west of Plock.

In Mexico there is a 150-foot bridge over a river that is composed entirely of mahogany, worth, at the present price of the wood, almost $8,000,000.

Very Good Reason.

Parson: How is it I haven't seen you at church lately?

Hodge: I ain't been.

Earl of Erne Passes Away

He Was Grand Master of Orange Lodge and Opposed Home Rule

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Orangeism lost a firm supporter and the opponents of Home Rule a valued friend in the death yesterday of the Earl of Erne, fourth of the line and one of the most distinguished of Dublinites. He was born in that city on the 16th of October, 1839. He was Grand Master of the Orange Order in Ireland.

The fifth Earl of Erne, who until yesterday has been known as Major, Viscount Crichton, D.S.O., of the Royal Horse Guards, and since 1910 extra equerry to His Majesty the King was in Canada as A.D.C. to the Duke of Cornwall and York during his colonial tour, in 1901. He served in the South African war where he distinguished himself.

Lady Evelyn Ward of Toronto, and Lady Hugh Grosvenor are daughters. The return of Lady Evelyn Ward from Canada was announced some time ago. She is remaining at Crom Castle until the war is over.

The late Lord Erne sat for twenty years as the member for Enniskillen and for four years did good service as a whip.

KITCHENER IN FRANCE.

King George's Stay May Be Considerably Prolonged.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Times this morning says that Lord Kitchener is at present in France, consulting with King George, King Albert of Belgium and the French officials.

Other despatches record the visit of the King to the trenches in the firing line, while The Chronicle says:

The King's visit to the expeditionary force is proving a most interesting one, and the date of his Majesty's return appears not to be definitely fixed. The visit may possibly be extended to considerably beyond the limits originally contemplated.

WATCHMAN ROBBED.

Montreal Man Is Hung Up and Set on Fire by Assailants.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4. — Led by a woman, four masked robbers tied, gagged and burned Eugene Dubreuil, nightwatchman of the Cote de Liesse Convent, yesterday after he had refused to hand over his pay, according to the story Dubreuil told the police.

After the burglars had hung him to a water pipe in the boiler room so that his toes just touched the floor, they poured coal oil over his arms and set fire to him.

However, he escaped with a few slight burns on the left arm, but the robbers took from him $20.85 and his watch and chain and sped away in an automobile.

He was rescued an hour later.

Casualties of Servians.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—(By wireless to London.) — Nineteen thousand Servian prisoners have been taken since the Austrians began the present offensive movement, according to a report received here yesterday from Vienna. News from other sources indicates that Servia's casualties since the beginning of the war will reach about 100,000 or virtually one-third of her entire strength.

Przemysl in Desperate Fix

VENICE, Dec. 4.—(Via London)—The Archbishop of Przemysl, who is en route to Rome, is credited in an interview published here with declaring that the situation of Przemysl is desperate and the surrender of the fortress imminent.

The hospitals are crowded according to the published statement, the mortality is enormous and the food supply exhausted.

Russians have now captured favorable positions about the Galician fortress of Przemysl, and the constant bombardment of heavy guns has played havoc with the city.

Scope Is Readjusted

British Share of Operations Has Been Considerably Modified

LONDON, Dec. 4—Col. E. D. Swinton, of the Intelligence Department of the General Staff of the British Expeditionary Force in France and Belgium, in a narrative dated Nov. 26, gives a general review of the development of the situation of the force for six weeks preceding that date,

"There has recently been a lull in the active operations," he says. "No progress has been made by either side and yet there has come about an important modification comprising a readjustment in the scope of the part played by the British as a whole." He explains the movement from the River Aisne to the Belgian frontier to prolong the left flank of the French army, and says that in attempting this the British force was compelled to assume responsibility for a very extended section of the front. He points out, as did Gen. French, commander-in-chief of the British forces, that the British held only one-twelfth of the line, so that the greater share of the common task of opposing the enemy fell and still falls to the French, while the Belgians played an almost vital part.

With the fall of Antwerp the Germans made every effort to push forward a besieging force toward the west and hastened to bring up a new army corps, which had been hastily raised and trained, their object being to drive the allies out of Belgium and break through to Dunkirk and Calais. Altogether they had a quarter of a million of fresh men. Eventually the Germans had north of La Bassee about fourteen army corps and eight cavalry divisions, that is, "a force of three-quarters of a million men, with which to attempt to drive the allies into the sea. In addition, there was immensely powerful armament and heavy siege artillery, which also had been brought up from around Antwerp."

The official eye-witness tells of the blows delivered by the Germans at Nieuport, Dixmude and Ypres, where "at first the allies were greatly outnumbered."

BOTHA IS NOW FREE.

He Is In a Position To Invade German Territory In Africa.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The receipt of official news of the surrender of Gen. Christian De Wet on Dec. 1, following the capture of Col. Maritz and the defeat of the commando under Gen. Beyers early in November, has assured the Colonial Office that the revolt in South Africa is under control and will not assume proportions of a military action of the first-class.

Both Cape Colony and Orange Free State are now cleared of rebels, and only the small commando under Gen. Beyers is left at large near the border of the Transvaal. The capture of De Wet was effected in the Transvaal. The text of the official despatch to the Colonial Secretary, Lewis Harcourt, from Cape Town says:—

"Gen. De Wet surrendered on Tuesday at a lonely farm near Waterburg, in the Transvaal. He was taken by Commandant Conrad Britz, who, with a considerable force, had been scouring the district for some time.

"Col. Britz and his force finally found trace of De Wet's commando, which had dwindled to fifty-two men, and followed it to Waterburg, where the farm house and kraal in which they had taken refuge was surrounded.

"No resistance was offered by the rebels in the final action. The prisoners were taken to Vryburg. Charges of treason will be brought against De Wet and his officers."

There has been no news for some days of the fighting in the Caucasus or in Egypt, but throughout the whole of Africa more liveliness is anticipated now that Gen. De Wet is captured, and Gen. Louis Botha can carry out his original plans of moving against German Southwest Africa. The first Australian and New Zealand contingents have been landed in Egypt for operations against the Turks, and Portuguese reinforcements have reached Angola to take the offensive against the Germans on their African borders.

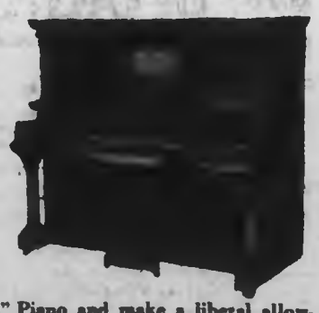
CHRISTMAS GIFT HEADQUARTERS - - - 417 GEORGE STREET

"Father And Mother Do The Playing Now"

THAT is what you hear in the homes that have been blessed by the installation of a NEW PLAYER PIANO. The student daughter is not the only one to touch the piano now, any member of the family can play the finest compositions, perfectly. And if the daughter has gone to a home of her own, the "Silent Piano" can quickly be exchanged for a Live Player, that responds to the touch of unaccustomed hands, with the music that appeals so strongly and is missed so much.



THIS CHRISTMAS IS THE TIME TO GET THE LIVE PIANO

At the Greene Music Store you can have a demonstration of either the New Scale Williams Player, or, "Ye Olde Firme" Heintzman & Co. Player, at any time. You can play them yourself, just to see how easy and delightful it is to produce some master selection that you could only listen to before.

We are prepared to take your old "silent" Piano and make a liberal allowance for it on the purchase of a live Player Piano, and easy terms for the balance.

If you have promised your daughter a new Piano, better redeem the promise this Christmas, by making a selection of a HEINTZMAN & CO. or NEW SCALE WILLIAMS PIANO, that is sure to please, with its exquisite quality of tone add beauty of design. Terms most favourable, making purchase easy.

EDISON'S NEWEST TRIUMPH

THE WORLD is to-day crowning Thomas A. Edison's genius by the most unqualified approval of his latest masterpiece, the EDISON DIAMOND DISC PHONOGRAPH. Never satisfied with the wonderful results he gave the world when the Edison Phonograph was first introduced, and later improved, the great inventor spent years of incessant labour and study in finally producing the marvellous

NEW DIAMOND DISC

The satisfaction that Mr. Edison himself expresses when he says that the NEW DIAMOND DISC IS A REAL MUSICAL INSTRUMENT is also amply testified to by hundreds of delighted musicians throughout America. No such clear over-tones have ever been reproduced before. So natural is the sound of voice or musical instrument, that the performer seems to be right in the room beside you. Other features of the Edison Diamond Disc are that the Records are unbreakable, and will wear for years without injury, also there is NO NEEDLE CHANGING NUISANCE, a diamond point that will not wear out, or injure records, is used.

IT IS THE INSTRUMENT YOU WILL HAVE FINALLY, BETTER GET IT NOW

The enormous demand is already far overtaxing the capacity of the factory to produce the medium priced instruments, so if wanted for Christmas an immediate selection should be made to avoid disappointment. Hear it any day—Demonstrations Free any time we are open. Sold on very favourable terms of payment to suit buyers.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

LAST MAIL LEAVES ON THE TENTH

Xmas Delivery to Soldiers—Advice is to Get Matter Mailed Right Away—Will Be Record Christmas Mail This Year

RATES FOR PARCELS

The amount of parcel mail matter being sent to England is already large. It is also giving signs of being bigger still as Christmas approaches. And in nearly every case of comparison, week for week and month for month, this year's mails are in excess.

Under the parcel post system nothing, say the postal authorities, is sent free of charge. All are subject to the 12 cents a pound rate. But they are also free of duty into England and the Continent if the goods are for soldiers. When the Canadian parcel post was instituted tobacco was placed prominently on the list of prohibited articles. A month or so after the war started this rule was waved aside, and now, although postage is still charged, all tobacco is duty free instead of being subject to a very heavy tax.

"Get your stuff into the mails early if you want it to get to England," was the advice of the postal authorities. The latest possible date to send Christmas matter to the troops is on the mail whih closes here on December 10 at 5 p.m. This mail will get any matter to the Canadians at Salisbury or in fact to the troops on the continent by Christmas. The latter, by the way, advises that no matter will be forwarded unless it is absolutely prepaid. The rate for parcels going to the Continent troops are subject to the following rates: 1 lb., 32c.; 2 lbs., 40c.; 3 lbs., 48c.; 4 lbs., 64c.; 5 lbs., 72c.; 6 lbs., 80c.; 7 lbs., 88c.; 8 lbs., $1.02; 9 lbs., $1.10; 10 lbs., $1.18; 11 lbs., $1.26. They should be addressed, "Expeditionary Force, care General Post-Office, London, England," when sent to British troops at the front.

Letters and packages for the Canadian troops at Salisbury should be addressed giving the name of the soldier, his company and his regiment, Salisbury Plain, England.

Mails Irregular.

The Postmaster states that the mails at best are irregular. These are extraordinary times even for Atlantic mail service, and only one parcel mail a week is counted on as absolutely certain, while only two letter mails through New York are relied on with accuracy. Letter matter to the Continent is five cents for the first ounce and three cents for every additional ounce.

LINDSAY MAN ON THE RAMPAGE

Police Reserves Were Called Out Sentenced to Two Months in Jail

LINDSAY, Dec. 4.—A fine of $15.50 or two months in Castle Balfour, was the sentence meted out yesterday to one, Foster Treevor, at the Police Court. On Wednesday night, about 8 o'clock, he cut loose in front of the Academy, and his language was such as would put a type-setting machine in the scrap heap if it endeavoured to place it in type.

Chief Short was at his home when a message came that a bad actor was creating a disturbance in front of the Academy. The Chief hurried to the scene and Treevor was there surrounded by a crowd of the great unwashed. He welcomed the police officer with a torrent of oaths and obscene language that hung like a pall round the electric light. Chief Short next proceeded to arrest Treevor, but he proved a nasty customer. The officer had his overcoat on and an umbrella in his hand and was handicapped somewhat in handling a stocky, liquor-crazed man. Several bystanders took a hand in the affair, and finally Constable Wood appeared on the scene. Treevor was taken to the cells, but during the night he proceeded to kick the end out of this subterranean institution.

Yesterday morning the prisoner was brought before Police Magistrate Jackson. It was decided to place him on the prohibited list. A fine of $15.50 was also imposed and, in default, two months in jail. Treevor had no money, so Chief Short took him up on the hill. The Magistrate in passing sentence, stated he hoped the Province of Ontario would take the same action as Manitoba in reference to the bars.

Double Fatality Near Franklin

House of Mark White Burned Together With Two Children

FRANKLIN, Dec. 4.—A sad fatality occurred on the Moss Road, west of this place, when the residence of Mr. Mark White was burned. It appears that Mrs. Mark White was attending to the milking, leaving her three children in the house. She was horrified when returning to find the home in flames. She immediately summoned her husband, who was at a neighbour's, and on his arrival it was found that it was impossible to save the house. The brave father rushed into the burning structure and got the children out. Two of them, however, were terribly burned. The youngest lingered a short time, when death ended its suffering. The second youngest, it is reported, died later.

POLICE COURT NETTED $4.00

Only Two Men Charged With Being "Drunk and Disorderly" on the Docket

William Parker appeared in this morning's police court charged with being found drunk on Euclid Avenue, City. He pleaded guilty to the charge and contributed half of his roll of $4 to the City Treasurer for the privilege of rolling in the mud of one of our streets. Parker had just come down from the wild and woolly north yesterday and as the Magistrate remarked, it did not take him long to find his way into the police court.

Alexander Ross was charged with being drunk in a public place. He pleaded not guilty, saying that he was making a very fair passage home when the police overtook him, and that he was not drunk at all. "It seems as if they are laying for me every night up around the butcher shop there," he told the Magistrate. Ross was fined two dollars or ten days, and as he already has an overdue account of $2 with the Police Department he must take the ten days through lack of funds.

THE MILITARY SITUATION

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I, and I presume, the great majority of our citizens were possessed with the idea that our vast military expenditures on armouries, city battalions, etc., were primarily for the purpose of creating a force to defend our country in the hour of need. We looked on the spectacular part of the business such church parades, march outs, annual jaunting trips, club rooms and club life, at the Armouries, etc., as justifiable expenditures for the Government to pay for in view of the noble sacrifices that our soldier boys were making in preparing themselves to defend our dear native land. But behold, we are compelled to admit that we have been labouring under a great delusion, and the fact dawns on the country that it has been bled in order to pay for the amusement and recreation of a lot of fellows that have no idea of carrying out their solemn obligations attached to these vast expenditures. Of course, we have a few noble exceptions such as Col. Clegg, Major Mills, Major Bennett, and Lieut. Charles Ackerman, and some men from the battalian, but the great majority of the men that went to the front were recruits and old countrymen. Though the former two officers were well advanced in years, they felt that they should go in order to save the face of the battalion, as none (except the other two mentioned above), of the younger officers, could be induced to go. All honour to them all.

It is no wonder that righteous indignation filled the breasts of so many of our best citizens and compelled them to form themselves into a home guard in order to let the outside world know that though our regular soldiers had failed to come out and prepare and offer themselves for the defence of the country, that there was still stuff enough in the old guard to do so. But does it not seem passing strange that here we are in the midst of the greatest war known in the history of man that all our vast military appliances such as armouries, accoutrements, equipments, etc., for our city battalion are lying as quiet as dormice except for what use and stir the Home Guard are making about them. Would it not be the proper thing for our member, if he has not already done so, to lay the present condition of military affairs here before the Minister of Militia, and have the present farce ended. Have the present city battalion disbanded, and have the Home Guard reform the battalion with properly trained officers and have a force that will be trained ready and willing to go to the fighting line when the country calls them. I am told that when the last contingent went to Kingston, though three officers were asked for, not a single officer could be found to command them. This is the most serious time in the lifetime of this generation, and we should know exactly where we stand before it is too late

Yours truly,
OLD GUARD.

SMACKS OF ANCIENT DAYS.

Of course, it may be a sign of lack of "Kultur" on our part, but some way we American cannot help feeling that this business of German levies upon the helpless little cities and towns of Belgium smacks mightily of the days of Genghis Khan. — New York Herald.

Municipal Pot Is Simmering

In Norwood—List of Likely Candidates

NORWOOD, Dec. 4—Already there is some talk locally concerning municipal matters and an election seems very likely. Reeve B. W. Squire will seek office again, while Councillor T. W. Morrison is also an aspirant for the chief magistrateship. And there may be a third candidate, as ex-Reeve Breault's name is mentioned, too, whit the position and we understand he would not be unwilling to enter the field in the event of a goodly portion of the ratepayers so desiring. Of the present Council Board, Councillor Pakeham, who has been ill for some time past, may retire; Coun. Hendren is undecided; Councillor Portway, however, will stand. As yet no other names have been definitely mentioned as candidates.

Lindsay Dealer Heavily Fined

Seventeen Dollars for Selling Adulterated Ginger

LINDSAY, Dec. 4—A local dealer was mulcted $17 which included fine and costs, for selling to his customers adulterated ginger, which is contrary to the Pure Foods Act. All compounds must be sold as such.

A Government inspector who is engaged in the Pure Foods Department, placed the information in the hands of the authorities, who acted thereon, securing a conviction.

The Inspector had been informed that much adulterated goods had been kept on sale in town, and secured samples, which were examined by a Government analyst, with the above result.

PRISONER ESCAPED FROM CUSTODY

Escaped from the custody of County Constable Mills of Tara, on Nov. 30th, 1914, by jumping through a lavatory window in a train, John Langton, 23 years of age. The prisoner is 5 ft 6 in. in height, or thereabouts, sallow complexion, weight about 135 lbs., dark hair; clean shaven; wore dark-blue, light-weight suit, stiff hat, dark overcoat, oval-shaped tie pin, low shoes, Oxfords, No. 6 Wire Robt Mills, County Constable Tara, Ont.

The above was received by Chief Constables of the district, who are on the lookout for such an individual.

Over Five Hundred People of German Origin in East Peterborough

Record in the 1911 Census—Half of the Number in Belmont and Methuen; Chandos Comes Second and Norwood Third—Irish, English and Scotch, However, Predominate—There Are 410 People of German Origin in West Peterborough.

Volume II of the 1911 census of Canada, showing the religions and origins of the people has just been issued. It is no doubt illuminating to know that five hundred and eight of the residents of East Peterborough are recorded therein as being of German origin. There are 410 in West Peterborough. The vast percentage of the population of the constituency, however, is made up of Irish, English and Scotch. The statistics are given as follows:

	English	Irish	Scotch	French	German	Dutch	Indian	Italian
East Peterborough	5195	6140	2220	264	508	323	92	73
East Peterborough	5159	6140	113	9	9
Asphodel	476	836	289	4	33	20		1
Belmont & Methuen	587	643	332	45	254	55
Chandos	235	161	156	39	59	96		5
Douro	608	1115	112	21	5
Dummer	700	694	201	20	38	48
Otonabee	986	1344	889	4	25	12	92	22
Havelock	413	533	189	49	13	26
Lakefield	591	426	263	44	20	5		45
Norwood	280	283	156	29	52	1

Other nationalities: Chinese 4, Greek 11, Negro 12, Russian 1, Scandinavian 1, Swiss 2, Unspecified 60.

Such information as given above in regard to the percentage of residents of German birth should not arouse any misgivings or alrm. A large number of the constituencies exceed East Peterborough in this respect. Indeed the census show that throughout the Dominion there are some four thousand persons of German origin. It is pleasing to know that the vast majority of these people form our most loyal and industrious citizens. So that rather than have any fears we should be glad to know that we have so many descendants of German ancestry, who have escaped the oppression of Kaiserdom and are now on the right side.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

A building permit has been issued to D. H. Hickey for the construction of a solid brick double house on Fleming Place. The cost is estimated at $2,800. This is the first permit issued this month.

Suggestion Endorsed.

Waterloo Township Council has endorsed the suggestion of the ratepayers to contribute $220 every two months to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, till the close of the war, and to give $1,500 worth of flour to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Finance Committee.

The Finance committee of the City Council will meet this afternoon at four o'clock. This is the regular monthly meeting prior to the regular meeting of the City Council, which is called for Monday evening.

Insure London Soldiers.

At a special meeting of the London City Council, it was decided to accept the tender of the State Insurance Company of Indianapolis, to insure 150 London soldiers of the second contingent.

Property Committee.

The Property committee of the City Council will meet this evening, when the tenders for the collection of refuse and garbage for the year 1915 will be opened. The City may decide to undertake the work themselves, placing it under the Board of Works Department. This meeting is called for eight o'clock.

$100,000 Waterworks By-law.

The ratepayers of Brantford at the January elections will be asked to vote on a by-law for the issuing of debentures for $100,000 for the completion of the waterworks plant now under way and to further perfect the system.

City Council.

The last regular monthly meeting of the City Council for the present year will be held on Monday evening. The session promises to be a very busy one as there will be considerable business to dispose of. It is altogether probable that one or two special meetings will be held before the advent of the new Council.

Furnished With Rifles.

The Home Guards of Grimsby village, Beamsville, and Port Dalhouse will be furnished with rifles by the County Council.

A Relief Fund.

Ontario County Council has decided to establish a relief fund of $15,000 to assist those from the county who are injured during the war, as well as the dependents of those killed.

Six Divisions.

Newmarket's Home Guard now numbers 300. They are divided into six divisions of 50 men each. The company is under the command of Major Wayling.

Home Guard.

Barrie Home Guard Rifle Association has completed its organization, and has elected Mr. Frank Moberley as captain.

Drop in Price of Lamb

Caused by Export of American Product

Local butchers report that lambs will take a drop in price; in fact have done so to-day. The reason is that the United States Government is allowing lambs to be exported to Canada and the new regulations came into force the first of the month. How great will be the effect on the Canadian market is not yet known, and buyers are lying low in consequence.

FOURTEEN WOUNDS; OTHERWISE ALL RIGHT

BERLIN, December 2.—The report of the following incident was sent to the Berliner Tageblatt by a physician.

"In the royal surgical clinic in Ziegelstrasse there arrived a new transport filled mainly with severely wounded men, most of whom had to be carefully carried to their beds. One sturdy, defender of his country clambered out without any assistance and approached the physician who was receiving them.

"'Well, my man,' said the latter, 'you were not very badly hurt?'

"'So,' the man in the field grey answered, 'only three blows on the head with the butt end of a rifle, ten bayonet thrusts, and a shot through my chest. Nothing else.'"

$50,000 For Peterboro' "We Mean to Have it"

Big Campaign Next Week For The Patriotic Fund—How The Ackerman Co. and Employees Will Help—General Committee Prepare a Start.

The Patriotic Fund Publicity Committee wants to gain the attention of the people. It is the function of this committee to put out the facts, arguments, pleadings, and if necessary implorings that will enable the goal of $50,000 to be reached.

"How," says an enquirer, "are you going to do it?" Here's a starter.

On Monday morning the employees of the Ackerman Company factory will donate their pay for that day, which will include the wages of the men and the salaries of the staff. Even Mr. B. F. Ackerman is to get into the line, takes off his coat, and will work with the men in order to be in line with the others.

Now this idea of giving the day's work is the result of a proposition made to the men, and in fact all employees, and which has been most heartily accepted. Approximately $175.00 will be added to the fund from this source. All honour to the men and women who are willing.

The Slate Prepared.

The General Committee of the Fund are preparing a slate, setting out, in anticipation, what could be realized. Of course the slate is in some respect conjectural, but includes the following:

Two at $5,000	10,000
Three at 2,500	7,500
Ten at $1,000	10,000
Ten at $500	5,000
Fifty at $100	5,000
Fifty at $50	2,500
Fifty at $40	2,000
One hundred at $25	2,500
Fifty at $20	1,000
Two hundred at $10	2,000
Small amounts	2,500

Many societies and organizations are working to raise sums all to be devoted to the general good. These moneys will find a use along different channels. In connection with the detail of these efforts there is one feature that should be discouraged and that is the incessant assault made on the merchants to make donations of goods. It is not right, it is not seemly. By themselves these contributions are not large, but in the aggregate they amount up. The requests for goods or service come from customers to the stores where they trade. He must cut prices, and reluctantly, for he knows that the acquiescence is only the prelude for another attack.

In justice to the merchant he should get credit. He never will as long as he is importuned to make donations. Better if he, if all merchants, would refuse to be so bothered, but make one substantial subscription and be done with and receive the credit he deserves. There will be concerts, games, contests, in the future, and now is the time to shut down on this. Give a substantial amount to the Patriotic Fund and be in a position to say so and stand off all applicants.

A grant of $5,000.00 to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund as a special war time grant, from the City Council, means on a total assesment of $10,000,000 approximately 50 cents on each one thousand of assessment.

The citizen who pays taxes on a house and lot assessed for $1,000.00 would pay in taxes as a special war contribution, fifty cents. Other assessments in proportion.

On this basis will any British citizen refuse to endorse the action of the City Council in making a grant of $5,000 to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund.

READING MATTER ON THE WAR

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I would like to bring to the attention of the public that the Library has lately received a considerable amount of reading matter bearing on the war. Some of the material should be especially serviceable for any school debates, as facts are presented in a concrete form, and in a way that should be easily intelligible to youthful readers, and to such as are not well up in European or world politics.

Yours truly,
Fred. M. DeLaFosse.

Sunday School Entertainment

Interesting Items of News From Apsley

APSLEY, Dec. 4.—Mr. J. J. Johnson returned from Peterborough with his bride, on Monday, Nov. 23rd, to Mr. Peter Johnson's, where a crowd of young people gathered and spent a very enjoyable evening.

The Patriotic League met at the home of Miss Ella Brown, on Wednesday, Nov. 25th. Quite a number attended and were busily employed at sewing and knitting. The articles will be forwarded to England when completed.

The young people enjoyed the splendid skating on McColl's Lake, last week.

The Union Sunday School held a successful entertainment on Friday, November 27th. Those who assisted were: Rev. Mr. Carr, Rev. Mr. Gardener, Mrs. Wm. Staples, Miss Mildred Kilbourne, Miss Effie Wilson, Miss Smale, Miss Julia Earnshaw, Miss Alberta Wilson, Miss Elsie McIlvena, Miss Maud Tucker, Miss Charlotte Tucker, Miss Nellie Johnson, Miss Grace Carr, Miss Flossie Stephens, Miss Lillie Harris, Miss Iva Windsor, Miss Mary McColl, Miss Bella Brown, Master Wm. Earnshaw, Master Archie Wilson, Messrs. Tom and John Coones, Master Jack Tucker, Mr. George Kilbourne. After the programme the ladies of the Bible Class served a dainty lunch.

The Sunday School Committee heartily thank all those who assisted.

Messrs. Norman and Bert Lean have returned from Eel's Lake where they were making repairs on the Dominion Government reservoir dam, last week.

Women Again After Votes

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—The annual pilgrimage of Ontario women seeking the boon of votes will take place to the shrine in Queen's Park on Wednesday next, when the Canadian Suffrage Association will visit by appointment, Premier Hearst. The deputation will press only for the granting of votes to married women on same terms as given to spinsters and widows.

Must Have Four Standpipes

Chief Thompson Will Enforce Regulations

Chief of Police Thompson is in receipt of an amendment to Chap. 236 of the Provincial Statutes, dealing with theatres and theatoriums. According to the amendment in every municipality having a water system, there must be at least four standpipes with hose attached in every moving picture house — two on the stage and two in the auditorium. The size and location of the standpipes (which must be connected with the waterworks system) will be determined by the Chief of the Fire Department, whose duty it is to see that the standpipes are installed, etc.

"THE CONVERSION OF SAUL OF TARSUS"

Evangelist Long delivered a very forceful adress last night at the Tabernacle on the subject of "The Conversion of Saul of Tarsus," basing his remarks on 1 Tim. 1:12-15. He said St. Paul declared himself to be the chief of sinners and as such he was a blasphemer in that he denied the doctrine of the Gospel of Christ. He was a persecutor, of all who named the name of Jesus, causing many to be imprisoned and consenting to their death.

Mr. Long stated that St. Paul, before his conversion, was an example of the strong power of influence of one sinner over another.

He said it was an impossibility for a person to live in this world, void of influence. His life will invariably effect others. If he is a thorough Christian he will influence others to live the same. If he is living a Christless life he will likewise influence others to live without Christ.

Hear Mr. Long to-night at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

GERMAN GENERAL SEES FAILURE OF RUSSIANS

BERLIN, via London, Dec. 3. — Major Moraht, the military writer, in discussing the eastern situation in the Tageblatt, says:

"The operations around Lodz seemed to foreshadow the surrounding and annihilation of the Russian main body, but the Germans themselves were surrounded by strong Russian reinforcements from the east and south. The Germans, however, liberated themselves with heroic energy from this envelopment and resumed their attacks with indomitable persistence. The gigantic offensive movement of the Russians from Soldau to Cracow has already failed.

Plan of Campaign.

"The plan of campaign, originally made in Paris in the interest of France and England, was that Russia should throw her chief strength against Germany in order to relieve the pressure on the western front. The intention was to make an irresistible offensive and compel the withdrawal of such large forces from France as to make possible Anglo-French success.

"Russia, however, threw her chief forces against Austria, believing that she would be able to effectually crush that country in a short time, but after a four months' struggle this has not been accomplished, because the Austrians and Hungarians are fighting like in the time of Feld Marshal Aadetzky, showing a steady recuperative force.

Computing Figures.

"Russia has already been compelled to change her whole plan of campaign, which often enough decides final victory in favour of the opponents. What has already occurred means an enormous weakening of Russia's military power. Germany and Austria have captured about 400,000 unwounded prisoners, at least an equal number must have been killed or wounded, and the losses through sickness must reach 300,000. This means one-third of Russia's best troops.

"The newer formations are lacking in the military qualities necessary to change Russia's destiny, and the failure of the plan of operations therefore means the irretrievable impairment of Russia's offensive power."

"MADE IN CANADA"

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As you seem to advocate the "Made in Canada" slogan, I should suggest among the Canadian products demanding attention at home there is none whose needs are equal to the "small boy," Dr. Patterson in his splendid address at the Collegiate a short time ago made him (the boy) the subject of one of his "problems" for the solution of the embryo teacher (poor teacher). He called the present day boy "precocious"—ripe before his time. Observe the small boy; his first instinct to his newly met playfellow is to "run on him"—a tyrant—always a coward—an animal instinct. If this present day education aims for anything it is to teach us to rise as high as possible above an animal nature. Pathologists and others who study the "science of diseases" of mankind all agree that parental influence has much to do with human failings. The murderer has been found to have had an envious, fault-finding, querulous mother, just as often as not the woman who taught the Bible class and wondered if the organist's wife had her gum along. The criminal is not by any means the poor, ignorant creature the novelists paint her, but just like any of the plain, every-day mothers we may meet any day, and she is so sure she is "saved." Her boy "saves" himself, goes abroad and falls into all the pitfalls that are ever about; unless he has been taught in his early youth, the first seven years when his mother has him under her wing, the principles of kindness, politeness and religion, which three, if you have the last you have the others. So I think if Canadian women want to excel now is their time to produce a Roberts or a Kitchener instead of trying to become Nightingales.

New Vice-President of The C. P. R.

MONTREAL, P.Q., Dec. 4.—Edward Beatty, K.C., general counsel of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been elected Vice-President. Mr. Beatty is thirty-seven years of age and has had an exceptionally brilliant career, having entered service as assistant solicitor. He was born in Toronto.

SOLDIER WEDS BELGIAN GIRL

Love at First Sight for Young Canadian Who Marries Refugee

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A young Canadian private, Victor Albert Baker, engine driver on the Canadian Pacific Railway, returned to Salisbury this morning after one of the most hastily made matches on record.

Seven weeks ago another Canadian soldier introduced him to his cousin, a Belgian refugee, Bertha Vonden Boch, who was being cared for in a hostel attached to the Congregational Church at Nunhead. Bertha, twenty years of age, comes from Antwerp, where she was cashier in a hotel. It was a case of love at first sight. The language difficulty was a serious one, but was overcome, and on the second meeting after the introduction, Baker proposed marriage. He saw her twice more after that, and they were married yesterday.

The bride's mother and father are stranded on the Continent, but hearty approval came from the girl's uncle and aunt, also refugees from Belgium.

The bridegroom wore khaki, as also did his father, who is training with him, and the honeymoon was limited to one day.

The Mayoress of Camberwell attended the wedding breakfast, at which one of the guests offered the bridegroom this advice: "If you don't learn each other's language you will be the happiest man and wife in the world." The bride is to go to the home of her husband's parents in Canada to await his return from the war.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT GOES BACK TO PARIS

Extraordinary Session Is Called to Meet on December 22 at Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The French Parliament has been called to meet in extraordinary session at Paris on December 22.

The members of the French Cabinet are to leave Bordeaux next week for this city, where they will put themselves at the disposition of the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

This is the first official announcement that the Administration is to return to Paris.

3 to 4, C.G.E., Company No. 4.
4 to 5.30, any who have been unable to attend regular practice.

Note.—Members, who by any reason have been unable to attend the practice of their respective Companies, will be allowed to shoot at any time, providing there is no interference with the time or squaddings of the shooting at the time they present themselves.

They will make their entry in the regular way as provided for in the rules governing rifle practice. By order,

W. H. Moore, Captain.

Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association.

Rules and regulations to carry on rifle practice. To enter for rifle practice:

1.—Members desiring to shoot will report to the Range Officer on duty, who will tender the name and Company number of the member on the firing ticket which is attached to the target. As far as possible members will be called to shoot in the same order as their respective entries have been made.

2.—Members, when called to shoot, will take up the position on the firing point designated by the Range Officers on duty.

3.—On the words "All Clear" given by the Range Officer on duty, firing may commence and be continued until the order to "Cease Fire" is given.

4.—On the order "Cease Fire" all members on the firing points will immediately bring down their rifles and draw the rifle bolt.

5.—Stop butts and firing points will be lettered alphabetically to correspond with each other, commencing at the left, each target will be lettered to correspond to the firing point letter to which the respective member has been detailed.

6.—When putting up targets, care must be taken to see that the target letter corresponds to the butt letter.

7.—On conclusion of the firing of each squad the targets will be removed from stop butt, the number and value of the hits registered on the firing ticket, the same detached from the target and delivered to the Range Officers on duty, who will total the score made. Mark the date and initial the ticket.

Safety Rules.

1.—Members must at all times comply with all orders given by the Range Officers on duty.

2.—No smoking allowed.

3.—No member shall load his rifle until he has taken up his position on the firing point and then only after the words "All Clear" have been given by the Range Officers in charge. Any infringment of this rule will be deemed discreditable conduct and will be dealt with accordingly.

4. The only person allowed on the firing point are members detailed to shoot; instructors on duty; range officers on duty.

5.—No rifle or ammunition shall be used on the miniature range other than that supplied by the Association.

6.—Any person firing service ammunition on the miniature range either intentionally or by accident, will be liable to arrest.

8.—The following is deemed discreditable and will be punishable by disqualification from further privileges in the Association.

Any person—

(a) Who shall fire when any danger signal is up.

(b) Who shall discharge his rifle on the range in any way except in accordance with the rules for shooting.

(c) Who shall act in any way that might prove dangerous.

The Executive invite all members to co-operate in an effort to make our Rifle Association profitable and safe, and in so doing assist in seeing that the foregoing rules are strictly carried out. By order,

W. H. Moore, Captain.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Profit-taking by longs in wheat today more than wiped out an early advance that was due to higher cables. Closing prices were heavy, ⅝c to ¾c under last night. Corn suffered a net loss of ½c to ⅝c, and oats of ⅝c to ¾c. In provisions the outcome was 2½c to 10c advance.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—Quotations on the Board of Trade are as follows:

Manitoba wheat—Lake ports, new crop. No. 1 northern, $1.22½; No. 2 northern, $1.20½; No. 3 northern, $1.15¾.

Manitoba oats—Bay ports, new crop. No. 2 C.W., 60c; No. 3 C.W., 57½c.

American corn—Old, No. 2 yellow, 81c, Toronto; new, No. 3 yellow, 71c, Toronto; Canadian corn, 82c, Toronto.

Ontario wheat—Carlots, $1.10 to $1.12, outside, according to freights.

Ontario oats—New, outside, 56c to 51c.

Peas—No. 3, $1.60 to $1.65, carlots, outside, nominal.

Barley—Good malting barley, outside, 65c to 70c; Manitoba barley, 66c to 70c, lake ports.

Rye—No. 2, 82c, outside.

Rolled oats—Per bag of 90 pounds, $3.10 to $3.25; in smaller lots, $3.20 to $3.35; per barrel, $6.75; wholesale, Windsor to Montreal.

Buckwheat—71c to 73c.

Millfeed—Carlots, per ton, bran, $24 to $26; shorts, $27 to $28; middlings, $30 to $32; good feed flour, $37 to $38.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $6.00 in bags; second patents, $5.10 in bags.

Ontario flour—Winter, 90 per cent. patents, $4.50 to $4.70; Montreal, nominal.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 3.—Wheat prices opened ⅛c to ¼c higher, oats ⅛c to ¼c higher, while flax was unchanged to ⅛c lower. The feature of the future market was buying by exporters during the early hours, which caused prices to strengthen a little following the opening. When this demand was satisfied prices eased off around ¾c. Oats and flax showed weaker after opening. Closing figures for wheat were ½c to ⅝c under Wednesday, oats unchanged and flax 1⅛c lower on both months.

The cash demand was fair for Nos. 1, 2 3 and 4 grades of wheat, exporters being the chief buyers to fill space. Oats, barley and flax were slow generally. Sales continue to be made by exporters on a goodly scale, one house working from 200,000 to 300,000 bushels yesterday and early today for export.

Inspections Wednesday totalled 394 cars, as against 1198 last year, and in sight were 310.

Cash close—No. 1 northern, $1.10⅝; No. 2 do., $1.13⅝; No. 3 do., $1.08⅝; No. 4, $1.04⅛; No. 5, 98½c; No. 6, 94⅛c; feed, 90⅛c.

Oats—No. 2 C.W., 53c; No. 3 C.W., 50c; extra No. 1 feed, 50c; No. 1 feed, 49c; No. 2 feed, 45c.

Barley—No. 3, 64c; No. 4, 61c; rejected, 55c; feed, 55c.

Flax—No. 1 N.W.C., $1.34⅝; No. 2 C. W., $1.31⅝.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—There was an improved demand from over the cable for Manitoba spring wheat today and as the cables were stronger at a further advance of 6d per quarter, sales of a few loads were made for December-January shipment. Coarse grains firmer under improved demand, 10,000 bushels extra No 1 feed oats at 55½c, and 10,000 No. 1 feed at 57½c per bushel, c.i.f. being sold.

There was some enquiry from English importers for spring wheat flour, but as prices bid were below millers' views, no sales were made. The local trade is quiet with a firm undertone. Millfeed in good demand. Butter continues quiet and easy. Cheese is strong. Eggs firm. Provisions steady.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 3.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.18⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.15 to $1.17⅝; No. 2 do., $1.11⅛ to $1.15⅝; Dec., $1.13.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 56½c to 58c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 44⅝c to 46⅛c.

Flour and bran—Unchanged.

TWENTY-TWO SILVER CUPS

Among Special Prizes for the Poultry Show Next Month—Trade Depression Has Not Decreased the Number of Classes

MEETING LAST NIGHT

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held in their hall on Simcoe Street last night. President Fred Holmes was in the chair and a large number of members were present. As last night's meeting was the last before the annual poultry show there was considerable enthusiasm shown in the discussion of matters in connection with this, the main event event of the year for the poultry breeders.

All indication last night would seem to indicate the poultry show is not going to suffer through hard times, but that in spite of general trade depression and the condition of the money market the show is going to be larger and better than any year in the past. In the first place the Revision committee reported that there were a hundred classes on the prize list this year, which exceeds the number for any previous year. The special prize committee reported an increase in the number of special prizes to be offered and the Printing committee's report was also encouraging and satisfactory. Among the special prizes this year are 22 silver cups.

Mr. George Paxman, the well known poultry authority, was again appointed superintendent of the annual show, which is to be held on January 15th, 6th and 7th. This is the seventh year in succession that Mr. Paxman has acted as superintendent and last night several tributes were paid him in regard to the splendid manner in which he had always supervised the arrangements in connection with previous shows.

Between now and the 5th of next month the arrangement for the poultry event of the year will be completed and a splendid show is promised.

RESIGNS POSITION TO GO TO FRONT

Mr. Harry Rogers, Son of Mr. R. B. Rogers, Coming East to Enlist

Mr. R. B. Rogers, Hunter Street, East, received a lettergram from his son, Harry, at Vancouver, B.C., to the effect that he was leaving that City to-day for the East, with the intention of enlisting with the Second Overseas Contingent. Mr. Harry Rogers has held an important and responsible position with the C.P.R., having had charge of all the bridge work for the Company in British Columbia. Mr. Rogers, emulating the high traditions of this well-known family, heard his country's call, and resigned his position to go to the front. He hopes to join the Canadian Engineers.

This is the second son of Mr. R. B. Rogers to enlist, Pte. Heber Rogers being one of the first to volunteer here with the 57th Regiment. He is now with the Canadian Contingent at Salisbury Plain. Mr. Rogers also has several cousins and a nephew fighting for the Empire.

Annual Xmas Tree of The Local Firemen

Will Be Held on Wednesday, Dec. 16th When 120 Friends of Brigade Will Be Present

The sixth annual dinner and Christmas tree of the local firemen will be held on Wednesday, December 16th. Dinner will be served at five o'clock, and it is expected that in the neighbourhood of one hundred and twenty invited guests will be present.

The Firemen's annual dinner and Christmas tree is a happy event that is looked forward to for months by the firemen, their families, and a large number of friends of the department, including the City Council. On this occasion a Christmas tree loaded with presents plays a very important part in the proceedings. A sumptuous dinner is served in the large dormitory which has been transformed by the efforts of the firemen, and after the dinner the presents from the tree are distributed. It is safe to say that for all concerned the Firemen's banquet at Christmas is one of the most pleasant affairs of the year. The guests include the wives and children of the firemen, the latter receiving a large share of the presents on the tree. The invitations are being sent out to-day

PROBABILITIES.

WEDDING BELLS

FRASER—TUCKETT.

A wedding of interest, quietly celebrated, was that which took place on Wednesday afternoon in the Central Presbyterian Church, when Rev. Dr. Lyle united in marriage Phyllis McNeil, younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George T. Tuckett, and Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Fraser, of this city. Both the bride and bridegroom were unattended, and left immediately after the ceremony on a honeymoon trip north.—Hamilton Spectator.

The groom is well known in this City, being a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Knapman, George Street. His numerous friends here will join in extending him and his bride best wishes for a happy wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser were in the City yesterday on their way north.

Emperor of Austria Ill.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — The report is again current in London that the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary is desperately ill. In an article in Truth it is declared that private advices from Austria are that his death may be expected daily.

In the early part of October a weekly journal in London declared that it had authentic information that the Austrian Emperor had died two weeks previous and that his death was being kept secret because of the fear of an uprising of Magyars in Hungary. This report was denied in an official statement from Berlin a short time afterward.

Another Battle With Prisoners.

LANCASTER, Dec. 4. — (Via London.)—An attempt to escape made Wednesday night by a thousand prisoners in the concentration camp here was thwarted by the guards, who charged the mobs with fixed bayonets, wounding several.

The reserves fixed bayonets, charged at the double quick and soon subdued the mutineers. The ringleaders were arrested and placed in solitary confinement. Only one man was seriously injured in the melee.

Sentries Desert: Garrison Suffers.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Rome correspondent of The Morning Post says:—

Further fighting is reported from Fezzan, in Tripoli, where Italians were suddenly attacked at Fort Garadi Sebila. The native sentinels who were recently recruited deserted to the enemy, but the little garrison withdrew in good order after losing four officers and twenty-seven men.

FLEETS INCREASED.

Opposing Squadrons In Atlantic Get One Warship Each.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 4.—It is reported that the Germans have increased their South Atlantic fleet by adding the battle-cruiser Von der Tann, making a total of about ten warships in this fleet. The British are said to have added the battle-cruiser Invincible to their fleet. The Lamport and Holt Lines are said to have cancelled their sailings from here until Dec. 17.

Portugal Is Mobilizing.

LISBON, Dec. 4—Portugal has acted in complete accord with Great Britain, her ancient ally, since the beginning of the present war, declared Prime Minister Machado in his address at the opening of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday. Great excitement was created by his announcement also that four expeditions have been prepared for service in Portuguese West Africa against the Germans. He also read a decree, which was published in the official journals yesterday afternoon, providing for the preparatory mobilization of a division of troops which will be ready for service anywhere it may be needed to serve the best interests of the country.

Interned Belgians Revolt.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 4. — A telegram from Zeist, in the Dutch Province of Utrecht, says that yesterday morning a number of Belgian soldiers who had crossed the borders into Holland and had been interned in a camp near Zeist, revolted. The guard of Dutch soldiers was forced to engage in a fight with the interned Belgians, and was compelled to kill five and wound six before they were subdued.

More Comforts for Soldiers.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — The Canadian War Contingent Association, in order to promote unity of action both in Canada and the United Kingdom, have made arrangements for distribution of field comforts as and when required by the Canadian contingent at Salisbury Plain to supplement those supplied by Government authorities.

German Pulpit "Kultur."

PARIS, Dec. 4.—A representative of The Temps, who has just returned from a journey into Germany, which he made incognito, declares that the very priests in their pulpits thunder tirades against England.

"No one shall disarm Germany because she is under the protection of the Almighty," says the priests. 'May France die, England disappear and Russia be annihilated. It is the will of our German god."

SITUATION IN FRANCE

BORDEAUX, France, Dec. 1.—There is no danger or a cereal shortage in France. This assuring information is given by M. De Fonbonne, head of the Imprimerie de la Bourse de Commerce. In a report he has made to the government after an exhaustive examination.

"Some sugar and flour mills and breweries have been destroyed in northern and eastern France, but in other districts factories which had been shut down are reopened," said M. de Fonbonne to-day.

"The fact that numerous sugar-beet slicing works in the north have been destroyed is of secondary importance.

"In the north and east a good many flour mills and breweries have been put out of action. In this connection I would like to say a word about the present prohibition of the exportation of barley from France. Our breweries cannot be operated in the north, consequently our barley stocks are all available and this year's harvests have been exceptionally good, so that some producers are actually feeding barley to cattle.

"There is no danger of a shortage of grain in France. We have plenty of wheat, corn and rye. Our harvests have been phenomenally good, and though the Germans looted many farms and storehouses, we still have a large reserve of home-grown grains. Furthermore, we have made enormous purchases from other countries, where the crops were unusually good. The Germans also bought cereals in those countries, but their purchases, are, or will be, seized by the allies, and will go either to England or France."

The coal output of France and the iron industry has been struck a severe blow by the war. The coal fields in the northeast are in the hands of the Germans and the iron factories in the east are being worked by them.

GERMANS IN EAST ARE DRIVEN BACK 20 MILES

ALLIES ON OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST

DROWNED IN CANAL

Thirteen-Year-Old Lawrence Pammet the First Victim of the Skating Serson, Was Only in Water a Few Minutes

HIS SISTER RESCUED

"Thank God, my sister is saved."

After several minutes immersion in the icy waters of the canal, and with just enough of his head above the surface to make speech possible, these were the words of Lawrence Pammett, as he sank to his death in the Canal this morning. He went under water for the last time, not with an agonizing cry for assistance from those near at hand, but with a remark of fervent gratitude that his sister had been rescued from a similar death by their efforts. His body was recovered a few minutes later by Mr. Samuel Edwards, but all signs of life had vanished and the efforts that were made to revive him were in vain.

His sister, Florence Pammett, aged 10, had a very narrow escape from meeting death with her brother. The two young people, who are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Pammet, 272 Euclid Avenue, went skating this morning on the canal. Changing their boots at the Warsaw Road bridge, they went on to the ice just north of it. How long they skated in safety is not known, but they could not have been on the ice for many minutes before they broke through into the water, which, at that point, is between seven and eight feet deep. Mr. Kemp, who resides on the Warsaw Road, and who was driving to the City, noticed the two struggling in the water, as he was crossing the bridge. Leaving Mrs. Kemp in charge of the outfit he called Mr. Albert Curtis, who lives nearby, and both men plunged into the water to the rescue. Both were heavily clothed, and the water was ice cold. In spite of this Mr. Kemp succeeded in reaching the little girl, while Mr. Curtis continued his determined efforts to save her brother. It is probable that the efforts of both these men would have been in vain and that either or both of them would have sacrificed their lives, too, had it not been for the timely arrival of Mr. Samuel Edwards. Mr. Edwards was also driving across the bridge when he saw the two men in the water, and realizing the situation he ran to his house, nearby, and secured a pike pole. Returning, he advanced out on to the ice and extended the pole to Mr. Kemp, who was still in the water with the little girl. With the other hand he grasped a rope from the shore, extended to him by his brother, Mr. Henry Edwards, and in this manner the man and child were pulled into safety. In the meantime Mr. Albert Curtis was fast being overcome by the cold water and his exertion. He was in such a condition that even if he did succeed in diving and reaching the lad he could not get to the surface himself, much less with the youth, ad he was forced to give up his attempt. When brought out of the water Mr. Curtis was in a serious condition for a short time and had to be given careful attention.

As the little fellow went down for the last time Mr. S. Edwards ran to his home and secured a number of sixteen foot planks. By means of these he was able to approach the edge of the hole in the ice, and with the pike pole he quickly located the body, which was then brought to the surface. The body was not bruised by the pike pole but in spite of exhausting efforts no spark of life could be discovered.

Lawrence Pammett was but thirteen years of age and was one of the brightest youths of the community. He passed the entrance examination last summer with high standing and has been attending the Collegiate Institute during the past term. For a lad of his age this is a praiseworthy achievement, and those who knew him best say that he was a remarkably bright and clever boy.

In their bereavement the sympathy of the whole community will be extended Mr. and Mrs. Pammett.

The accident occurred about fifty yards north of the Smith street swing bridge over the canal. It is thought that the moving of a boat near there had weakened the structure of the ice to some extent and is perhaps partly responsible for the accident.

Florence Pammett was taken to the home of Mr. Albert Curtis and cared for, and it is thought she will not suffer because of her immersion. She attended the King George school, East End.

GERMAN LINE IS SWUNG BACK

Russian Official Statement Shows That the Invaders in Poland Have Been Hurled Back 20 Miles at Very Important Point---Thousands of Prisoners Taken.

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Eng., December 5.—Ten thousand Austrian and German prisoners arrived at the Russian fortress of Kiff on Wednesday of this week. Reports from Petrograd received here to-day state that 130,000 Austro-German soldiers and 2,500 officers made prisoners by the Russians have passed through Kiff since the war began. The fortress is declared to be crowded to its utmost capacity with the Austrians and Germans taken during the operations in Galicia and southern Poland. The Russian official statement of to-day while claiming no complete victory, indicates that the Germans have been swung back twenty miles at one important point in their main line of advance toward Warsaw. Desperate fighting is now in progress along the main road between Lowicz and Lodz. Glovno, mentioned in the official despatch as being in the line of the fighting front, is about half way between these two points. The official statement therefore indicates that the Germans have not been driven from Lowicz, the easternmost point reached in their advance, but with this town as a pivot, have been swung back twenty miles from Skiernievice upon Glovno, directly west.

The Germans continue to hold the left bank of the Vistula. The Russians, however, are making determined efforts to cross the river, and this would mean a serious thrust at the German line of communications. The Germans maintain a wedge in the Russian lines, with Lowicz as the apex, but the front has evidently been extended by the Russian attack.

The German advance over the western road towards Lodz and Pietrkow and the general development of the campaign has resulted in a zig-zag battle line.

The claims of thousands of prisoners captured, made by both sides, appear probable owing to the great extent of the battle front and the possibilities of cutting off detachments owing to the interlocking of the lines at some points.

PETROGRAD, via London, December 5. — The most tragic moment of the fighting about Lodz thus far, it is reported here, occurred between Tuszyn and Brzeziny, southeast of Lodz. Heavy German forces which had penetrated to Tuszyn, it appears, were surrounded and obliged to fight their way to Brzeziny to unite with the main body. The Russians essayed counter attack after counter attack to prevent a junction but the Germans cut a passage through at the point of the bayonet for a distance of 15 miles.

This battle is called the bloodiest and the most pitiless fight of the war. Ninety per cent. of the German officers were put out of action and many of the regiments had less than one hundred men left. The fighting lasted for 36 hours. The Germans fell in rows, but their comrades pushed forward over their bodies and hurled themselves against the Russians.

TWO KINGS MEET

LONDON. December 5.—How King George and King Albert of Belgium met yesterday and later dined together, is told in a despatch received here to-day from Dunkirk. The King of the Belgians and the King of of England met on the roadside in Flanders. King George was making one of his trips visiting the British troops, while King Albert was on his usual daily visit with Belgian soldiers. The rulers of the two allied powers reviewed the Belgian troops as well as the British and French soldiers.

BERLIN, via wireless to London, December 5.—The continuance of the allies offensive in Flanders was admitted in the official war office statement to-day. It says that the French attacks were repulsed. The operations in Poland continue to progress normally.

WILL GIVE DAY'S PAY

Employees of the Matthews-Blackwell Company, to Make Donation to Patriotic Fund

ENTHUSIASM GROWING

The employees of the Matthews-Blackwell Company decided to-day that they will donate one day's pay to the Patriotic Fund. Other industries are expected to follow the example set by the B. F. Ackerman Co. and the Matthews-Blackwell Co. employees in this respect.

Arrangements for the big campaign next week are progressing favourably. The campaign will be launched Wednesday morning, following a big patriotic meeting in the Opera House on Tuesday night, at which Hon. W. T. White and Rev. Father Minehan will speak.

In connection with the fund we can very well learn from the experience of others and from what has been done in other places. Take Berlin, for example, and a very good one, too. It probably heads the list of Canadian cities for extent of giving, population and resources considered. It is notably and magnificently good.

Berlin's Canadian Patriotic Fund.

The Berlin patriotic fund has now well nigh reached $100,000. This is a splendid showing for a city the size of Berlin. The figures given below will show how these large amounts of money were contributed

From manufacturers	$26,265.00
From City Council Commission and officials	16,075.00
From mechanics and clerks	16,220.00
From business men other than manufacturers	12,113.00
From commercial travellers	2,929.00
From Legal fraternity and officials	2,845.00
From Collegiate Institute Staff and pupils	1,697.00
From hotelmen	1,500.00
From Bank Staffs	1,109.00
From physicians	940.00
From lodges and societies	850.00
From Public School pupils	682.00
From dentists	450.00
From Street Ry. employees	380.00
From Fire Department	156.00
From St. Jerome's College and students	116.00
From the Assyrians	78.00
From City clergymen	40.00
From the Chinese	10.00
From citizens not included in the foregoing	10,946.00
Total	$96,859.00

To have raised nearly $100,000 for a patriotic purpose in a City of 19,000 population is no small thing. It is an average of over $5 per head.

The mechanics, clerks and general public contributed $27,166, showing that the response on the part of our citizens was widespread.

Berlin may well congratulate itself on the outcome of its effort and those who so capably managed the campaign for it.

How well will Peterborough do? That remains to be seen. It will depend on the spirit and will of the people. If each one gives what he or they can easily spare the goal will not be reached. We must give until we feel hurt to accomplish the final sum.

R. M. GLOVER IS ELECTED

Peterboro' is Again Represented on the O. H. A. Executive

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5.— The annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association to-day was a very enthusiastic one and the prospects for the coming season were given as excellent from all standpoints.

The unanimous election of President Charles Farquaharson, of Stratford was confirmed; also the election of other officers as indicated by the recent nominations.

The following were elected as members of the Executive committee: A. E. Copeland, Midland; Frank Hyde, Woodstock; R. M. Glover, Peterborough; and J. McNab, Orillia.

The London Welsh Battalion, now 900 strong, has been presented, by Mr. Howell J. Williams, of the London County Council, with a mascot in the shape of a white goat, which led the battalion during a route march to Hyde Park recently.

ALLIES ADVANCE BATTLE LINES

Official Communique Says That Gains Have Been Made in Belgium, in Northern France and in the Argonne District--Desperate Fighting is Reported.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Noon, Saturday. — The allies have further advanced their lines in Belgian and northern France on the western end of the battle line, and also in the Argonne, where desperate fighting is reported in the official communique from the war office to-day. A position between Dixmude and Ypres, long contended for by the opposing armies, has been taken and held in the face of counter attacks by the Germans. North of the Lys, two lines of trenches have been captured and similar gains have been made in the Argonne. Rheims is again bombarded. The statement declares:

"Sensible progress has been made north of the Lys, the infantry taking two lines of trenches in an attack at daylight.

"A position between Dixmude and Ypres, disputed for a month has been taken and held despite the enemy's artillery.

"Rheims was severely bombarded yesterday.

"In the Argonne the fighting was extremely hot. The French took several trenches and maintained the points already won."

The gain reported north of the Lys is only slightly over a quarter of a mile, but that made between Ypres and Dixmude is nearly a mile.

Cannonading is reported at intervals throughout the Arras region and the Champagne district. Calm continues in Lorraine and Alsace, the communique says.

NEW YORK, December 5.—A Herald cable from from London this morning says: "The return of the Kaiser to Berlin yesterday is regarded here as a sure indication that German expectations of an early success in Poland have been effectually blocked. The Kaiser, who will make only a brief stop in the capital, has been on the eastern battlefront for nearly a week, and it is assumed that he would have remained to witness of the victory of his troops had one been in prospect.

LONDON, December 5.—French fighting[illegible]sing to extremely close quarters, in which the Germ[illegible]d hand grenades, is described in an eyewitn[illegible] from the front, by Colonel Swinton to-day. T[illegible]ds W[illegible] is dated November 29, and says:

"The noise from the cannonading has decreas[illegible]day and nothing is heard for hours. The scene is almost peaceful. The Germans are endeavouring to progress by slower siege warfare, pushing toward the allied trenches and concentrating for rushes. The system of earthworks is concentrating. Special earth borers are used. The last section of saps is exploded and the stormers then proceed to shower our trenches with hand grenades. The artillery is unable to fire owing to the closeness of the combatants. Fighting of this nature is extremely deadly."

This system of fighting as described by Colonel Swinton, means that the Germans endeavour to get closer to the allied trenches from their own by burrowing under the ground, then exploding the saps or tunnels nearest their foe's lines and enable the stormers to rush forward to close quarters.

LISBON, December 5.—The Portuguese ministry resigned to-day. Premier Macpado was the only member of the Cabinet to attend the closing session of Parliament when it convened, and presented a note announcing the resignation of the ministry en bloc. Some changes in several departments following the mobilization in Portugal resulted in the retirement of the Cabinet. The Premier declared the resignation was due to objections to the terms of interpolation of the ministry regarding the mobilization decree.

STILL TIME FOR ACTION

Kingston Has Not Yet Secured Accommodation and Newspapers Are Blaming Mayor Shaw

GET BUSY LOCALLY

Under the heading, "A Contrast—Two Mayors," the Kingston Standard says:

It is very amusing to hear Mayor Shaw say that "WE" can provide accommodation for 2,000 troops—as if by "WE" he meant the city and not private individuals or corporations. As a matter of fact the city as such is providing nothing, thanks primarily to the inactivity of Mayor Shaw who, putting the case very plainly, has not risen at all to the occasion but has let things drift so hopelessly and helplessly from the civic standpoint that a few private individuals in co-operation with the civic authorities have been obliged to do all the hustling and obtain accommodation as best they could while even the Board of Trade has been led to protest.

Whether these accommodations will be satisfactory to the authorities at Ottawa remains to be seen, for it must be remembered that other cities are bidding frantically for the troops and have, as cities, and not as individuals, offered fine accommodation; but if the accommodations here are satisfactory and the troops come here it will not have been civic enterprise that brought them here but individual initiative and hustling.

Mayor Shaw is a very agreeable personality, with a winning smile, a Sunny Jim disposition and a splendid platform appearance, but while geniality and a desire to please everybody and anybody may be desirable characteristics, what the citizens want and what the city really needs is ACTION, with a Capital A.

For instance let use take a glance at our small neighbour to the west of us, in this military district,—Port Hope. We learn from the Port Hope Evening Guide that town is most hopeful of getting a large number of the 2,500 troops asigned to this district—and it is hopeful because the Mayor of the town has been on the job and has not left the work to devolve upon private citizens.

The Standard's remarks about Mayor Shaw might well be applied to other chief magistrates. ACTION with a Capital A is needed in Peterborough as well. We have the accommodation. Why not get busy?

JUNIOR PLAYERS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, DEC. 5, 1914

WAKE UP AND GET BUSY.

In an article from the Kingston Standard, elsewhere reproduced in this issue, we learn that the mayor of that city is blamed for inactivity in the matter of seeking to provide accommodation for more training of soldiers. The Standard is anxious that the city should get the advantage, to the city, because, as it states, taking into account "wages, food, work done, etc., the presence of even 1,500 men now in Kingston training amount to $150,000 per month." If Peterborough should get 2,000, or 3,000 men to train here, we should reap a corerspondingly large advantage. Why are not the civic authorities moving? The Standard says that other cities than Kingston are "bidding frantically for the troops, as cities and not as individuals." We don't, unfortunately, see much "frantic bidding" done by Peterborough. Will some one please wake us up? To again quote the Standard, "What the citizens want is ACTION with a capital A," and the further statement—"Port Hope is hopeful of getting the camp because the mayor of that town has been on the job and not left the work to devolve upon private citizens." Yesterday The Examiner urged the city authorities to "get busy." This injunction needs to be amended to, wake up and get busy.

GET THE MOBILIZATION CAMP.

Mr. Burnham, M.P., informs The Examiner that the metter of Peterborough being made a mobilization centre, for a battalion or two of the new contingent that is to be enlisted, has been brought to the attention of the military authorities, and that the latter are taking Peterborough into consideration. He thinks this is all that can be done and that the idea of Peterborough making any special effort is unnecessary and useless. Mr. Burnham may have the greatest confidence in the military authorities, but in this matter he is mistaken. We have no doubt that Major-General Hughes will select the best available place for such a mobilization centre, but cabinet ministers are like the man from Missouri, they have to be "shown."

It is not unreasonable to say, that the City Council and Board of Trade, and our representative and representative citizens, should be on the alert and at once, to demonstrate to the minister and military authorities that we have the necessary accommodation, which it is thought, we can supply. It should be the duty of our civic authorities to "get busy" and show, as it is held, can be shown, that Peterborough can furnish the accommodation, and to force this upon the attention of the military authorities. If the City Council had been alert—if the Mayor had been "on the job," a special meeting would have been called and a deputation in Kingston today looking after the matter.

It is all very well for Mr. Burnham to say that such action is superfluous and unnecessary—that the military authorities will act as Peterborough wants them to act. Would Mr. Burnham, as a lawyer, advise a client to not employ counsel—to simply state his case and rely solely upon the justice of his cause? He knows, and everybody knows, that governments have got to be stirred to action, no matter how greatly in the interest of the public, some local enterprise may be. Every year armies of deputations go to Ottawa and Toronto in the interest of enterprises as self-evidently desirable as the selection of a mobilization camp is for this city. There have gone from Peterborough from time to time enough deputations to urge the construction of the Trent canal, to have completed it long ago if every member of such deputations had taken a shovel and done a day's digging.

We must, if we wish to succeed, do something to show the military authorities that we can provide suitable accommodations for a mobilization camp. General French himself does not win battles off his own bat—he has to be "shown." He depends upon the report of his scouts and reconnoissance parties to lay his plan. Our City Council should do some scouting and lay the facts before the military authorities. The citizens of Kingston have scoured the whole city to see if they can provide more accommodation. They recognise how great is the material benefit derived from the presence of two battalions in training involving the expenditure of $5,000 or $10,000 a week, mostly spent subsequently in the city. Port Hope without armouries or drill sheds, has been on the alert, and a representative of the military authorities is already in the town looking things over. He is there because "Sleepy Hollow" has been alive for once, and has acted promptly in pressing its claims.

Does Peterborough need to take lessons in enterprise and activity in her own interest from Port Hope or any other place?

SHALL WE HEW TO THE LINE?

Some surface thinkers think because there are "wars and rumours of wars" the end of things has come, as the dawn of the millenium. But it seems that the millenium in regard to political matters is not quite here yet; that we are not yet quite up to the mark of placing principle above party interests and considerations. The premier of New Brunswick, after thorough and impartial investigation by a judicial tribunal, was pronounced guilty of malfeasance in office; of betraying his trust; of practically using his official position to extort money for party, of not for personal, purposes, from persons seeking favours from the government, of which he was the head. This judgment of the court disqualified the premier, from holding office, showed him unworthy of so high a trust. It would be expected that under the circumstances he would resign at once, but he did not do so. He would not resign because it was the right and decent thing to do; but he resigned in the interest of party; resigned to accept the nomination for the Federal House, for the united counties of Victoria and Carleton, by the Conservative convention. In this view Premier Fleming needn't have resigned. He was just as fit to remain premier as he is to sit as a member of Parliament.

A similar disregard of ethics as a factor in party politics is, of recent date, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, resigned his portfolio because, as alleged, he was too sick to perform the duties of the office. His illness was perhaps actual, but it was of a character to infect the health of the Government. He was treated upon the homeopathic principle—that like cures like. He was sick from overwork in the position where a good deal of work could be done by deputy, and pitchforked into a position where he had himself, personally, to do all the work; and a good deal more strenuous work, that of a judge on the bench, with, however, better pay, which had no doubt a considerabel vritue in effecting a cure.

We have nearer home, an example, of conviction of offence, being regarded as qualification for office. A certain official, through the labours of a commission, lasting for months and costing a good deal of money, was adjudged unworthy of the responsibility of office and worthy of dismissal; a condition that would seem to disqualify him from further government employment. He now holds a [illegible] setting [illegible] which might more reasonably [illegible] been given to some member of the solemn[illegible] faithful in Peterborough, [illegible]ly marked [illegible] no conviction registered [illegible] him. One has reason to fear [illegible] our parties have not yet ascended to so high a plane of political moralty, that they practice the heroic motto—"hew to the line no matter where the chips may fall."

This is a time when such a motto should be observed. We are in the throes of a mighty struggle to bring the present war to a conclusion favourable to Canada, the Empire, and the highest interests of the world at large. We, as they have done in Britain, have declared a truce to party strife and party considerations. Irrespective of party we have volunteered for active service. The whole country without regard to party is uniting in effort to help the cause of Empire. We are not only supplying soldiers but munitions of war. In this the object is to produce the supplies, and with the demand exceeding our resources, it would not be thought, that our producing capacity would be reduced by the application of the principles that no person could expect contracts for war supplies, unless his or his firm's name was on the party "patronage list." This condition is asserted; and we hope for the credit of Canada, for the sake of public interests and the interests of the successful prosecution of the war, it is not true. Our contracts for military supplies must be like Caesar's wife—above suspicion. No partizan or personal consideration should interfere with the production of the very best. Any inspection that would pass a defective rifle or other military supply should not be permitted. This might easily be the case where party consideration govern the awarding of contracts. A little defect might involve the safety and life of a soldier in battle, and we should have assurance that only the best, within human judgment, should be furnished. Every war has yielded many contract scandals; it is even said that in the present war some British contractors, have furnished shoddy clothing for soldiers. We need not have anything of the kind in Canada. We can provide, by watchfulness, careful and fearless inspection, that every article shall be the best that sound material and honest workmanship can provide; to the end that Canada can be as highly praised for the honesty of her supply of munitions of war, as she is praised for the quality of the soldiers she is providing, and for the loyal clan of her whole people.

Overthrow Of British Empire Is Germany's Real Objective

The mask is off at last. The war is no longer described by official Germany as a war between German culture and Slav barbarism. It is now a war whose greatest object is to overthrow and utterly destroy the British Empire. This much was frankly admitted—even vehemently asserted—by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, the diplomat of "scrap of paper" fame, in the Reichstag yesterday.

It is a noteworthy sign of the desperate nature of Germany's position that there was not a word in the speech of the Chancellor as to the progress that Germany is making, and that the greater portion of that speech consisted on an attempt to convince the German people that the select little group of War Lords who have been running Germany are as innocent as new-born babes of any responsibility for bringing about war. One would imagine from his remarks that this party had founded the Peace Palace at the Hague, and that the book written by General von Bernhardi to educate the German people up to their imperial possibilities was really an English production adapted for German reading by a wicked and discredited individual, rather than the authorized expression of German military autocracy.

But there is another most significant point in his speech. Whether unconsciously or not, he made it quite clear that official Germany is now building all its hopes upon a Holy War. Said the Chancellor:

> We have found an ally in Turkey as all the Moslem people wish to throw off the English yoke and shatter the foundations of England's colonial power. Under the banner of our army and our fleet we will continue.

Later in his speech he harks back again to this shameful alliance with the cruellest barbarians who ever disgraced the history of Europe:

> Our latest ally in the war forced upon us is the Ottoman Empire, which well knows that if the German Empire were destroyed it would lose its national right to arrange its own destiny.

Looking back over Turkish history, it is easy to see that he means that Turkey will lose its right to slaughter and pillage and destroy. This is how Turkey's destiny has hitherto "arranged its own destiny." He is quite right. Proudly will all British people endorse the Chancellor's words. The Chancellor continues:

> As our enemies have formed a powerful coalition against us, they will, I hope, find that the arm of our brave allies reaches the weak spots in their world positions.

There we have the great hope on which the much-vaunted "unshakeable confidence" of Germany is based—the hope that the example of Turkey will light a flame that will spread through all the Moslem world; the hope that India and Egypt will revolt, and the British Empire be overthrown. If that is indeed Germany's trump card—and the hope of it was all the comfort the Chancellor had to offer the German people—then Germany is doomed to bitter disappointment, for never were Egypt and India more loyal to Britain than in this hour of trial. —Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

A HYMN FROM THE WAR.

The English King and Queen recently accepted the dedication of a hymn written by Bishop Boyd Carpenter, canon of Westminster and formerly bishop of Ripon, for use during the war. The hymn, which is sung to the tune of "St. Peter," (Reinagle), or to "Bristol" (Ancient and Modern), is as fetnows:

O God, the strength of those who war,
The hope of those who wait,
Be with our sons gone forth to fight,
And those who keep the gate.

We drew the sword to keep our troth
Free from dishonour's stain,
Make strong our hands to shield the weak
And their just cause maintain.

Give to our hosts in battle's hour
Firm hearts and courage high,
Thy comfort give to those who fall,
Thy peace to those who die.

Breathe on our land the spirit calm
Which faith in right bestows,
And in the hours of dark suspense
A faith which stronger grows.

In Thee alone we place our hope,
Thou Keeper of the just,
And Thou, through fight and fire and fears,
Will justify our trust.

Thy ways are wonderful, O God,
Who makest wars to cease,
O let this be the final war
That ushers in Thy peace.—Amen.

GERMANS NOWHERE NEAR VERDUN

German Army Has Never Been Within Striking Distance

IN THE FRENCH LINES, Dec. 5.—Verdun, the great central doorway of the Lorraine frontier, is not only hanged, barred and bolted against the invader, but it covers an area, if not of perfect peace, at least of perfect security. Verdun has been advertised by the German commanders as being subject to a close investment. They even claimed to have captured some of the forts. No doubt the German people imagine it is besieged. I wish some of their representatives, if they have any free men who could tell them the simple truth, could have accompanied us in at least a part of this tour of inspection, which has been of extraordinary interest. No better proof, perhaps, could be offered in such small compass of the futility of the adventure in which the Prussian generals have involved them.

Verdun has never been besieged. Its communications are untaken. It is the centre of a district in which there is no menace. On north, west and east there is at least 20 miles distance before the zone of German gun fire is reached. The road to the city through Argonne is safe, and as quiet as the road from York to London. On the south the Germans touch the Meuse at only one single point, St. Mihiel. To reach it from Metz there is but one single difficult road, and all along that line the position of the Germans is exceedingly precarious. Around a semi-circle north of Verdun the French armies make slow but steady progress. They are prepared for winter as well as any armies can be.

SIGNATURES TO THE ROUND ROBIN

The 'round robin' Christmas greeting which is to be sent to the Peterborough boys at Salisbury Plain, is rapidly being signed. Copies of the letter are held by Mrs. Goodwill, Miss Helen Davidson, Mrs. Clarkson, Mrs. Geo. Burnham, Miss Erskine, and Miss Dundas, who are securing signatures.

ENTERTAINED THE A.S.K. CLUB

The young ladies of the Y.L.G.C. entertained the A. S. K. Club very pleasantly at a banquet last evening. An enjoyable programme of vocal and instrumental selections was given. A feature of the evening was the election of new officers as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. H. McKenzie.
President—S. Byers.
Vice-President—Ed. Ide.
Sec.-Treasurer—H. E. Henry (re-elected)

Grant to The Labour Bureau

Eighty-one Men Have Been Provided With Work—Report to Finance Committee

The Finance committee of the City Council, which met on Friday afternoon, decided to recommend the payment of $75 to the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Industrial Association to enable that organization to carry on their free employment bureau until the 1915 council is established. The Council have already voted the sum of $50 for that purpose.

The Association was represented by a deputation, which presented a report showing that out of 402 applicants for work, 81 men had been provided with employment. Thirteen able-bodied men applied for work, but refused to accept what was offered them. These cases were reported to Relief Officer Miller, so that he would govern himself accordingly when dispensing charity.

Mr. R. J. Soden, who presented the report, said that for less than one dollar a head, men had been secured permanent positions.

A grant of $150 was made to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association in connection with the convention that is to be held in this city in January next.

The Teachers' Association was also favoured with a grant of $25.

VOCAL RECITAL MONDAY NIGHT

In the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall By Miss Allan and Mr. Park

Citizens are reminded of the vocal recital to be given in the Collegiate Hall on Monday evening by Miss Dorothy Allen and Mr. Maurice Park.

A fine programme of an unusually high standard has been arranged and should prove most enjoyable to those who attend.

Miss Allan and Mr. Park have frequently given their services to help charitable or civic appeals in the past, and again on Monday evening along with Dr. Park, violinist, and Mr. John Allan, the accompanist, they are giving their efforts to afford an evening of high lass music, when the public will have the two-fold pleasure of listening to the rendering of some of the finest operatic arias and songs known; and also of contributing to the City Patriotic Fund to which fund the proceeds are to be donated.

A year ago at a concert given by Mr. John Allan in aid of the City Lakes Disaster Fund, the collection realized over $300, and it is hoped there will be a generous collection on Monday night.

THE POWER OF DARKNESS

Those who heard Evangelist Long at the Tabernacle last night were deeply stirred by the remarkable discourse which he gave on the subject of "The Power of Darkness."

He said the darkness which hangs over men's lives to-day is so dense and powerful that it absolutely hides from them the face of Jesus Christ. He stated that Satan was the great Prince of Darkness and as such was the great general of the mighty hidden forces of darkness whom he marshalled at his will to practice a warfare of deception upon human minds. Satan has tremendous power as the wily enemy of the souls of men. He is tricky, treacherous, cunning and the master of sleight of hand, all of which he brings into action in seeking to overthrow weak human character. Satan is the great disguiser, making people believe they are right when they are all wrong.

Mr. Long's illustrations in setting forth the sorrow of a wrecked character in eternity made a deep impression upon his hearers, the solemnity of the hour being very marked during this part of the service.

Both services to-morrow will be addressed by Evangelist Long. A cordial welcome to all.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Patriotic Fund.

A contribution of $28 has been added to the Patriotic Fund by the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Also a monthly donation of $10 from the Police Department.

A Dumping Ground.

The Property committee has recommended the payment of an annual rental of $300 for the use of a dumping ground owned by J. Williams and located in North Monaghan. This will be used for the dumping of night soil and other objectionable matter which cannot be conveniently burned in the incinerator.

A Filing Cabinet.

City Solicitor Gordon wants the city to supply him with a filing cabinet for the storage of papers and communications affecting the city. The matter has been left in the hands of the chairman, Ald. Langford of the Property committee, with power to act.

Maintenance Cost.

The maintenance cost of the incinerator is paid out of the general tax. As there promises to be an overdraft this year, it has been arranged to have this charged to the garbage collection account which is said to be favoured with a substantial surplus.

"Business as Usual."

A contract amounting to $600,000 has been let to Barnett and McQueen Company for the construction of the Canadian Northern coal docks at Fort William.

PETERBOROUGH'S PATRIOTIC

$50,000

AND WE'RE GOING TO GET IT !

THIS IS A NATIONAL MOVEMENT. WE ARE IN IT !

The Following Specific Statement of the Aims and Objects of the Movement is placed before the People to afford full information. Read it Carefully.

DO YOUR PRETTIEST !---DAD'S FIGHTIN' !

To the Citizens of Peterborough:

Peterborough has decided to raise $50,000 for the Patriotic Fund. You should, therefore, know all the facts in order that your enthusiastic support may be assured.

This is a National Movement.

Its object is to see that no one in Canada, in the families of our Soldiers who have gone to the Front, shall suffer want, and 25% of the Fund to be raised here will be set apart to provide assistance to those in reduced circumstances indirectly through the war.

Do not confuse this Fund with the ordinary local Charity Relief Fund. That Fund will be dispensed this year as usual by the City, and from the regular sources.

The Canadian Patriotic Fund deals only with cases where assistance has become necessary to the families of those who have gone to the Front.

How the Fund Will Be Administered

The Wardens of the National Patriotic Fund have decided that the Fund shall be administered on the following basis:

Every case will be investigated separately.

Where families do not need assistance none will be extended.

Where assistance is required its extension will be governed by considerations given herewith.

The basis of relief adopted for families is as follows:

A wife, $1.00 per day, or $30.00 per month.

A child, under 5 yrs., 10c per day, or $3.00 per month.

A child, between 5 and 10 yrs., 15c per day, or $4.50 per month.

A child, between 10 and 15 yrs., 25c per day, or $7.50 per month.

Thus a family of a mother, and three children of the ages of 5, 8 and 13 years respectively, would receive a total of $45.00.

From this is deducted the amount which the Canadian Government pays to the families of soldiers who have gone to the Front (termed separation allowance), $20.00 per month; also any earnings of the family or any other assistance it may be necessary, such as remittance of rent, continuation of wages paid by former employer to soldier, etc. The balance is paid out of the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

When soldiers are reported to have been killed or to be missing after a battle, their Government pay ceases forthwith.

In such cases the Patriotic Relief Fund will provide all the funds necessary to look after their families' welfare until such time as the Government is ready to commence payment to them of the regular pension which it is expected will be provided in due course.

Why a National Fund ?

This is not just a Peterborough movement. It is national in scope.

Some small municipalities and rural districts in Canada have sent a large number of soldiers to the Front.

Some large centres have sent a comparatively few soldiers to the Front.

All these soldiers, no matter where they are from,, are fighting for our defence just as truly as are the soldiers who have gone directly from Peterborough.

Some of the small municipalities may not be able to provide adequately for the needs of all the families of the soldiers whom they have sent forward.

Other municipalities may be able to over-provide for their local needs.

Therefore, it has been decided to establish a National Patriotic Fund for the purpose of providing adequately on the same basis of relief for the assistance of every family of every soldier from Canada that has gone to the Front.

Special Cases Needing Assistance

The War has thrown many men and women out of work. Some of these people are suffering want. Many never needed aid before.

It has been decided to allocate 25% of the money raised as special Local Fund for their relief.

A Dominion Organization

The National Patriotic Relief Fund was incorporated at the last session of Parliament.

The President is His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught.

The Honorary Secretary is Mr. H. B. Ames, M.P., of Montreal.

The Honorary Treasurer is Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance.

The Honorary Auditor is the Auditor-General for Canada.

This Committee supervises the Expenditures of the National Fund.

What Peterboro' Proposes To Do

Peterborough proposes to raise, all told (including the money already subscribed) $50,000. Of this sum, $37,500 will be deposited in a Peterborough Bank to the credit of the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

$12,500 will be retained in a separate account to be used locally for the relief of families whose breadwinners are out of work on account of conditions created by the war.

The payments will be optional with the giver, whether to make payment in a lump sum, or to spread the payment over periods during several months. It is the hope that people who are willing but not able to make a substantial payment in one sum, may thus have time to spread the payments over several instalments in the future. Let this fact be borne in mind.

How the Money Will Be Paid Out

Each month the Peterborough Relief Committee will prepare an estimate of the funds that will be required during the coming month for the assistance of families of soldiers from Peterborough who have gone to the Front.

How the Funds Will Be Raised

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, December 9, 10, and 11, the Citizens of Peterborough will be given the privilege of contributing to the Fund.

The canvass will be conducted by 10 or more teams of Citizens, each composed of 10 members—100 in all.

Headquarters have been established at No. 431 George Street.

Each day the Citizens of Peterborough will be kept posted as to how the canvass is succeeding.

Should the canvassers fail to call on you, hand your contribution to some Officer of the Committee, to some of the Team Captains, or leave it in the Headquarters, No. 431 George Street.

Make The Hall Store Your Christmas Shopping Centre

READY! Everything Ready. The Gift Things have been here for some days, but we have more room now, crowding back some of the everyday staple goods to give space to the hundreds of Novelty "Gift Things." The store is very beautiful in its 'Xmas dress.

Gift buying will surely start with a rush on Monday—not the elbowing crowds of 'Xmas week—but activity enough to suggest the advantage of early shopping.

To finish right you must start right. The earlier you begin the more cheerful and contented you'll be on 'Xmas Eve.

Fascinating work Christmas shopping, in so bright, attractive, comfortable and well ordered store as Hall's.

Every minute you're in the store you're our guest and we're giving constant thought to your comfort, as well as to "Good Service."

Your 'Xmas Shopping can best be done at Hall's.

How Can Britain Profit by Ruin of Heavy Debtor?—Puts All Blame on Prussian Militarism—Predicts Renewal of Relations After the War.

"I have many friends in the United States and believe the sound sense of the American people can judge between this country and Prussia on the issue. We entered the war with no view of any national aggrandizement, either in trade or territory, and the Prussians, seeking a motive to which to attribute our participation, knowing well it was useless to accuse us of greed of territory, have now invented this more plausible accusation. It is curious to notice that the Prussian General von Barnhardi has thought fit in the past to make a very similar accusation against the United States. They, he says, championed ideas of universal peace in order to be able to devote their undisturbed attention to money making and the enjoyment of wealth.

Reviews British Prosperity.

"Still, a skilful controversialist, seeing that the economic pressure of the war inflicts a vital wound on German trade, while the corresponding effect on England is small, could give a certain plausibility to the suggestion if he could represent that at the time war was declared this country was losing ground in trade and shipping. In that case our action might have been represented as the throw of a half-ruined gambler, with nothing else to do and everything to gain. In fact, the period since the close of the South African war has been one of continuous and progressive prosperity, whether you look at the returns of imports and exports, at the registered tonnage of the British mercantile, the number had expected to ..and him. He looked every one of his 55 years, and more than looked them."

Of the religious service in which the Kaiser took part, Mr. Bennett said:

Irony of Fate.

"The scene was the just completed artillery barracks of a French regiment, a vast hall of birch with a roof of corrugated iron and a row of windows running just under the roof the full length of the building on each side. The floor is as yet unlaid.

"It seemed to be to be one of the more delicate of those numerous 'ironies of history' that the first use to which this hardly completed building for a French regiment was put should be a religious service at which the German Emperor invading France, was present.

"In the corner of the hall stood what we would call a cottage organ. At the keyboard sat an adjutant general. In front of the organ stood a trumpeter and seven cornetists. All these musicians were drawn from cavalry regiments. They stood throughout the long service and also during the many minutes which preceded the Emperor's coming.

"There were hoarse shouts outside and a buzz of autos. Then silence for an instant, followed by the tramp of many feet, not heavy, but firm That sound suddenly ceased.

Great Man Comes.

"We heard the steps of a man walking slowly. Leaving the plank walk and mounting the centre platform, or dais, he removed his helmet and when he did that everybody on that platform and the platform each side of him uncovered.

"In his bearing I tried to detect the signs of the alleged restlessness of which the world has made so much, but it was not there. Save to rise for the prayers and the hymns, he almost never moved. His sad, intent eyes very seldom shifted from their straight steady gaze.

"It was a war sermon, vehement, valiant, intimate, a sermon byo a soldier for soldiers, and it put fight into a man. It said, with many hammerings and many short, sharp sentences: "Fight the good fight and in the Great Captain, who is above. If He is with us, who and against us?"

500 MILES OUT OF WAY

...ms made Hungarian Consul Travel to get Home.

NEW YORK, December 4.—Dr. A. H. Corossacz, who was the Austro-Hungarian Consul-General at Tiflis, in the Russian Caucasus, midway between the Caspian and the Black Seas, is at the St. Regis, awaiting "safe conduct" papers from the British embassy so that he may resume his journey to Austria. Dr. Corossacz left Tiflis on August 9, but instead of permitting him to take the short route via Batum or Odessa and Roumania or Bulgaria, the Russian authorities informed him that the only chance he had to get home was to cross Siberia and China, the Pacific Ocean to the United States, and take his chances of getting back via Italy or the Netherlands. So far Dr. Corossacz has travelled more than 21,000 miles, and before he gets home again he will have journeyed more than 25,000 miles. Had he been permitted to take the sail across the Black Sea and thence home via Bulgaria or Roumania, he would have saved more than 23,500 miles and about 100 days' of time.

KAISER BACK IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Dec. 5. — (Via wireless to London.)— His Majesty the Emperor arrived in Berlin Thursday night for a short stay.

The Kaiser has just completed a tour by motor car, in which he visited virtually every point of importance all the way from the Mazurian Lake region to Czenstochow, northwest of Cracow.

His visit to the Polish front was prolonged by the necessity of inspiring the German reinforcements which rushed to the aid of Gen. von Hindenburg's column at Lodz, when it was virtually surrounded by the Russians

FAIR PLAY IS BONNIE PLAY

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Our attention has been drawn to a large poster regarding Peterborough's Patriotic Fund, said poster being the product of a Montreal printing house. It is apparent that the fact of this work being produced out of town is not in keeping with the trend of the editorials which we have read in recent issues of your paper. "Patronize home industry and keep the people of Peterborough employed," should be the slogan of the Peterborough Patriotic Fund committee, as well as the slogan, '$50,000,00' for the Peterborough Patriotic Fund."

We have no desire whatever to knock the local Patriotic Fund committee, but would like to remind them that the printed matter could be produced right here in this City, probably at as low a cost as elsewhere. There are printers now walking the streets of Peterborough, in addition to others unemployed. If the work was done free of charge, of course the situation is altered. We understand the local newspapers are inserting the Patriotic Fund advertisements free of charge. If so, why not give them a chance to do remunerative work rather than the Montreal printing houses should benefit?

Yours truly,
G. L. MYLAND, Pres.
G. J. JOHNSON, Sec.

TORONTO GERMAN PROFESSORS GRANTED LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Professors Benzinger, Mueller and Tapper are Relieved From Duties Until End of Session—Governors Could Not Dismiss Them Without the Concurrence of President Falconer.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—The University of Toronto has given leave of absence with full pay to the three German professors who had not taken out naturalization papers at the outbreak of the war. An official statement was issued last night by Sir Edmund Walker on behalf of the board of governors which read as follows:

"The charges against the professors were not substantiated, but in view of all the difficulties surrounding the situation the board has given leave of absence until the end of the session to Professors Mueller, Benzinger and Herr Tapper."

"Does this mean leave of absence with salary?" asked a reporter.

"Certainly," replied Sir Edmund "that is what leave of absence means."

Further than this no statement was made by any other member of the board of governors. The announcement came at the end of a two-days' decision by the board.

"President Falconer did not recommend the dismissal of these men," said Sir Edmund, "and it would be necessary for him to make that recommendation before the board could act. That is specified in the university act."

President Falconer had nothing to say.

It is felt that the announcement by the board was the result of a compromise between the president, who would not dismiss the German professors, and those members of the board who thought they should not be in the employ of any publicly-supported institution in Canada.

The Victoria Telescope

Interesting Lecture by Prof. Plaskett in the Normal School Last Evening

BIGGEST IN THE WORLD

An interesting and comprehensive address was given by Professor Plaskett in the Normal school last night under the auspices of the Astronomical Society when the lecture room of that institution was filled with an attentive audience. Prof. Plaskett described the details of the largest telescope in the world and for which the Canadian government is making the greatest single contribution towards astronomical research ever made by any government, in language which was admirable for its clarity and directness, and which was free as possible from technical allusions and terms. It was an interesting story of a gigantic undertaking and of the construction of a marvellous monument to modern technican efficiency, constructive skill and astronomical progress.

In opening the lecturer described the refracting and reflecting telescopes. It was the latter type which the Canadian government proposed to install at Victoria. The large mirror of this telescope is six feet in diameter, and photographs of it in the various stages of manufacture and treatment were shown. It was the most perfect large disk of glass ever manufactured and most fortunately the manufacturers in Belgium shipped it a few days before war was declared. Otherwise its delivery might have been delayed or prevented altogether. The rough work on the glass was done with chilled steel, the fine work with rouge and washed emery. The most difficult thing in the preparation of the glass was to get a perfect concave surface, which would not vary more than the two thousandth part of an inch from the theoretically perfect.

The mounting of the instrument was no less of a problem, and not less important than the optical perfection of the telescope. It cost $60,000 whereas the actual optical construction had only cost $30,000. The instrument without indescribably accurate mounting would be of little use. The tube of the telescope is 32 feet long. Of this 9 feet is an enclosed barrel and the other 23 feet a skeleton structure. The barrel has to be very rigid to prevent bending when it is rotated as the least deviation in this regard would spoil its effectiveness. The instrument weighed 40 tons and was mounted on reinforced concrete structures which were built forty feet into the earth.

The telescope was rotated by means of motors. A man at an outside switchboard by means of electricity rotated it at a speed of one revolution in eight minutes, and it was approximately at the point desired. Then the astronomer himself could rotate it by means of electric switches at the rates of one revolution in 38 hours or one revolution in a month, until it was accurately adjusted. Then, too, it could be set to revolve once in 24 hours. The rotating of the instrument necessitated a very complex system of mechanism.

This telescope was an advantage over the next largest in existence because it could be brought to view any part of the sky. It was not only the largest, but the best, and its construction and mounting had presented many exacting engineering problems.

The present work of determining the velocity of the stars to or from the earth was had almost reached its limit with the present 15 inch telescope in use, but with the new one the work could be continued.

Prof. Plaskett explained why the instrument was set up at Victoria instead of Ottawa or any other point in Canada. It had been found that the air at Ottawa was not of a uniform density and this, of course, would hinder the use of the telescope to a great extent. The rainfall at Victoria was not large and climatic conditions were exceedingly suitable. All of which lead the astronomers to choose Victoria as the site for the observatory. The speaker explained that almost every part of the Dominion had been investigated for the purpose of determining its value as a site for the new telescope and the result had been the choosing of Victoria.

Big Drop in Contract Price

Virtually Accepted Contract for Collection of Garbage is Considerably Lower Than Last Year

The Property Committee of the City Council have recommended that Messrs. George Mitchell and Frank Turner be awarded the contract for the collection of refuse and garbage throughout the City for the year 1915. This action will probably be endorsed by the City Council at the regular monthly meeting that will be held on Monday evening. The contract price was $5,625, which was $675 lower than the next lowest tender, and about $1,000 lower than last year's contract price. Friday was the last day for submitting tenders for the work. In all, six tenders were received, covering the whole of the work or for separate districts. The tender of E. K. Graham, the present contractor, was the highest of the six. To have Mr. Graham continue the wrok would cost the City $7,500. The tenders were as follows:

The Tenders.

It will be noticed that tenders were submitted for the whole of the City, as well as for each of the five districts.

Justin Blodgett, the entire City, for the contract price of $6,739, and for No. 2 District, north of London street, for $1,300.

W. Manley, Districts 4 and 5, $1,400, and $1,000, respectively.

E. K. Graham, the entire City, for the contract price of $7,500.

A. Blodgett, No. 1 District, $1,400, No. 3 District, $1,475.

George Mitchell and Frank Turner tendered for the whole City for $5,625.

Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company tendered as follows: No. 1 district, $1,400; No. 2 district, $1,700; No. 3 district.. $1,350; No. 4 $1250; No. 5, $1,200; making a total of $6,900. The Company signified its willingness to cover the whole City for $6,500.

The Discussion.

Ald. Stratton asked some pointed questions, one of which was whether the City would arrange to have the contractor go into the yards for the garbage, or as an alternative, fifty feet inside of the property line. In reply to this Ald. Langford, Chairman of the Committee, questioned the additional cost and pleaded hard times. He was in favour of dividing the contract if it could be shown that some of the tenderers who had tendered for separate districts, had tendered as low, proportionately, as Messrs. Mitchell and Turner. As he showed no inclination to perform the necessary mathematical calculation, Ald. Stratton moved that the contract be awarded to Messrs. Mitchell and Turner. This was seconded by Ald. McIntyre and endorsed by the Committee.

FOUR TRAINS TO AND FROM TORONTO

Shrinkage in Traffic Necessitates Change

In reply to an inquiry regarding the cutting off of trains on the C.P.R., Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has written Mr. Basil Hall, the president, to the effect that owing to a shrinkage in the traffic, it was found necessary to take off certain trains, but that there would still be four trains to and from Toronto, as well as one each way between Peterborough and Port McNichol. There will also be a mixed train in each direction every morning between here and Toronto, making it possible to get freight here from Toronto early in the day and vice versa.

GERMANS HAVE COMMENCED TO DOUBT

BERLIN, Dec. 4. — At the end of three months of warfare, and after the sacrifice of thousands of lives, the fighting spirit of the Berlin people, stirred by the taste of English blood, is at its height. The past three weeks, however, have seen a decided change in popular confidence of a short war, in spite of the capture of Antwerp, Ghent and Ostend, and the new enthusiasm created by the sweep of the German right wing and the threat to England. Paris in six weeks was the original cry. Next came the belief that three months would see the signing of peace, and now the more hopeful among the uninformed tell you that the Allies will be on their knees before Christmas.

At Bentheim, a little town in northwestern Germany, the writer spent an evening with a manufacturer whom he had seen earlier at Aix-la-Chapelle. On the first occasion the man had laughed outright at the idea of an extended fight. Now he repeated again and again such phrases as "Well, if Germany doesn't win," or "Suppose the war does last two years," etc. Three times in one day Berlin papers have used such expressions as "If Germany does not win" such and such will be the result.

The majority of citizens have not yet grasped the significance of the regulations just put into effect by the Bundesrath.

"On account of the economic war against us," reads the declaration of the Bundesrath, "it is necessary for Germany to take steps on the assumption that the war will last beyond the next harvest. We must look ahead not only to the coming corps but to the year following, so that in that season the nation shall have the same reserve supply as now." The Bundesrath states that the government goes on the theory that the present supply of wheat will last for thirteen months, and the rye for fourteen months.

Thinning Out of Troops.

The past three weeks, too, have seen an appreciable thinning out of troops in and around the larger cities. In Berlin and Cologne this is particularly noticeable, and the same has been reported at Munich. A fortnight ago the streets and restaurants here swarmed with officers and men. At every other step you bumped into clanking officers with their close-cropped heads and the fashionable scarred face of the university duellist. Dragoons and hussars, first and second string landwehr, landsturm, and volunteers passed over an account of eyesight or other physical defect, troopers in fatigue uniform or full-service attire filed Unter Den Linden, Leipziger Strasse and Frederich Strasse. Now fully three-quarters of them have been drawn into the line.

Poor-looking Troops.

G... who has just returned from the German grosse hauptquartier (great headquarters), at a certain spot in France not very far from Rheims reports that tremendous forces have been concentrated against the French line. Nieuport, Sluis and Dixmude in the north have required even more men.

The writer has watched the men now leaving for service. Compared to the splendid force that poured through Brussels they are a sad-looking lot. The majority are poorly set up, wear two sets of glasses, and have little to suggest the soldier beyond their uniforms and helmets.

Hatred of English.

Day by day the hatred grows of England and things English, judging from the press and the temper of the people, one would think that England is the only foe. As a nation, and as individuals they bear no particular malice toward France. They even feel sorry for "misguided" Belgium—betrayed by the British, they say. But England they look upon as the root of all their trouble; the despicable, retreating enemy they cannot touch; the enemy they maintain, whose clever, but selfish, diplomacy has forced the brunt of the fighting on the others, while she sits back to wait for the spoils.

INDUCTION OF LINDSAY PASTOR

Lindsay Post: A huge congregation was present Thursday night at St. Andrews' Presbyterian church at the induction of Rev. F. H. McIntosh as the new pastor of the congregation. The ceremony, which is a very interesting one, commenced at seven o'clock and continued till about nine, when the congregation was invited to the school room, to enjoy themselves socially and partake of light refreshments which were served by the ladies of the church.

Refugees from Belgium who have been engaged in agriculture, are to be provided, by the generosity of Colonel Lloyd Evans, of Broom Hall, Pwllheli, with a residential agricultural college in South Carnarvonshire, together with allotments of good cultivable land.

EIGHT CARS OF TURKEYS SHIPPED

Lindsay Post: Last night was a busy one for the employees of Flavelles Limited at the cold storage plant. Eight cars were loaded with turkeys for the British market and the night shift worked like Trojans in order to get the shipment under way. It will be of interest to the public to learn that the eight cars of turkeys represented an expenditure of $35,000.

LORD MERSEY ANSWERS 'WAR FOR TRADE' CHARGE

How Can Britain Profit by Ruin of Heavy Debtor?—Puts All Blame on Prussian Militarism—Predicts Renewal of Relations After the War.

"I have many friends in the United States and believe the sound sense of the American people can judge between this country and Prussia on the issue. We entered the war with no view of any national aggrandizement, either in trade or territory, and the Prussians, seeking a motive to which to attribute our participation, knowing well it was useless to accuse us of greed of territory, have now invented this more plausible accusation. It is curious to notice that the Prussian General von Barnhardi has thought fit in the past to make a very similar accusation against the United States. They, he says, championed ideas of universal peace in order to be able to devote their undisturbed attention to money making and the enjoyment of wealth.

Reviews British Prosperity.

"Still, a skilful controversialist, seeing that the economic pressure of the war inflicts a vital wound on German trade, while the corresponding effect on England is small, could give a certain plausibility to the suggestion if he could represent that at the time war was declared this country was losing ground in trade and shipping. In that case our action might have been represented as the throw of a half-ruined gambler, with nothing else to do and everything to gain. In fact, the period since the close of the South African war has been one of continuous and progressive prosperity, whether you look at the returns of imports and exports, at the registered tonnage of the British mercantile, the number of tons of shipping engaged in foreign trade leaving and entering British ports or at the clearings in the London Clearing House or the deposits of the Post Office Savings Bank, or at the amount yielded by each penny of income tax, the tale of increasing wealth and flourishing trade is the same. All this, as suggested, we were to risk at a moment when the thoughts of the government and the English people were turning more and more toward the question of the amelioration of the conditions of the working classes and when the finances of the ocuntry were committed to unprecedented expenditure for these objects.

Not Seeking Competitor's Ruin.

"What, on the other hand, is the prize we are aiming at? It may be that some articles are manufactured in Germany that might be manufactured in England, but in the main, apart from the natural adaptability of particular populations for particular forms of production and from such accidents as the geographical distribution of certain mineral deposits, the success of international competition for trade, as competition between private firms, depends upon the relative skill and industry of the competitors in manufacture and upon the sellers' resources and powers of organization.

"If all Germany were to become a wilderness we would not thereby be any better placed for producing some commodities formerly produced by Germany. In fact, there is no question of reducing Germany to a wilderness, and when we emerge from the war we will still be faced by the inherent qualities which enable German traders to push their goods. Indeed, if, as a result of the war, the energies of the Germans are turned toward peace instead of the perfection of a military machine we will have created a more formidable competitor.

"The Germans sometimes speak and write as if the destruction of the German mercantile marine would be itself a sufficient prize to compensate this country for the evils of war. Maybe the temporary disappearance of the German mercantile fleet from the seas as a consequence of the ambitions of the Prussian military caste may inflict permanent injury upon the German carrying trade, but supposing the whole German merchant fleet should disappear, you must assume, if we were to gain any advantage from such disappearance, that we are able to find capital and compete with all the rest of the world to build and maintain an increased fleet and find employment for the ships.

Predicts European Poverty.

"Whatever may be the result of the war, all Europe must be so impoverished that a shrinking of the carrying trade will follow. To gain advantage, then, it is suggested that we are spending every week for the prosecution of the war about $40,000,000, sacrificing countless lives and the productive energies of more than 2,000,000 of the male population of the most vigorous years. We also are sacrificing or risking enormous trade advantages. The value of our trade with Germany alone was enormous with Germany alone was enormous cent. of the value of all our export trade goes to Germany. And if we turn to staple trade, the Lancashire situation is still more striking. Not only is the whole of this trade blotted out during the war, but if Germany is ruined it would mean the loss of our best customer for cotton yarn and the best customer in Europe for cotton cloth.

German Debts Outstanding.

"This is only one instance, but it must not be forgotten, that the sudden outbreak of war with a country with whom we have had such intimate commercial relations means very large debts to English merchants outstanding in Germany which cannot be collected. If the war should result in the devastation of Germany debts which are immeasurable will be forever irrecoverable.

"There remains to be considered the enormous loss to British financial houses through the sudden interruption of financial intercourse with Germany. England is the greatest creditor country, and one of the largest debtors in the money markets is Germany. But apart from a normal state of affairs, it is well known that, whether by design or accident, the London money market at the end of July was flooded by German bills. I am not able to say what the ultimate fate of these bills will be, but it is clear that a very heavy immediate loss has accrued. I see it estimated that the liabilities on bills of exchange of three big German banks in London amounted at the outbreak of the war to between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000, and to meet this liability to English holders of these bills nothing is available but as much of the assets of those banks as happened to be in England. This is no measure of the total liability on all bills, but gives some concrete idea of the immediate consequences.

Maxims of Militarism.

"Prussian statesmen and writers have dinned into our ears the aims of Prussian policy with such insistance that we are now able to comprehend them. 'France must be so completely crushed that she can never again cross our path; might gives right to occupy and conquer; might is the supreme right; the maintenance of peace never can be the goal of our policy'—these are Bernhardi's maxims. A people who can think and write this may naturally find it difficult to attribute to others any motives but the most ferocious and ignoble.

"But if we were to be accused of a sordid war for gain, those who accuse might at least credit us with enough shrewdness to measure the profit and loss likely to accrue from the transaction. It seems a curious business proposition that a shrewd business man should seek to profit from the destruction of his best customer, the bankruptcy of his principal debtor.

"I feel bound to say I have personally no animosity against the Germans. I have travelled among them and received much kindness and hospitality. I look forward to a renewal after the war of friendships formed in the days of peace. It is with the Prussian ideal, the military system, we feel at war against, that we mean to strive against; not for financial advantage accruing to ourselves, but for the safety of European civilization and the hope of the whole world."
—Lord Mersey to New York Herald.

AUSTRIANS OCCUPY BELGRADE ON 66TH ANIVERSARY OF REIGN of Emperor Francis Joseph—Servians Evacuate City

LOSSES ENORMOUS

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The sixty-sixth anniversary of the reign of Emperor Francis Joseph was signalized yesterday by the fall of Belgrade, which was occupied by the Austrian troops after its evacuation by its Servian defenders. Until the outbreak of the war Belgrade was the capital of Servia, but at the opening of hostilities and the immediate bombardment of the city, the government was moved to Nish.

The news of the occupation of Belgrade, one of the most important of Austrian success, came almost with the hour when the serious illness of the Emperor was reported.

Scarcely a day has passed since Austria's declaration of war on Servia when Belgrade has not been under bombardment, and but for the general European war, which compelled Austria to send her troops against Russia, it must have fallen an easy prey to Servia's big neighbour.

Apparently Austria miscalculated the nature of the Servian opposition and only after Bosnia was invaded did she send a sufficient force against the Servians to drive them back. Now they are being forced backward and are eagerly looking for the advance of the Russians into Hungary to afford them relief.

Russia has been sending Cossack raiding parties through the Carpathians, with the object of diverting Austria's attention, but the dual monarchy seemingly is determined to finish with Servia first.

This, however, is only a small affair compared with what is going on in North Poland. There the German army, which with the aid of reinforcements succeeded in escaping from the ring the Russians had forged around it, has formed a new front and at some points has resumed the offensive. The Germans assert that in this series of manoeuvres, by which they wer able to check the Russians, they made 80,000 prisoners.

On the other hand, the Russians in a statement issued through Rome say their captures greatly exceed this number. All agree that the losses have been very heavy and that the battle is still proceeding. It probably will be some days before a decisive result is reached.

The Russian report last night said the fight has lost some of its violence, and indicated some progress for the Russian troops south of Lodz. It is unofficially reported that the Russians are "nearly in Cracow."

While there is every indication that another big battle is probable in the west, there is no evidence that it actually has begun. There has been fighting in Flanders, but this doubtless is the result of an attempt by the Allies to take some advanced positions. There also are reports that the Germans have evacuated several villages on the Yser Canal and are concentrating on new positions.

The British have taken over command of the Yser region and, like the French, have been strongly reinforced.

CONCRETE BEDS ONLY WAR MYTH

(From the New York Post.)

It is hard to part with a war-myth, but we are afraid that we shall have to give up those famous "concrete beds" which the Germans had prepared in England. The story of them is familiar. Here and there near London it had been discovered by various Sherlock Holmses that an ostensible factory site, or even an innocent-appearing tennis-court, was in reality an implacement for German howitzers, made ready in advance with secret and devilish ingenuity. So firmly convinced of this were many Englishment that the war office finally had the matter investigated. Major General O'Callaghan has reported on all the suspected places brought to public notice. He did, indeed, find some concrete floorings, but they were already giving away under the weight of mere machinery, without waiting for the heavy guns which they were to support. In a word, he completely disposes of the whole bugaboo. Moreover, Major-General O'Callaghan pointed out that if the Germans had made in England concrete bases for their heaviest guns they would have done a foolish, because entirely unnecessary, thing. There are no forts in England which it would need the 42-centimetre guns to demolish. If the Germans ever land an army on English shores they will need to bring with them only their ordinary field guns, which stand on their own wheels. So if there are really any "concrete beds" in England, they must have been made by the Russian soldiers on their way from Aberdeen to Dover.

Germans Have Wonderful Cars For the Wounded

Private Charity Gave 48 Hospital Trains to Supplement the Regulars

BERLIN 48 HRS. TO FRONT

BERLIN, Nov. 15.— Through the courtesy of the Foreign Office and the War Ministry I had an opportunity of examining the "last word" in German hospital trains, the new "Duchess Victoria Luise" before it started on its maiden trip to the front. Thirty-eight cars long and of all-steel construction throughout, it was equipped at a cost of about $20,000 by the Red Cross Association of the Duchy of Brunswick (the Government furnishing the rolling stock) and is the forty-eighth hospital train equipped and presented to the nation by wealthy private individuals and Red Cross Associations.

The last car is a storeroom for mattresses, linen, bedding and clothing. The train has accommodations for 300 wounded without crowding, and it is equipped with laundry facilities for double that number, so that as soon as it returns home from the front and discharges its cargo of wounded it can start right back again without having to wait for clean linen.

Next comes a car stocked with food supplies—enough being taken for one round trip. The third car is a model kitchen. In addition to a coal range it has four huge aluminum soup, broth and hot water kettles, the heat for these being steam-piped from the engine that pulls the train.

In Operating Room.

The fourth car is the operating room, equipped with the irreducible minimum of actual necessity. In the centre is a steel-framed operating table and there are a glass-topped tables for operating instruments, an instrument wall cabinet with glass doors, a sterilizer ,a hot water heater, and a porcelain wash basin—nothing more. The forward end of the car is partitioned off to make a small room for drugs and surgical supplies. Dr. Niehues, chief of the medical staff of the War Ministry, who acted as my cicerone, said the operating car was used only in cases of the utmost emergency in transit. In each case the train is stopped while the operation is being performed.

Next comes the office of the chief surgeon in charge of the train; then a saloon car, luxuriously equipped — leather arm chairs, little writing desks, and engraved portraits of the Kaiser, Kaiserin, Crown Prince and Duchess Victoria Luise. It is theoretically a resting room or lounge for the surgeons and sisters—"when they get time to rest, which isn't often," commented the military guide.

Carefulness of Details.

Then come two saloon cars, each with ten small staterooms, for wounded officers ;then two first and second class coaches—sleeping quarters for doctors and nurses—then thirty hospital cars for the wounded soldiers. They were formerly fourth class coaches, and have been remodelled by tearing out the hard wooden benches and partitions and painting the interior white. Each hospital car is a little ward of twelve cots—three "double decker" units along each side of the car—with a table and chair for the nurse in charge and a small cupboard containing dishes and table hardware for twelve, and also a telephone, the surgeon in charge being in telephonic communication with every car of the train. To the side of each cot a small round wooden tray is fixed on a swivel, while from the ceiling hangs a net basket to hold small personal belongings of the future patient. A clean shirt is laid out on every cot. Externally the hospital train is painted dark green. In the centre of the side of each car is a large white rectangle bearing the Red Cross symbol, the letter, number and name of the train, in this case "Hilfslazarettzug Z-1, Herzogin Viktoria Luise."

Dr. Niehues said to me:

"Our hospital trains now make the run from the front in France, say from Cambrai, to Berlin, in forty-eight hours." The same authority supplied some other interesting information about the sanitary service and care of the wounded.

STRASSBURG IS GETTING ANXIOUS

Germans Are Feverishly Preparing to Withstand Siege

PARIS, Dec. 5.—G. F. Berlelli, the war correspondent writes:—

"Private information has reached me from the Swiss frontier showing that the French progress in Alsace, which has been considerable in the past week, is causing the utmost alarm to the German defenders and constitutes a serious menace to Strassburg. The Germans are feverishly preparing to defend that famous fortress. Dozens of private woods and parks which might serve to cover an advancing French army have been razed in the southern and western suburbs of Strassburg. The French progress near Colmar is formidable, while Guebwiller is almost completely surrounded. The Germans have also mined several quarters of Mulhausen in order to dynamite the town at the moment of the French entry, which is considered imminent."

Will Protect English Channel

Admiralty Plans Stringent Measure Against Mine-Laying

LONDON Dec. 5.—That it is the intention of the Government to take more stringent measures to hinder the operations of mine-laying and other hostile craft in the English Channel is indicated by a notice issued last night. This notice says that after Dec. 10, within a specific area of the channel, all lightships, buoys and signal lights are likely to be withdrawn or shifted. Advice is given merchant vessels that navigation within this area will be exceedingly dangerous without the aid of pilots who are to be stationed in certain ports.

The North German Lloyd steamer Berlin, which was recently interned at Trondhjem, Norway, had, according to a statement issued by the British Admiralty last night, probably been engaged in extensive mine-laying operations.

When the Berlin put into Trondhjem, the Admiralty says, she was "almost empty of coal and with her speed considerably reduced, due, presumably, to fast steaming."

Continuing the report says:—

"She has especially been fitted for mine-laying, but so far as known, she now has no mines on board, the probability being that these have been sown on the high seas under cover of darkness. From past experience, it is known that the track of merchant shipping, neutral as well as British, is favored locality for this operation.

"German floating mines are constantly being sighted. On many occasions these mines have proved to be still dangerous. Merchant vessels should, therefore, be warned of the grave danger to which they are exposed. They must bear in mind that waters which, owing to their great depth, heretofore have been regarded as comparatively safe, must now be navigated with caution."

DE WET IS PRISON.

South African Rebel Faces Crowds Ill But Calm.

LONDON, Dec. 5. — Telegraphing from Johannesburg, Reuter's correspondent says:—

"Pale and haggard, but calmly smoking his pipe, Gen. Christian De Wet, the rebel leader, arrived here yesterday, guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets. He was taken through the streets, which were lined with the excited populace, and placed in the fort a prisoner, pending a probable court-martial.

"Whether he will be hanged as a traitor cannot yet be predicted. That some factions favor this, however, is indicated by the tone of the national press, which urges Government action against those behind the scenes, who stimulated De Wet and other rebels to action. Those co-traitors, it is added, should be brought to the shadow of the gallows.

Charged With Horse Theft.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Private George Baldwin Spalding, of the Canadian force, is in charge for the alleged stealing of a horse belonging to the contingent. It is stated that when the force landed at Plymouth the prisoner found a horse wandering about, jumped on its back and eventually disposed of it to a dealer.

BE "CANNY" ABOUT YOUR FUR BUYING

Looking at the advertising in some of the large city papers just now, one would think that high-class furs can be bought at half their regular price, which is obviously an untruth. One has only to have these gods sent down on approval, and to look carefully into their merits, to find, that better values in furs can be had in Peterborough, without any so-called cutting of prices. Any article in fur that is now being advertised in these "Slaughter Sales in Furs" can be had at Barrie's at equally as low prices and in some cases lower prices. The values quoted in a great many of these furs are largely mere fiction, or else they are "Out-of-Style" furs which any one would be glad to dispose of at a loss. Trades And Labour Notes

(By the Official Scribe.)

There was another good turn-out by the delegates at this week's session of the Trades and Labour Council of Peterborough. Hugh Robertson, of the Moulders' occupied the chair, in the absence of J. J. Hartley, President.

The Minister of Labour Replies.

Hon. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, in his reply to the Council's question as to whether or not there was a fixed scale of prices for military equipment now being manufactured locally, said that he was not being able to supply the information, but that probably a similar request made to the Militia would have the desired effect. As the Minister of Militia had the same question from the city and no reply was forthcoming matter is, of necessity, held in abeyance. It was felt, however, that ignoring of letters of a like nature characteristic of the Militia Department.

The Sick Children's Home.

This institution has the claim to bear as most institutions of individuals of our day have, and an urgent appeal for funds. On taking count of the contents of the treasury, and the fact that a number from Peterborough had been treated during the past year, the sum of $50 was voted after the pros and cons had been voiced.

More Peterborough Prosperity.

A worker in a local factory was asking support in a fight against unfair dealing. This worker claimed that after working five nights he received the princely salary of $8.00. A committee was appointed to investigate the case, and if need be, secure the services of a lawyer, and see that families had not something more substantial coming his way after strenuous efforts, the benefits from which the capital seemed to almost enjoy appropriate.

Nat. Nicholls Surrenders.

The barber delegates informed the meeting that Nat. Nicholls, barber on Simcoe street, had surrendered his card rather than live up to the conditions required by the barbers' union, who are privileged to display the fair wage certificate.

Still "The Grand."

Delegates of the I.A.T.S.E. reported it made known that the management of the local Opera House was still hostile. Union men were not seen patronizing this house, while all the other houses of entertainment were on the fair list. Some interest was caused by the report that the manager of the "Annie Laurie" Co. had approached Mr. Turner asking that the boys be readmitted. The manager of the Grand (perhaps influenced by the approaching feast of peace and goodwill) was inclined to be conciliatory till a member of the Musicians' Union threw the fat into the fire by declaring the struggle not legal. This brother is to be asked to appear before the Council at its next meeting and explain.

Public Ownership a Delusion?

Discontent with the present working of the Public Utilities Commission was expressed. It is said that the service is worse and the prices are higher, than when the private company operated. The sweets of public ownership of utilities were not as palatable as anticipated when viewed from a distance.

Labour Candidates.

Regarding the proposed list of candidates for aldermanic and mayoralty honours from labour's ranks, the words from war telegrams must be used—"In this district we have advanced."

ANTICIPATE A FULL HOUSE TO HEAR THE PATRIOTIC SPEECHES IN OPERA HOUSE TUESDAY NIGHT

Last Night Was a Field Night for the Committees Engaged In the Raising of the $50,000 for the Patriotic Fund --Oriental to Help.

Last night was a field night for the several committees of the Patriotic Fund movement. The headquarters were filled with an earnest and helpful lot of men, seriously bent on pushing the fund up to high-water mark.

There is a deal to arrange. The team Captains were on hand and made a report of selections and that the teams were well organized. The Publicity Committee had some things to say as to the progress of that end of the work. With the help that is offered all details will be in smooth running order for the active days of the campaign.

It is desired that as many people as possible shall hear the speakers on Tuesday night next. It is felt that the Opera House will be thronged. There is no doubt of that when such able speakers as Hon. W. T. White Minister of Finance, Rev. Father Minehan and Lieut. Col. Ponton, deliver addresses it is more than a treat to be able to hear them. The Committee are making, in anticipation of a full house, arrangements that an overflow meeting may be held in the Market Hall. This would afford opportunity for those who might not get to the opera house in time to hear the speakers. But of this further announcement will be made.

The Oriental Hotel comes forward to join as an institution in the ranks of those who are really doing something. That is what is needed. Hearty work by all will land the Fund at the top. For a time not stated, and it may go on for a considerable time, the hotel will make a subscription to the Fund of fifty cents for every guest who patronizes the hotel. The regular rates will be charged, and these are ever reasonable. The sum mentioned is a gift from the hotel and will run into a considerable amount, which is needed. The hotel will make an announcement of its plan.

Following is a sheet of rules which are being issued for the use of the canvassers. The arguments used are such as should appeal to the citizens and it would be well to look the paragraphs over in anticipation of the visit of the canvassers.

Some good reasons why I am subscribing to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund to the extent of my ability —

1. I owe to my country and to the Empire of which we are a part, either to fight myself, or help to make it possible for others to fight in this supreme struggle.

2. As a Canadian I have enjoyed the protection and privileges of British Citizenship and have never yet been called upon in the defence of the Empre.

3. I have paid no war tax. My Mother Country has borne the burden of my protecton alone.

4. In this hour of trial I desire Great Britain to realize that every Canadian is supporting and upholding her cause.

5. The war in which we are engaged is a righteous cause, a struggle for truth, liberty, and for the sacredness of treaties and the given word.

6. I can't go myself but I can help to make it possible for others to go by guaranteeing that their families will be provided for in their absence.

7. Every soldier who has gone from Canada is as truly my representative as he who went from Peterborough.

8. The object of the Patriotic Fund is to enable Canadian Patriots all families of to make provision for Canada to the soldiers going from war. take part in the present war.

9. I know that now I am subscribing to a fund that will assist the family whose breadwinner is out of work in Peterborough, and at the same time provide relief for the family whose breadwinner has answered his country's call.

10. Those who have gone to the front are making greater sacrifices than anything I can do at home.

11. An unparalleled crisis in the world's history calls for supreme sacrifice on my part. I must do my duty. I must fight or pay.

This morning Mr. O'Connell received a letter from Hon. W. T. White, saying that he would be pleased to be at Peterborough and speak at the meeting, and that he considered it a pleasure as well as a duty to come. While in the City he will be the guest of Mr. Jas. Kendry. He will be accompanied by Mrs. White.

Here is an idea: A friend of the Fund calls in and says that in his family circle they have decided to call off the giving of Christmas presents one to another, and possibly to friends outside. The money that would be thus saved will be given to the Patriotic Fund. Why not, for once, go thou and do likewise?

Generous Offer by the Manager of the Oriental Hotel

The following is a Copy of a letter to the Secretary of the Peterborough Patriotic Fund, sent by the Manager of the Oriental Hotel, which speaks for itself. The generous spirit which characterized the letter is worthy of commendation:—

ORIENTAL HOTEL,
Peterborough, Dec. 5th, 1914

F. H. Dobbin, Esq.,
Secretary Peterboro' Campaign Fund,

Dear Sir,

The Management of The Oriental Hotel agree to contribute 50c per full day for each guest stopping at the house one or more full days at regular rates $2.50 per day. Commencing Monday, December 7th, until further notice.

Trusting that the hopes of the Committee will be realised and the amount of $50,000 be contributed.

Company Will Make Extensions

Canadian Chicle Company Want to Purchase A Forty Foot Lot From the City

The Canadian Chicle Company want to purchase from the City a fifty-foot lot directly south of the Company's plant. Mr. G. A. Lundy, Manager of the Company, waited upon the Property Committee, last evening, and stated that the Company proposed to erect a warehouse and have a railway switch constructed adjacent to the works.

The Committee was unanimously of the opinion that the City should reserve the right to use this switch. To this Mr. Lundy agreed providing the City undertook to liquidate any financial obligations that might accrue to the Railway Company. The Committee decided to visit the property this afternoon and report at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. Should the sale be decided upon, the City will probably dispose of the land for the nominal sum of three hundred dollars. The fact that the Company proposes to extend their plant and that the City will reserve certain rights over the property is being given as the reason for selling the land at the nominal price stated.

Fowl Was Very Plentiful

At the Farmers Produce Market —Potatoes Selling for 65c. a Bag

"I am sick and tired of fowl" complained Mrs. Jones to Mrs. Smith. "So am I, but so long as we can buy fowl cheaper than other forms of meat, we will have to stay tired," replied the woman addressed. With that she extended a long bony finger until it was lost in the ribs of a plump looking goose, cross-examined the vendor and passed on. This partially expresses the attitude of the public generally towards the poultry market, which to say the least is not suffering from lack of supplies. Good turkeys were available this morning at from one dollar and a quarter to two dollars and a half apiece. This averages about sixteen cents a pound. Chickens ranged in prices from sixty to seventy-five cents a pound. Ducks were offered at one dollar and forty cents a pair and geese at one dollar and twenty-five cents each. Nice "shiny" looking eggs were exposed for sale at forty cents a dozen; many of them were sold for thirty-five cents. A few lots of likely-looking fresh eggs sold a few cents higher.

Army Remounts.

An auction sale presided over by Mr. J. F. Thornton attracted a large crowd. The sale comprised household goods and the prices at which they were sold would enable a man with a ten dollar bill to furnish a house. An eleven hundred pound iron grey horse was one of the first prospective remounts to reach the market. He was there several hours ahead of the officer who was delegated by the government to purchase remounts for war purposes. Many were the conjectures as to what part the animal would take, in event of it being accepted for war purposes.

Potatoes were fairly plentiful. The prevailing price was sixty-five cents a bag, although a few farmers held out for seventy cents and got it. Apples were in demand at two dollars a bag. Pork sold for twelve cents a pound and beef at fourteen cents.

CATARRH NEVER STOPS IN SAME PLACE REACHES THE LUNGS—DEVELOPS CONSUMPTION

To Stop a Cold Quickly and Prevent Catarrh, Use "Catarrhozone"

Nothing more serious than the common cold.

If it gains headway you can't stop it from running into Catarrh, deafness, or serious throat trouble.

Catarrh spreads very fast.

From nose to throat it goes in a day. Soon the Bronchial tubes are affected—and before you know it, unless very healthy the lungs are hit, and it's too late.

While you have the chance, drive colds and Catarrh right out of the system.

You can quickly do so by inhaling the rich piney vapour of Catarrhozone.

Right to where the living germs of Catarrh [illegible] will the healing fumes [illegible] go in ten seconds.

No liquid medicine can penetrate to the deep recesses that Catarrhozone bathes with its soothing vapour —that's just why it proves so wonderfully effective.

The health-laden vapour of Catarrhozone cures the worst of coughs and horseness. The uttermost parts of the bronchial tubes are reached. Bronchitis is cured—every cell in the head, throat and nose is treated by Catarrhozone's wonderful fumes.

You can't beat Catarrhozone for huskiness, weak throat, sore nostrils catarrhal and bronchial trouble of any kind. Get the complete $1.00 outfit. Smaller size, 50c. Trial size 25c., at dealers everywhere.

"IN THE TRAIL OF THE DESTROYER" THE SUBJECT

Lucid Lecture of Prof. Squair, of Toronto University in Collegiate Assembly Hall, Under Auspices of the W. A. A.

"In the Trail of the Destroyer" was the subject of an interesting, as well as timely, lecture, by Prof. Squair of Toronto University, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, last evening. The lecture was under the auspices of the Woman's Art Association and to these ladies is due a deep debt of gratitude for bringing Prof. Squair to Peterborough.

Prof. Squair's remarks, which were illustrated by lantern views, were of great profit and instruction, as he took one over the war area of the last few months, depicting many of the old Cathedrals in France and Belgium that have met with bombardment at the hands of the Germans, resulting in ruin and devastation to the priceless buildings of beautiful architecture.

The learned speaker commenced by referring to the history of the Belgian people, of whom, he said, Julius Caesar had spoken of as the bravest of all Gaul. The people of Belgium spoke the language of the French, save in that part of the country known as Flanders, where Dutch was spoken. The Cathedrals, city buildings of the cities of Belgium, and the wonderful works of art contained therein, were shown off the canvas and vividly described by the lecturer. The magnificent Cathedral of Rheims, that great historic edifice wherein were crowned the Kings of France for many centuries, was pictured; also a photograph from a drawing of an eye witness of the ruin that befell Rheims, some weeks ago, as a result of an attack by the Kaiser's army. Pictures of Louvain also devastated, Amiens, Liege and Bruges, places that have been much before the public eye since the war commenced, were shown.

The chair was taken by Mr. Duncan Walker, and at the conclusion of the lecture, which was followed with rapt attention by the large audience, a vote of thanks to Prof. Squair was very eloquently moved by His Honour Judge Huycke, and ably seconded by Rev. F. J. Sawers M.A.

Miss Jean Hill rendered a pianoforte solo that was greatly enjoyed.

President Fitzgerald's Address.

President Fitzgerald delivered an exhaustive address on league affairs, dealing with last year's operations and the recent meeting of the minor leagues at Omaha. His address was as follows:

"The year just past has been a most disastrous one all over the baseball world. It has not been any worse in the Canadian League than in any other. In fact we did better than nine in ten leagues throughout America.

"There is nothing to be gained in dwelling on this rather painful topic. Each club president knows just how bad it was and for the benefit of all it may be said that in round numbers our cities fell off in attendance one-third.

"With this year of disaster behind us it is in order to prepare for the worst and hope for the best for next season. Retrenchment must be the watchword with us as it will be with every baseball league in the country. High salaries are going to be the exception, not the rule, and everywhere clubs are preparing to get along with as few men as possible. That is the outlook for the coming season, and it is the duty of every president to look after the interests of his club by seeing to it that the least possible men at the smallest possible salaries in keeping with the good baseball be secured. The salary limit question is the bugbear of every league in the country. I enquired carefully at the Omaha meeting and started a discussion on this matter but found after two hours' talk that no league was any nearer a solution than our own. The general opinion was that the managers are to blame and that the one and only means of securing and maintaining the limit is to have the club owners steadfastly refuse to allow them to go over the limit in men. With as few possible men on the pay roll there will be no difficulty in keeping to the salary limit. But it is up to each club president.

"I did secure some hints as to methods likely to enforce the limit, but most of them are too expensive to be thought of and others too fanciful—detectives, auditing companies etc. Others are more applicable and I shall endeavour to put them in operation for the common good.

Curtail Season Two Weeks.

"We have come through one bad year and from the present outlook next summer will demand the strictest economy. I would even suggest that we curtail our season two weeks at the opening, not only making our salary lists that much smaller, but also getting around a bad rainy spell which we have been running into.

"The large item of expense in Spring training trips might very easily be done away with this coming year. If the Club owners would agree to start even without ante-season training there would be a big saving, and no particular loss in condition of the players. They will report on opening day in fairly good shape and all on even terms.

In keeping with this retrenchment among our clubs I have figured that in my own department there can be a saving of something very substantial. Our Class B rating secured from the National Commission last April went to forfeit because of a misunderstanding. Two cheques for the amount were forwarded Mr. Farrell previous to the commission award, and I was under the impression that the second one had been retained. It was not until after our season had closed and the draft was in was there the slightest hint that this $300 had not been paid. At once a cheque was forwarded, but it was refused. I wrote Mr. Farrell accepting the reduced price for the four players drafted from our league under protest, and giving notice of appeal to the board at Omaha. Arrived there with the intention of fighting the matter to a finish. I found that if our classification stood as B instead of C three of the four men drafted would not be taken. Consulting Messrs. McCaffrey, O'Neil and O'Connor they thought with me that it would be more to the interest of the League at large to make sure of $1,700 for the four teams than $750 for one. It meant a loss of $250 to the one club, but a sale of three other players who would otherwise be left with us—a loss to the league of all but $1,000.

Refused Class "B" Rating

"In face of this we decided that the best thing to do was to turn face-about in the demand for Class B rating for the year past, stand pat as Class C, and apply only for the option to retain these men or let them go at Class C draft price.

"There was, I was given to understand, a pretty good chance of our being given Class B for the year just past. In the face of that it might not be amiss for the league to make good the difference to the one club whose player would have been drafted had we applied for and been granted B classification. Your president certainly was asleep at the switch in not making certain of Class B rating, and taking no chances on it. How the oversight occurred I am not prepared to say. I don't know. Every day I make it a point to answer the letters or that day if possible. How this important one escaped my notice is a mystery.

"Again on your behalf I made application for permanent Class B rating. It was refused by the Board as beyond their power to grant, in the face of the law demanding 400,000 population on the last Federal census.

"I cannot say at present just what next year holds for us, but within a very short time there will be meetings of the major leagues and the International that may simplify matters.

"With this in view I kept close tab on matters while at Omaha and in Chicago, making a side trip later to look into a matter which may have an important bearing on our league. That is as far as I can go for a few weeks, but our prospects right now are better than they have ever been by a great deal.

"Our club returns to the league show Ottawa and London again doing splendidly. Hamilton, from being second last last year, has proved itself what we always knew it to be, a fine ball town. Their returns in the face of a terribly bad year and a non winning team came close to the best they ever did.

"Erie did fairly well. The jumps made visits there rather expensive, but in a season like the one just past a return of close to $800 is not at all bad. We had to battle against prejudice and newspaper opposition of the most violent kind in a year of hard times. Erie, in good times, is evidently a good ball town. Toronto was a sad disappointment to its owners and the league. Again a bad year combined with the fact that we had no holidays and few Saturdays, not to mention miserable weather, hurt. It must not be forgotten either that Toronto had about a third less games at home than any of the other clubs.

"In conclusion, I must thank our auditors for their kind and able assistance in perparing the financial report.

Revised the Constitution.

A couple of hours was spent in revising the constitution.

Although Mr. Denham suggested the appointment of a committee to consider the question of the rain and game guarantee so that the smaller towns would pay a smaller sum, no change was made, Ottawa still paying $75 and the other towns $50.

A salary limit of $1,600 a month for 14 players and a manager was adopted. It was the unanimous opinion that the league must adhere to the salary limit or be forced out of business. Stringent measures will be taken to see that no club violates the salary limit.

Hereafter opening days shall be considered holidays, and the receipts divided on an equal basis.

The season will open on Wednesday, May 19, and close on Labour Day, Monday, September 6. The first series will consist of two home games.

There has been so much trouble over the matter that it was decided when an overthrow to first base is made the runner can make no more than two bases.

It was agreed that the league umpires had given splendid satisfaction last year and President Fitzgerald was authorized to spend $800 a month for his staff next season.

The cost of training trips was freely discussed, and it was decided to limit the training season to one week before the opening of the season.

Contrary to expectation, nothing was said about a change in the circuit.

A vote of thanks was tendered President Fitzgerald for his management of the League's affairs during the past year.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE PREPARING FOR SEASON

The young men's organizations of the different churches in Peterborough, who desire to have teams in the Church Hockey League during the coming winter season, are requested to take up the matter and appoint a delegate each. These delegates will meet at the Y.M.C.A. parlours next Monday night, Dec. 7th, to arrange schedules, etc., for the season. As already a large number of the churches have intimated their desire to have teams in this league, it is essential that every church wishing to take part in good, clean sport will have its representative there on Monday night a 8 o'clock sharp. For fuller information call on or 'phone the secretary at the Y.M.C.A.

A RECORD ATTENDANCE FOR CUP FINAL

The Sum of $8,040 Was Taken in Gate Receipts—When Preston North End Won the Championship;

A HARD FIGHT

Barnsley received the highest cheque ever paid to the F. A. cup finalists, £4,390, 9s. 8d. in the season 1909-10.

The record attendance for a Scottish cup final was 66,000 on the occasion of the first match between the Rangers and Celtics at Hampden Park, on April 12, 1909. £1,608 was taken at the gates, and the stand receipts were £400.

Glasgow Rangers won every match in the Scottish League in the season, 1898-9. No other club has ever accomplished this performance.

In 1888-9, Preston North End won the League championship without losing a match, and in the same season they won the English Cup without having a goal scored against them throughout the competition. Bury equalled Preston N. End's splendid performance in the cup in season 1903, when they also won the trophy with out losing a goal in the five rounds. The Bury score of 6—0 against Derby C. was a record score for a final.

S. W. Widdowson, the old Notts Forest and International player, brought out and registered shinguards in 1874. The referee's whistle was first used on the Nott's Forest ground in 1878.

Queen's Park, Glasgow, did not lose a goal during the first seven years of their existence, commencing with the year 1867. An English club, the Wanderers, was the first to lower their colours in London.

No clashing of giants takes place in the first division of the English league this week. Oldham, however, are set a hard task in meeting Sheffield United at Bromall Lane. In late years they have not as a rule fared so well against the United blades, but they are now in such excellent trim that a division of points seems most likely.

Everton with West Bromwich as visitors ought to provide something spicy, and the toffee men will likely get home after a hard fight.

Tottenham and Blackburn Rovers will be a hard fought contest in the metropolis, at which place they are fond of breaking even, and this is what will likely happen again to-morrow.

In the Scottish league, Hearts should continue their triumphant march at the expense of Hibernians. Celtic should win at Aberdeen, while Rangers at Ibrox park should conquer St. Mirren.

Airdrieonians will receive Falkirk, and the bairns will likely give them a hard battle. It's just possible the latter may win, but a draw would come as no surprise.

Quite a bunch of good games are listed, chief of which are Clyde v. Morton and Motherwell v. Hamilton Accies, while Dundee and Third Lanark will not be by any means one whit less in the matter of importance. Clyde and Morton may share the honours. Motherwell should just about account for the Accies, while Dundee will probably just nose out in front of the Third Lanark.

Internationals Cancelled.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Delegates of the English, Scottish, Welsh and Irish professional football associations at a meeting in London yesterday decided to recommend to their respective associations that international football matches this season be abandoned.

This decision was reached by the delegates after a prolonged conference. At the conclusion of the meeting the following statement was issued:

"There is no evidence that the playing of football has hindered or is hindering recruiting. On the contrary, there is good reason to conclude that football has encouraged and has assisted recruiting. In these circumstances this meeting recommends that except as regards international matches it is not right that football should be suspended.

"This meeting is of opinion that to deprive the working people of our country of their Saturday afternoon's recreation would be unfair and very mischievous."

The international football matches are the great sporting events of the year in the United Kingdom. They draw upwards of 100,000 spectators, who travel long distances to witness the contests.

Quebec Murderer To Hang.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Antonio Di Lena was yesterday afternoon found guilty of the murder of Angelo Greico, at Cedars, three months ago. Mr. Justice Saint Pierra donned the black cap and black gloves and sentenced Di Lena to be hanged on Feb. 5.

Notice of appeal was at once lodged by counsel for the condemned man.

This is the first occasion in many years in which a Montreal judge has put on black gloves when announcing the death sentence.

"Geneva" Arrived This Morning

Carried a Load of Passengers and Freight

The steamer Geneva docked at the Peterborough Wharf this morning. She carried passengers and freight. The season is unusually late for the navigation of boats in local waters. This is the second trip for the Geneva this week. On Thursday last the boat brought in a cargo of potatoes and hogs, returning with a cargo of hay and commodities for points along Rice Lake. Some ice was encountered, but not in quantities sufficient to impede the progress of the steamer.

Warning To The Merchants

From Can. Fire Underwriters' Association Against Using Inflammable Material in Xmas Decorations

Christmas is coming and with it comes the usual warning of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association as to the danger of using inflamable materials for Christmas decorations in the stores. The warning is addressed to the merchants of the city as follows:

Re Christmas Decorations and Displays.

Dear Sir,—Following our usual custom at this season of the year I beg to call your attention to the dangers to life and property from Christmas decorations, displays, etc., which are frequently made at this time of the year. The use of Christmas greens, harvest specimens and other inflammable materials such as draperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow, and the like, (especially in connection with electric and other lighting systems), is decidedly an increase of hazard, it being impossible to make displays of that nature perfectly safe.

The Statutory Conditions of your Insurance Policy read in part as follows:

"Any change material to the risk, but within the control or knowledge of the assured, shall avoid the policy, as to the part affected thereby, unless the change is promptly notified in writing to the Company or its local agent."

In addition to the danger to property from the displays referred to, the danger of life in crowded stores or places of meeting, by reason of a panic occasioned by fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the Underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards, would fail in their duty should they not give this warning.

By order,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON.
Secretary.

CHEQUE HAD BEEN TAMPERED WITH

Man Who Presented It Was Locked Up—Said to Live in Millbrook

HASTINGS, Dec. 5.—A young man named Powell, who has been working for Mr. Wm. Preston, Norwood Road, came into town and presented a cheque for $180 at Sayer's store in payment for some goods. Inquiries were made as to the validity of the cheque, the young man meanwhile remaining in the bank, and on it being ascertained that Mr. Preston had issued a cheque for $3.80, and not $180, and the paper gave every evidence of having been tampered with, Constable Wharrie was 'phoned for and locked the young man up. He was committed for trial and taken out to Cobourg. It is understood that his home is near Millbrook.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The friends of Mr. Daniel Cushing will regret to learn that he is seriously ill at his home.

Captain C. P. Fee, of the 17th Battery, has been granted leave from midnight until reveille on Tuesday next. He will visit his home in Peterborough.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. E. Hutchison, 340 Water street, Peterborough (formerly of Toronto), to Mr. J. A. Turner, of Brantford, formerly of Glasgow, the marriage to take place the third week in December.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., who has been out of the City for the past week, returned home last night. During his absence he visited the former riding of the late Premier Whitney, where a bye-election is now being held and reports that the prospects for the election of Mr. Campbell, the Liberal candidate, are quite encouraging.

CLAIM LOCAL MAN DID NOT PAY UP

Lindsay Post: Mr. Ed. Lenny, of Madison Williams' garage, is in Peterborough to-day attending a Division Court session as a witness. It will be remembered that one day this summer a Peterborough automobilist ran amuck with his car on William Street. The machine was badly damaged and was repaired at Williams' garage. The car belonged to a Peterborough automobile agent, and the party who rented it refused to pay for the repairs. Action has therefore been taken against him in the Division Court. The amount involved is $38.

"HONOR" OF THE GUARD.

Prussian Regiment Committed Suicide to Wipe Out Defeat.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Daily Telegraph has the following special despatch from Paris:—

Cri de Paris yesterday gave publicity to an astounding story, the absolute authenticity of which is vouched for by an officer of Sir John French's General Staff. During the battle of Ypres the Prussian Guard was flung up to assault the allied lines, and was compelled to retire before a withering fire. But the Prussian Guard never retires! Such is a cardinal dogma in the German army.

The stain must be wiped out with blood. On the morrow, therefore, at dread noonday, the Guard was sent out. Without arms and without artillery support they marched toward the allied lines, marching as on parade. The allied soldiers fired as at a rifle range. Out of 1,000 men who advanced not one escaped. The honor of the Prussian Guard had been vindicated.

GOLD MEDALIST WILL SING AT CHARLOTTE ST.

Miss Lettie Drope, Until Recently of Saskatchewan, Sask., Will Sing at Both Services To morrow

Miss Lettie Drope, of Harwood, is visiting in the City for a few days with Mrs. G. G. Wesley, 360 Stewart Street. Miss Drope is a splendid mezzo contralto soloist of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and a pupil of Mr. J. Edward Fisher, and will sing at the morning and evening services of the Charlotte Street Church to-morrow. Miss Drope won the gold medal for contralto at the Saskatoon Provincial Festival at Regina in 1913, and her voice is not only admired by audiences to which she has sung but the highest critics agree that her singing has many admirable qualities. The musical critics, Dr. Vogt, of Toronto, and Dr. Kiehbiel, of New York, have said of her, "An excellent voice, beautiful timbre and artistic interpretation."

WILL PREACH AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Famous Lecturer and Singer Will Speak at Both Services

Mr. Enos Bacon, better known as the "Yorkshire Nightingale," famous lecturer and singer, will preach at both services at George Street Methodist Church to-morrow. Mr. Bacon has just returned from the war zone of England and Europe, and his remarks should be extremely interesting.

Basket Social A Splendid Success

Held by the District Orange Lodge in the W.O.W. Hall Last Night

The District Orange Lodge held a very successful basket social in the Woodmen of the World Hall last night. County Master E. Reid presided at the affair which was a most enjoyable one, and which was a very pleasing social from every standpoint. A splendid programme was presented during the evening, and those in charge of the arrangements are to be congratulated on the complete preparation that was made for every part of the entertainment.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS

Miss R. Lewis, 544 Stewart Street, entertained a number of her young friends at a birthday party last evening. The time was spent most pleasantly in games, etc., and the young people were unanimous in their opinion that the young hostess had made very charming arrangements for their entertainment.

DROWNED IN CANAL

Much credit must be given Messrs. Kemp and Curtis for their bravery in leaping into the water to the rescue and also to the Messrs. Edwards, whose presence of mind rendered the brave acts of the former two gentlemen useful. For ten years Mr. Samuel Edwards has had the pike pole in a convenient place for just such an emergency and its handiness this morning probably was the means of saving the lives of the rescued and the rescuers.

The body of the little boy was taken first to the home of Mr. Albert Curtis and thence to Belleghem's Undertaking rooms.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

PORTER S. WHITE

Citizens of Peterborough and Vicinity

Male and female, old and young, rich and poor:—Wise and rich men have advised their friends to buy land, in the way of a growing City, and they also would become rich.

It has been my good fortune, late in life, to become the owner of just such land, and as I never play "the dog in the manger," being neither able nor willing to use it myself, I am determined to distribute it amongst those who can use or hold it for a short time until it is annexed to the City, at which time the owners will be positively certain of a large profit on their investment. Your own eyes and judgment will prove this statement. This sub-division lies south and west from the C. G. E. Works, between May's School and the Gravel Road, at the west end of Cottesmore, Chamberlain, Romaine and Landsdowne Streets. Because of the beautiful location of this land, the size and class of Lots, the very reasonable prices and terms unheard of, which I am offering, cannot fail to ensure a very speedy sale of every Lot.

The great majority of the above-named classes wish to make money, even the rich, and I guarantee satisfaction to every buyer or his money back in one year from date of purchase, if desired.

Size of lots chiefly 30 x 123, sold in blocks of 2 Lots under one number. Price, $150, $200, and a few specials at $250 per lot, except corners.

TERMS.—Cash buyers will get full value of their money.

Pay $5 cash and I will add $5, giving receipt for $10, then $5 monthly.

Pay $10 cash and I will give receipt for $20, then pay $10 monthly.

No interest until May, then 6%. Proper building restrictions. Men out of work with families, will get gardens, free of rent. Every person earning money should save at least a little and this is the plan, none other to compare. Come to my Office, see plans and get full information on every point.

FRENCH GUNS OUTRANGE GERMAN ARTILLERY

THE GERMANS GAIN IN THE EAST

ALLIES ARE PRESSING THE ENEMY IN THE WEST

New Guns Brought Up by the French Are Now in Position—Are Vigorously Aassailing Positions Held by the Germans While New Points Won by the Allies Are Being Retained.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The French artillery is now outranging the German guns and proving more effective all along the line. This is indicated in the latest official statements from the War Office and is accepted to-day as an evidence that the new guns which have been expected by the French, have been brought up and are figuring extensively in the offensive movement the allies are pushing from the coast and along the entire battle line. Heavy fighting is reported in Alsace to-day. In the Argonne the German trenches are being vigorously assailed by artillery and through mining operations. All new positions taken by the allied troops along the Yser have been held and the advantage is being followed up with the greatest determination. The French artillery forced the Germans to evacuate Vermelles.

GERMAN SUBMARINE LANDS IN DENMARK BADLY DAMAGED

Special to The Examiner:

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 7.—The German submarine U 16 has arrived at Esbjerg badly damaged. The cause of the vessel's injury is unknown.

Esbjerg is in Denmark on the North Sea. Last week it was stated that German submarines ran foul of British scoutships in the North Sea and one was sunk and another hit and disabled. It is thought that the U 16 was the disabled craft. She will probably be interned.

WAR ODDITIES

BERLIN—Wives of all Berlin soldiers with the colours will be able to send Christmas presents to their husbands at the expense of the municipal government.

PARIS — A boy of seven left his fleeing family to return to an Aisne village which was under bombardment to rescue his schoolbooks. He explained he didn't want to give the Germans a chance to learn French.

PETROGRAD — Moslem Kirhese have dispatched 500 of their finest horses to Petragrad as a special war offering to the Czar.

LONDON—Martin Gaffney and his brother John, whom he hadn't seen in 16 years were wounded in the Flanders fighting and met for the first time in that period in Cardiff Military hospital.

BAYONET FIGHT OF 15 MILES

How Germans Cut Their Way Out—Battle Lasted For 36 Hours—Lull in East Prussia

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7.—The most tragic moment of the fighting about Lods, thus far, it is reported here, occurred between Tuszyn and Brezsiny southeast of Lods. Heavy German forces which had penetrated to Tuszyn, it appears, were surrounded and obliged to fight their way to Brzesiny, to unite with the main body. The Russians essayed counter attack after counter attack to prevent the junction, but the Germans cut a passage, at the point of the bayonet, for a distance of fifteen miles.

This battle is called the bloodiest and most pitiless fight of the war NNinety per cent. of the German officers were put out of action, and many regiments had less than one hundred men left. The fighting lasted 36 hours. The Germans fell in rows but their comrades pushed forward over the bodies and hurled themselves against the Russians.

Fighting at Lask.

The heaviest fighting in the vicinity of Lodz during the past two days has occurred in the course of manoeuvring for the possession of Lask fifteen miles south-west of Lodz. On the Szczercsow line, which is fifteen to twenty miles long, east of the Warthe, the fighting apepars to indicate that the Germans have been heavily reinforced, and that they are filling the gap between their right wing and the isloated body which has been striving to turn the ussian left.

In East Prussia.

The German defence on the northern front in East Prussia occupies a position along the River Angerapp from Gumbinnen to Darkehmen, and thence to the northern extremity of the Masurian Lakes at Angerburg. Here the Russians are entrenched close to the German line. On the east front of the lakes and to the Vistula the ussians have taken a position slightly back of their line of advance of ten days ago. Both sides apepar to be waiting the outcome of the struggle at Lodz. The main German forces in this region are concentrated about Mlawa.

SCRAPS OF WAR NEWS

Dr. Pauchet, an Amiens surgeon, who since the beginning of the war has attended more than 6,000 wounded and performed 500 operations, has, at the express order of General Joffre, been decorated on the battlefield with the Cross of the Legion of Honour.

A tacit arangement exists between the War Office and officers of the Guards regiments by which the names of killed and wounded of all ranks are withheld from the press until personal letters of sympathy and regret have been forwarded by the officers to widows and mothers.

That the charge of the London Scotish "followed the national motto of 'Nemo me impune lacessit.'" This is the motto of the Most Noble Order of the Thistle, and means "You can't sit upon us."

An urgent appeal is made by the Hampshire branch of the British Red Cross Society to provide warm garments for wounded soldiers who are arriving from the front in ambulance ships, of which there are eight.

GARDNER AGAIN GIVES WARNING OF WEAKNESS

Declares That Foreign Dreadnoughts, Out of Range of New York Fortifications, Could Destroy Them in Safety.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7.— Augustus P. Gardner, congressman from Massachusetts, in an address before the Contemporary club here, replied to the statement of Secretary Daniels regarding recent assertions of Mr. Gardner as to the inadequacy of American naval and military preparedness.

"I state without fear of successful contradiction," he said, "that the big guns on the latest dreadnoughts of Great Britain and Germany are of such long range that the battleships can stand a mile and a half outside the range of the guns on the fortifications of New York and demolish those forts."

"Secretary Daniels," said Mr. Gardner, "has given out a special report from Admiral Strauss to prove misleading my declaration that of long-range torpedoes there are only 58 in the navy. I do not remember ever making that statement because my impression is that there are not even so many as 58 long-range torpedoes on hand.

"I reiterate the statement that I have made heretofore that there are 511 torpedo tubes on the ships of the navy and there are 550 long-range torpedoes built, building or appropriated for.

"If this statement is incorrect it is not my fault, for I obtained the information from Admiral Strauss himself."

Mr. Gardner said a congress inquiry into the national defence would reveal many absurdities, notably that there is no co-ordination in the preparation of military and naval appropriations.

President Opposes Gardner Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—President Wilson had two important conferences at which the administration's plans for dealing with the Gardner resolution to investigate the war preparedness of the United States were developed. In the morning he saw Representative Shirley, the chairman of the fortications sub-committee of the house committee on appropriations, and this afternoon Chairman Fitzgerald of the committee, on appropriations. It is considered certain as a result of these conferences that the strength of the administration in the house will be exerted to kill the Gardner measure at the outset. It is possible, however, that the President will approve a proposal for some sort of inquiry into the condition of the army and navy.

1,100 BERLIN HOSPITALS

Care for Wounded From Front, 70 Per Cent. of Whom Return.

BERLIN, Nov. 20—Berlin has 1,100 hospitals for the wounded, the smallest accommodating forty cases, the larger ones having 400 to 600 beds.

There are 10,000 wounded in Berlin Hospitals, the number being maintained fairly constant, although the individual patients are constantly changing. About 70 per cent. are soon discharged and return to the front.

Wounded lodged in the Royal Conservatory of Music, converted into a hospital, have in their wards pictures by Van Dyke, Reubens, Velasquez, and other old masters, the works in the school gallery having been distributed.

In the School of Applied Arts, also a hospital the wounded have before them beautiful porcelan, enamelled curios, and tapestries. In one of the officers' casinos, now converted into a hospital, a large collection of pictures of military subjects hang on the walls.

Field hospitals are erected quickly, with hot and cold water and modern operating room. It was figured that in four days the entire hospital could be taken to pieces and transported

GERMANS IN POLAND GAINING THE ADVANTAGE

Grand Duke Nicholas' Lines of Communication Cut—Are Being Threatened and Forward Movement of Germans May Result in Withdrawal From Cracow.

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Dec. 7.—With Lodz taken and an advance of 25 miles having been made on both flanks, the Germans in Poland are gaining control of the main railways leading direct to Warsaw. They are also threatening the communications of the Russians on the southern front of Grand Duke Nicholas' army. Should they continue to advance, the Russian movement toward Czenstachowa will have to be abandoned and the forces about Cracow might be forced to withdraw. This is the situation to-day on the eastern front as indicated by the German announcement and the mention of fighting on both the northern and southern flanks are mentioned from Russian sources. The Germans have advanced along the Vistula and fighting is reported at Ilow to the north of Lodz and in the vicinity of Pietrkow to the south. Both of these towns are on the important railway lines leading toward Warsaw.

SWEPT BY BAD STORM

Atlantic Coast Suffers Severely and a Million Dollars Damage is Done

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The entire Atlantic seaboard from Norfolk to Maine is being lashed to-day by a gale that at some points has attained a velocity of seventy miles an hour. The storm has been blowing from the northeast for more than forty-eight hours, and shipping at many points has been completely paralyzed. Many vessels which put out before the gale began are unreported and much anxiety is felt for their safety. At many points along the Jersey Coast and on both shores of Long Island Sound cottages near the sea front have been undermined or are being pounded to pieces. Scores of bath houses at several New Jersey and Long Island summer resorts have been swept to sea. It is estimated the damage will amount to a million dollars or more.

SURRENDERED AFTER A GLORIOUS MEAL

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The London Daily Telegraph has a special from Boulogne saying: An official of a town in northern France gives the following story of its occupation last week:

"One hundred and fifty-five Germans took up their quarters in a castle three miles distant. They stayed for thirty hours. During that time they ate 400 eggs, 85 kilos of salt butter, five lobsters, five crabs, ten boxes of sardines, six boxes of dried beans, eight bags of peas, 60 pots of jam and a cow.

"They drank two casks of beer, 100 bottles of cider, 385 litres of red wine, 225 litres of white wine, 40 bottles of Malaga wine and twelve dozen bottles of cognac and champagne.

"When preparing to leave the Germans found that a regiment of French infantry had taken up its position in the neighbourhood. The Germans returned to the castle and hoisted a white flag, no shots being fired. An officer went out to speak with a French Lieutenant, and in less than a half an hour the 155 Germans had surrendered."

EGGS GONE UP IN CHINA.

Housewife Now Only Gets 360 for $1, Instead of 900.

Fifteen years ago the price of eggs in the province of Shantung, China, was $1 for 900 eggs. Now the price has risen to $1 for 360. Twenty-seven million eggs were exported from this province in 1913, most of which went to England.

Few Chinese poultry raisers possess more than a dozen or so hens. They hatch most of their chickens in earthenware incubators, which are heated by the fire, which warms the living rooms and the beds—thus all the heat is saved. We have the word of the Consul at Crefoo that old women frequently incubate eggs by carrying them strapped about their waists under their outer garments. This is carrying economy to the limit, it would seem.

Most Chinese families are too poor to eat eggs even at the low prices mentioned, and therefore the entire product, except that portion used for hatching, is sold. On the average ten Chinese eggs weighs a pound."

BRITISH WAITERS HAVE WON VICTORY

The London Restaurants Announce That No "Enemies" Are Employed by Them

LONDON, Dec. 3. (correspondence)—"No Alien Eenemies Employed in This Establishment" is one of the signs now confronting Londoners in the majority of the restaurants of the middel and cheap grades. Some go even further and announce: "No Alien Eenemies are Emplyed or Served."

This is a triumph for the British Waiters' Union. Before the war, foreigners from the continent monopolized the waiters calling throughout England, except in a few of the old-fashioned British establishments, particularly those in the heart of London, where an old guard of business men, living up to the traditions of former generations, remain faithful to their turtle soup, beefsteak and bottle of port for their midday meal, and cling to famous old resorts, which may have been clean and comfortable according to the standards of Dickens' and Thackeray's time.

The staffs of the larger English hotels, from the Manager's office to the kitchens, were manned by foreigners. Most of these hotels are owned by companies, and the stockholders placed dividends before loyalty to British servants when British employees htd been proved less profitable than aliens. Germans, Swiss and Italians had taken the hotel and restaurant business by storm.

Clean Sweep.

The British Waiters' Union clamoured for recognition vainly until the war. Then the newspapers took up its case and ther has resulted a clean sweep of Germans, Austrians and of Swiss. The big hotels are too dignified to placard their windows with the signs that alien enemies are not employed, but they make a more conspicuous and more diplomatic show of patriotism by covering their fronts with flaffts and loyal mottoes.

The case of German restaurants and shpos which have professed to purvey genuine German foods and beers is especially pathetic. One of the latter, which has many branches in London, has filled its windows with signs that its sausages are made from British pork at its own factory in the north of England, and also makes announcements of its contributions to the Prince of Wales' Relief Fund. Another explins that the alien owners were bought out by British capital years ago, but the German name was retained to keep the old customers.

TOURISTS HAVE RETURNED LOANS

All of $265,000 Lent in London Repaid Except $250.

LONDON, Nov. 29. — American travellers in London will be endowed in the future with a tradition of honesty which ought for years to be a great source of national gratification. It has been earned by the way in which they have met the unusual credit facilities extended to them during last August and September.

During this period of financial emergency $265,000 was advanced to embarrassed Americans by the American Committee out of funds put at their disposal by private individuals, banks and the United States Government. In paying out this money the widest variety of credit documents were accepted—letters of credit which could not be cashed, personal checks upon country banks and even I.O.U's.

To-day every dollar of this formidable sum has been repaid, except $250, and the recipient of this loan has written that he has been pursued by exceptional hard luck, but that he is nevertheless now arranging to borrow enough money to repay his debt to the American committee. "Sometimes we just looked a man in the eye and took his word, but the way they have paid up makes one keenly proud to be an American," said Herbert Hoover, the chairman of the committee.

But it was not only from the American Committee that stranded Americans received welcome credit facilities at a time when the otherwise well to do might have actually been in need. Hotels and department stores especially went out of their way to extend credit and accept checks. In some cases the solvency of an individual and the worth of his check was guaranteed by the American committee, but in a number of cases a manager or a floorwalker simply looked a man or woman in the eye, and took his or her word.

And yet to-day there is not a word of complaint to be heard. "I don't think we lost a dollar by our efforts to assist our American friends immediately after the outbreak of war," is the way H. Gordon Selfridge put it when asked about the departures in favour of embarrassed Americans which his store made, and his words were echoed by the secretary of the company, which controls such hotels as the Savoy, the Berkeley, and Claridge's.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person is troubled with catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh indicates a weakened condition of the body; that the secretion of the mucous membranes are quickly affected, and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from harmful drugs or opiates. Try it.

STORIES OF THE V.C.

SAILOR WAS FIRST TO EARN THE COVETED DECORATION.

A Lad Who Threw a Shell Overboard on H.M.S. Hecla In the Baltic and Got Distinction Sixty Years Ago Became an Admiral—Indian Mutiny Provided Many of the V.C.'s.

What will not a sailor do? Sixty years ago almost to a day the Russian fortress of Bomarsund in the Baltic Sea was being bombarded by an Anglo-French force. Suddenly a shell fired from the fortress fell on the deck of H.M.S. Hecla. In an instant a brave young mate seized it, and, with the fuse hissing between his hands, he flung it with a jerk overboard. That young mate—he ultimately became Rear-Admiral Charles Davis Lucas, who died a short time ago—was immediately promoted lieutenant and awarded the V.C., being the first to win that much coveted decoration, although, owing to three other officers being of senior rank, he was the fourth actually to receive it from Queen Victoria.

Many a gallant deed on land and sea has, since that day, June 21st, 1854, been duly rewarded by the bestowal of the little Maltese cross of bronze which bears the simple inscription, "For Valour."

The Victoria Cross had its origin in the Crimean war, and was primarily intended to be conferred upon junior commissioned officers and the rank and file. Neither rank, length of service, nor wounds, or any circumstance whatsoever can qualify for this noble badge, save a personal act of signal bravery performed in the presence of the enemy. The decoration was instituted by Queen Victoria in 1856, the Prince Consort being, it is said, its originator and the designer of the insignia of it.

It would require a volume to describe the many acts of personal bravery which have made England what it is to-day, and which have won the V.C.; but perhaps the most heroic deeds were those performed during the Indian Mutiny, which provided the most V.C.'s. Altogether during that campaign 182 heroes won the decoration. The Crimean war accounted for 111, the war in South Africa for seventy-eight, the Zulu war for twenty-three, the Afghan war (1878-80) for sixteen, the New Zealand campaign for twelve, and the operations on the Northwest Frontier of India (1897-8) for ten. These wars accounted for 432 crosses, the remainder, between ninety and one hundred, being distributed among the many other campaigns in Africa, India, and elsewhere that have been fought during the past half-century.

Each V.C. is made from bronze which once formed part of some Russian guns captured during the Crimean war, and although the medal itself is intrinsically worth only about 9 cents, a number of them have been sold at sales for $500 and over. The winning of the V.C. carries an annuity of $50, which may be increased to $250.

Mention of the fact that the campaign which provided most V.C.'s was the Indian Mutiny reminds one of the fact that several boys have secured the medal for valour. There was Bugler Hawthorne, of the 52nd Light Infantry, who gallantly tried to save Lieutenant Salkeld at the blowing in of the Cashmere Gate at Delhi on the morning of September 14th, 1857, and it was at Delhi that young Bugler William Sutton, of the first battalion 60th Rifles, on the eve of the assault of Delhi, voluntarily went close up to the walls to ascertain the state of the breach. He succeeded, and by the whole regiment was elected for the V.C. Like Hawthorne, he was a mere lad.

Later at Cawnpore we find Drummer Thomas Flinn, of the 64th South Staffordshire Regiment, actually charging the guns of the rebels with the short sword, the only arms of his rank, with which he slew in hand-to-hand combat two stalwart gunners.

The capture of Magdala, Abyssinia, by the force under Sir Robert Napier—Lord Napier of Magdala—on Easter Monday, 1868, furnishes another instance of juvenile bravery, which Michael Magner, a boy of fourteen, on joining the 33rd Duke of Wellington's Own Regiment, was the first, or one of the first to force his way in over the walls, and together with James Bergin created such a panic among the defenders that the gates were forced open without a man being injured.

In a few rare instances the V.C. has been won by more than one member of a family. The most conspicuous case is that of the Gough family, which can boast of three V.C.'s—General Sir C. J. S. Gough, General Sir H. H. Gough, and Lieutenant-Colonel J. E. Gough. The first two were brothers, and the last named is a son of the second. Major-Gen. E. H. Sartorius and Colonel R. W. Sartorius provide another case of brothers winning the decoration. Another instance of a father and son winning the cross is seen in Lord Roberts and his gallant son, Lieut. the Hon. F. H. S. Roberts, who lost his life in gaining the V.C. at the battle of Colenso. Lieut. Roberts, as all will remember, won the cross in an heroic attempt to save the guns at Colenso in the Boer war, his cross, by order of the late Queen, being awarded to Lieut. Roberts' parents after his death.

It is interesting to recall that only one clergyman has won the V.C., namely the Rev. J. W. Adams, whose deed at Killa Khazzi in Afghanistan on December 11th, 1879, set the world talking, for he saved the lives of two lancers who were unhorsed in deep water under a heavy fire.

Sergeant W. J. Gordon, of the West India Regiment, is one of the two colored men who wear the cross. He gained it in 1892, when, although he himself had just been shot through the lungs, he returned in the face of a terrible fire to save his wounded officer.

Mahua Flowers of India.

It is estimated that in the central provinces of India alone 1,400,000 of the native people use the mahua flower as a regular article of food. Though found in a purely wild state in many parts of India, the value of the flowers and fruit has caused it to be brought under more or less cultivation. The economic value of the tree lies chiefly in its edible flowers and oil yielding seeds. The flowers are eaten extensively while fresh, but generally speaking they are dried thoroughly and cooked with rice and other grains. Sometimes they are completely dried and reduced to a powder and in this condition are cooked in round cakes and mixed with a variety of foodstuffs.

GRATITUDE.

As gratitude is a necessary and a glorious, so also is it an obvious, a cheap and an easy virtue, so obvious that wherever there is life there is a place for it, so cheap that the poorest may be grateful without expense and so easy that the sluggard may be so likewise without labor.

FRANCE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Its Influence in the Melting Pot of the Latin Races.

South America is the melting pot of the Latin races, and the French influence now seems to predominate over that of Spain. Italy is well represented, especially in strong Argentina. Brazil seems to be the most polyglot of them all, for here the native Portuguese is mingled not only with the Spanish and French and English, but a great deal of German. In the south of Brazil 90 per cent of the people speak German, and Portuguese is not always enforced as the language even of the public schools.

The large German colonies here do not affiliate with these people as they do with the Anglo-Saxon brothers of the north. They keep to themselves, they retain their own language and customs. In Chile, where there are many English, too, the Germans direct the education of the country. Buenos Aires is close to this Germanic group in southern Brazil and feels its influence, though Argentina seems the most unified and progressive of the republics in point of literary expression and culture.

French influence also is felt in Brazil. Rio de Janeiro itself was founded as a refuge for French Huguenots though they were afterward driven back. In Paris today one hears that a youth is to emigrate to America, but probably it is to Rio that he is going. There are many French immigrants, and French is required in most of the schools and is next to the native tongue in importance in northern Brazil. Formerly in Brazil Spanish or German always came next to French, but it is said that some of the states now require English as the third language and that Brazilians are proud of their English.

Suspicious.

Ernest Vizetelly, who has published a record of his experiences during the Franco-Prussian war, tells a story to illustrate the popular mania for discovering "treason" that prevailed in Paris.

He says that one day a soldier remarked to a comrade:

"I am sure that the captain is a traitor."

"How's that?" was the rejoinder.

"Well," said the suspicious soldier, "have you not noticed that every time he orders us to march forward we invariably encounter the enemy?"

Executions in Europe.

Methods of putting criminals to death vary. In Europe the guillotine is the mode of execution most generally employed. Austria, Holland and Portugal are the only other countries besides Great Britain where criminals are hanged. In Oldenburg they are shot, in Brunswick they are beheaded, and in Spain they are garroted.—London Telegraph.

"WORKER" IS SEIZED.

Authorities In Dublin Suppress Jas. Larkin's Organ.

DUBLIN, Dec. 5. — The machines in the printing office of The Irish Worker newspaper have been dismantled, and the operators have been taken to the police station. The men are not considered to be under arrest, however.

This would indicate the beginning of Government measures against the publication of seditious newspapers.

The Irish Worker is the weekly organ of the Larkinites, and is actively hostile to the recruiting propaganda of John Redmond.

Spoiled Emden's Plan.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5.—(Via London.) — Information made public here yesterday indicated that when the German cruiser Emden was at last run down by the Australian cruiser Sydney, she was preparing to undertake the most daring and destructive of her many adventures.

Geo. F. Pearce, the Commonwealth Minister of Defence, announced in the Senate yesterday that when the Sydney intercepted the Emden the transports bearing the Australian and New Zealand expeditionary force were within 100 miles of the German cruiser.

Youths of 18 Summoned.

BORDEAUX, Dec. 5.—(Via Paris.) —The 300,000 youths of 18 years in France, who normally would begin service in the army in October, 1916, are, by Government decree, to be called to present themselves for examination beginning on the 20th of this month. Their military training probably will begin next March. Should the necessity arise these youths probably could be sent to the fighting line next July.

The Joy of Good Health Is Now Experienced

Nervousness, Dizzy Spells and Sleeplessness Are Now a Thing of the Past.

This is a cheerful letter from Mrs. Peacock, and it should bring joy to the heart of many a reader of this paper. Dizzy spells and sleeplessness are symptoms of exhausted nerves, and are the bugbear of many women, who do not know just what treatment to use.

MRS. PEACOCK.

You can read Mrs. Peacock's letter and take courage, for she has proven that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a complete cure for these troubles. So pleased was she with the results obtained that she wants other women to know about this food cure.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 23 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states:—"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

In a more recent letter Mrs. Peacock writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good, and I would be pleased to tell everybody so."

In nearly every issue of this paper you will find letters about Dr. Chase's medicines. If this one does not describe your case watch for others or write to us. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Kitchener Did Not Make Statements To Cobb, Says War Office.

LONDON, Dec. 5. — The official press bureau yesterday issued a statement denying the authenticity of an alleged interview with Lord Herbert Kitchener by Irvin Cobb, in the latest issue of The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia.

The statement by the official news bureau declares that it is surprising that it should have been regarded as possible that the chief of the War Office would use such expressions as are attributed to him in the alleged interview, parts of which were cabled to London and appeared here yesterday.

The denial is made in the name of the War Office, which is equivalent to a personal denial by Lord Kitchener.

The official press bureau last night issued the following statement on the subject:

"With reference to a so-called interview with Mr. Cobb: Although Lord Kitchener saw Mr. Cobb a few minutes Oct. 21, nothing in the nature of a special interview was granted, and the remarks attributed to the Secretary of State for War are imaginary."

READING BETWEEN LINES.

Salandra's Statement Means Italy Is Ready to Fight, Says Politician.

ROME, Dec. 5.—Many members of Parliament consider that the statement of Premier Salandra in Parliament Thursday, in which he advised that Italy maintain her attitude of watchful and armed neutrality, and made a reference to what he termed the just aspirations of Italy, together with a demonstration by the members, means that Italy is now ready.

Deputy Labriola, a prominent member, summarized the opinion of the sitting by saying that "One word more from Salandra would have meant a declaration of war."

Yesterday's session of the Chamber of Deputies was occupied with speeches by two Socialist and two Republican members. The addresses, all of which were strongly anti-Austro-German, dealt with Premier Salandra's statement in Parliament on Thursday, in which he advised that Italy maintain her attitude of watchful and armed neutrality.

Turkey's Holy War Proclaimed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — Official advices of the proclamation by Turkey of a holy war against Servia and her allies were received at the State Department yesterday from Minister Vohicka at Bucharest, Roumania, who received his information from the Servian Minister in the Roumanian capital. The Servian Government has announced that all treaties between Turkey and Servia are inoperative.

Doctor's Body Found.

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 5.—The body of Dr. M. D. Sudworth, aged 25, of Ingersoll, was found lying in the ditch on Waterloo road, about 11.30 Thursday night, by Harry and William Galbraith, about a mile south of Sleeman's brewery. Dr. Orten was notified. The body was identified yesterday by R. W. Waterhouse. The whole affair is a mystery and an inquest has been ordered.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

A POINT NOT GENERALLY KNOWN

Christian People Humbugged—Dignified False Pretense — Christ's Kingdom Thereby Injured—Shackles of Ignorance and Superstition Forged—The Start of the Error—Its Motive—Its Bad Effects—The Proper Remedy.

New York City, Dec. 6. — Pastor Russell, speaking to-day at New York City Temple, W. 63rd Street and Broadway, took for his text, "Cry aloud spare not; show My people their transgression." (Isaiah 58:1.) He prefaced his address with some remarks respecting the unpleasant duty implied in his text, declaring that he would far rather speak only smooth, pleasant things to everybody and concerning everybody. The Pastor certainly has the happy faculty of stating pungent truths in sympathetic language well supported by kindly tones. He speaks from the heart and carries conviction as respects his sincerity. He said in part:

Every unbiased student of the Bible surely will agree that our Redeemer and His disciples manifested great humility, in contrast with the clergy of our day and of centuries past. None of our Lord's disciple were Reverends, Right Reverends, Most Reverends—none of them were clergymen. They knew nothing whatever about the distinction between clergy and laity which subsequently developed. Jesus indeed did receive the title of Lord, or Master, Teacher; but with great humility He pointed out that His teaching was not His own, that He spoke the Message of the Father. Similarly the Apostles glorified God, and declared themselves "men of like passions with yourselves." Jesus taught His disciples that they should not be self-seeking, that they should not seek the honor which cometh from men, but only that which cometh down from Above. "One is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren," was His way of forewarning us against the error which afterward divided the Lord's people into clergy and laity.

It is but reasonable to assume that many Christian ministers have neither studied deeply nor thought carefully on this subject, but have merely followed the beaten path of their various denominations without inquiring for the Divine authority of their ordination, titles, and honors of men as titled ecclesiastics. But our sympathy should not hinder us from freeing our minds of the shackles of ignorance and superstition nor hinder us from helping others to the liberty wherewith Christ makes free.

The persecutions of the Second and Third Centuries undoubtedly tended to keep the Church humble and free from hypocrites, but the prosperity dating from the beginning of the Fourth Century had a bad effect. Many of the bishops, according to Church history, neglected to follow the example of Jesus and the Apostles, and became lords, dignitaries in the Church, seeking to impress the worldly, especially the rulers, with their importance.

In the year 330 A.D., under the patronage of the Emperor Constantine, all Christians who acknowledged the Nicene Creed were not only protected but honored, the Emperor seeking to strengthen his political power thereby. By him the Bishop of Rome was granted special honor as a chief amongst the Bishops, this also suiting the Emperor's plans of making Rome the centre of both political and religious influence. In the century following, the power of the Bishops was greatly increased by various false doctrines which gradually crept in. The doctrine of a fiery Hell of torture was one of these, followed later by a theory that members of the true Church would never be sent to it, but instead to Purgatory, the tortures of which would furnish them a second chance for purification and preparation for Heaven.

The clergy gradually grasped more and more of power and money for services in this world and beyond. Every marriage not performed by them would not be valid. Those married otherwise would be living in sin. The theory of infant damnation made the ministers additionally necessary to sprinkle the babes, to preserve them from eternal torture. Then followed classification of sins and the fixing of penalties and arranging for masses for the sooner deliverance of the culprit from Purgatory. Rites and ceremonies connected with the dead were also declared necessary. All of these served to bind the people to the clergy, and more and more separated them from the simplicity of the Gospel and the example of Jesus and the Apostles, to which we are seeking to return, but are fought at every step by ignorance and superstition within and without.

Favored by conditions prevailing, the Bishop of Rome became more and more prominent, while the Roman Empire gradually went to pieces. The Bishop of Rome took to himself the title Pontifex Maximus, which signifies "highest religious dignitary," a title which previously had been held by the Caesars. Another step in the wrong direction, which thoroughly separated the clergy from the laity, was the doctrine still held by the Church of Rome; namely, that the clergy alone constitute the Church, and that the common people are the "children of the Church." Many Catholics are not aware of this fact, but think that they are members of the Catholic Church. They forget that while they are privileged to call the unordained students by the title Brother, all the ordained number must be recognized as Father.

The year 800 found Pope Leo III. in great honor, and the Church flourishing and making higher claims than ever before; namely, that the Church became at that time the Kingdom of God. Catholics still hold that the Millennium, or Christ's thousand-year Reign, began that year. They claim that the Popes, each in turn, represent Christ in His Throne; hence the declaration that the Popes are Christ's Vicegerent—reigning instead of Him.

When the Pope represented Christ, the Cardinals as an order were brought in to represent the highest order of the Church in glory; then Archbishops, Bishops and the lower clergy—all separated from the people by a great gulf—the Clergy, the Elect of God, holding the power and the destinies of the laity in their control; the laity dependent upon the clergy for baptism, marriages, funerals, holy candles, holy water, consecrated burying-ground, and finally, an entrance into Purgatory instead of into eternal torment, with the ultimate hope of rescue to glory and with assistances by the way obtainable through the office of the Mass.

I am discussing the Church of Rome only, because for a time there was no other. Indeed, for a time it was dangerous to even suggest another. The Pope and the College of Cardinals, representing the Almighty, instructed the people who should be their kings and princes; and, as a matter of course, they were instructed to be obedient only to such as recognized the papal power, and they were absolved from obedience to others.

Thus the separation amongst Christ's followers of clergy and laity was established for centuries before the Protestant denominations of today were born. It was but natural that the Protestants should more or less copy the practices and many of the doctrines with which they had been familiar from childhood. The Greek, Armenian and Anglican Churches copied very closely the "Mother." They still preserve the likeness in many respects, even though they came out of her as Protestants and have sought to return to the Bible teachings and methods. But power and ceremony are difficult matters to get rid of. In consequence we see everywhere forms of godliness without seeing much manifestation of its power. We see much lip reverence without much manifestation of the Spirit of Christ.

Protestants are much confused respecting the papal claim that Christ's Kingdom has been set up. They, of course, deny that the Popes are Christ's vicegerent. Nevertheless, they have followed Papacy's lead in telling earthly kingdoms and rulers that they are part and parcel of Christ's Kingdom — "Christendom." They send their chaplains with the armies and navies of these kingdoms, They receive financial support and recognition from them, and call upon the civil power to suppress so-called heretics, refuse them license to preach, etc. Thus they follow closely in the footsteps of their Mother. Altogether these false doctrines are surely responsible, not only for many of the wars of the past, but also for the present European war.

We may assume that some of the clergy, Catholic and Protestant, are thoroughly confused and honestly doing what they believe to be the Lord's will in these matters. But, on the other hand, we are bound to assume that in the light of our day there are thousands of ministers who are not deceived—who know full well that the world is ruled, not by Christ and His teachings, but by self-seeking kings, princes, nobles, financiers, politicians, etc.

But knowing these things, seeing the people in ignorance, what have the ministers of so-called "Christendom" done to open the eyes of the people to the truth on this subject—to tell them that these kingdoms are not Christ's kingdoms in any sense of the word? How few of them ever even refer to the Second Coming of the Redeemer! How few of them have ever pointed their people to St. Peter's words respecting the glorious Times of Restitution which Messiah's Kingdom will usher in: "Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the Heavens must retain until the Times of Restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy Prophets since the world began."—Acts 3:19-21.

Policy, self-seeking, lack of candor, are certainly manifest in the course of the preachers of all denominations. Now as the hour of their judgment approaches they deserve our sympathy. They have held on so long to the errors of the past that they are ashamed now to turn about and make confession. Many of them think that the safer course is to "bluff" the people. But it will not do. The light is shining too brightly for that. Knowledge is increasing every moment. Many in the pews are as well educated as the occupant of the pulpit, and decline to be any longer fed on chaff and wind. Hence the complained-of decline in church attendance.

In an endeavor to intimidate their people, to hinder them from hearing me and from reading my books entitled "Studies in the Scriptures," the preachers are going to absurd lengths. They have tried all kinds of slander and villification, but still the common people are hearing gladly in all parts of the world the Message of the Bible—its anti-clerical Message. They have published me as a heretic, only to find that the most thoughtful and intelligent of their people realize that their creeds are unsatisfactory and are the more anxious to know what I have to tell them respecting the Bible Message of God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power, operating through Jesus now for the blessing of the Church, and during the Millennium for the blessing of the remainder of the world.

I am glad that they are making known that I am not an ordained minister of their kind—as St. Paul says, I am not ordained of man or by man, but by the Lord. (Galatians 1:1.) In mentioning ordination these ministers are counting on the ignorance of their people on the subject. Let me make the subject plain. The Church of Rome does not recognize the ordination of any Protestant minister. Until quite recently the Church of England recognized the ordination of the Church of Rome and the Greek Church, but did not recognize the ordination of Lutherans, Methodists, Presbyterians, etc.; nor do the others recognize each the Baptist ordination. If a preacher goes from one denomination to another, it is not requisite that he change his mind at all respecting the creeds, however different, but it is necessary that he be re-ordained by the denomination which he enters. As I refuse to be identified with any of these earthly churches, I, of course, do not wish an ordination or an authority to preach from any of them.

Nothing in the Bible gives authority for the organization of any of these churches. The Church which Jesus founded, and of which the Apostles were the inspired teachers, is Scripturally declared to be "the Church of the First-borns, whose names are written in Heaven." This Church is joined only upon God's terms, and the names are written or blotted out only by the Redeemer Himself. On its roll-call we doubt not there are saintly persons who are members of all denominations; but their earthly membership, contrary to the Scriptures, does not promote them in the Lord's esteem; but, on the contrary, they are hindered thereby.

According to the Bible, whoever joins the Church of Christ does so by joining Christ Himself—by surrendering his will to the Master—by becoming His pupil and follower—by exercising faith in Him—by being begotten of the Holy Spirit—by cultivating the fruits and graces of that Spirit—by thus being made ready for the inheritance of the saints—the Millennial Kingdom. These, as the Apostle declares are children of God and, if children, then heirs—heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ their Lord, if so be that they suffer with Him, that they may be also glorified together—in His Kingdom, now soon to be manifested.—Romans 8:17.

The Church of Christ, according to the Bible has an earthly association, but it is not a bondage. It has no creed but the Bible. All of its members are brethren. None of them are lords. None of them are of the clergy class. None lord it over God's heritage. In their voluntary association as brethren some are recognized as Elder brethren, and are given more particular charge in the Church by the stretching forth of the hands of the Congregation in voting for them and by the subsequent co-operation of the Holy Spirit assisting them in the service of the Ecclesia. There are also Deacons, or servants in the Ecclesia who specially attend to other matters. There are also, according to the Scriptures, some who may be recognized as Pastors, or shepherds of the flock, under the great Chief Shepherd and Bishop of their souls, the Lord Jesus Christ.

So far from separating God's people into clergy and laity, the Scriptures insist that only One is the Master, that all others of the Lord's people are brethren. They are all ordained of God to be Divine ambassadors, to speak forth the Word of God as they have talent and opportunity. The qualifying ordination set forth in the Scriptures is that they shall have received the begetting of the Holy Spirit. This is said to be "an unction from the Holy One"—an anointing.

This is typified in the holy anointing oil used by the Jewish high priest. As that anointing was poured upon the head of the priest and ran down to the skirts of his garment, so in antitype the anointing of all the members of the true Church took place in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was anointed of the Father to be the Bishop of our souls, to be the Head over the Church which is the Royal Priesthood. He is our great High Priest. His ordaining and anointing is the one which extends to all the members of His Church, giving the humblest of the Lord's people full ordination of God to speak His Word in His name and to expound the same to the extent of his talents and opportunities.

This ordination came upon Jesus at the time of His baptism, and was recognized as coming to the Church at Pentecost and has been with the Church ever since. Whoever, therefore, comes into the true Church of Christ by union with the living Head comes under the Scriptural ordination. What was prophesied of the Head is applicable to all His members; namely, "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me; because He hath anointed Me to preach good tidings unto the meek; to bind up the broken-hearted; to declare the acceptable year of the Lord."

Could Not Get Rid of Them Until She Used

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

When the blood becomes impure the first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of the various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, abscesses, ulcers, etc., and the only treatment you can use is some sort of a good blood cleansing remedy which will put the blood into a perfect condition, and thus eliminate all the different poisons from the system which cause these different eruptions to occur.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters. All we ask you is to try it and be convinced. Thousands have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but praise for its curative powers

Mrs. John Fitzgerald, Plantagenet, Ont., writes: "I am one woman who cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was covered with boils and could not get rid of them. I was advised by a friend to try B.B.B. which I did, and I can truthfully say that it completely cured me. I have never had a sign of a boil since."

See that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as there are many imitations placed on the market which are said to be "just as good."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SERBS LOVE BELGRADE

THEY ARE INTENSELY PROUD OF THEIR HISTORIC CAPITAL.

City Which Is Now In Austrian Hands Is Divided Into the New and Old Parts—In the Latter Is the Business Area, While In the Former Are the Public Buildings of the Country.

The Servians are intensely proud of Belgrade, their capital, of its historic traditions and its fine modern development, but so far as its vulnerability to Austrian attack is concerned they have few illusions.

Belgrade is, roughly speaking, divided into two parts, the older part, built during the Turkish domination, lying low on the banks of the river, and the new, modern part, of which not only all Servians but all Serbs as well are intensely proud, lying on the hill back of the fortress. In the low part of the town is centered much of the commercial life of the city. The railroad and steamer traffic is centered there, and the custom house and many warehouses and factories are also located there.

The new part is laid out in broad well paved streets lined with fine buildings six and seven stories high which, since the new spirit of development has seized on the country, have replaced the small, low buildings that were first erected. The city has a comprehensive tramway system which extends far beyond its limits in several directions and connects with it many charming and flourishing suburbs.

The public buildings of Belgrade are not imposing. The university and the theatre are near one another on the principal square. The post and telegraph building is near by and, like most of the other government buildings, is entirely inadequate to house the business that is transacted there. For years there have been plans to build a new one, but the strict economy of the state has always prevented.

The royal palace is on the Avenue Prince Milan, one of the chief streets, and is not especially imposing. It is a part of the residence of the Servian kings for many years, but the building in which King Alexander and Queen Draga were killed was torn down and has never been replaced. At the other end of the plot where this palace stood a fine new palace is being erected for the use of the crown prince.

The Parliament building is so small and inconspicuous—it has but two stories—that only the flag flying over it gives an indication of its uses. The buildings of the various ministries are all very modest. That of the Foreign Department is just beyond the palace and has the appearance of an office building. The entrance is directly from the sidewalk up a narrow flight of stone stairs, and there is little formality about procedure there. An old man receives the visitor's card and shows him into a plain little reception room, from which a green baize door leads to the office of the Prime Minister.

The people of Belgrade are not rich, and there is a conspicuous lack of display, especially in official circles. Automobiles are comparatively few, and so are fine turnouts of any kind. There are very few footmen and few men servants of any sort, for the position of woman is clearly defined, and men do not assume her privileges.

But as there are few rich people, so are there fewer very poor ones. The people all over the city are well and comfortably dressed, the shops are bright and filled with new and attractive goods. The people are gay and light hearted and are great frequenters of the street corner cafes, each one of which has a gypsy band. The midday siesta is an ironclad rule in Belgrade, and everything, from the biggest bank to the smallest shop, shuts up between 12 and 2. The business of the day is over at five o'clock, and the entire town turns out to promenade and take the air. They stroll up and down the two principal streets, filling sidewalks and pavement alike, lingering at the cafes for Turkish coffee and for tall glasses of water, which seems a more popular drink than anything else.

By the sunset hour every one has reached the alemegdah, a park built on the hill right back of the old fortress. It is beautifully laid out with trees, flowers and statues of Servian poets and painters and commands from its fine terrace, still called by its old Turkish name, the Slope of Uraama, a splendid view over the grey waters of the joined rivers to the distant white towers and green trees of Semlin and the great Hungarian plains.

ALMOST FAINTED IN THE STREET

In Daily Fear Of Death—Until "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd, 1913.

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. One day my eye caught a billboard of "Fruit-a-tives" and I said to myself "if Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it is good enough for me". I bought some. After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself wonderfully improved. In a short time longer, I cured myself entirely. My case was no light one, either, Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear that it would get around my heart and kill me. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion".

Largest Stone Cut by Human Hands.

What is said to be the largest stone ever cut by human hands lies in an abandoned quarry in Syria near the ruins of Baalbek. The stone is 75 feet long, 18 feet high and 15 feet wide. Its weight is estimated to be 1,500 tons. The greatest mystery is how similar stones almost as large were raised to a great height to form part of the nearby ruins.

Dress Hints.

Vaseline rubbed into patent leather boots or shoes twice a week will prevent them from cracking.

When pressing velvet lay the piece to be pressed face down on another piece of velvet; then it will not become at all glossy.

Sponge a shiny suit or dress with clean hot vinegar and press in usual manner. No odor of vinegar will remain, all the "shine" caused by wear will disappear, and the garment will look like new. The vinegar leaves no stain.

Wellington's War Plans.

Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied:

"They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well until it gets broken, and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong I tied a knot and went on."

Making Good.

"Wake up, cull!" says the burglar, shaking the man by the shoulder.

The man wakes up and jumps up too.

"Wha-what do you wa-want?" he asks.

"I went troo dis house las' week an' got $10 an' a bum gold watch," explains the burglar, "an' de papers said dat you said your loss was $100 an' jooiry to de amount o' five or six hundred."

"Ye-yes."

"Well, make good, sport. Me partner dat was watchin' on de outside made me cough up de difference between what I got an' what you said I got. Now you got to make good. You can't beat me dat way."—Judge.

The Soft Answer.

Snooker (fiercely) — Your fowls have been over the wall and scratched my garden.

Chanks (cooly)—Well, there's nothing extraordinary in that. It's their nature to scratch. Now, if your garden were to come over the wall and scratch my fowls it would be extraordinary and something worth communicating.—London Answers.

The Russet Backed Thrush.

The russet-backed thrush is very fond of fruit, but its partiality for the neighborhood of streams keeps it from frequenting orchards far from water. It is most troublesome during the cherry season. Beetles constitute the largest item of the bird's food, ants and caterpillars coming next.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS.

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

Troubles of a Prophet.

In a certain town the local forecaster of the weather was so often wrong that his predictions became a standing joke to his no small annoyance, for he was very sensitive. At length, in despair of living down his reputation, he asked headquarters to transfer him to another station.

A brief correspondence ensued.

"Why," asked headquarters, "do you wish to be transferred?"

"Because," the forecaster promptly replied, "the climate doesn't agree with me."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Father's Good Point.

Little Elizabeth had been offended in some way. She went off into a corner and turned her back on the family.

"I'm mad," she exclaimed sulkily. "I wish I didn't have any father or mother."

"That's wrong, dear," said her mother. "We are the best friends you have."

"Well," said Elizabeth doubtfully, "I don't mind having father. He doesn't hang around here much, but I'm getting awful tired of the rest of you."—New York Times.

A Simple Safety Device.

The hammer is a useful tool, but its use is not quite free from danger to the user or from injury to materials. The flat, highly polished surface is likely to glance off the nail unless the blow is squarely delivered, and when the nail is of cast metal its head often flies off and inflicts quite severe injuries.

One firm, says Chambers' Journal, had innumerable accidents from this cause, and some of the men were permanently injured. Thereupon the managers tried hammer heads with scored faces as an experiment. Owing to the success of the experiment the polished face hammer has been abolished in that firm's factory, except for special classes of work.

Even thus Alfonso, suddenly made known,
Falls on his foe confiding enemies—
Wounds, kills and resolutely casts them down;
For life alone the Moorish monarch flies,
With sudden panic utterly o'erthrown;
Only to follow him his army tries:
While they who had so shaken this vast host
Counted no more than sixty horse at most.
—Camoens, "Os Lusiadas," Canto III., 67.

PROBABLY the least understandable soldier of the world is the man who wields sword, fires musket or serves cannon for the republic of Portugal. He is the military oddity of the last eight centuries. Not that his bravery, his valor, his endurance and his skill as a fighting factor have anything uncertain in their quality to make them as strange. The oddity, rather, lies in the willingness—in fact, the gallant eagerness—of the Portuguese battler to face death for so little in return.

Almost all other nations of Europe, big and little, have been steeped in wars, plots for the expansion of their frontiers. Portugal has sent her soldier to war time and again, but from the hour that her little oblong strip of territory attained its full area between the latitude parallels of 36 and 42 north, the acquisitions and rewards of Portuguese prowess have been confined to other continents thousands of miles distant. With the possible exception of Belgium and Switzerland there is not a nation of Europe that has not sent forth its uniformed battler at some period or other with the distinct purpose of grabbing more land. The soldier has partaken of the ambitious projects of his rulers and his goal of glory has been the gathering in of more territory. Even little Holland sent her army into Belgium in 1830 to try to keep her grip on the whole of the Low Countries.

This is where the Portuguese soldier is noteworthily odd. He has fought and fought, but never for an inch of additional European ground. His expenditure of battling force has been equal, in proportion, to that of any other fighting man of the world, yet he has been patriotically satisfied with the permanently limited European area of 35,000 square miles. He has been spurred on to the highest flights of martial achievement; has been shipped thousands of miles east to India and west to Brazil to fight and fall; has been used with marvelous efficiency as a hybrid battler of sea and shore; but he has never needed the prod of European expansion to make him one whit more or less formidable. He has remained little and fought big.

Wherever there is a glory page for another European soldier in history you will find the spunky Portuguese fighter close by as a hard whacking ally or enemy—and he has swung round the war circle in both capacities from the shores of his own Atlantic to the retreat of Napoleon from Moscow. Small as his country has been in size, nothing of large military moment has occurred during several centuries without a Portuguese soldier mixed up in it. He has received very little definite credit from history. His record has to be specially "dug" out of musty tomes. But when he is brought to light the battle beams reflect a brightness from his bayonet fully equal to that which glances from the points of the more loudly heralded fighting men of mightier nations.

Great Britain the puissant has long had an admiration and respect for the pugnacious Portuguese. During the weeks of conjecture as to what the likely action of the little republic would be in the present great conflict old treaties between Portugal and Great Britain have been drawn from dusty archives and discussed at great length. These treaties reveal that Portugal has ever been an ancient ally of Great Britain. Do these treaties still hold? There has never been a war between Great Britain and Portugal to abrogate them. Some of these agreements between the two nations call for reciprocal succors in time of war. True, these state documents were designed to afford mutual protection and offensive and defensive alliance against France and Spain at the time they were drawn. But the treaties also specified that such succor should be rendered to aid in fighting the enemies generally of either nation. Will these old treaties serve now?

If the treaties still have force and effect there is not the slightest doubt that Great Britain might, within reason, ask her ancient ally to aid her with an armed contingent. The wording makes it imperative that Portuguese soldiers and Portuguese ships shall be at the disposal of Great Britain in time of her trouble. The first of these treaties dates back nearly six centuries, and the Portuguese fighting man was in good trim at the time to be of assistance to his bigger neighbor across the Channel.

At London on June 16, 1373, a treaty of friendship, peace and alliance was made between England and Portugal, and it is from this date that the close war compact and commercial intercourse between the two nations are reckoned. It was stipulated that each nation must furnish the other, when it could do so without injury to itself, "certain proportion of armed troops, archers, slingers, ships and galleys, to the number that he be able to spare." At Windsor, May 9, 1386, another treaty was signed between King Ferdinand of Portugal and Richard II. of England, which contains in part this text arranging for furnishing of Portuguese soldiers to England or English soldiers to Portugal:—

"Further, it is provided by the consent of both, that, if at any future period, either of the aforesaid Kings or their heirs, need the succor or support of the other, and duly apply to the other party for such assistance, then the party so applied to shall be obliged to afford such help and succor to the requiring party, in so far as is compatible with the dangers threatening himself, his kingdom, lands, dominions or subjects."

Another similar treaty was made between the same two nations January 20, 1642, and still another July 20, 1654. According to the terms of a treaty made April 28, 1660, Portugal was allowed to levy from Great Britain when she needed succor 2,500 horses and not more than 12,000 men, which number was to be divided in equal ratio levies from England, Ireland and Scotland. A treaty signed May 10, 1703, made it obligatory on Great Britain to furnish 12,000 men to Portugal in the war with France and Spain. Portugal, in turn, was bound to make vigorous war and furnish to Great Britain ten ships of war. Another treaty between the two countries, dated January 19, 1827, again arranged for the service of British troops in Portugal and reciprocal aid. So that in all of these instances big Great Britain thought it well worth her while to seek out and enlist the soldier of little Portugal on her side.

While a brave array of kings, princes, generals, admirals, navigators and discoverers magnifies the name and fame of Portugal, there is one soldier in particular whose fateful star shines far more brilliantly than all the others. Luis de Camoens is the name of this mighty Portuguese. The immortal epic "Os Lusiadas" or "The Lusiads" is his work, and its translation into the principal languages of the world testifies to the genius of the writer. Many have rated him second only to Shakespeare. And while his pen has made him of memory imperishable, with his sword he also performed mighty deeds. He is the ideal of the patriot and the poet. His own life was as militant as that of the wonderful men he painted. Romance never held a man more in close keeping than he.

Camoens was born at Lisbon in 1525. He was educated at the University of Coimbra and acquired there a profound knowledge of Greek and Latin mythology. He became somewhat of a favorite through his poetical powers at the Lisbon court and fell in love with a great lady in attendance about the throne—the Donna Catherine de Athaide, held highly in regard by the queen. Her friends indignantly inveighed against the poet's suit and had him exiled to Morocco. There he joined a force in battle against the Moors. Historians have written of his desperate bravery and doughty deeds, single handed as well as leader. Once he was surrounded with no less than eight of the enemy, but valiantly cut his way out, losing his right eye.

Still unable to banish the image of his sweetheart from his thoughts, he volunteered for soldier service in India, and set sail for the East in 1553. He remained more than sixteen years in Asia serving in a Red Sea campaign, and at the capture of Muscat under Dom Fernando de Menezes. He was thrown into prison at Goa for peculation in 1558, although he was in poverty. A new Indian Viceroy, Braganza, arrived later and released him. With this prince he served bravely and with great distinction at the capture of Damao. Later he added to his military reputation in various engagements under the new Governor General, the Count of Redondo. He started home in 1569, but was thrown into an African prison at Mozambique for debt. Some old friends en route to India paid his debt and finally in 1570, full of battle scars, and with nothing in pocket but the manuscript of his "Lusiads," he reached Lisbon.

The publication of the great poem brought him a pension of $100 a year. His last years were miserable, his devoted Javan slave begging for him at night in the streets of Lisbon. He died in the common hospital of Lisbon in 1579. His name is now honored among all Portuguese speaking people as that of an ideal soldier and an unsurpassable poet. The Camoens Celebration of 1880 brought to Lisbon from lands many thousands of miles apart tens of thousands of worshippers at the shrine of his genius and patriotic achievements.

The Portuguese soldier boasts a distinct lineage of battling performance as far back as his first regal ruler, Affonso Henriques, who carved his way from the rank of Count of Portugal to king of the same country. After nearly sixty years of incessant fighting he bequeathed to his son Sancho in 1185 a powerful little kingdom, whose fighting fame had already spread throughout all Christendom. Under such a leader the battling man of the new nation had his work cut out for him, but he made no demur. He was led against Spain for ten years, until the independence of Portugal was acknowledged. The next twenty-five years of the reign of Affonso was one long fight with the Moors, who at that period were in power on the Spanish peninsula.

In May, 1139, Affonso gathered an army comprising the chivalry of Portugal among the nobility and the stoutest of all the Portuguese commoners. He boldly crossed the Tagus and entered the old Moorish province of Alkast Ibn Abi Dacies. Ismar, the emir, endeavored to collect an army of resistance, but the progress of Affonso was too swift. At Ourique, twenty-five miles south of Beja, the Portuguese soldier met his enemy July 23, 1139, and one of the famous battles of history was fought. Some historians have it that 200,000 Mahommedans were slain, with five of their kings. These kings were probably minor Moorish rulers. Camoens, alluding to this great battle in the "Lusiads," declares that the five inescutcheons on the shield of Portugal have reference to the slaying of these five Moorish monarchs. The chronicler tells how the common soldier in this battle performed deeds of individual and collective valor that made the fighting aristocrat envious. But some of the Portuguese knights did themselves great credit, one troop of sixty horse putting a reserve army of one of the five kings to flight. Affonso then led the soldier of Portugal against the city of Santarem, which he took by storm, defeating the famous Mohammedan warrior Abu Zekeria, March 15, 1147. Lisbon, destined to be the Portuguese capital, was taken the following year. By 1148 the fighter of Portugal had made himself master of the whole of the southern Beira and Estremadura. Affonso desired but one more triumph—the capture of the wealthy city of Alcacer do Sal. In 1152 the Portuguese soldier was led against its walls. He was beaten back. He biided and brooded over his defeat. In 1157 the Portuguese fighting man tried it again, and again was he hurled down from the walls he attacked. He gritted his teeth, buried his dead, sharpened his sword and returned to the attack. On June 28, 1158, the city was taken by assault.

At the great battle of Salado, fought October 29, 1340, Alfonso XI., King of Castile, sent his wife to beg King Alfonso for the assistance of a contingent of Portuguese soldiers. The request was granted, and Abul-Hasan, the King of Morocco, who had crossed the Straits to attack the Christian kingdom, found himself confronted by the Portuguese king and his fighting men. At this battle Alfonso won the soubriquet of "the Brave," and the reputation of his soldiers increased everywhere.

Ten pieces of ordnance were used for the first time by the Portuguese at the battle of Aljubarrota, August 14, 1385, when John I., "the Great," utterly defeated the King of Castile. At this battle 500 of the famous English archers took part, having been sent to Portugal's aid by her ally. But the Portuguese soldier also won laurels that are still sung, and the independence of his country from Spain was reassured.

Prince Henry of Portugal, also called "the Navigator," led the fighting men of Portugal to victory when he was barely twenty years of age. At the siege of the Moorish city of Ceuta, on the African coast, August 24, 1415, the battlers of the little kingdom performed prodigies of valor. This was the first conquest made by the Portuguese soldier outside of his European limits.

Affonso de Albuquerque was the greatest of all the Portuguese commanders who followed the famous discoverer Vasco da Gama to India. Vasco himself, although first and last a navigator and explorer, had to fight hard after he rounded the Cape of Good Hope, and sailed across the Indian Ocean. He commanded Calicut in 1502, landed at Cochin and Cannanore, fought the natives back into the interior, and established and strengthened Portuguese posts or factories at these places and in the adjacent districts.

But it was when Albuquerque came that the fighting qualities of the Portuguese soldier were to be thoroughly tested thousands of miles away from home. With 1,200 men this famous leader took the port of Goa, February 10, 1510. The King of Bijapur drove the Portuguese out on August 15, after fierce fighting. But Albuquerque shook back his fighting mane, addressed his soldiers, and on November 25 recarried the city by storm, slaying more than 2,000 Mohammedans. Following this came sharp fighting with the Malays and the founding of a factory at Malacca. Nearly contemporary with this period of Portuguese glory was the famous feat of arms performed by the commander Duarte Pacheco. With 900 Portuguese soldiers sent from home to garrison the fort built at Cochin he drove back a great army sent against him by the Zamorin or native ruler, and although the garrison was enfeebled by sickness, he made a sortie and in open battle defeated 5,000 of the enemy's best troops. This victory clinched the already enviable reputation acquired by the Portuguese in India as soldiers.

Dom Joan de Castro, the illustrious friend of the renowned St. Francis Xavier, is the soldier of Portugal distinguished above all others for the noble purity of his life. In 1545 he was appointed Viceroy of India. The Sultan of Turkey sent a fleet down the Red Sea to exterminate the Portuguese in India. When De Castro arrived at Goa he learned that Diu was being besieged by Mohammed III. of Gujerat, and after a gallant defence was in extremities. De Castro added the fresh Portuguese contingent he had brought with him to the troops available at Goa, and marched at once to relieve Diu. He defeated Mohammed in a pitched battle beneath the walls, the soldier of Portugal repeatedly engaging in single combat with the Turk and worsting him. This victory, the greatest won by the Portuguese in India, was followed by the annihilation of the enemy's fleet. The fame of De Castro and his soldiers rang through the East. De Castro died within three years in the arms of St. Francis Xavier, and with his last breath bequeathed his soldier's sword to his soldier son.

The Portuguese soldier was first sent across the Atlantic to the distant possession of Brazil in 1549. He had to fight the native tribes and when caught in small detachments suffered massacre time and again. But in all his fights and in his defence of the weak Portuguese settlements he was always brave and willing to die. In 1624 the Dutch West India Company started to drive the Portuguese out of South America. They captured the city of San Salvador, but in 1626, more soldiers arriving from home, the Portuguese retook the place. But the Dutch acquired domination under Count Maurice of Nassau and held it until 1645, when all of the Portuguese colonists rose in insurrection. Holland sent a number of fleets to Brazil, but could gain no fresh foothold in the country because of the fighting man of Portugal. In 1655 the Dutch gave up the attempt, abandoning all their acquisitions of the past quarter of a century.

One of the most romantic services in which the soldier of Portugal ever engaged was during the civil war between Affonso IV., "the Brave," and his son, Dom Pedro, afterward King Pedro, "the Severe." The war came about through the murder in the streets of Coimbra of Donna Ines de Castro, described by historians to be the most beautiful woman of Portugal of any age. King Affonso had her killed by three of his courtiers, January 7, 1355, in order that his son's infatuation for her might not lead to disturbance in the matter of the royal succession. Dom Pedro gathered an army at once when he heard of the murder. The King was compelled to do likewise. After several fight encounters, in which the principals did not participate, a peace was patched up, lasting until the death of Affonso, two years later. Then King Pedro's soldiers put down an uprising incited by the friends of the courtiers who had murdered the beautiful Ines, and he proceeded to wreak vengeance on all who had had a hand in the assassination. On April 28, 1357, King Pedro had the body of Ines exhumed, solemnly robed as a queen and crowned, while his soldiers filed by and did obeisance, later escorting the remains to the Convent of Alcobaca, where they were buried among Portuguese royalty.

On November 30, 1807, the soldiers of Napoleon entered Lisbon and later King John VI., then acting as Regent, fled aboard the British war vessels in the harbor and sailed to Brazil. The pusillanimous conduct of their ruler so exasperated the Portuguese that they welcomed and fraternized with the French. Junot, the French commander, disbanded the entire Portuguese army and garrisoned the more important cities and fortresses with French troops. Then he raised a powerful Portuguese force consisting of two divisions of infantry, two regiments of cacadores or light infantry, and three regiments of cavalry, which were sent immediately to France for service under the command of the Marquis of Alorna. This force was known as the Portuguese Legion and its title gradually became known with respect and admiration on all the big battlefields of Europe during the next eight years. It did gallant work for Napoleon throughout the French campaigns in Spain, Germany and Russia, and a good remnant of it fought under Bonaparte's standard at Waterloo.

When Wellington finally routed Junot at Vimeiro, August 21, 1808, the French were compelled to evacuate Portugal. Later, in order to establish law and order, the English government was asked to reorganize the Portuguese army. Major General Beresford was sent from London for that purpose. In the meantime the French had gained some success on the Spanish-Portuguese frontier and the people of Portugal felt the need of immediate action in the way of raising another army. Great Britain, willing to have Portugal for a base against Napoleon, hurried the army formation under Beresford. Ten thousand Portuguese soldiers were taken into English pay, with a number of English regimental officers to discipline and command them. A few Portuguese officers who had deserted the Portuguese Legion for patriotic reasons the better to serve their country were also placed in active commands.

In 1810 a number of Portuguese regiments were brigaded with the British and showed themselves well worthy of the mingling. At the famous battle of Busaco they fought side by side with their British comrades. The behavior of the Eighth Portuguese infantry is acknowledged by historians to have been both brave and gallant, their bayonet charge having been much commented upon. At the same time that Beresford was doing such effective army building thousands of the youth of Portugal were enlisting in the regular army or in the militia reserve.

Again, at the battle of Salamanca the attacks of the Portuguese brigades of the Arapiles, even though they failed, roused the warm admiration of the British soldiers and officers. This fight, July 22, 1812, put the Portuguese soldier to the severest kind of test and he was not found lacking. During the movements following the victory of Vittoria, in the Peninsular campaign, the soldiers of Portugal showed much courage and discipline that Wellington as well as the contemporary historians praised them highly.

At the fiercely fought battle of Borodino, a preliminary to the advance on Moscow, in 1812, two battalions of the Portuguese Legion placed in the brigade with Napoleon's old Italian campaign fighters exceeded the veterans in the fury and success of their attack.

And it must be remembered to his fighting credit and ability that while he was battling near at home he was also battling abroad under the French, and gaining honor at both places. It is not of record that these two commands of Portuguese troops ever encountered each other on the field, although for years fighting under flags that were opposed. At the time that Wellington's generals were raised to the peerage especial mention was made of the services of the Portuguese soldier, and as a consequence Beresford was made a lord.

WORRY.

Do not worry; eat three square meals a day; say your prayers; be courteous to your creditors; keep your digestion good; exercise; go slow and go easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but, my friend, these I reckon will give you a good lift.—Abraham Lincoln.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Man She Married

A Story Told at a Ladies' Luncheon Party.

By F. A. MITCHEL

A number of married ladies were at luncheon, and the hostess proposed that each give an account of how it came about that she married her husband. In order to set the mill a-rolling, she gave her own experience first. She had met the man she married at a dinner party. They were sitting side by side, and he upset a glass of red wine over a white silk dress she wore for the first time. At the moment of the accident she was recounting an incident, and simply applying her napkin to the saturated spot she went on with her recital as though nothing had happened. The man, who realized that he had ruined the dress and could not with propriety offer to replace it, was so much pleased with her consideration for his feelings that he finally asked her to marry him.

The next narration was that of a lady who met the man she married at a horse race. At the luncheon hour the hamper containing the refreshments was brought from the boot of the coach in which the party had gone to the races, and one of the gentlemen opening a bottle of champagne shut his eyes when the pop came, and the cork hit the narrator in the face. The man was so distressed at what he had done that to make up for it he married her.

"Come, Mrs. Dorrance," said the hostess after several such romances had been recounted, "give us your experience. I am quite sure the ladies will be pleased to hear it."

Mrs. Dorrance, being urged by the others, finally consented.

"I was traveling abroad," she began, "on my way from Thun to Paris. Those barbarous people over there refused to check my trunk farther than Berne. On arrival at Berne I tried to find the trunk and failed. A gentleman noticing my distress asked if he could be of service to me, and when I told him what was the matter he went with me to the other end of the station, where we found a man slowly wheeling a truck. On the truck was my trunk. The gentleman who was with me spoke French fluently. I don't know what he said, but he succeeded in getting the trunk to the train a minute before it started."

"I, too, met my husband while traveling abroad," said one of the ladies, sipping her wine.

"Oh, I didn't marry that gentleman," Mrs. Dorrance proceeded. "He was going east and I west. I thanked him for the service he had done me and made a rush for the train that was just starting. All the doors were locked, and I very foolishly stepped on to the footboard. In a few moments the train was going so fast that I dare not jump off, and I couldn't get into the compartment. I was clinging to a brass rod intended for persons to help them into the coach. A gentleman in the compartment reached out and tried to drag me inside through the window.

"I was more fleshy then than I am now, and the effort was a failure. I shall never forget the disappointed look on his face when he gave up trying to lift me."

"How lovely!" remarked a lady. "Was he dark or light?"

HE SNATCHED MY LIFE PRESERVER.

"I was too frightened to notice."

"But you did afterward."

"I never saw him again."

"Oh! Go on."

"There are several compartments in those foreign coaches. A gentleman got out through a window at the front end of the car I was on and made his way toward me. I felt a strong arm about my waist—oh, how relieved I felt!—and glancing upward looked into one of the finest, bravest faces I ever saw in a man."

"I have heard that Mr. Dorrance is very handsome," remarked one of the ladies, aside now, to another.

"The gentleman," continued the speaker, "held on to me, encouraging me with a deep, sonorous voice that did not indicate the slightest fear or excitement, and somehow, under his protecting care, I felt perfectly safe. We clung there together till the train had passed over about ten miles, when we reached a station. I got into the compartment to which I was clinging, and my preserver returned to his own. I did not see him again till the train reached Dijon, when he handed out a fat woman and five children, disappearing with them in the station. He was evidently married."

"How unfortunate!" exclaimed several ladies at once.

"Two romances nipped in the bud."

"I pursued my journey to Paris and thence to London, where I attempted to engage passage on the next steamer to sail for New York. Every room was taken, and I must be at home within ten days to attend the wedding of my dearest friend, for whom I was to be bridesmaid. So the day the steamer sailed I went aboard, trusting that some passenger might miss reaching the steamer on time or something like that, but when I went to the purser after we were off he told me there was not a vacant room, not even a vacant berth in the ship.

"A gentleman was standing at the purser's window waiting till I had got through with my questions and, hearing what I said and seeing my disappointment, raised his hat, not with the flourish of a parvenu, but to the manner born, and with a sympathetic expression in his glorious eyes said:

"'Will you do me the honor to accept my stateroom?'

"Of course I told him I wouldn't think of incommoding him and all that, but he insisted, and when the purser told him that one of the officers on the upper deck would, for a consideration, give up his room to him I accepted the sacrifice."

"This is going to be delightful," was whispered from one lady to another.

"I was seasick and didn't leave my room till one night—there was a dense fog—I lay listening to the whistle repeat 'toot-toot' every few moments. I heard a crash and felt the ship careen. I knew at once that there had been a collision and, springing up, put on what I could find, seized a life preserver and ran on deck. One of the first persons I met was the gentleman who had so kindly given up his room to me."

"Ah, he saved you! I have always heard you married a brave man."

"He did no such thing. He snatched my life preserver and ran away with it."

"Oh, dear! How disappointing!"

"I made my way to one of the boats. An officer was superintending its loading, keeping the men back and putting in the women and children. The man who had taken my life preserver, crazed with fear, tried to force his way into the boat, and the officer was obliged to threaten to shoot him to keep him away.

"The boat was filled before I could get into it, and I was obliged to seek safety in another direction. There were not boats enough for half those on board, and before I could get a place in one the last had been lowered and pulled away from the ship.

"Oh, that awful night! I looked about for something to float me—for the vessel was rapidly sinking—but could get only a steamer chair. It seemed to me not that the vessel was sinking, but that the water was rising to engulf me. Slowly it came up like a hungry monster stealing upon its prey; then suddenly the bow pitched, the stern rose, and I was engulfed in the cold black ocean.

"When I came up I was still clinging to the steamer chair. But I knew it would not serve me long, for I was rapidly becoming benumbed with the cold. I was losing consciousness when I felt a hand seize my arm and I was dragged on to an improvised raft. Then I felt a rope being placed around my body and knew that I was being hauled to my support. But there was no one on it with me. Presently I felt a pair of lips pressed against mine. I opened my eyes and saw a man's face. He had fiery red hair. That's all I gathered of his appearance—his hair was very red. Then I felt my raft slightly lightened. I knew that a man had pulled me on to the raft, and, since it would not bear two, he had got off into the water. I lost consciousness with the knowledge that he had given his life for mine."

"Poor fellow!" remarked the hostess.

"The wireless telegraph had called for help, and I was picked up by a boat from a steamer that had come to our rescue. As I was carried on to the deck from the boat who should I see standing with his hands in his pockets looking at me but"—

"Your preserver!"

"The red headed man. He saw me and blushed. Coming to me, he said, 'I beg your pardon for what I did.'

"'What do you mean?' I asked.

"'The kiss. I didn't expect to ever see you again.'

"'I know you didn't. You expected to give your life for mine. Come here.'

"He came to me shrinkingly as a child expecting a whipping. I threw my arms about his neck and cried with my lips against his."

"Ladies," said the hostess, the speaker having finished, "we don't need to ask who is Mr. Dorrance. It's plain enough."

The story teller did not deny the fact, and the party broke up.

"That was a very affecting story of Mrs. Dorrance's," said a lady to another.

"Very. But what a pity it was that he had a red head!"

BACKACHE WAS SO BAD
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

For backache, lame or weak back, one of the commonest and most distressing symptoms of kidney inaction, there is no remedy to equal Doan's Kidney Pills for taking out the stitches, twitches and twinges, limbering up the stiff back and giving perfect relief and comfort to all poor, suffering women who suffer so much from a weak lame back.

Mrs. Blackburn, R.R. No. 4, Fishburn, Alta., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep my floor. I was advised to try your kidney pills. Before I had used one box there was a great improvement as my back was much better. However, I kept on taking them until my back was completely cured. I highly recommend these pills for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COULD NOT SLEEP OR DO HOUSEWORK

The Grippe Left Mrs. Findley in Such a Weak, Nervous Condition That Her Case Was Serious.

Severy, Kans.—"The Grippe left me in a very weak, nervous, run-down condition. I was too weak to do my housework and could not sleep. I tried different medicines without benefit and finally one day read about Vinol, and decided to try it. In a very short time I could see an improvement and after taking two bottles I have a good appetite and my health and strength was restored.

"I think Vinol is a grand medicine and every weak, nervous, run-down woman should take it."—Mrs. GEO. FINDLEY, Severy, Kans.

Vinol creates strength because it contains all the medicinal tissue-building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh, healthy cods' livers. To this is added peptonate of iron, a most essential element for the blood, all dissolved in a delicious tonic native wine.

Vinol creates an appetite, aids digestion, makes pure healthy blood. In this natural manner it builds up the run-down, weak and nervous system, replaces weakness with strength. If Vinol fails to create strength after sickness we will return your money.

ARE YOU A MATHEMATICIAN?

Then Solve This Problem and Win a Prize of $25,000.

The largest single prize offered for a scientific discovery is still going begging. The prize has been open to competition for many years. At first sight the problem for a solution of which the prize is offered looks no more difficult than those with which high school students are familiar, but many of the greatest mathematicians in the world have tried to solve the problem and given it up in despair.

It is known as Fermat's problem. Nearly 300 years ago Fermat, one of the greatest mathematicians who ever lived, stated that the equation $x^n+y^n=z^n$ could not be satisfied by whole numbers when n is an odd prime number different from unity. The problem may be stated in another way—viz. that $x^n+y^n=z^n$ cannot be satisfied when n is any integer greater than 2. The one follows as a logical conclusion from the other.

The Academy of Sciences of Goettingen, Germany, offers a prize of 100,000 marks (about $25,000) for proof of this assertion. This is the prize that is going begging.

Dr. Joseph Bowden, professor of mathematics, Adelphi college, Brooklyn, asked by the Scientific American to state the precise conditions for winning the prize, writes that the Academy of Sciences will not consider any manuscripts sent in, but only proposed solutions printed and offered for sale as monographs, in books on mathematics or in mathematical periodicals. The award will not be made until two years after the publication of the memoir in order that mathematicians may have ample opportunity to test and criticise the solution.

The object of these restrictions is to save the academy from being flooded with undigested manuscrips. It will only consider solutions that have stood the test of some competent editor or publisher in the first place.

Shells Halt Letter Writing.

The following is from a British lance corporal, who was apparently irritated in his letter writing by interruption from the German guns:

"The Germans don't give us much time for letter writing. This one has been stopped six times already, just because the beggars were creeping too close, and I had to go out with my bayonet to chase them off before settling down again."

She Was Ashamed.

"I see you have been wearing my dresses again, Jane," said her mistress. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"I was, mum. Jack said if I wore such clothes again he would never speak to me any more."—Liverpool Mercury.

TO CLEAN UP POLITICS.

Ex-Premier Robinson of N. B. Chosen to Lead Liberals.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 5.—At a conference of Liberals, in which all parts of New Brunswick were represented, here yesterday, Hon. C. W. Robinson, ex-Premier of the province, was chosen as the leader of the party in the next elections. Hon. Mr. Robinson accepted in an optimistic speech.

Along with the choice of Hon. Mr. Robinson as leader, the conference adopted resolutions suggesting planks for his platform, which, if adopted, at a regularly called convention to come later, will take both the crown lands and the railroads out of politics and ensure a proper and efficient management of both.

The choice of Mr. Robinson as leader was made by a large committee, representing every county in the province, and was unanimously endorsed by the leaders at the conference at yesterday afternoon's session. Mr. Robinson, in accepting, declared it was time for regeneration, and that public men must be guided by the principles of right and justice, and no longer by the trickery of political expediency.

Banish the "Blues!"

If you have that depressed feeling it's more than likely that your blood is out of order—impoverished or poisoned.

There is only one thing that will alter your present condition—that's to restore your stomach to normal health and strength. For a weak or diseased stomach cannot make good blood. If your digestion is bad your food will not make the good blood which nourishes body, brain, heart and nerve.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to do its work naturally and properly. Stimulates the liver. The system is freed from poison. The blood is purified. Every organ is rejuvenated. Instead of the "Blues," you feel fit and strong, equal to any task or up to any pleasure.

This great remedy has proved its worth year after year for over forty years. Let it prove its worth to you. Sold by medicine dealers in tablet or liquid form or send 50c for trial box by mail.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo.

Follow Shackleton

Follow Shackleton's example. He is taking Bovril to the Antarctic because his men must get every ounce of nourishment out of their food.

You, too, can be sure of being nourished if you take Bovril.

In a single bottle of Bovril is packed away the nourishing value of many pounds of beef, and in addition Bovril has the peculiar property of making other foods more nourishing.

Even a plain meal yields much more strength and nourishment if you are taking Bovril.

GOLDSMITH'S BURIAL.

Why the Poet Was Not Laid to Rest In Westminster Abbey.

Every biographer of Goldsmith, writes Mr. Alvin Waggoner in Case and Comment, the lawyers' magazine, has given more or less credence to a strange story of the poet's entanglements with the law at his death. Unquestionably Goldsmith died heavily in debt. Sir Joshua Reynolds estimated the debts at $10,000.

According to the story, these debts disrupted the funeral arrangements. A public funeral in Westminster Abbey was designed, the pallbearers had been selected from the distinguished circle to which Goldsmith belonged, and then the rapidly maturing arrangements came to a sudden halt. The public funeral was given up without explanation. The burial took place simply, almost secretly, in the ground of the Temple Church. None of the old literary friends were present.

This strange change in procedure has been explained by the statement that friends feared that creditors would interfere with the public funeral by seizing the body, a right which it is alleged the creditors had under the law at that time.

This explanation has been reiterated until it is quite generally believed. As a matter of fact the story is without foundation, because the law of England never gave a right of this nature to creditors. The story has also been quite industriously circulated about Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who likewise died heavily in debt. Whatever it was that changed the arrangements of a public funeral for Oliver Goldsmith, it may be safely asserted as a legal proposition that there was not any likelihood that the dead body would be seized by creditors. Possibly Forster came near the truth when he said, "It was felt that a private ceremony would better become the circumstances in which he died." So it came about that Goldsmith was buried by his lawyer friends and neighbors within the boundaries of their own domain. He had lived his happiest days among them, and it was after all more fitting that he should lie down to his long rest in the midst of them rather than in a garish and splendid tomb in Westminster Abbey. The exact spot of the grave has long been forgotten, but in 1837 the benchers of the Temple inn placed a marble slab in the church of the Temple, and this is pointed out to visitors as the poet's resting place. It is hallowed ground, and the lawyers who now frequent that spot may well turn aside from the plodding course of their daily routine and pay homage to the poet who lived among their brethren of another age and loved them with all the fervor of his simple, honest heart.

Just to Oblige.

When a certain jurist made his first appearance at the bar as a young lawyer he was given charge by the state solicitor of the prosecution of a man who was accused of some misdemeanor.

Although there was practically no evidence against the man, the youthful attorney did his best, but was astonished when the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty." After the trial one of the jurors tapped the young lawyer on the shoulder. "We didn't think the man was guilty," he explained, "but at the same time didn't like to discourage a young lawyer by acquitting him."

A Doleful Mood.

The proprietor of a Paris cafe noticed that after he had refused to give his pianist an increase of salary the number of his customers dwindled rapidly. It was only when all but one diner had deserted him that he discovered that the pianist had been inflicting Chopin's "Funeral March" on the audience nightly. The pianist, who was proceeded against in the law courts, and was fined 5 francs, pleaded that he played according to the mood he felt in after his request had been refused.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Lady's Apron.

This apron belongs to the bungalow type which may be worn without a dress beneath it. It has a square yoke in front and back, round neck with turnover collar and plain sleeves, long or short. The skirt sections are gathered along the upper edge and attached to the yoke, and there are also pockets. Gingham, calico, cambric and plain colored chambray are nice materials for this apron.

The apron pattern, No. 6,921, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 6 yards of 27-inch material and ⅝ yard of 27-inch contrasting goods for collar.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

"I SLEEP SOUNDLY, FEEL LIKE NEW"

All Who Lack Vigour, Those Who Are Dispirited and Worn Out, Should Read This Carefully.

Proof That Health and Renewed Vitality Quickly Return When Right Remedy is Used.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night, and in the morning felt so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicines and mixtures, Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged-up system. My spirits rose. I felt much better. The sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good colour and ambition to work returned, and have remained. I am like a new man, and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamiltons Pills, 25c. per box, 5 boxes for $1.00, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

[illegible] WAS SHOT AND SHELL [illegible] BE ENDURED THAN

Writing in the London Evening News Percy Brown says:

"It was two o'clock on November 8 that I managed to slip out of Dunkirk in someone's else's motor-car. It was a fine run, in the best of company, and I enjoyed it in spite of numerous halts and the depressing sight of waggon loads of wounded soldiers.

"At Poperinghe we met the Duchess of Sutherland, busy as usual. She commissioned me to take back an umbrella to a woman at Ypres whom she had picked up earlier in the day and taken to the Nuns' Home there. The woman's arm and leg were broken, but the loss of the umbrella was worrying her more.

"We arrived in Ypres at half-past four, to the sound of the distant rumbling of big guns. I was surprised it was distant, for I knew the Germans had been shelling the town. However, when I asked a soldier whether it would be all right to sleep in Ypres, he answered, 'Sure — if you're crazy!'

"Then he explained that the armoured train was near the town.

Futurist Orchestra at Work.

"It was eight o'clock, the sky lit up with the reflection of the flames from a burning house; shells were dropping near the station; further along the line was a red light—the armoured train. Ypres was becoming too dangerous; it was time to move out, time to find some place where one could pass the night.

"I found a place two kilometres along the line, close by the armoured train, in a car in charge of a naval lieutenant. He made be a good offer.

"'You can stop in here if you like,' he said, 'if you'll act sentry. Anyhow you'll get no sleep to-night.'

"He was right. The firing never ceased, either side pounding away at the other the whole night, while the roar of ammunition waggons and transport of every kind gave an impression of some tremendous futurist orchestra.

"Also I had to keep on explaining who I was to the marines, who were continually peering at me as I lay there, a revolver beside me. One told me that only that day they had discovered a spy on the Town Hall giving the range to the Germans.

A Comic Opera Train.

"In the early morning I walked across to examine the armoured trian. It reminded me of nothing in the world so much as a comic opera train, huge splotches of paint daubed on its end and sides, names such as 'Homeless Hector,' 'You-you' chalked up in big letters; biggest of all was the title, 'The Winston Churchill Train!'

"Suddenly it occurred to me that I was in forbidden territory; moreover, that the rucksack slung round my shoulders contained, among other things, a camera, plates, and films. I was just wondering how I could "wangle" my way past the train and the danger of arrest, when—smash! —a 'coal box'—as the sailors call the big shells—crashed down into a coal truck standing close to the armoured train.

"I was too much staggered to be scared. Mechanically I 'snapped" the smoke; then, as it cleared away, turned to find two sailors digging away underneath that very coal truck. When they were satisfied that I was not a spy, they presented me with pieces of the shell—they had never had one burst so near them before, they said—and advised me to move on before I was arrested.

"But that comic opera train had taken my fancy; I badly wanted a ride on it. I talked to those sailors; I talked for a long while, but it was no use. It was as much as their lives were worth to let me board her; all they could do for me, after a lot of persuasion, was to say that one section was going to Dunkirk, and that I might jump on that if I liked.

Sundry Chicken Hunts.

"We all had a very good breakfast of well-cooked bacon, tea and bread and butter. I noticed a headless chicken hanging at the end of the living waggon and feathers on the line which looked uncommonly like pigeons. Later in the day, when the commandant was out of the way, armed with a stick I assisted in a chicken chase. These are very exciting, but if a man returns from one empty handed he never hears the end of it!

"But the chicken hunt was not until later. At seven o'clock, on a sudden order, everyone but the cook left the living room and the train moved off towards Ypres into action. It was action, too. In the space of fifty square feet I counted nineteen shell holes, including two from bombs dropped from an aeroplane.

"At ten o'clock the noise of the guns of both sides was deafening. I have learned to distinguish the sounds now.

"As the small shell comes from the gun the sound is like a very loud crack of a whip; as it whizzes through the air it makes a noise like a high note strummed on a guitar. The 'coal boxes' are the worst. They start from the gun with a tremendous report, and, travelling high through the air, make an unearthly shriek, bursting with a crash, vibrating like some monster Jew's harp.

"As each shell exploded I dived back into the waggon, but the crew of the train never moved a muscle. The cook offered me some cotton wool to put in my ears. I explained I had been in Antwerp and was used to the noise of big guns, but after an hour I was thankful to accept his offer. When the first six inch gun went off I was lurking about trying to get a photograph: the concussion was so tremendous that my camera shot out to the embankment, myself into the train. Without exaggeration the flash from the gun was forty feet long.

"Very few people remain in Ypres, but one official refuses to be shelled out—the station master. The station had been bombarded two days ago; the Germans knew that the armoured train would pass that way, but he remained at his post. I heard 'Ginger Blue,' one of the train crew, say to his friend, 'Acid Tablet.'

"'Say Acid, the station master has been looking for his chair.'

"'Chair! It's his —— station he'll be looking for if we stay here much longer!' replied 'Acid' the depressed.

"Towards the end of the afternoon I heard an order which sounded like 'Creek.' At once the men covered the mechanism of the gun and retired to the living room, where I lay unobstrusively in a corner when the commandant appeared.

"He shouted directions to the driver to go on to Poperinghe, where I slipped from the train after inviting all the men in the car to dinner."

Aching Back Gets Relief Quick! One Rub With "Nerviline" Cures

Every Bit of Stiffness and Soreness Goes When "Nerviline" Is Used.

Pain in back or side is awful hard to reach. Deep in the tissue is a congested or strained muscle. Liniments you have used have not reached it, and the pain bothers you, whether moving or lying down.

What a pity you haven't tried Nerviline! Penetrating, you ask? Yes, and powerful, too. Nerviline strikes in far deeper than any application you have ever used. You might pay a dollar, ten dollars, a hundred, for that matter, but you could not equal Nerviline, either in strength, quickness of action, or permanency of relief.

If you think this too much to say for Nerviline, try it, and be convinced.

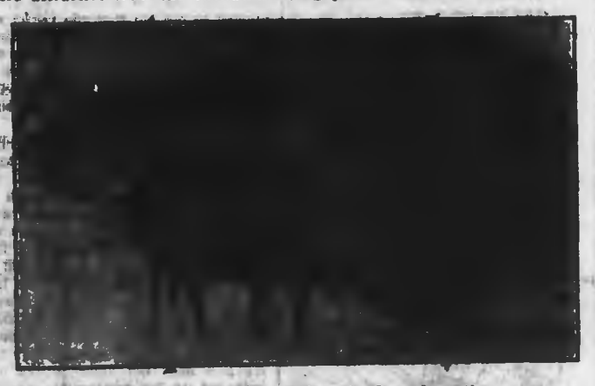
If you receive from Nerviline even a little less relief from pain than this advertisement induces you to expect, you can get your money back.

The only pain remedy in the world sold under a guarantee is Nerviline—surely it is safe to try it.

Nerviline is sold by druggists everywhere, 25 cents or 50 cents a bottle, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF A HOME

THERE is something comforting and restful about the old home. You don't like to part with it, inconvenient and unattractive though it may seem to others. And yet you are not satisfied with it. You sometimes wish that it did look a little more attractive from the outside and the women wish more often that it had a few conveniences inside. The changes desired are so numerous that the only way out seems to be to build a new house.



The Old Home as it was Before the Transformation

But wait a minute. Is the old house altogether hopeless? Old houses have been transformed before now at less than the cost of building anew, and at the same time made to retain all the comfort and homeiness of the old one. One such transformation, and the most successful I have ever come across, was that made by Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Moore, of Guelph. I visited the old home frequently during my college days. Like thousands of old homes in both country and city, it was warm and comfortable in winter, cosy all the time, but minus exterior attractiveness and inside conveniences. The upper view on this page will give a fair idea of Mr. Moore's home as I then knew it. This illustration was taken from the side lawn. It shews the low roof on the front portion of the house which did not leave space enough for rooms upstairs and the solitary upstairs bedroom at the end of the back "L."

I had occasion to visit the Moore home again last summer. I knew that Mr. and Mrs. Moore had been planning some changes, but when I came to the old place I hardly knew it. The lower illustration will give one an idea of the transformation that has been wrought. A second storey has been added to the fore part of the house. It was attractively finished in semi-bungalow style with the gables finished in half timbered cement stucco, the roof stained a soft green and a sleeping porch built out to the front. In the place of the old veranda was a new and broader one with brick and timber pillars supporting a somewhat massive roof. I have never seen a more attractive semi-bungalow home, and yet on the second look I knew that the main structure of the old home had not been interfered with.

Inside the transformation was even greater. On the first floor the parlor bedroom in the front of the house and the small parlor had been combined into one fine big living room, with a grate at one end. A bay window seen in the illustration had been substituted for the single window. In the new upstairs was a bedroom, a sleeping porch screened with wire in summer and with glass in winter, and a bathroom, a convenience the house had before lacked.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore are justifiably proud of their new-old home. It is better than new for it fits into its surroundings as a new house never would. "How much did it cost?" I asked.

"Altogether the change cost us about $1,200," said Mr. Moore.

I have seen dozens of houses no better and no worse than the old Moore home torn down to be replaced by a big two-storey modern house that looked neither attractive nor homelike. Why not follow the example set by Mr. and Mrs. Moore? Do as they did and rebuild artistically.—F. E. E.

The New Home—More Comfortable—A Thousand Fold More Attractive

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, Wellington Co., Ont., planned this wonderful transformation of their home. More particulars are given in the article adjoining.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Half the Canadian force at Salisbury has been given three days' leave at Christmas; the other half at New Year's.

It is understood that the appointment of Frank Barnard, ex-M.P.P. for Victoria, as Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia passed the Cabinet Council yesterday morning.

A British prisoner of war, named Lonsdale, confined in the Doeberitz camp, has been condemned by a German court-martial to ten years' imprisonment for a violent attack on his custodians.

The Militia Department officially announced yesterday another death at Salisbury: Dec. 3rd, 1914, Gunner Edward Hugh Mowbray-Penn, divisional ammunition park, at Bulford Hospital, of pneumonia.

Telegraphing from Cairo, Egypt, the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. says British airships have been making constant flights lately over the Sinai peninsula, and that there is no sign of the enemy.

The French Cabinet is considering how it can best arrange for the 200 deputies at the front to leave their posts temporarily, so that they may take part in the forthcoming extraordinary session of Parliament.

A large barn on the Crapser farm, on Crapser's Island, was totally destroyed by a fire of unknown origin, together with ten horses, twenty cows, 100 tons of hay, 500 bushels of grain, sleighs, wagons and farm machinery.

Mr. Hamar Greenwood, British M.P., has been gazetted lieutenant-colonel, commanding a new Welsh regiment. He has been employed since the war began in the recruiting and ammunition departments of the War Office.

Reliable.

The Debtor—I'm sorry, sir, but I can't pay that bill this month.

The Creditor—But that's what you told me a month ago.

The Debtor—Well, didn't I keep my word?

Smothered His Joy.

Cheerful Husband (entering the kitchen singing "My love is like the red, red rose!") Wife (looking up from the stove)—You'd look red, too, if you'd been bending over a frying pan for twenty minutes!

The Last Word.

Willie—Say, pa, is every word in the dictionary.

Pa—No, my son. Every little while a new one comes into use.

Willie — What's the last word, then, pa?

Pa—I don't know. Go ask your mother.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all grey hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Grey, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

The Cynics.

Cynics was the name applied to a school of philosophers founded by Antisthenes, a pupil of Socrates. The main tenet of the extreme cynics was that civilization is a curse, and true happiness can be obtained only by gratifying the most primary physical appetites which man has in common with brutes. The general attitude of the cynics as distinguished from that of the stoics, who regarded everything in the external world with indifference, was one of contempt. They were not an important philosophical school numerically, but attracted attention largely by their eccentricities and insolence. On account of their contempt for refinement their name came subsequently to be applied to any one who takes a mean view of human life.

Papal Names.

Every one knows that as soon as a cardinal becomes a pope he is no longer known by his own name, but takes a new one. This custom originated out of reverence for St. Peter.

This custom, now a law of the church, had its origin in 884, when Peter di Porca became pope of Rome. He held that it would be presumptuous to style himself Peter II., so he adopted the name of Sergius II. Before that time many popes had changed their names, but it was not obligatory for them to do so. Sergius II. not only established a precedent in this direction, but he set an example which all pontiffs have followed in that none of them has ever retained or assumed the name of Peter.

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service—and—such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

ALLIES ATTACK FROM COAST TO ARGONNE

ARE GAINING AT DIFFERENT POINTS

ALLIES PRESSING THEIR ADVANTAGE

Determined Offensive is Being Hurled at German Lines While the French Heavy Artillery is Obtaining an Advantage at Several Points on Line.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, December 7.—A determined offensive is at present being pressed by the allies from the coast to the Argonne district. The official communique from the war office to-day declares that the French attack is greatly superior to the German, and advantages are being gained over the enemy. The allies continue attacking the few remaining trenches held by the enemy on the left bank in the Yser region, the statement declares. The French artillery yesterday obtained advantage in the Champagne district.

SAPPER IS DEAD

OTTAWA, December 7.—For the past several days at least one death a day has been reported from the Canadian contingent. By cable to the Minister of Militia to-day the death is announced of Sapper George Burnett, of the divisional engineers, of pneumonia. The next of kin are his wife and children who live in Manchester, Eng. Burnett enlisted in Toronto.

LONDON, December 7.—The Daily Mail's correspondent in northern France describes a battle between a Zeppelin dirigible balloon and three British aeroplanes which occurred a few days ago.. The Zeppelin manoeuvred clumsily and was unable to make use of her explosives. Bullets from the aeroplanes soon found the ballon's envelope, which crumpled up.

CAMP AT WINDSOR

LONDON, ONT., December 7. — For strategic reasons, the training camp for the third Canadian contingent from this district will likely be moved to Windsor, from London, because of the rumours regarding German movements at the border. The militia authorities plan to have at least part of the force kept at Windsor. Col. Kelly of the 27th Regiment, Sarnia, is expected to be the commander.

"The Gamblers" at the Empire Theatre

Powerful Dramatic Photo Play to be Mirrored in Startling and Thrilling Effects

To-night, to-morrow and Wednesday, day and night, the great Lubin photoplay, entitled "The Gamblers," will be shown in the Empire Theatre, with all its thrilling motion picture effects. "The Gamblers" is by the celebrated playwright, Charles Klein, and is a masterpiece of this great writer.

As the story will be mirrored to you, the fascinating reels will depict the startling incidents of the play. You will see.

"Isabel Emerson and Catherine Spencer are old school friends and it is the great wish of Isabel that Catherine shall marry her brother Wilbur. James Darwin, a young attorney in the interest of business, comes into the life of the Spencer family and falls in love with Catherine. Wilbur is so immersed in business that he does not play the love game satisfactorily and Darwin wins out. Catherine in a burst of confidence tells Darwin that she really was in love with Wilbur, and the husband being of a jealous disposition, the drifting apart begins. Wilbur in a desperate effort to amass a fortune gets his fellow directors to go into a precarious scheme to extend their banking operations and Emerson, Senior, endorses them. For a time things go well until the rival bankers smell a mouse and commence an investigation which may mean states prison for some of the party, as the Emerson chain of banks are operating illegally. The attorney general calls on Darwin to investigate. Wilbur scours the streets for money to cover risky notes. Cowper and he agree to turn states evidence. Cowper steals the notes and substitutes forged ones. Wilbur pockets the substitute notes and returns to his room, where he finds the investigators in charge. Cowper, realising what it means to go to jail, starts for the Darwin house with the notes, and leaves them on Darwin's desk, the maid only being present. Wilbur returns home and finds detectives watching the house. Emerson is heartbroken but insists on standing his share of the trouble. He gets Cowper to make a confession and goes to secure the notes. By a clever ruse he gets into the library, where the package is discovered by Catherine. She secures the package. Darwin has Wilbur arrested for burglary. Catherine refuses to tell where the papers are. The next morning it is agreed that Wilbur is to be sacrificed. Catherine goes to the Emerson home and, telling Isabel all, endeavours to see Wilbur. Cowper discovers that she still has the papers, just as Darwin enters. Wilbur finally gets the papers from Catherine. He calls Darwin and Cowper in and surrenders the papers, at the same time his written confession, and offers himself to the law. Catherine declares her love for Wilbur, and after getting a divorce promises to wait for him.

SIR WILFRID HAS RECOVERED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who for some days was confined to his house with a somewhat severe cold, has entirely recovered and is once more back at his office attending to his duties.

GOLDFIELD STOCKS.

Very valuable discoveries of bonanza ore have lately been made in the "Jumbo Extension," which has caused a tremendous boom on the other side of the line in all Goldfield stocks. This boom rivals with that of 1906. Advice received from the mine states that the wealth of the new discovery is something stupendous.

If you desire to be posted on these stocks write to Charles A. Stoneham & Co., 20 Melinda St., Toronto, and receive their weekly market letter free.

FEATURES OF CAMPAIGN

Patriotic Fund Will be Prominently Brought Before the Public in Next Few Days

TO-MORROW'S MEETING

A feature of the publicity end of the patriotic campaign will be the Red Cross bandaging exhibit which will be put on during the afternoons of the days of the campaign. Mr. Might, of Turnbull's, has given the use of the north window for the three days of the campaign. In the window will be presented the operation of bandaging and caring for wounded men.

Four of the young lady nurses from the hospital will assist and four of the Cadets from the Collegiate will be the wounded. The whole scene will be highly realistic.

It is intended to put on the demonstration in the afternoon from 3 to 5, and in the evening from 7.30 to 8.30. Should there be only one demonstration given it will be at from 4 to 6 p.m. The young ladies assisting have duties at the hospitals, and the demonstrations will have to suit their convenience.

Dr. Cameron has the display in hand, and it promises to be a good and telling feature.

Four of the Cadets who have been selected report for instructions to-night, and promise to be as decorous as possible, and try and look as if suffering from serious wounds and generally broken up.

PETERBOROUGH CLUB GIFT.

The committee are heartened by the fine subscription from the Peterborough Club. This is not the only amount of $500 that is coming. There are others. At least five lots of this amount are expected. Will you be one?

So far as arranged the following hurrahs will develop:

Tuesday evening, at 5 o'clock, the captains and men of the teams will gather at the committee rooms for final instructions and arrangement of the lists for canvassers. This will take at least two hours, and when finished as many as can get away will go to the Opera House to hear the addresses.

The Home Guard will muster on Tuesday night and parade, one-half going to the Opera House and the other to the overflow to the Market Hall. Both meetings will be addressed by the visiting speakers.

LANTERN SLIDE DISPLAY.

Wednesday evening will be the lantern slide display. It will be put on from the committee rooms, the pictures being thrown from the window above. The sheet will be stretched on the east side of George Street, and it is expected that a fair view can be had from the corner of Brock Street. The slides include a series kindly loaned by Mr. T. F. Matthews of the Valcartier Camp and from Mr. Keyes, many of the British dreadnoughts and war ships. The committee are also securing a fine assortment of scenes in the Belgium battle fields and the operations of the Allies. A further assortment of the Valcartier Camp and a number of slides of local men identified with the movement. In addition some special slides of the 57th Contingent at Salisbury Camp and a group of an officer who has gone and the kids that are left behind are being prepared. The whole display will be well worth seeing.

Thursday night, another parade of the Home Guard. These men are fine, and having a fine assortment, it is no trouble to show goods. While we all hope they will never be called on to fight, it is a mighty good thing to be ready. The bands will accompany each parade.

IN THE CHURCHES.

In all the churches the pastors were most kind and helpful yesterday, and urged the claims of the fund and also the several meetings. All this is appreciated.

A reference may be made to the sermon of Rev. J. R. Webb, at Murray Street Church, on "The Grace of Compassion." At the conclusion he said: "When I chose the subject on which I have been speaking, the whirlwind canvass for the Patriotic Fund had not been decided upon. I cannot, however, refrain from saying now, that this week will present a splendid opportunity for the cultivation of the grace of compassion. God forbid that we should judge each other in this matter, but we should mightily judge ourselves. Nothing less than com-

CONDITIONS ARE SERIOUS

Turkey a Mine Where Spark of Fanaticism Would Shatter All Elements of Europeanism in Country

FOREIGNERS IN DANGER

(By Henry Wood)

SALONIKA, via London, Dec. 7.—Turkey is a mine. A spark of fanaticism likely to be struck at any moment would cause an explosion which would shatter all the elements of Europeanism in the country. Foreigners are constantly menaced, and only superhuman day and night efforts by American Ambassador Morgenthau has prevented an international crisis. Morgenthau now represents eight nations.

I arrived here to-day from Coustantinople. That city is practically isolated. There is only one line of rigidly censored telegraphic communication. Every letter and paper was confiscated by the Turkish border patrols.

Foreigners are fleeing as from the plague. The border towns are filled with anxious men who dare not step on Turkish soil to rescue their women kind. Refugees are only permitted to take $50 in gold with them. If they carry more than this amount, the authorities confiscate it and give in return a depreciated Turkish paper.

At Dedeagatch there are 20,000 European refugees financially unable to proceed.

The day I left Constantinople the government was permitting only of foreign women and children and holding all men who might bear arms upon returning to their native countries. They are threatening to imprison these men in concentration camps. Ambassador Morgenthau is fighting this plan. The few thousand Europeans still remaining in Turkey consist of these financially unable to leave. Their condition is miserable.

Ambassador Morgenthau now represents the American, British, French, Belgian, Servian, Swiss, Danish and Argentine interests here, together with the interests of many smaller nations. When the Turkish fury against Europeanism first broke, Morgenthau stood alone between the foreigners and Turkish reprisals. Before he could act, all European hotels, stores, factories, banks and schools had been seized, but so far as can be known, he has prevented violence to individuals.

I said Constantinople is isolated. It is. There are no regular trains or steamship schedules. The populace is practically without news, except the flavoured official statements.

So long as Ambassador Morgenthau can succeed in aiding the foreigners, as he has done, all will be well. But there may come a time when his demands will not be acceded to. Fanaticism may break forth. Then the world may be shocked by Turkeys throwing off the veneer of Europeanism.

OFFICER WAS HERE

Major Hamilton Much Impressed With Cordage Factory as Possible Quarters for Troops

A SPLENDID BUILDING

Major Jas. Hamilton, R.C.H.A. and A. D. of S. and T., Kingston, who has been in the City looking over the accommodation that could be provided for troops here, left this morning for Kingston. Major Hamilton was most favourably impressed with the old Cordage Factory building as possible quarters. He was shown over the property by Major Eastwood, of the 57th Regiment, and expressed himself as delighted with its possibilities. No doubt he will report favourably to the authorities.

The Cordage building is splendidly adapted as a barracks for troops. It is comparatively fireproof, well lighted and ventilated, and already equipped with a good heating plant. There is ample room, in fact accommodation for 1,000 men could easily be provided in the building by adopting the three-decker bunk system used at Kingston. With such a splendid barracks building, a fine armouries and good rifle ranges, Peterborough can offer unexcelled accommodation. But the Federal member, city and military authorities, should not relax their efforts and should keep Peterborough before the eyes of those who will decide the location of mobilisation centres for the next contingent.

Urged Support For Campaign

Rev. Canon Davidson Commended Patriotic Fund Movement

At St. John's Church, yesterday evening, Canon Davidson warmly commended the patriotic movement to take place this week. The meeting in the Opera House would be no ordinary one. Addressed by a Cabinet Minister and two other Canadian men of high ability and note, the meeting should be a great and stimulating one, and result in a great outburst of patriotism.

There was a general concensus of opinion that our past efforts had been unworthy of our City and the object, and we should all hail this campaign to raise $50,000 as an effort well deserving of general co-operation. The movement was strongly led and should be well supported.

FUNERAL OF LATE LAWRENCE PAMMETT

Little Lad Who Lost His Life in the Waters of the Canal on Saturday Laid to Rest This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Lawrence Pammett, son of Mr. Robert J. Pammett, who met such a tragic death in the waters of the Canal on Saturday, was held this afternoon from the family residence, Euclid Avenue, to Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield. The floral tributes were unusually numerous and very beautiful, indicating the wholehearted sympathy that is being extended the parents in their sad bereavement. The little lad's body, which had been taken to Belleghem's undertaking rooms after the accident, was taken home on Saturday afternoon.

The funeral this morning was largely attended, those present including the pupils from the form of the Collegiate Institute which he had attended.

WARSHIP IN DANGER

Examiner Special:

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 7.—Unofficial and unconfirmed reports received here early to-day state that the warship reported in distress off Ocean City, Md., was the battleship Kansas, but that she was not in danger and was merely anchored to await the cessation of a storm sweeping the coast.

GERMANY MUST STOP RUSSIANS

Compelled to Choose Between Weakening Western Army o Allowing Czar's Hordes to Over-run Prussian Pro vinces, Says United Press Critic--Germans Announc That Vernelle is Evacuated.

Special Cable:

NEW YORK, December 7th. — J. W. T. Mason, the United Press military critic, says to-day: "Simultaneously with Field Marshall Hindenberg's victory at Lodz Berlin makes the first official announcement of the war since the battle of the Marne, that the Germans have been compelled to abandon a French position. The German evacuation of Vernelle, between Lille and Arras, thus may turn out to possess much greater significance than the defeat of the Russians in Poland. The two operations, although removed from each other by the width of Europe, are closely related. There seems no doubt but that the Germans' victory has been won with troops withdrawn from France and Belgium; it appears evident too that the allies are now more nearly on an equality with the German strength in the west than at any time since the war began. Nevertheless to predict from this change in the situation that the Germans will soon be out of Belgium and France would be hazardous. The future conditions in the west depends on conditions in Russia. It is certain however that Germany counts far more on the necessity for preventing the Russian invasion of German territory than in holding off the allies in the west. Russia's penetration into the heart of Germany would inevitably mean crippling loss of territory to the Hohenzollerns. Furthermore there is no continuous national barrier in the east, such as the Rhine forms in the west. Compelled to choose between weakening her western army or letting the Slav horde overrun the Prussian provinces, Germany cannot afford to hesitate a moment and therefore any immediate success that may be counted upon by the western allies will depend on the development of the eastern peril."

ANCHOR ICE IN EVIDENCE THIS MORNING

Cut Off Local Water Power and Electric Light Supply for a Time To-day

The usual Monday morning household operations, including the washing of the week's linen, etc., was interrupted this morning on account of the fact that anchor ice interfered with the machinery of the pumping station to such an extent that there was not enough power to drive the pumps. For the same reason the Street Railway Company suspended operations between nine and ten o'clock this morning, and all the local power houses were shut down for a time.

Water Scarce.

As the citizens had no warning that the water would fail during the greater part of the morning, there was a great scarcity of aqua pura in the city this morning. The more noticeable by reason of the fact that this morning was Monday morning, and that under ordinary conditions the clothes lines of the city would have recived their usual weekly decoration. Washing is an operation in which water is an absolute necessity, so that there was much consternation in many a kitchen this morning when the supply failed. All sorts of ways and means were devised for overcoming the difficulty.

A Danger.

But the failure of the water supply was a real menace to the safety of the life and property of the city. With the water went the fire protection of the city, for even our efficient fire brigade would be almost helpless in the face of a fire of any dimensions without the usual pressure of water behind the hydrants. Very fortunately, however, no fire broke out while the water was off. As the only possible precaution Fire Chief Howard had a husky team of horses hitched to the fire engine all morning so that it would be rushed to any fire that occurred, and if possible used in lieu of the usual source of supply. The fire engine, however, could only be used to any real purpose in a very limited area.

From the early morning the street cars were running on less than normal power because the London Street power house was also affected. For an hour they were stopped altogether, and even now are running on about half the normal supply. For a time to-day the only power supplied in the City at all was from the Electric Power Company, from outside power houses and had it not been for the local connection with the system many local industries would have been held up to-day.

MILLIONAIRE OIL OPERATOR PASSES AWAY

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., Dec. 7.—A brief cable from London to-day advised relatives here of the death at Vienna, Austria, of William MacGarvey, the millionaire oil operator. His daughter is the wife of Count Zeppelin, son of the dirigible inventor, and another daughter is wife of Colonel Lavadel, of the Austrian army. Deceased was 71 years old, and was born at Huntington, Quebec. His early experiences in Petrolea oil fields made him wealthy, and he was Mayor of Petrolea, Ont., for many years. On going to Europe he became a leader in the oil business. Many of his immense holdings in Galicia, especially around Cracow, have been battle centres in the present war, and his losses have been enormous.

WOULD KILL A PRINTER.

"I've come to kill a printer," said the little man.

"Any printer in particular?" asked the foreman.

"Oh, anyone will do, I would prefer a small one, but I've got to make some sort of a show at fight, or leave home, since the paper called my wife's tea party a 'swill affair.'"

NEUTRALITY.

Neutrality in this war is practically impossible. The issue so vitally and broadly represents every phase of human interest that sympathy must be felt for the side that stands for the benefit of humanity; stands for all its interests, personal, physical, moral and political. As a nation, represented by its government, the United States is striving to be strictly neutral. It even goes so far as to forbid sailors and marines in the navy singing, "Tipperary." This is in itself not a party tune. Its air is not militant, its words are a nonsensical but fetching Irish sentimental extravagance. But it is become the marching song, the camp-fire ditty of the fighting British troops. The United States may theoretically bar "Tipperary," may use every endeavour to maintain theoretical neutrality, but it can't make the people neutral. They will either sympathize with the Allies or the Triple Alliance; and it is a pleasure to know that the mass of the people, the sane, sober majority, are in full sympathy with the allied cause. Hundreds of prominent journals champion the Allies as energetically and with as much sound heart as British, Canadian and French journals. Collier's Weekly is one of them. It concludes a recent article with these apt sentences:

"The best way for us to help the Belgians will be to do what we can with our resources to help turn the Germans out of Belgium. This may not be neutrality, but it is truth."

NEVER AN OLD STORY.

The speceh of Sir Robert Borden before the Canadian and Empire Clubs in Toronto on Saturday afternoon, while it contained nothing new in matter of fact or of sentiment, only told what we alerady know was admirably expressed, a story that never grows old. He thus concisely and trenchnatly referred to the unity of the Empire:

"And this war has demonstrated the essential unity of the Empire. When the book is closed, and the story has been told, we shall at least owe that to the Kaiser. It was to fall asunder as soon as he girded on his shining armour. But instead it has become tense with unity and instinct with life and action. Our decadent race was to flee in terror before his victorious troops, but the plains of Belgium and France tell no story of decadence. The history of British arms contains no annals more glorious. It is our hope and our confidence that Canada's record will not be less worthy."

This idea has been expressed and reiterated times without number, but it is something that cannot be too often insisted upon. It is an expression of the fruits of the sprit that animates the British genius of government and colonization, and justifies our tremendous efforts to make this spirit immanent and to perpetuate its influence in the betterment of all the interests of humanity as involved in the triumph of the cause of Christian civilization at its best.

AN INDICATED ALLIANCE.

If we, the Canadians and British, hinted that the United States as a nation should declare itself in favour of the Allies in the present war, it would be said that our course would be influenced by selfish interest; by other considerations than principles of right. There are in the United States, however, men of influence, that no doubt represent a considerable class, who think the United States should declare itself on the side of the Allies. Dr. White, of the University of Pennsylvania, has this to say on the subject

"We (the United States) should at the very least strengthen the wavering, reassure the doubting, give new hope to the despairing, by proclaiming to the world our absolute and unreserved belief of the right and justice of the cause of the Allies, and our determination to see to it, should the worst come to them, that they shall have our material support to our last dollar, our last bushel of corn, our last drop of blood.

"For the sake of humanity and of civilization we cannot afford to permit Germany to win, and the surest way of preventing it is to take sides at once."

Stripped of the rhetorial references to "strengthening the wavering, giving new hope to the despairing," which do not apply to the Allies now actively engaged in a hopeful and steady progress towards victory, the appeal of Mr. Williams to the United States to declare its position definitely, is one that might well be considered. The United States owes it to itself not to remain neutral; not by silence to give consent to the monstrous ambitions and barbarous activities of the German war clique. As the greatest representative, outside the warring nations, of the higher cult of humanity, and democratic interests and the general welfare of humanity, one cannot see how the United States can remain neutral. As we have before urged, it is incumbent upon the United States, to enter a solemn official protest against the outrage upon Belgium, upon a neutral country whose outrageous treatment challenges the alliance of other neutral countries. If the United States does not want to enter the fray as a combatant, it can form a moral alliance with down-beaten Belgium by protesting formally and officially against not only the outrage upon its neutrality as a breach of The Hague convention, to which Uncle Sam is a party, but against the intense barbarity which has been practiced upon a neutral nation. Germany in the person of Belgium has, declared war upon all neutral nations, none of which can expect to escape similar sinister attention if Germany should win in this struggle. The fact that United States opinion joins with world-wide opinion that Germany cannot and will not win may explain why the United States refrains from specifically ranging herself alongside and on the side of her moral ally, Belgium. But by so refraining our great neighbour loses a chance to justify itself as a champion of the outraged and oppressed, and lays itself open to the reproach htat it has like the Levite of the Scriptures "passed by on the other side," leaving the Good Samaratan nations to succour the little nation, that, with terrible literality, "fall among thieves."

THE DIRECTER WAY.

As the Germans continue to put indemnities and food-taxes on the people of Belgium, it might save time and labour if we sent our relief funds direct to Berlin.—Chicago Tribune.

SUBMARINES NOT THE ESSENTIALS.

The public will be interested to learn that the United States Naval Department, after having made a study of the achievements of the submarines in the present war, has come out with the statement that "The submarine is an adjunct, an auxiliary weapon and should be regarded as such, the battleship strength, the hitting of the big guns of the fleet, being regarded as the ultimate, decisive test of naval force." The same authorities admit the destructive power of the submarine, and take full recognition of its power and possibilities, but despite everything come to the conclusion stated above. —Journal of Commerce.

THE TRUE AIM OF THE WAR.

Mr. Asquith in his great speech at the Lord Mayor's Banquet on Monday evening rendered inestimable service to the country in laying down once more clearly and explicitly the objects for which we are fighting at present. He said: "We shall never sheathe the sword, which we have not lightly drawn, until Belgium recovers in full measure all, and more than all, that she has sacrificed, until France is adequately secured against the menace of aggression, until the rights of the smaller nationalities of Europe are placed upon an unassailable foundation, and until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."—London Statist.

FOUR MONTHS OF WAR.

Despite the efforts of German intriguers, Egypt, India, and South Africa remain faithful to British rule. The Kaiser's forces have been expelled from China and the German possessions in the Pacific. A mercantile marine of between 2,000 and 3,000 ocean-going vessels, and the world-wide commerce in which he took such pride, have practically ceased to exist.

Few German warships venture upon the high seas. Germany has failed to secure Paris, Warsaw, or Calais. Its powerful army is held in check by the allies on the West and the Russians in the East. German troops have been slaughtered by tens of thousands, and wounded by hundreds of thousands.

The greatest military machine in history is gradually declining in strength, while the Allies are steadily bringing up reinforcements and increasing their defensive striking power. This is the situation after four months of war. What will it be in another four months—say on April 1st, 1915?

By that time Germany may be ready and even eager to make the best terms possible. But, as even Mr. Carnegie now contends, there must be no untimely armistice. The operation for the removal of the militarist excrescence from civilizaton must be carried through to a thorough conclusion, so that international relations may get back to a healthy basis.—Toronto News.

IF GERMANY HAD ANOTHER CHANCE WITH SAME SITUATION

The three-and-a-half column interview with the Crown Prince of Germany, which has been sent to the American papers by an American correspondent, who had been summoned to the Crown Prince's headquarters headquarters for the purpose of receiving it, ends with this note:

I found among the officers of his staff, mostly all young men like himself, the Crown Prince is an idol. From elder officers I learned that the young man had demonstrated an unusual capacity for strategic problems, and the prediction is made that the war will serve to place him in the list of German's greatest war generals.

And then there is added a further note:

The above story was delayed in Germany until it received the approval of the German censor.

Later it was passed by the London censor.

Exactly. The story had to be written so that it would pass the German censor, and then it had to be handed over to the German authorities, and every sentence analysed as to its possible effect on the people for whom it was written, namely the people of the United States. How much or how little the German censor cut out we do not know. But this much is certain, that unless Karl H. von Wiegand, the writer of it, was sadly lacking in worldly discretion, there was very little in the story that failed to receive not only the O.K. of the German authorities, including, without doubt, the Kaiser, himself, but their hearty approval. The object of the interview seems to be:

1. To flatter the United States, and endeavour to stem the horror and disgust of its people.
2. To put the blame for this horror and disgust on British control of the press, and not on Germany's treatment of the Belgians.
3. To try to fasten the responsibility for the war upon England.
4. To create the impression that the Crown Prince of Germany is not at all the kind of person one would imagine from reading his book on "Germany in Arms," in which, in fiery phrase and passionate exhortation, he urged Germany to place reliance not in plighted word, but "in good steel," and to carve out her destiny with the sword.

The best comment on his imputations as to the world-wide control and corruption of the press by Great Britain is the fact that this whole interview, including these imputations, was passed by the British censors. As to this claim that England and not Germany was responsible for the war, let us put these questions:

Would there have been war if Austria and Germany had desired to prevent war?

Would there have been war at all if Berlin and Vienna could have foreseen the events of the last four months?

Would the Austrian Government have rejected Servia's request for mediation if Vienna could have known what the condition of the Austrian army would be after four months of conflict?

Would the Kaiser have declared war against Russia on Aug. 1st if all Germany had known that the German army could reach neither Paris nor St. Petersburg, and that Dec 1st would find it on the defensive along two frontiers?

If Germany and Austria, in the light of their acquired military experience, could turn the clock of history back five months would they again choose the path they then chose?

These questions, which we submit are the true test of whether war came from the outside or the inside, are not questions submitted by a prejudiced Britisher. They are questions put by the New York World as representing the feeling of the people to whom the Crown Prince appeals. No awkward questions of that kind intruded themselves into the interview. Also there was not a word about Belgium, or about scraps of paper, or anything like that. But then can it be expected that a prince whose entourage predict that "the war will place him in the list of Germany's greatest generals," would condescend to discuss such matters with a newspaper man writing for the American press?

WAR SUPPLIES ORDERS.

Orders for a million tins of meat have gone to Toronto. The War Office is also giving further orders for clothing. A military representative has left for Canada to supervise the fulfilment of these orders. Canadian manufacturers would doubtless receive larger orders if they were able to guarantee the immediate delivery of goods like boots. Clothing must be had right away in view of the present bad weather in the war area.—Journal of Commerce.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY PROPHET.

A. Lohmann, President of the Chamber of Commerce at Bremen, Germany, makes the statement that the war will mean "the ruin of Great Britain, even if she should emerge victorious, especially will it mean the collapse of her financial strength." Among other things, he states that "England cannot ruin the German export trade without at the same time leading her own colonies, the overseas countries, and in the last analysis, her own nation, toward financial ruin." Despite the fears of this patriotic and disinterested German, we would like to assure him that we are doing very nicely, and that there is every indication of Great Britain and her Overseas Dominions prospering without any help from Germany. The recent success of the British war loans, the fact that the Mother Country has loaned money to all her Overseas Dominions and some of the allies, and that, in brief, she has been, and is, the world's banker, proves that Lohmann's prognostications are but on a par with Bernhardi's and Germany's other scaremongers.—Journal of Commerce.

BESIDE THE OLD PEAT STACK.

At eventide I keep the tryst
As in the days of yore,
But, oh! my heart is breaking now,
Since thou'lt return no more.
The moon shines down as was her wont,
And flowers bestrew the track:
But now I keep the tryst alone
Beside the old peat stack.

In fancy still I seem to feel
Thy hair upon my cheek,
Kissed by the heather-scented breeze
From yonder mountain peak;
But showers that gather on the hill
To memory will bring back
That dripping mist more suits me now
Beside the old peat stack.

How oft did we beneath its shade
Our troth together plight,
And picture there on summer nights
A future fair and bright?
When skies above were clear and blue
We'd oft prolong our crack,
And parted but to meet again
Beside the old peat stack.

Though winter winds shrieked all around
The time flew all too fast,
And oft this plaided breast hath proved
Thy shelter from the blast;
When sleet and snowflake drove along,
And all the sky was black,
We huddled close, nor felt their sting,
Beside the old peat stack.

How can I bear this aching pain
Or view the peat stack now
Since the cold, clammy hand of death
Hath settled on thy brow?
Yet can I leave those scenes I love
Or on them turn my back?
How can I roam and leave my heart
Beside the old peat stack.

Brings Back Iron Crosses

Chaplain Starr, of Kingston, Has Trunk Full of Souvenirs

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Among the passengers on the American line steamer St. Paul, which arrived here yesterday from Liverpool, was Rev. G. L. Starr, Dean of Ontario, and rector of the cathedral at Kingston, who, with the rank of major, has, since Aug. 7, been a chaplain in the British army. He would not discuss his experiences in the war, but he had no hesitatancy in exhibiting a half-trunk full of German helmets and Iron Crosses, which he picked up on the different battlefields on which he saw service.

One of the dean's souvenirs was an Iron Cross of the first class, whose date showed it to have been awarded for the valor of its wearer in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870.

The chaplain was assigned to the Irish Guards and attached to the 37th Brigade. He said the Irish Guards, as well as the Coldstream and Grenadier Guards, suffered severely in the beginning of the wa..

The City Council will meet this evening at eight o'clock. This is the last regular meeting of the year. In all probability one or two special meetings will be held before the civic slate is cleared of the debris that has accumulated during the year.

An Extra Mill.

The Perth County Council has decided to assess the County for an extra mill on the taxation for the patriotic fund. The Council carried a motion that the County be taxed the extra mill, taking effect in 1915, which will amount to a total grant of $32,740 a year, to be paid $1,400 a month.

Patriotic Fund.

The amount contributed to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund totals $7,399.24. This time next week should see the fund raised to $50,000. The money raising campaign opens on Wednesday and closes on Friday.

Contributed $8,000.

At a meeting of the County Council of Kent it was decided to give $8,000 to the patriotic fund with the understanding that more would follow when needed.

Ostend In Flames.

LONDON, Dec. 7. — A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Dunkirk says:—

"Ostend is reported to be on fire. It is believed the conflagration was caused either by a British bombardment or German incendiaries."

Children of Conservatory Gave Recital

On Saturday Night Before a Big Attendance—Orchestra of Little Tots Provided a Surprise

A recital by the Children's Orchestra of the Conservatory of Music was given on Saturday night in the assembly hall, Rubidge street, before an attendance that overflowed the usual accommodation. The little folks provided a surprise and a delight by the confidence, correctness and interpretation of their playing. They were all children and some of them mere tots, but they seemed to possess the nonchalance of adults, in fact they were less self-conscious than many experienced adults.

Their programme was delightful and the capacity crowd enjoyed every number. It was as follows:

Gloria in Excelsis—Haydn. Orchestra.

Piano — "Doll's Dream," Oesten. Edna Hewson.

Violin—"Morning Prayer," Tschaikowski. Harold Porter.

Piano—Valse Arabesqme, Luck. Gladys Haig.

"The Lord is King"—Pittman. Orchestra.

Piano Duet — "Spanish Dance," Moskowski. Jean Elliott, Dorothy Ferguson.

"Tipperary,"—Otto Gliddon and Orville Crowe, clarionette; Harold Lancashire, trombone; Donald Carmichael, flute; Paul Gliddon, cornet.

Violin—"Minuet," Eichon. Kenneth Lang.

(a) "Slumber Sweetly"—Beaumont. (b) "March of the Brownies"—Sutton. Orchestra.

Piano—"Apple Blossoms," Lacosta. Donald Carmichael.

Cornet Solo—"Killarney," Balfe. Paul Gliddon.

Piano—"Shepherds All and Maidens Fair," Neven. Kathleen O'Connell.

Piano—"Papillon's Roses," Thorne. Helen Thompson.

"Incline Thine Ear to Me"—Himmel. Orchestra.

Piano—"Papillons"—Delee. Agnes Logan.

Clarinette—"Swiss 5th Air Varie," Brepsant. Otto Gliddon.

Piano—Tarantelle Ab, Heller. Isobel Baird.

(a) "Patrol." (b) National Airs. Orchestra.

The accompanists were Misses Dean, Isobel Baird, Agnes Logan and Otto Gliddon.

The members of the orchestra are as follows:

Violins — Bernard Park, Baden Greene, Earl Barrie, Leonard Casciane, Kenneth Lang, Harold Porter, Will Common, Mabel Coon, Fred Morrison.

'Cellos — Alexis Spellman, Tom Smith.

Cornet—Paul Gliddon.

Clarionettes—Otto Gliddon, Orville Crowe.

Trombone—Harold Lancashire.

Tympani—Alfred Parkins, Donald Carmichael.

Pianist—Isobel Baird.

PRICES SHOWED PRONOUNCED DECLINE

Cost of Living in the Month of October Decreased From High Point of September

Housewives who have been driven to distraction by the steadily mounting cost of commodities will derive some satisfaction from the fact that wholesale prices for October decreased 1.7 points from the high record of September. The level attained in September, which was 140.7, is the highest point ever reached in the history of the country.

The decrease in October was made despite the fact that further advances took place in dairy products and in drugs and chemicals. On the other hand, the pronounced declines took place in grains and fodder, animals and meats, fruits and vegetables and miscellaneous groceries.

As compared with October, 1913, there is a marked advance of 4.4 points, there being gains in the following: Grains and fodder, animals and meats, fish, miscellaneous groceries, woollens, flax products, hides, leathers, boots and shoes, crockery, table cutlery, drugs and chemicals, and decreases in the following: Fruits and vegetables, cottons, silks, jutes, metals, fuel, building materials, furs and sundries.

In making up the compilation, 272 articles were selected to represent Canadian production and consumption.

TREBILCOCK BROTHERS

Ten Teams of Ten Good Men each will make a personal canvass of the City Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Dec. 9-10-11. Be ready to show what you can, will, should and must do

They Shall Not Want

These must be Days of Brotherhood.

These are times of standing together, working, thinking, fighting together. The challenge of an enemy provokes quick response in every breast and proclaims the brotherhood of rich and poor.

You can hear the tread of armed men in the streets. To-day they prepare; to-morrow they depart, and another day---they fight! They are not merely your sons who go, or our neighbors' sons, but OUR sons! We who remain here, thousands of miles from the reek of gun-fire, have no less a part to play than those who go. We are not excused because we cannot fight. We must fill the places of those who go.

Give! Give! Give! $50,000 in 3 Days

Have we the right to lie secure in our beds, decently fed and warmly clad, while the women who sent their men, and the children whose fathers have gone, are in any need?

IN THIS CRISIS THEY ARE AS MUCH OUR DEPENDENTS AS THOSE WHO LEAVE THEM TO GO TO WAR. SHALL THE HEROES, WHEN THEY COME MARCHING BACK, BRONZED AND SCARRED, FIND THAT WE, ACCEPTING THEIR DEFENCE FOR OURSELVES, HAVE YET NEGLECTED THE DEFENCE OF THEIR DEPENDENTS? THEIR STRUGGLE IS OUR STRUGGLE, THEIR SACRIFICE IS OUR SACRIFICE — AND THEIR WIVES AND BABIES, OUR CHARGE.

Give! Give! Give!

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

MUST PRODUCE HIS CERTIFICATE BEFORE CASE MAY PROCEED

Action of Dr. McNulty to Recover $58 From John O'Leary Again Being Heard.

THE EVIDENCE

The case of Dr. McNulty versus John O'Leary of Otonabee to recover fifty-eight dollars balance due on an account of $158 for an operation performed on the defendant's daughter in June last, was heard for the second time this morning before a jury in the Division Court. The jury empanelled were: Wm. Robinson (foreman), Wm. Shea, F. Rishea, James Ruth and Simon Ridyard. Mr. D. O'Connell appeared for the plaintiff, while Mr. V. J. McElderry of Peck, Kerr and McElderry represented the interests of the defendant. When the court adjourned at twelve o'clock the evidence had all been given and an adjournment was made until 2.30, when the counsel will address the jury.

The Evidence.

Dr. F. P. McNulty called, stated that he had practiced in Peterborough for fifteen years, and had an extensive experience in surgery. He was called early in June to attend Mr. O'Leary's daughter at Mr. O'Leary's home in Otonabee. The girl was suffering from a very severe attack of appendicitis. She had been ill four or five days. The attack was well advanced. After talking it over with the parents, witness ordered the ambulance sent out, and the girl was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where she was operated on that afternoon. On operating it was found to be a case of septic appendicitis, which is very serious. The patient remained in the hospital four weeks, where witness attended her daily. Dr. McNulty stated that his usual fee for such an operation, assistance and after attendance, was $150. The fee for attendance in the country was $8.

To Mr. McElderry, witness stated that there was a schedule of charges existing for the local Medical Health Association. The tariff charge for appendicitis, he admitted, was from $100 to $150. That was the general fee for all major operations.

"Does the charge of these operations range according to the purse of the patient?" asked Mr. MElderry.

"Not primarily," replied the doctor. "Perhaps in some cases there was a special arrangement, but he didn't recall any such instance in his practice."

"Are your fees in this law suit paid by the Medical Association?"

"No."

"There was another physician in attendance at this operation?"

"Yes."

"To administer the anaesthetic?"

"Yes."

"What was his fee?"

"Ten dollars."

"How long did the operation last?"

"One hour."

"You rendered Mr. O'Leary a bill for $158?"

Yes. Mr. Lynch, the druggist, had told witness that O'Leary was afraid he was going to charge him too much so that in order that the settlement might be an amicable one, he made his account $135."

To Mr. O'Connell witness admitted calling the defendant a Jew after he (the defendant) had said he would rather have let the girl die than pay $135.

Dr. Halliday called, stated that he considered the charge named by Dr. McNulty was a very reasonable one. There are times when a lower charge is made by reason of the fact that some people, not wanting to be considered charity patients, are desirous of paying all they can.

Dr. Cameron stated that he had practiced in Peterborough six years. The fee for appendicitis was from $100 to $150. The case in question was about the most serious form of appendicitis. For after attendance the minimum charge is one dollar a visit, and one dollar a mile is made in the case of a trip to the country. He considered Dr. McNulty's fee a very fair one.

Certificate Required.

This concluded the evidence for the plaintiff and at this juncture Mr. McElderry produced the Medical Surgery Act which prohibits a doctor from suing in court who does not first show his certificate from the Ontario Medical Council setting forth his right to practice. His Honour Judge Huycke ruled that the case might proceed, but that he would not allow the case to go to the jury until such certificate was brought into court.

Mr. John O'Leary, the defendant, called, stated that he was the father of the little girl who was operated on. The child was in the hospital twenty-three days. The bill at the hospital was $29, including five dollars for the operating room. She was in the hospital a week after Dr. McNulty left for his holidays. Witness was prepared to pay the doctor's bill the day the child left the hospital, but the doctor was out of town. In September he went to Dr. McNulty's office to pay his bill. The bill given that day was $135. He objected to that amount, stating that $75 or $80 was a proper fee. Dr. McNulty told him that he could charge him a thousand dollars if he liked. Witness thought it was a queer law that would permit him to make such a fee. Dr. McNulty called him a Jew. After returning home he sent the doctor a cheque for one hundred dollars.

To Mr. O'Connell he said he had about one hundred acres of land and some money in the bank. He didn't want charity, but he knew a great many persons, for a similar operation, had only paid from $50 to $100.

Dr. McNulty recalled, produced his College certificate. However, the certificate required by law is that of the Medical Council, received by a physician each year after paying the required annual fee.

The court adjourned to permit Dr. McNulty to secure it.

AN EXPLANATION FROM MR. STOCKER

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Attention is called in the issue of the Examiner of Saturday to the fact that the large posters which are on the boards to advertise the Patriotic Fun campaign, were printed out of the City. These posters are a gift from myself to the campaign. There is no cost whatever to the Fund, either for the printing or posting. The whole is entirely complimentary. As a British subject I conceive it my duty and privilege to do what I can and, as handling posters is my business, I wish to make a contribution in my line of work, if possible.

I was enabled to get these posters from people with whom I have business dealings, and who have a plant for such a class of work alone, where it can be done quickly and at reasonable prices. Having dealings, as indicated, I was enabled to secure these posters at a price at which I am certain the local printers would not have been able to do the work and make a profit and, as the object of all work is to make a profit, nothing has been missed. I have yet to learn that a man may not do as he likes with his own. If the people who are doing the kicking will fall to and do as much as I am doing, though that is not nearly as much as I would like to do, it will be time to raise a row. It is only an instance of jumping at things without making enquiry and ascertaining the facts. Had they asked Mr. Dobbin I am sure he would have told them, though the thing does not call for explanation.

Yours respectfully,

Walter Stocker.

passion or 'suffering together' will do. There must be no shuffling this week. I will not speak of those who have gone to the front as a 'motley crowd' until I have measured up to something like their courage. I will not speak of soldiers' wives as receiving more than they did last year until I have well weighed the sacrifice they are making. I will not speak as though we were handing out charity when I know these sons and husbands are earning more — not getting more — earning more than any business or professional man in this church.

CIRCULAR APPEALS.

This afternoon sixty boys from the ward schools start out on a hustle to deliver all over the City the three thousand circular appeals that have been addressed and enveloped. The routes have been laid out, and by evening every citizen who has been listed will have had before him the appeal. Welcome the boys. They are doing good work.

The Publicity Committee desire to acknowledge the real practical help that has been given to the work by the young ladies and young men attending the Peterborough Business College. They, at the request of the committee, undertook the work of addressing 3,000 envelopes and folding and inserting in the same circular appeals. The work was well and very quickly done, quite to the King's taste, being on the King's business. It all helps. Besides it makes a practical saving in expense, just as the delivery of the circulars by the boys cheats the Post Office of $30 in postage. But these are strenuous times, my Lord, and we must be stirring.

The names and addresses of 276 Old Boys and Old Girls of Peterborough have been hunted up, and an appeal has been sent to each. No Old Boy or Girl in Canada has been asked, that is Peterborough people away from home. It is assumed that each is doing his or her part where they are located, and no doubt they are.

The chairman of the Publicity Committee asks that any one who knows of a Peterborough Old Boy living in the States, that the name and address be 'phoned in to 'phone number 50,000, in order that he may not be overlooked. If he has already been appealed to he will not be a second time. But let no guilty man escape. Send in the names. Do it now.

There is a whole raft of automobiles running around the streets and these might just as well carry a message—about the Big Patriotic Fund, too. So here's where we get busy. Fifty placards of neat size, big enough to cover the front of the radiator on the auto are being printed in red ink. And string supplied to tie them on. The string is to avoid the kick that there is no means of fastening the cotton to the auto.

The first, fast patriotic drivers of autos that drive up in front of the committee rooms will be supplied. Call on Tuesday afternoon. The committee will tie the placards on, and anyway it is all in a good cause. Placards will be reserved by telephone. Just call up 50,000. That's us.

A VISITOR FROM THE WEST

Mr. Manley Ruttan of Calgary is a guest of Mr. W. J. Elliott, 7 Bennett street. Speaking of the West, Mr. Ruttan states that conditions are not so bad as they were at the outset of the war. The first shock has passed over with a consequent relaxation of the money stringency. Business is comparatively normal with few exceptions. Many of the industries of the West have been favoured with large orders for clothing and such equipment as is needed to carry on the war. There has been a very gratifying response to the call for men, and in many cases numbers have been turned down for the reason that more men were enlisted than the requirements called for.

CHURCH OF THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION DEDICATED AND FORMALLY OPENED SUNDAY

Auspicious Inauguration of New Catholic Parish—Large Crowds Present in the Morning and Evening—Bishop O'Brien Officiated Sermons by Bishop Scollard and Father McShane

CONGREGATION DELIGHTED

The Church of the Immaculate Conception was consecrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien on Sunday morning. Stately and significant ceremony invested the elemental service of praise and thanksgiving which forms the theme of the dedication of a Catholic Church to the glory and worship of God. The ceremony was enriched by the splendid vestments and music and the import of the pontifical mass.

The Church was filled to capacity with a congregation from the three Catholic parishes. It offered an agreeable surprise to those who saw it for the first time. It is complete in its incompleteness. Only the basement has been finished, but the emphasis of this fact is gained largely from an exterior view. Basement though it is, the new Church is commodious, well lighted and ventilated and altogether sufficient for the needs of the infant parish.

Beauty of Simplicity.

Simplicity is always pleasing, and in this respect the Church of the Immaculate Conception is decidedly commendable. The walls are of immaculate white. The Altar is plain but its straight lines harmonize with the interior. Two statues in the sanctuary are the only ornaments. The sanctuary looked beautiful however, with an arrangement of green plants and flowers of pale pink and white.

When completed, the edifice will be a large one. Details of its measurements were given at the time of the laying of the corner stone, showing it to be really larger than the Church of the Sacred Heart. To begin with, the seating capacity, when completed, will be more extensive and, even in the basement, there are three main aisles between rows of seats that are of the newest pattern. The pews against the side walls are double. In short, while the Church may not appear imposing from the highway, it is very restful and satisfying from within and, as a temporary place of worship, will more than meet with the present requirements.

Long Expected.

East City residents who have attended St. Peter's Cathedral have for a long time desired a Church in their own neighbourhood. Bishop O'Brien was as cognizant of their needs as he was eager to meet them. And his first concern was for spiritual considerations. Hence, the main walls and roof of the edifice have yet to be raised, and in the meantime, the new congregation is provided with an adequate house of worship in their very midst.

Rev. Dean McColl, who has been placed in charge of the parish east of the river, made his first announcement on Sunday evening. Tuesday is the titular feast day of the new Church. Masses will be held at 5.30 a.m., 7.30 and 9.00 a.m. On Friday evening Bishop O'Brien will place the stations of the cross. Evening devotions will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings. The new Pastor spoke of the patriotic meeting to be held in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, its purposes and other facts, and urged that as many as possible attend. He also pointed out the objects of the fund, and reminded the congregation that they should be generous in their donations.

Crowd at Vespers.

The first Sunday was concluded by Pontifical vespers, with Bishop O'Brien officiating. At fifteen minutes to seven the Church was comfortably filled; five minutes later the accommodation was overwhelmed, and at seven the crowd was still coming. Several hundred stood at the rear of the Church throughout the service. Bishop Scollard of North Bay preached the morning sermon — a scholarly treatise on the history and growth of church buildings and important facts concerning them. Rev. Father McShane of Montreal spoke in the evening, giving an eloquent discourse on the advantages of a parish Church to a community.

In every respect Dean McColl's inaugural Sunday was a complete success. The day itself was graced with the crispy brightness of an ideal December morning and, if it may be taken as a promise of the future, it should be but a short time until the parish and Church of the Immaculate Conception are on an equal footing with the other Catholic Churches of the City.

Bishop Scollard's Sermon.

"My eyes also shall be open, and my ears attentive to the prayer of him that shall pray in this place." Bishop Scollard preached a most timely sermon on this text from the second book of Paralipomenon. The ceremony which had been witnessed, the dedication of a new Church, during which the officiating pontiff offered prayers to the Most High, was a ceremony with soul and substance. It was not a ceremony to merely strike the imagination, but to call the blessing of God upon the building, and to remove the ban which He placed upon material things when He said: "Cursed be the earth in thy work." Hence the Church has ordained certain prayers to be said to take away that ban and consecrate the material to God's holy service.

The Early Temples.

Bishop Scollard went back to the early times when each man was his own sanctuary and his own life and heart his offerings. Then when the hearts of men became corrupted the patriarchs erected bare tables of stone on which they offered up holocausts and sacrifices to God. This form of temple continued for many hundreds of years until God called Abraham to be the father of His chosen people. God called him to the summit of a mountain where, during forty days and nights He made known His wishes. God gave Abraham the plans of the temple which was to be called the tabernacle, in which prayers and sacrifices were to be offered in thanksgiving to God.

The Temple of Jerusalem.

Later on Almighty God considered that man should not only worship Him individually, but also collectively. Hence He announced the plans of the temple of Jerusalem, the materials to be used and the smallest details. It was opened with great ceremony. Twenty thousand victims were offered in sacrifice to God. A mysterious cloud hung within the temple during the days of the opening festivities. Beautiful music resounded through its vaults. All this was a figure of the temple to be raised under the Christian dispensation. Under the old dispensation God was present only in spirit, but here He is really and truly present.

First Christian Temple.

If we wish to know where the first Christian temple was, Bishop Scollard continued, we must find the place where the Saviour began his sacramental life in this world. Turning to the 22nd Chapter of St. Luke we read that Jesus sent St. Peter and St. John to prepare for the passover. They asked where they would prepare for it. And Jesus replied that when they entered the City they would meet a man carrying a pitcher of water. They were to follow him into the house he entered. And to the good man of the house they were to say: the Master saith unto thee, where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the passover with my disciples? And he would show St. Peter and St. John a room which they were to make ready. The two apostles went out as they were bidden and followed the man bearing a pitcher into his house. The master of the house showed them a large chamber already furnished, and they proceeded to prepare the passover. Later the Saviour arrived with the other apostles at the time appointed. Taking bread, Jesus blessed it, and broke it, saying: "Take ye and eat: this is My body." He took wine and blessed it, and gave it to His disciples, saying: "This is the blood of the New Testament; drink ye all of this." Jesus constituted Himself under the appearance of bread and wine.

Here Bishop Scollard said was the first Christian temple, and we believe he continued, that sacramental life, on this earth. We believe that in every temple dedicated to His honour and glory He dwells there.

The Early Christians.

Bishop Scollard referred to what history offered in regard to the practices of the early Christians. It disclosed, he said, that the homes of converted Christians were used similarly to that in Jerusalem.

Jesus dwelt also in the catacombs where the early Christians sought refuge for their worship. From the words of the 2nd Chapter of St. Luke we are convinced of it, said His Lordship, who stated that Jesus had dwelt with the Church, and would continue to do so.

"Do this in remembrance of Me"; "As often as you do ye shall show the death of the Lord until He come."

Bishop Scollard's recital of the events from the grand opening of the Temple of Jerusalem followed gradually and in regular order, closing up the link with the present.

Bishop Scollard spoke of the wonders the new church would work in the souls of the people. The sacraments would be received, mass attended regularly, prayers for guidance and direction in taking up a life work. His Lordship said it was a source of gratification to him to know that the Catholics of Peterborough were keeping pace with the material growth of the city.

Bishop O'Brien.

At the conclusion of the mass Bishop O'Brien spoke briefly. He said he knew the opening of the church was the fulfillment of the hopes of the parishioners in East City. Not only should they give thanks to God that this has now been vouchsafed them. His Lordship said, but he also urged the new congregation to resolve to make full use of the church. He felt that everyone was delighted with the church in its present condition, but hoped the congregation would not become too pleased with it. "It appeals to me, as it is, as being a churchy place. There is something about it that makes you feel in a sacred place."

Bishop O'Brien expressed the hope that the new opportunity of assisting at devotions would be fully accepted.

As many as possible should attend the morning masses during the week. If any had become delinquent he hoped they would return to the duties of their religion becoming good Catholics and citizens. His Lordship thanked all those who had in any way contributed toward the building of the church, especially mentioning the contractor, Mr. Henry Hickey who, he said, had always been ready to please. He thanked Dean McColl for the ceaseless attention to the details and to the plans of the church.

The singing of St. Peter's Choir was a feature of the day. Under the direction of Mr. New the pontifical mass music was ably sung. Soloists were Miss A. Simons, Miss G. Clancy Mis A. Sullivan, Mr. New, Mr. Minnecola, Mr. Hanrahan, Mr. Daly.

FRANCO-BRITISH ARMIES MAKE CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS

Kaiser's Generals Are Reported to Have Given Up All Attempts at an Aggressive Campaign in West—Advance Through Flanders Held Up at Weidenbrest, But Alsace Drive is Brisk.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The end of another week find further substantial progress recorded for the allied troops in Flanders, though their advance appears to have been checked for the present at Weidenbrest, on the outskirts of Langemarck to the northwest of Ypres. According to the French report, part of Weidenbrest still remains in their hands, while the Germans assert the French attacks were repulsed, which is taken to refer to the maintenance of German resistance at this point.

Between Dixmude and Ypres the French have also established a footing on the east side of the Yser canal at the point fiercely contested for the last month. The stubborn and persistent defence of the Germans at this point is illustrated by the statement that the visible results of this advance was the capture of the ferryman's lodge.

Some advantages are claimed by the Germans in the neighborhood of their strong position at La Bassee, where they have lately been hard pressed. Toward Arras the French have held the ground won by them in spite of the resolute bombard by the German heavy artillery.

The following official communication was given out in Paris Sunday afternoon:—

"In Belgium, on Dec. 5, not far from the Hasseur house, the capture of which was reported Saturday (referred to as that of a ferryman on the canal between Dixmude and Ypres), our heavy artillery destroyed a German field fort. The enemy made a vain attempt to recapture Weidendreft.

"On the rest of the northern front there has been an absolute calm.

"It was calm also in the region of the Aisne.

"In the Champagne district our very active artillery successfully counteracted the batteries of the adversary.

"In the Argonne, in the war, the sapper was pursued. We continued to progress slowly, repulsing all the enemy's attacks.

"Slight progress was likewise made in the region southeast of Varennes. The German artillery there has been silenced.

"On the remainder of the front there is no notable occurrence to report."

An official communication issued last night said:—

"The same activity prevailed yesterday as the day before. We have consolidated our position to the north of the house of the ferryman, on the canal between Dixmude and Ypres, which was captured Dec. 4."

It is reported in London that the German people are becoming alarmed over the apparent inability of the Emperor's troops to check the invasion of the empire in East Prussia, in Alsace and in Lorraine.

Since an "invading army that ceases to invade and takes up the defensive" loses its quality of being formidable, so much more does the country whence the invaders came lose cast when it, in turn, is invaded. That is the reasoning employed here by those most conversant with military affairs and, it is believed, the same logic must have struck home even through the Germans' own self-confidence.

Two huge French forces are marching forward victoriously, one pursuing its way northward toward Metz, in Lorraine, while the other is pushing toward the Rhine by way of Altkirch, where the French and Germans, it was reported Saturday, had engaged in a severe struggle that did not stop the French forward movement.

Germany is said to have relinquished all attempts of an aggressive campaign in the west.

In preparation for the battle, the right wing of the army of France has been doubled in strength, and south of Metz an attempt is being made to cut off all communication of the Germans between Metz and St. Mihiel, while later an endeavor will be made to launch an attack on the fortress of Metz itself.

The French in Alsace are making a drive eastward in an attempt to secure control of the Rhine and Rhine Canal, which offers an open road to Strassburg and then to push toward the Rhine, probably in the neighborhood of Breisach.

A new aggressive movement in the direction of Roulers, which stronghold serves as one of the bases of German operations in Belgium, has been organized by the allies, aided in considerable measure by their capture of important positions east of the River Yser.

Toward the east of the great battle front there is a continued recrudescence of the hard fighting. It is evident the struggle is very severe in the trenches in this forest country, and that they have repulsed all counter attacks in Alsace. The renewed importance of the fighting in the region of Muhlhausen is indicated by the German statement that their troops are progressing to the west of Altkirch, though it does not point to any substantial gain, while the French report there is nothing important in either Alsace or Lorraine.

LOYAL INDIANS' GIFTS.

Princes Have Subscribed Huge Sums To War Relief Funds.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) — A telegram from Delhi, India, says:—

All the great native states of India have now expressed regret to the viceroy that Turkey has joined Germany in fighting Britain, under whose benign rule the Moslem has enjoyed perfect religious freedom.

All the ruling princes continue to take the keenest interest in the war. They have now subscribed about $950,000 to the Prince of Wales Relief Fund and the Indian Relief Fund and approximately $4,000,000 to the expenses of the war. This includes $2,000,000 from Nizam of Hyderabad, and $1,600,000 from the Maharaja of Mysore.

A further sum of nearly $150,000 has been given by the chiefs to provide motorcycles, telescopes and kindred equipment, and $120,000 has been given by Maharaja Scindia of Gwalior, who has also presented a motor ambulance corps consisting of 41 cars for the use of the troops in Europe, and is arranging for the establishment of a convalescent home in East Africa.

BERLIN REPORTS THE CAPTURE OF LODZ

German Forces After One of the Most Sanguinary Battles of War Have Effected a Junction of Forces to the East of Lodz—Russian Troops Hold Town of Great Strategic Value.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—According to a wireless despatch from Berlin early this morning, an official announcement has been made by the main headquarters of the army that the Germans occupied Lodz in Poland on Sunday. No word has been received from Petrograd confirming the reported German success.

In the absence of any official contradiction of the German claim, the statement from Berlin is being accepted as a fact here.

The Germans, if the statement be finally verified, paid the price, for it is estimated that the Germans lost in this battle close to 200,000 in killed, wounded and missing.

Information of a reliable character regarding the developments in the battle around Lodz is lacking, owing to delays in transmission of messages because of the storms which have interrupted communication. But it is known that as late as last Thursday the Germans, having failed to pierce the Russian centre, had commenced, with the aid of considerable reinforcements, another attempt to envelop the Russians on both flanks.

In this effort the fighting developed strongly at Ilovo, to the north of Lodz, and at Piotrkov, to the south of the city now reported fallen. Both these positions are much in advance of those just previously reported to have been held by the Germans, and their presence there indicated a rapid advance, threatening Lodz even at that time.

Advices from Petrograd say the town of Rzgow, seven miles south of Lodz, now immortalized by a Russian victory, which for the time has cleared the approach to Lodz from south heights. Rzgow dominates all the locality south of Lodz. Thence the enemy's batteries could command the entire causeway from Lodz to Pabjunice, and the Germans would have threatened Lodz from the north and south and seriously embarrassed Russian operations.

The Siberians did not permit the Germans even to entrench strongly on the occupied hills. They had marched sixty miles, yet begged their commander to allow them to storm the heights the same night. Touched by the heroic spirit of his regiments he sent the tireless Siberians at the enemy, with his blessing.

The Russians approached the hill whereon the Germans were posted, the assault being unexpected, but the enemy speedily recovered, and repulsed the first attacks. Then the Germans attempted to assume the offensive, but were hurled from the summit, strewing the slopes with dead bodies, and retired on Rzgow trenches.

The following bulletin has been issued by the Russian War Office:—

"Nine combats continue to rage on the Lowicz front, notably in the Lodz region, and routes from the west toward Piotrkow. Fire from our machine guns and our artillery caused great loss to the enemy.

"There has been no essential modification of the situation on the remainder of the front.

"The strength of the German forces opposing the Russian left wing is estimated at five corps, occupying a front from eight to ten miles in extent.

"There are indications that, owing to exhaustion of the troops composing the German centre, most of those regiments, which lost a large percentage of their fighting strength, have been withdrawn, or are resting on their arms, and fresher troops are holding the line during a temporary cessation in the battle.

"Despatches from the front attribute the chief cause of the Russian success in thrashing the German forces near Lodz to almost miraculous endurance and tireless aggression of the Siberian troops."

The capture of one of the advanced positions at Przemysl is regarded as conferring a valuable advantage to the Russians in their attack on the fortress. Leaving this city to the attentions of the besieging armies, the Russians are pushing in small bodies steadily across the plains of Hungary, and fugitives are said to be pouring toward Budapest.

Do Not Stop 'Xmas Shopping

Because of The War—Let it be The Same as in The Past

Christmas as usual, in spite of the war, should be a general slogan. It is very desirable that Christmas shopping among the local merchants should be, as in the past. The war certainly ought not diminish Christmas buying, or giving, especially among those who can afford it. There has been a tendency to bring about a panicky stoppage of an ancient and time-honoured custom, but it hoped this will be overcome and neither those who sell Christmas presents, nor the kiddies who, especially look forward to receiving them, will be deprived because of a war, for which they have not in the least been responsible.

LANDSTRUM HAS BEEN CALLED

Second Line of Last Reserves Summoned by Kaiser

VON HINDENBURG LIONIZED

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The News in a despatch from its correspondent at Copenhagen says:—

"Germany is finding events on the east front developing far too rapidly. The General Staff considers the situation over the whole battlefield so serious that they have recommended the calling up of more men. A grand order of the Kaiser, therefore, has been posted in all the towns of Germany announcing that the second line of the Landsturm must be ready for active service on the 20th inst. This means that all men trained or untrained between the ages of 17 and 45 must serve. To allay the depression the great General Staff is doing everything to maintain hero-worship of Gen. von Hindenburg.

"The county authorities of Zarzbe, in Silesia, have unanimously resolved to change the name to the county of Hindenburg, and his consent has been obtained by wire."

The Morning Post's correspondent at Petrograd in the course of a review of the situation in Poland says:

"The German force in this second invasion of Poland is now about as strong, or stronger, than at the outset, although something like half the original numbers have been killed, wounded and taken prisoners. That is to say, Russia has compelled Germany to put into the Vistula-Warta battlefields twice the number of men which the German Grand General Staff reckoned sufficient to accomplish its purpose. And that purpose is no nearer accomplishment now than it was a fortnight ago. Furthermore, the first-line troops have been twice withdrawn from the French front to make a desperate effort here, and in vain. This must have simplified matters for Russia's allies on the western front, and, in fact, we begin to hear again of trenches taken in France."

Good Christmas For Allies.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(Via Northeastern France.)—"We shall have a Christmas present worth while for our people, if things go well," is the remark recently attributed to Gen. Joffre, of the French army and field commander of the allied forces.

From this remark of Gen. Joffre, it is commonly supposed that the allies have some movement of importance planned whereby they expect to come out victorious by Christmastide, or else that the general anticipates a decisive victory to be won by that time along the lines already mapped out.

Belgium's Self-Sacrifice To Save England and France

(By G. K. CHESTERTON)

There are certain quite unique and arresting features about the case of Belgian. To begin with, it cannot be too much considered with a daring stroke of statesmanship—far-sighted, perhaps, but of frightful courage—the King of the Belgians ventured in resisting at all. Of that statesmanship we had the whole advantage, and Belgium the whole disadvantage; she saved France, she saved England — herself she could not save. This is not the case of a little people in Asia or Africa who have no other course but to fight or be exterminated or sold into slavery.

The Belgians had another course; they could have looked the other way while the Prussians crossed the country, so to speak, with their boots off. It is quite clear that even the Prussians, at the very beginning, wished to make it easy for them; the first message from the German diplomatists spoke of respect for independence and sovereignty; the first soldiers from Aix and the Rhineland spoke to the natives of a mere piece of assistance among neighbours. It is true that Germany did not keep it up long. But that is the psychology; and an exceedingly interesting psychology it is.

I do not know what the word "Junker" precisely means—something like "puppy," I imagine — but evidently what the North Prussians call an aristocrat in some sorts of allotropic form of what we call a cad. Now the most sacred stamp and seal of the cad is this—that he cannot be courteous, even when he really wants to be. Even when it is in his interest to smile, he only manages to sneer. A man may smile and smile and be a villain, because villains are often gentlemen — indeed, generally gentlemen.

But if he be a cad as well, he does not smile and smile; he smiles—and stiffens. He is "struck so," as the nurses say. He is the kind of man who manages to get himself disinherited by the very death-bed of his own millionaire mother, for nothing one can define, except that the very shape of his face is irreligious, and that "Amen" sticks in his throat as in Macbeth's. He is of the sort that are kicked out of houses for their heartiness. There are people, certainly, whose conciliation is as rude as their aggression ;and they exist in public as well as private affairs.

In this sense it is true that the attempts of the Prussian to be polite have something about them monstrous and amusing, like a bear on its hind legs. He cannot keep it up—sometimes not even to the end of a sentence. It is particularly entertaining in his appeal to neutral powers. His utterances always end so very differently from the way in which they began. He says, in effect, to a country like Holland:" We salute your delightful dykes. Our culture contemplates your pleasing canals. Your army is under the portection of our never-to-be-broken word—and lucky for it, for one Pomeranian Grenadier could lick all your waddling regiments into the Zuyder Zee."

Having put the Dutchman at his ease, the Prussian turns, let us say, to the Switzer and says: "Schiller has written of William Tell. Hoch the William Tell! How fortunate for that hero that he did not have to face the Krupp howitzer with his little bow and arrow! As you are a neutral power, it will be unnecessary to exhibit our engines for blowing up the Rigi and removing the Lake of Geneva to the Palmen Garten at Frankfort."

Leaving the Switzer in raptures he will turn to the philosophic Dane and say: "My own old, humble, and grateful friend! I will protect you. I protected a bit of you just before 1870; and I'll protect a lot more unless you jolly well do as I tell you. Just look at this gun!"

Without waiting for the delighted thanks of Denmark, he will turn to the United States and offer not to lay waste the whole of that country; or to Italy, and explain when and why he will not hang the Pope. Then, when he finds he is not so popular as he thought, his heart will bleed, and he will say the sword is forced into his hand, and that he "has not a friend in the wide world." Which is probably the case.

It is true, then, that the Prussian style is apt to be awkward, even when the Prussian policy is pacific. I know nothing more characteristic than a phrase which occurred in an excellent German article, an article urging the Germans to abstain from their outrages on ecclesiastical art. It said especially that a certain mediaeval building should be specially sacred because studies were made in it by some German whose name I cannot spell. I know nothing against or about the gentleman, but I think that by the time I had brought myself to act in entire contempt of the House of God and the history of Joan of Arc, the memory of the German gentleman would sit lightly on me.

There is this awkwardness in their most well-meaning efforts. They seem incapable even of apologizing without bragging. But though conciliatory attitudes are a great strain on them and are never kept up for long, that should not make us forget what it is due to Belgium to remember—that the first attitude toward Belgium was, in form, conciliatory, and was kept up just long enough to have allowed Belgium to avoid her heroic trial had she chosen. Fountains of German flattery were doubtless ready to flow for her if she had chosen to facilitate the German plan—however passively and negatively. In a sense she could still have saved her face; but she preferred to save Europe.

This, it seems to me, gives her a claim on our intellectual honour beyond anything that even suffering could extort. She had faith in our policy almost before we had one. She answered for our truth and virtue before we had answered ourselves. For one awful hour she found herself alone in Europe; and yet she answered for Europe. And she answered right. In that enormous circle of silence the first shot from Liege was the answer of Christendom.

That little country, with its pattern of bright fields as tidy as a chess board, with its medley of mediaeval cities as carved and quaint as the chess men, found somewhere in itself and by itself, the voice that is the voice of two thousand years—

Through me no friend shall meet his doom:
Here, where I live, no foe finds room.

It may well be that in the future men may feel little Belgium as a kind of working model of Europe—as Europe is the working model of the world.

This Europe of Europe, this real casket of culture, this essence of Roman Empire, this small nation of which the very cities have been nations, this kingdom within kingdom and republic within republic of accumulated politics and history, has been suddenly turned into a desert—a desert where dwell demoniacs. Of some who have done this work it is seriously not too much to say that they are possessed of devils. They have worked miracles of sacrilege and murder. They have set wandering in the wilderness the whole populations of cities so prosperous and countrysides so settled that the fiend's miracle would have been less if he had set forests and cornfields walking.

No mountain tribe was ever torn up by the Turks and sent adrift to die as this storied and civilized State has been wantonly torn up by its near neighbours. The sufferings of such a race in such a ruin cannot be pictured in terms of any Christian tell; they can be traced in the infernal arabesques of Chinese and Tartar history. There is not a single pang in it that is not too high a price to pay to the Prussians. There is not a pang that Belgium is not paying for our sake; and by her stripes we are healed.

Belgians in Action on Yser Canal.—A detachment of Belgians who foug ht so bravely to hold the Yser Canal. Shells were dropping around as this picture was taken, and the little shed on the right was demolished by a German shell a few minutes later.

THIRD OF ARMY GONE.

Montenegrins Have Suffered Heavily Thus Far in War.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7.—(Via London.)—King Nicholas of Montenegro has telegraphed The Bourse Gazette that a third of his army has fallen on the battlefield.

"Nevertheless," King Nicholas adds in his message, "Montenegrins will continue to defend their country and deliver attacks on the enemy's territory. Their means are exhausted, and they will be most grateful for assistance either in money or supplies."

The war strength of the Montenegrins army is estimated at approximately 50,000 men.

A despatch from Berlin on Dec. 4 stated that, according to an unofficial announcement made there, a number of transports escorted by British and French warships had reached Antivari, the sole seaport of Montenegro. The assumption was that these transports carried troops who would assist the Montenegrins in their campaign.

Trip Over New Line.

CRANBROOK, B.C., Dec. 7.—D. Coleman, general superintendent of the Alberta division of the C. P. R., and other officials left here at daybreak on the first trip to be made over the Kootenay Central to Golden. The opening of the new line connects the Crow's Nest and main lines of the C. P. R. and traverses one of the richest parts of British Columbia.

ROUMANIA TO TAKE PLUNGE

Country Has Definitely Decided to Join Allies, Says Genoa Paper

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—(Via London.)—The Journel de Geneve publishes a despatch from Bucharest which says that Roumania has definitely decided to enter the war on the side with the allies. This decision, according to the despatch, is in accordance with the wish of the entire country, including King Ferdinand and all the Roumanian statesmen with the exception of the Minister of Finance, M. Marghiloman.

The question of when Roumania will make her entry into the conflict is still being discussed, however, one side desiring to avoid a winter campaign; but the military authorities express the fear that Servia may be defeated before the spring.

The attitude of Bulgaria still remains doubtful. Greece, Servia and Roumania have proffered certain concessions, which, however, Sofia seems not to consider a sufficient inducement.

Tunnel Blown Up.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 7.—The great tunnel near Tychjetchar (Takija) has been blown up with dynamite, thus severing communication between Servia and Roumania, according to advices from Nish to The Rotterdam Courant.

Toys For French Children.

MARSEILLES, Dec. 7. — (Via Paris.)—The United States naval collier Jason came into port yesterday and unloaded fifty wagon loads of gifts for the children of Marseilles whose fathers have been killed, or wounded or who are at the front. The townspeople, massed upon the quays to watch the landing, gave a warm greeting to the ship. The Jason left New York Nov. 13, laden with Christmas gifts for the children of the belligerent countries, leaving them at the ports for which they were intended. Her last calling place was Devonport, Eng., whence she steamed Nov. 28 for Marseilles.

German Had Plans of Bases.

ROME, Dec. 7.—A German, named Steiner, bearing an American passport, has been arrested at Gibraltar aboard the steamer Duca D'Aosta, bound from New York for Naples, as a spy. The British authorities at Gibraltar say they found in Steiner's possession, detailed information regarding the British naval bases in the Atlantic.

ITCHING BURNING OF ECZEMA INTENSE

Began on Child's Face. Spread all Over Head. Pimples Would Fester and Break Like Boils. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Elrose, Sask.—"My little boy had eczema when he was about a week old. It began on his face and spread all over his head. It was in pimples and they would fester and break like little boils all over his head, but were like rash on his face. The eczema was very itching and the burning was intense: it made him so restless he could scarcely sleep.

"I tried several ointments and salves and they seemed to do very little good so I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment after he had been sick about a month. When I used Cuticura Soap and a few applications of the Cuticura Ointment I noticed such a difference. He was able to sleep and his face began to get a new skin on it. I kept on using them for three months, and two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment cured him." (Signed) Mrs. A. P. Thayer, July 13, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough and oily skins, itching, scaly scalps, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapdom nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. They do even more for skin-tortured infants and children. Although sold by dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each will be mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

Crews Had Narrow Escape In a Collision

Double Headers Smash Into Each Other Near Keene Saturday

In a head-on collision on the G.T.R. line near Keene on Saturday fourteen employees of the railway, constituting the crews of two freight trains, escaped injury. Three engines were put out of commission, but apart from the damage to the locomotives, neither the rolling stock nor the employees suffered.

That the damage in life and property was so small is due, it is said, to a fortunate circumstance which served to minimize the effect of what would, under other conditions, have been a disastrous wreck. A double-header freight train loaded with grain and going east was divided as usual at Keene bank, just on the other side of Keene, in order to make the grade at that point. The first half of the train was drawn ahead and put on the siding, while the second half was left standing on the line about half a mile on the other side of Keene. A double-header train of empties was about due when the side-tracking of the first half had been effected, so it was decided to back the second half to Keene to allow the west-bound freight to pass. A flagman was left at the siding to tell the west-bound train to steam right through.

The train of empties came along sooner than was expected, and pitched into the two detached engines that were returning to couple to the second half of the other train. Fortunately the two engines had not yet been coupled to the train, so that as they were hit by the east-bound train they were piled up on the track without transmitting the shock to the grain train. The fact that they had not yet coupled up to the second half of the train is responsible for there being no great derailment of cars, but had the engines been attached the impact of the collision would have been terrific and the result vastly more serious than it actually was.

The train crew sighted the engines before they ran them down, and applied the brakes. There was not time to avoid a collision, but the speed of the train was reduced before it struck the locomotives. Engineers William Hutchins and Blair were on the east-bound train, and Engineers Wood and Capstick on the west-bound train. They escaped injury by jumping. On both trains were fourteen men, seven to each train, and none of them were injured. The Lindsay auxiliary was sent to the scene and cleared up the debris. One engine steamed off under its power, two were taken to Lindsay, and the other is still at the place of the accident. The passengers on the Belleville trains were transhipped at Keene and brought here by the Lakefield train in charge of Conductor Jobbin.

Pte. Billy Gibson Says Canadians Are Anxious to get Across The Channel

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, 304 Brock street, have received an interesting letter from their son, Private Billy Gibson, who is with the 57th Contingent at Salisbury Plain in which he tells of the review of the Canadian troops by the King and Queen. Their Majesties passed so close by the Peterborough boys that they could have reached out and touched them. Private Gibson with Pte. Go. Minorgan, also of Peterborough, had an enjoyable visit to London where they were most hospitably entertained. Speaking of the visit he says: "You can see a lot of Belgian soldiers in London. Most of them have been wounded. I've got a Belgian coin that came from one of the wounded fellows. The Germans will certainly get theirs for causing all this suffering.

"It's been raining here to beat the band this last two weeks, and the ground is in an awful state. In most places where the men walk much, there is a foot of mud. We have it right in our tent and you can imagine what it is like when we come in all wet and mud to the eyes. But we're not worrying any, only waiting till we can square up with those 'sausages' across the channel."

ARGOS CHAMPIONS BEAT 'VARSITY 14-2

Toronto Oarsmen Capture Canadian Title After a Hard Game With Students---Better Back Division Won the Argument

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—The Argonaut Rugby Club, a branch of the famous Argonaut Rowing Club, favourably known throughout the four quarters of the globe, achieved the greatest glory on Saturday at the Stadium that any club can acquire, when after eighteen years of a varied career on the gridiron they at last won the Canadian Rugby title, and the Grey Cup which goes with it. It was a proud day for the old and seasoned members of this ancient club, more so than the young gladiators who represented their colours.

It was a fitting finale to a great and glorious season by the Scullers, and their victory was made all the greater by having played three games in seven days, a feat unparalleled in the history of sport, and one that will go down in the annals of the game as the greatest achievement wrought by any team. Two of these games were against aggregations that were fresh and eager for the struggle, and the Argos vanquished them all, and, best of all, their third match was the greatest exhibition.

Argonauts 14, 'Varsity 2, tells the score, while Argos' triumph on the field may be summed up thusly: Ability to secure loose balls, combined with a back division which stood head and shoulders over their opponents. On the line there was not much to choose between the opponents, and very little was gained by either side in straight line plays, although 'Varsity broke through on two occasions for 30 and 40-yard runs. However, these spasmodic runs, one in each half, were the only times that the Collegians showed anything against their Big Four opponents.

Argo Backs Superior.

Argonauts showed a superiority in almost every department, but more especially in the back division. Holmes, O'Connor and Smith were all great in running back punts, and, due to this fact, the Scullers for a good portion of the game had the Collegians backed up against their own line. What caused the Collegians to be fighting almost continually was the fact that their backs muffed repeatedly, and, although they saved in a great many instances, they not only lost ground, but twice were forced to watch the Argos pick up the ball and go over the line for a try, one of which was converted, thus giving the Scullers 11 of their 14 points.

There have been more interesting and spectacular games played than the one on Saturday, but none where the winners had such an element of luck attached to their scoring, and yet on the play deserved to win by a good-sized margin. It was a case of luck siding with the team that deserved it, and, while their points secured at the time might have impressed one as being lucky, yet on the 60 minutes' play no one can say that the better team did not win.

It is just a question whether the constant playing of the Argos was more beneficial to them than if they had been idle for two weeks, like their opponents. Saturday demonstrated that it was Argos who were always on their toes and in a position to take advantage of every misplay by their opponents. In doing this they displayed more snap and ginger in their playing than the Collegians, who seemed to lag on plays on different occasions.

There were many loose balls throughout the game, for the playing of the two teams was not airtight by any means, but with the exception of a couple of cases the Argonauts secured them all, and thus invariably gained a large amount of territory in this manner. There were times durng the second half when the Argo backs began to fumble, but their own man recovered. Had 'Varsity secured they might have proved dangerous, but they didn't. The securing of the loose balls by the Argo backs is a good argument in favour of the three-man back division, as employed by the Scullers and Tigers, as with the trio playing if always gives one man a chance to back up another.

STANDING IN THE Y. M. C. A. BOWLING LEAGUE

In the Y.M.C.A. Bowling League the heavy artillery of Hardill's "Beginners" continues to mow down all opposition, and they now stand out in front with fifteen straight wins to their credit. The Engineers provided the sensation of the week with a 1561 total for three games and a 632 score in a single game in which all three rollers contributed over two hundred. Early, their hook-ball artist, being high with 228. Jardine of the C.G.E. Shop team raised the league record for three games seven pins, making 530.

Important Amendments Were Passed At The O. H. A. Meeting

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—President C. Farquharson presided at the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association, which was held in the Temple Building Saturday morning.

The reports of the President, Executive and Treasurer were presented. The financial statement showed a bank surplus of $6,887.03.

Nearly all the amendments of which notice had been given, were adopted, the most important being as follows:

Students must not only register, but they must be regular legitimate students.

Players living in villages will be allowed to play with the nearest O. H. A. team.

A blank form is to be attached to each player's certificate, showing where he had played during the past three years and how long he has lived in the town he is now playing for.

The Executive was given the right to name two officials for the semi-final games. One will be the referee and the other an assistant.

Overtime is to be limited to thirty minutes of actual play.

Clubs agreeing to abandon games shall be credited with a loss.

Games will be played in three twenty-minute periods instead of two thirty-minute periods.

The sum of $2,000 was voted for the maintenance of an O. H. A. cot in the Sick Children's Hospital, and $1,000 to the Patriotic Fund.

A substitution will be allowed only in the case of a goal-tender, when he is forced to retire on account of injury.

Dr. Taylor of Winnipeg, the President of the newly-formed Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, greeted the O.H.A., and asked Mr. J. Ross Robertson to accept the honorary presidency of the new association. He sketched the formation of the new body, stating that each province would control its own district under a strict interpretation of the amateur rule.

The officers were elected as follows:

President—C. Farquharson, Stratford.
Past President—E. Wettlaufer, Berlin.
Life Member—J. Ross Robertson.
Athletic Union Representative — Francis Nelson.
1st Vice-President — J. T. Sutherland, Kingston.
Second Vice-President — Sheriff J. F. Paxton, Whitby.
Secretary—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.
Treasurer—D. Turner, Toronto, (acclamation).
Executive—5 candidates, 4 to be elected—Messrs. A. E. Copeland, Midland; F. Hyde, Woodstock; C. L. McNab, Orillia, and R. M. Glover, Peterborough—all reelected.

DECORATED ON FIELD.

King Albert and Gen. French Honored—Another V. C. Awarded.

LONDON, Dec. 7. — King George has returned from France, where he visited the British forces at the front. The King arrived at Buckingham Palace Saturday night, after coming from Boulogne to Dover in a torpedo boat.

According to a Flanders despatch, his Majesty decorated King Albert of Belgium with the Order of the Garter after reviewing the Belgian troops.

During his visit in France, King George conferred the Order of Merit on Sir John French, commander of the British forces on the continent.

The Victoria Cross has bestowed upon Private George Wilson, 2nd Battalion Highland Light Infantry, for "most conspicuous gallantry in attacking a hostile machine-gun."

Luxembourgers Hungry.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 7.—Necessaries of life in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg are becoming scarce, and the Government there is trying to arrange with Holland to send supplies. It is hoped that the German authorities, which control the railway lines, will be able and willing to spare some rolling stock for the purpose of carrying consignments of provisions and other necessaries to the people of the duchy.

All Leaders of The Leagues Were Defeated

Reading Defeated by Cardiff City—Glasgow Rangers Scored a Great Victory—English League Tables

Oldham Athletic, the leaders of the First Division of the English League, were trounced Saturday by those old warriors, Sheffield United by 3 goals to 0. This is only the second time the Athletics have been beaten this season in league games. Blackburn Rovers, with another fine victory over Tottenham Hotspurs, are right on the heels of the leaders now, being just two points behind. The win of the Rovers is all the more creditable, as the game was played in the South of England on the "Spurs" ground. Bolton Wanderers defeated Newcastle United at Newcastle, and are in a fair way for mounting the table and leaving the bottom rung of the ladder. To win at Newcastle proves that the "Trotter" team is a good one, and should be in a better position.

Huddersfield, the leaders of the second division of the English League, were also beaten, and by a club which is away down in the league, Lincoln City. The leaders were playing at home, which makes the win all the more creditable to the Lincoln team.

The game at Bury, where the "Muffins" walloped the Woolwich Arsenal team by three goals to one, is a reminder of the old days when the glories of these two famous teams were at the zenith. Derby County is making a great effort to climb out of the second division of the league to the first; they won again to-day. Reading, the leaders of the Southern League, met their "Waterloo" at Cardiff City, being beaten by three goals to two. This is their first defeat, and now no team in the four leagues remains undefeated.

Glasgow Rangers scored a great victory Saturday by defeating St. Mirren by 5 goals to 0. The game was played on the Rangers' ground, and the victory must have delighted the followers of the famous Glasgow team. The Hearts of Midlothian still go merrily on their victorious way, adding another two points to their total by defeating the Hibernians by 3 goals to 0. The "Celts" defeated Aberdeen by scoring the only goal of the match. The teams are almost half-way through the league season, some of them having played 18 matches out of 38. The "Hearts" have been beaten only once, the "Celts" twice, and Morton twice. The two leading teams in the table appear to have the battle for first place between them, but it is still a long way to the end of the 38 matches.

SULLIVAN'S CHALLENGE TO KILRAIN

One of the Greatest Sensations in History of the World

In these days the fight fans are only mildly excited by reports that Jack Johnson will risk his title in combat with Jess Willard. Sam McVey, Sam Langford or some other gladiator of the padded mitts. Things were different in the old red-blooded days, when a match for the big title set millions of tongues to wagging disputatiously all over the sporting world. Perhaps the greatest sensation in ring history was created just twenty-six years ago toldav, Dec. 7, 1888, when John L. Sullivan came out with a challenge to Jake Kilrain to do battle for the world's title. On that historic date the mighty John L. dropped into the office of the New York Clipper, with $5,000 in his pants pocket, and the editor nearly died of heart disease when Sully declared that he was there to post the coin for a battle with Jake. Sullivan's challenge specified a bout under London prize ring rules for $10,000 a side. Jawn added that if Jake didn't come across within two weeks, he, Jawn, would proceed to claim the world's title and the ornate Fox belt.

At first the sporting fraternity feared that this was only a game of bluff, but it quickly became evident that Kilrain was ready and willing, and just a month later the match was finally clinched at a meeting of sporting men held in Toronto.

The fight, which was the last bare knuckle championship battle in America, was set for July 8, 1889, at some point near New Orleans. In the meantime the excitement had reached feverish intensity, and every sport who could beg, borrow or steal the money hiked out for the Crescent City early in July. They were well repaid for the journey, for Kilrain put up a game and gallant battle, and was only defeated after seventy five rounds of the hardest kind of milling.

Sullivan's victory brings up the old question, never settled, of John's claim to the heavyweight championship of the world. Kilrain, who was a resident of Baltimore, but a native of Long Island, and whose real name was John L. Killion, claimed the world's title, and held the Fox belt emblematic of that high honour. Sullivan became the recognised American champion by whipping Paddy Ryan in 1882. Ryan won the title from Joe Goss, who had defeated Tom Allen, who had whipped Mike McCoole and Bill Davis. Kilrain repeatedly challenged Sullivan, but John refused to meet the Baltimore man, and in 1887 Jake was declared the champion and the Fox belt was formally presented to him. This belt was a scrumptious affair, constructed of solid silver and gold, and weighing 200 ounces. In December, 1887, Kilrain defended his new honours and his belt against Jem Smith, the champion of England, in a battle for the championship of the world. They fought on an island in the Seine, near Rouen, France. They fought 106 rounds, until darkness ended the combat. Kilrain was the better man throughout, and, although he got only a draw, he got the first fall, the first knock down, the first blood, and finished much stronger than Smith. The British critics practically agreed that the American was the better man, and that he was fairly entitled to call himself the world's champion. As John L. whipped Kilrain, it would seem that he thus demonstrated his right to the world's premier pugilistic honours. There was certainly no man better entitled to the championship, with the possible exception of Charlie Mitchell, who in 1888 fought Sullivan thirty-nine rounds to a draw.

LACE FROM INDIA WILL BE ON VIEW

The lace from India, which has been brought over by the Mission Band of Murray Street church, will be on exhibition to-morrow (Tuesday) at two o'clock in the ladies' parlour. The proceeds of any pieces that are sold will be sent back to India to be used for missionary purposes there. The public will be perfectly welcome to examine this product of the hands of the Hindu people.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Y.M.C.A. Life Problem Club has had a weekly attendance of about 24 since its organization, one month ago. The president, Wm. Hamilton, presided at an interesting meeting held yesterday at 4.15 at which time reports from the Belleville conference were given by Max Patterson and Hunter Lewis, followed by short remarks by C. S. Meserve. The speakers for the next two Sundays will be Mr. F. E. Ellis, and Dr. Middleton.

Mr. Carson has returned from Moncton, N.B and has assumed his work in the Physical Deaprtment.

Mr. H. D. Cowan's wrestling class which was to have been reorganized this evening has been postponed until next Monday evening.

A meeting of the Board of Directors, which was to have been held Tuesday evening has been postponed on account of the canvass for patriotic funds.

Boys' Department.

The boys' reading room was crowded to hear Mr. Pettit of the Collegiate Institute staff talk to the boys on "Clean Speech, Clean Sport, Clean Living." In opening his remarks Mr. Pettit told the boys what a great pleasure it was for him to meet with the boys away from the school, where they could meet, not as teacher and pupil, but where they could meet together in the Y.M.C.A. trying to help build up strong, healthy, manly men.

Mr. Pettit was well received by the boys and his remarks will have an everlasting effect on the lives of those who heard him.

Reports of the boys' conference at Belleville were also heard from Gerald McClelland, Reg. Brown, Arthur Lewis and Roy White.

Friday night, Dec. 11th 'Mr. Brock will give an illustrated lecture in the boys' rooms. Mr. Brock is a great favourite with the boys and his lecture Friday night will be one that will prove very interesting and instructive.

Business boys' gymnasium class tonight at 7 p.m. Mr. Elmer Brown, leader.

FOLLOWING UP THE IMPETUS.

That was a straight-from-the-shoulder jab made by the President of the Eastern Townships Associated Board of Trade, not long ago, Robert C. Wilkens of Granby, P. Q., was the man who delivered it. He crammed more practical philosophy into about five hundred words on that occasion than the celebrated pork-packer did in the letters to his son.

After noting that the only industry now working on full time in Germany is the establishment for the manufacture of widows and orphans, of which the Kaiser is President, and Managing Director, he pointed out what a great impetus had already been given to many lines of Canadian industry by the demands arising out of the war. In this category he mentioned boots, saddlery, pulp and paper, cloth ing, medical preparations, woollens, and explosives. Since that time the list has been extended. But there is enough in these alone to give the Made-in-Canada movement a start. And that is only the beginning.

With so much of a start caused by the ill wind that blows somebody some good, it is simple and easy for Canadians to keep the ball rolling. We are now well over the first dislocation caused by the war. We have taken hold of the problem as never we did any problem in this country before. In tackling the war itself we unconscious put ourselves in position to work out our own salvation. We have discovered that while Canada is a part of the world's financial nerve system, she is at the same time so plentifully endowed by nature that in a crisis like the present by buying Made-in-Canada goods she is able to keep her factories busy and her prosperity keyed up, while the only factories busy full time in Germany are the Krupp Works at Essen and others like them.
